Grayson, William, was born in Prince William County, Virginia; received a classical education in England, graduating at the University of Oxford, and studying law at the Temple in London; returning home, he practised law at Dumfries, Virginia; was appointed aide-de-camp to General Washington August 24, 1776; entered the Revolutionary army as colonel of a Virginia regiment January 1, 1777; distinguished himself at the battle of Monmouth; was appointed a delegate to the Continental Congress 1784-1787; was a member of the Virginia Convention of 1788 on the adoption of the Federal Constitution, and was one of the minority which opposed its ratification; was appointed one of the senators from Virginia to the First Congress; took his seat May 21, 1789, and served until he died at Dumfries, Virginia, on his way to New York, then the seat of government, March 12, 1790.

Grayson, William J., was born at Beaufort, South Carolina, November 2, 1788; received a classical education, graduating at South Carolina College in 1809; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Beaufort; was appointed a commissioner in equity; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1813, and of the State Senate in 1831; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, defeating Colonel Alston; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress without opposition, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was collector of customs at Charleston 1841-1843; engaged in planting, and died of illness following a paralytic stroke at Newberry, South Carolina, October 4, 1863. He published "The Hiring and the Slave," "Chicova, and other Poems," "Marion," "The Life of J. L. Petigru," and was a contributor to "The Southern Review."

Greeley, Horace, was born at Amherst, New Hampshire, February 3, 1811; received a public-school education; was apprenticed to the art of printing at Poultney, Vermont, 1826-1830; worked as a journeyman printer in Erie, Pennsylvania, and after August, 1831, in New-York City; commenced publishing "The Morning Post," the first one-cent daily paper, January 1, 1833, but it was soon discontinued; published "The New-Yorker," a literary weekly, 1834-1841; edited a Whig campaign paper, called "The Log Cabin," in 1840; founded "The New-York Tribune," April 10, 1841, and edited it until his death; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress (in place of David S. Jackson, whose seat was declared vacant) as a Whig, receiving 9,932 votes against 6,326 votes for Bradurst, Democrat, and 1,681 votes for Townsend, Democrat, and serving from December 4, 1848, to March 3, 1849; visited Europe in 1851, and was chairman of one of the juries at the World's Fair; visited California, by way of Kansas and Utah, in 1859; was a presidential elector on the Lincoln and Johnson ticket in 1864; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1867; advocated universal amnesty and universal suffrage at the close of the Rebellion, and offered himself as bail for Jefferson Davis in May, 1867; was appointed by President Johnson, in November, 1867, minister to Austria, and was confirmed, but declined; was nominated in 1872 by the Reform Republicans at Cincinnati, and by the Democrats at Baltimore, as President of the United States, but was defeated by U. S. Grant; he lost his reason, and died in an asylum near the city of New York November 29, 1872. He published "Hints toward Reforms," "Association Discussed," "Glances at Europe," "Art and Industry as represented in the Exhibition at the Crystal Palace," "History of the Struggle for Slavery-Extension from 1787 to 1856," "History of the American Conflict," "Recollections of a Busy Life," "Overland Journey from New York to San Francisco," "Essays on Political Economy," and many pamphlets and magazine articles.

Green, Byram, was born in the State of New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1816, 1817, 1819, 1820, and 1822; was a State senator 1823, 1824; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,446 votes against 5,611 votes for Adams, Whig, and 274 votes for Gaylord, Abolitionist, and serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; resided at Sodus.

Green, Frederick W., was born in Maryland; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Tiffin, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,224 votes against 643 votes scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,198 votes against 2,095 votes for Goodman, Whig, and 768 votes for Samuel, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Green, Innis, was born in Pennsylvania; received an academic education; resided at Dauphin; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1820, to March 3, 1831.

Green, Isaiah L., was born in Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1781; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Ninth Congress, and was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809; was again elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; held several local offices; and died in 1841.

Green, James, was born at Dauphin, Pennsylvania; received a common-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829.

Green, James S., was born in Fauquier County, Virginia, February 28, 1817; received a public-school education; removed to Alabama, and thence to Missouri, where he was admitted to the bar in 1840, and commenced practice at Canton; was a presidential elector in 1844 on the Polk and Dallas ticket; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1845; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was chargé d'affaires to Colombia May 24, 1853–August 13, 1854, and was commissioned as minister resident June 29, 1854, but did not present his credentials; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, but did not take his seat, having been elected a United-States senator from Missouri as a Democrat, serving from January 21, 1857, to March 3, 1861; died at St. Louis, Missouri, January 19, 1870.

Green, Willis, was born in the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia; received a public-school education; located in that part of Virginia then known as Kentucky County, but which afterwards became the State of Kentucky; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1792; was a surveyor for locating land-warrants; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1836–1837; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving a majority of 400 votes over William T. Willis, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 4,687 votes against 2,064 votes for the Democratic candidate; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,218 votes against 4,984 votes for McCreery, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845.

Greene, Albert Collins (brother of General Nathanael Greene), was born at East Greenwich, Rhode Island, in 1792; received an academic education; studied law in New York, where he was admitted to the bar; returned to Rhode Island, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816, 1822–1825, serving the last year as speaker; was brigadier-general and subsequently major-general of militia; was attorney-general of Rhode Island 1825–1843; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; was again a member of the State House of Representatives and of the State Senate; and died at Providence January 8, 1863.

Greene, George W., was born in Orange County, New York, July 4, 1831; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1860, and commenced practice at Goshen, New York; was school commissioner for Orange County; was judge of the Orange-county courts 1861–1864; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,620 votes against 11,298 votes for Van Wyck, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to 1870. His election was successfully contested by Charles H. Van Wyck, who took his seat February 17, 1870.

Greene, Ray, was born in Rhode Island; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Providence; was attorney-general of Rhode Island 1794–1797; was elected a senator from Rhode Island (in place of William Bradford, resigned), serving from November 22, 1797, to 1801, when he resigned.

Greene, Thomas M., was born in Virginia; removed to Mississippi Territory, and located at Bruinsburg, where he became an extensive planter; enjoyed the personal friendship of General Jackson; was elected a delegate from Mississippi Territory in the Seventh Congress (in place of Naisworthy Hunter, deceased), serving from December 6, 1802, to March 3, 1803.

Greenup, Christopher, was born in Virginia, and removed to Kentucky when it was the "dark and bloody ground," locating at Frankfort; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Second Congress, and was successively re-elected to the Third and Fourth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1797; was governor of Kentucky 1804–1808; was a presidential elector on the Madison and Clinton ticket in 1809; died at Frankfort, Kentucky, April 24, 1818.

Greenwood, Alfred B., was born in Franklin County, Georgia, July 11, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Georgia at Athens; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bentonville, Arkansas; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1842–1845; was State prosecuting-attorney 1845–1851; was circuit-judge 1851–1853; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,939 votes against no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving no regular opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,399 votes against 6,161 votes for Thomason, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859; was commissioner of Indian affairs May 13, 1859–April 13, 1861; was a representative from Arkansas in the Confederate Congress.

Gregg, Andrew, was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, June 10, 1755; received an academic education; was for several years a tutor in the University of Pennsylvania; was engaged in mercantile pursuits at Middletown 1783–1789; became a farmer in the wilderness; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Second Congress, and was re-elected to the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1807; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1813, a portion of which time he was president pro tempore of the Senate; removed to Bellefonte in 1814; was appointed secretary of state for Pennsylvania in 1816; died at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, May 20, 1835.

Gregg, James M., was born in Patrick County, Virginia, June 26, 1806; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Danville, Indiana:

was county-surveyor of Hendrick County 1834-1837; was clerk of the Circuit Court 1837-1845; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,787 votes against 10,840 votes for Coburn, Republican, serving from December 7, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Gregory, Dudley S., was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to New York, where he was engaged in the iron-mines of the Adirondack region; settled in Jersey City, where he was identified with the legal State lotteries; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,322 votes against 4,962 votes for Cassidy, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; held several local offices; died at Jersey City, New Jersey, December 8, 1874.

Greig, John, was born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, August 6, 1779; was educated at the Edinburgh High School; emigrated to America in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1804, and commenced practice at Canandaigua, New York; was president of the Ontario Bank 1820-1856; was a regent of the State University 1825-1853, serving as vice-chancellor from 1845; was one of the founders of the Ontario Female Seminary; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig (in the place of Francis Granger, resigned to accept the office of postmaster-general), serving from May 31, 1841, to September 25, 1841, when he resigned, that Francis Granger (who had been superseded as postmaster-general) might again be elected; was president of the Ontario Agricultural Society; died at Canandaigua, April 9, 1858.

Grennell, George, jun., was born in Greenfield, Massachusetts, December 25, 1786; received a classical education at Deerfield Academy, and graduated at Dartmouth College with the highest honors in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1811, and commenced practice at Greenfield; was prosecuting-attorney for Franklin County 1820-1828; was a member of the State Senate 1824-1827; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-first Congress as a Whig, and was re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1839; was a trustee of Amherst College on the part of the Commonwealth 1838-1859; was judge of probate 1840-1853; was clerk of the Franklin-county courts 1853-1865; was one of the original corporators of the Troy and Greenfield Railroad, and its first president; and, after a serene old age, died at Greenfield, Massachusetts, November 20, 1877.

Grey, Benjamin E., was born in Kentucky; received an academic education; studied law, and commenced practice at Hopkinsville; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1838-1839; was a member of the State Senate 1847-1851; was speaker of the Senate and acting lieutenant-governor in 1850; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,839 votes against 4,125 votes for Jennings, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,076 votes against 6,408 votes for Davie, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Grider, Henry, was born in Garrard County, Kentucky, July 16, 1796; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bowling Green; served as a private in the war of 1812; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827 and 1831, and of the State Senate 1833-1837; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Union Whig, receiving 10,392 votes against 3,111 votes for Lewis, Secessionist; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,654 votes against 1,293 votes for Winfrey, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,528 votes against 4,871 votes for Lowry, Union Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to September 14, 1866, when he died, in Warren County, Kentucky.

Griffin, Cyrus, was born in Virginia in 1749; was sent to England to receive a classical and legal education, and while there married a lady belonging to a noble family; returning to Virginia, he was prominent in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a member of the Colonial House of Burgesses; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1778-1781 and in 1787-1788, and its president in 1788; was president of the Supreme Court of Admiralty from its creation to its abolition; was commissioner to the Creek nation in 1789; was judge of the United-States District Court for the district of Virginia from December, 1789, until his death at Yorktown, Virginia, December 14, 1810.

Griffin, Isaac, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817.

Griffin, John K., was born at Milton, South Carolina; received an academic education; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-second Congress as a State-rights Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1841; died at Milton, South Carolina, August 1, 1841.

Griffin, Samuel, was born in Virginia; received a classical education; studied law, and practised; was elected a representative from Virginia to the Second Congress; was re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1795.

Griffin, Thomas, was born in Virginia; received a classical education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805.

Griffith, Samuel, was born in Wales, Great Britain, February 14, 1816; was educated by a private teacher and at Alleghany College, Meadville; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and engaged in active practice at Mercer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,146 votes against 13,337 votes for C. W. Gillfillan, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Grimes, James W., was born at Deering, New Hampshire, October 20, 1816; was educated at Hampshire Academy and at Dartmouth College, New Hampshire, graduating in 1836; studied law, and commenced its practice in Iowa; was elected to the General Assembly of Iowa in 1838, and was re-elected for several years; was governor of Iowa from 1854 to 1858; was elected United-States senator from Iowa in 1859 as a Republican (to succeed George W. Jones, Democrat), and was re-elected in 1865, serving from March 4, 1859, to March 3, 1871; he founded a professorship in Iowa College at Grinnell, and furnished free tuition perpetually for several students there and at Dartmouth College, and he established a free public library at Burlington; soon after leaving the Senate he had a stroke of paralysis, but a European tour improved his health; soon after his return he died at Burlington, Iowa, of heart disease, February 7, 1872.

Grinnell, Joseph, was born at New Bedford, Massachusetts, November 17, 1788; was educated at private schools and at Friends' Academy; received a mercantile training in his father's counting-room; removed to New York in 1809; commenced business as a commission-merchant, and continued it until 1820, when he retired; travelled in Europe, and, on his return, removed back to New Bedford; was a member of the governor's council 1839-1841; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 297 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 3,806 votes against 1,788 votes for Coffin, Democrat, and 468 Abolition and scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,719 votes against 2,476 votes for Howland, Democrat, and 1,199 for Fessenden, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851; was president of the New-Bedford and Taunton Railroad, of the First National Bank, and of the Wamsutta cotton factory.

Grinnell, Josiah B., was born at New Haven, Vermont, December 22, 1821; received a classical and theological education; removed to Iowa in 1855, and engaged largely in agricultural pursuits, devoting himself especially to wool-growing; was a member of the State Senate for four years; was a special agent of the Post-office Department for two years; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,900 votes against 11,529 votes for Martin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 16,916 votes against 10,592 votes for Ira C. Mitchell, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Grinnell, Moses H., was born at New Bedford, Massachusetts, March 3, 1803; received an academic education; entered a counting-room at New York in 1818; made several voyages as supercargo; became a partner in the house of Fish, Grinnell, & Co., which in 1832 became the house of Grinnell, Minturn, & Co., and from which he retired in 1860; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 20,563 votes against 19,205 votes for C. C. Cambreleng, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Whig candidate to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 20,993 votes against 22,010 votes for J. J. Roosevelt, Democrat; was a presidential elector on the Fillmore and Dayton ticket; was president of the Chamber of Commerce, president of the Merchants' Clerks' Savings Bank, a commissioner of charities and corrections, a member of the original Central-park Commission, and a member of the Union Defence Committee; was collector of the port of New York March, 1869-July, 1870; died of heart-complaint at New York November 24, 1877.

Griswold, Gaylord, was born in Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1787; removed to Herkimer, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1796-1798; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805.

Griswold, John A., was born at Nassau, New York, in 1822; received an academic education; engaged in mercantile pursuits, and became a large manufacturer of iron and Bessemer steel; was mayor of the city of Troy in 1850; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,226 votes against 10,939 votes for Dodd, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,251 votes against 12,928 votes for William A. Van Alstyne, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,689 votes against 10,373 votes for Millman, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869; was defeated as the Republican candidate for governor of New York in 1868 by John T. Hoffman, Democrat, who received a majority of 27,946; died at Troy, New York, October 31, 1872.

Griswold, John A., was born in Greene County, New York, in 1827; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Greene County; was district-attorney of Greene County 1856-1859; was county-judge 1864-1868; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,201 votes against 11,692 votes for Cornell, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Griswold, Roger, was born at Lyme, Connecticut, May 21, 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1780; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1783, and commenced practice at Norwich; removed back to Lyme in 1794; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fourth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1805; was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Connecticut in 1807; was a presidential elector on the Pinckney and King ticket in 1809; was lieutenant-governor of Connecticut 1809-1811, and governor 1811-1813; removed in 1814 to Norwich, Connecticut, and died there October 25, 1812.

Griswold, Stanley, was born at Torrington, Connecticut, November, 1768; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1786; studied theology; was pastor of the church at Milford, Connecticut, 1790-1802; preached a short time at Greenfield, Massachusetts; became the editor of a Democratic paper at Walpole, New Hampshire, in 1804; was appointed by President Jefferson secretary of the Territory of Michigan in 1805; removed to Ohio; was appointed a United-States senator from Ohio (in place of Edward Tiffin, resigned), serving from June 2, 1809, to January 12, 1810, when his successor took his seat; was appointed United-States judge for the North-west Territory; died at Shawneetown, Illinois, August 21, 1815.

Groesbeck, William S., was born in New York in 1826; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cincinnati, Ohio; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1851; was a commissioner to codify the laws of Ohio in 1852; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,738 votes against 4,343 votes for Gurley, Republican, and 3,229 for Harrison, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was a member of the Peace Congress of 1861; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1862; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; was one of the counsel of President Johnson when he was impeached before the Senate in 1868.

Gross, Ezra C., was born in Windsor County, Vermont; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Vermont in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Elizabethtown, New York; was surrogate of Essex County 1819-1821; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1828 and 1829; and died at Keeseville, New York, August 6, 1829.

Gross, Samuel, was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1823.

Grosvenor, Thomas P., was born at Pomfret, Connecticut, in 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hudson, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1810-1812; was elected a representative from New York in the Twelfth Congress (in place of Robert LeRoy Livingston, resigned) as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from January 29, 1813, to March 3, 1817.

Grout, Jonathan, was born at Lunenburg,

Worcester County, Massachusetts, July 23, 1737; served in the colonial expedition against Canada 1757-1760; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Petersham, Massachusetts, where he owned a valuable farm, which he carried on; served in the Revolutionary war; was somewhat identified with Shays's rebellion; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the First Congress, after several trials, as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; became pecuniarily embarrassed, and left Massachusetts in 1803, residing much of his time at Lunenburg, Vermont; and died at Dover, New Hampshire, while attending to professional business there, September 8, 1807.

Grove, William B., was born in North Carolina, and was a representative from that State in the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1803.

Grover, A. P., was born in Ontario County, New York, February 18, 1819; removed to Kentucky in 1837; received a collegiate education at Centre College; studied law, and commenced practice in 1843 at Louisville, Kentucky; was a member of the State Senate of Kentucky in 1858, 1859, 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, 1864, and 1865; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,118 votes against 2,417 votes for Jacob, Conservative, and 742 for Ballitt, Radical, serving from December 3, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Grover, Lafayette, was born at Bethel, Oxford County, Maine; received a classical education; was two years at Bowdoin College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1850, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; removed to Oregon; was elected by the Territorial legislature prosecuting-attorney for the Second Judicial District, and as auditor of public accounts for the Territory 1851-1852; was elected a member of the legislature in 1853; was appointed by the Department of the Interior as a commissioner to audit the spoliation claims growing out of the Rogue-river Indian war in 1854; was again elected a member of the legislature in 1855, at which session he served as speaker of the House; was appointed by the secretary of war as a member of the board of commissioners to audit the Indian-war expenses of Oregon and Washington in 1856; was a delegate to the convention which framed the constitution of Oregon in 1857; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,859 votes against 4,199 votes for Kelly and 47 for McBride, Republicans, and serving from February 15, 1859, to March 3, 1859; was chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee 1856-1870; was elected governor of Oregon in 1870 for the term of four years; was re-elected in 1874, and served until February 1, 1877, when he resigned, having been elected to the United-States Senate as a Democrat (to succeed James K. Kelly, Democrat), and took his seat March 8, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Grover, Martin, was born in the State of New York; received an English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Angelica, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Native-American Democrat, receiving 9,115 votes against 8,893 votes for Cady, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was elected, in November, 1857, a justice of the Supreme Court for an unexpired term of two years, and was elected in 1859 for a full term; was elected in 1867 judge of the Court of Appeals; and, when that branch of the New-York judiciary was re-organized, he was elected an associate judge in 1870 for a term of fourteen years; he died at Angelica, New York, August 23, 1875.

Grow, Galusha A., was born at Ashford, Connecticut, August 31, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at Amherst College in 1844; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and commenced practice at Ashford; removed in 1848 to Glenwood in Pennsylvania, which was in the famous "Wilmot District;" was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,880 votes against 5,730 votes for Adams, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,062 votes against 495 votes for Horton; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,325 votes against 5,361 votes for Sherwood, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 11,165 votes against 3,359 votes for Joel Parkhurst, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 14,922 votes against 5,984 votes for Sherwood, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1863. During the Thirty-seventh Congress he served as speaker of the House; was a delegate to the National Republican Conventions which nominated Lincoln and Grant; removed to Philadelphia in 1869, and engaged in manufacturing; was elected in 1872 president of a Texas railroad, and removed to that State, where he resided until 1877, when he returned to Pennsylvania.

Grundy, Felix, was born in Berkeley County, Virginia, September 11, 1777; when he was two years of age his family removed to Brownsville, Pennsylvania, and thence, in 1780, to Kentucky; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the Kentucky Constitutional Convention of 1799; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1800-1805; was chosen judge of the Supreme Court of Kentucky in 1806, and soon afterwards chief justice; removed to Nashville, Tennessee, in 1807; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twelfth Congress as a War Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, receiving 3,058 votes against 769 votes for Cannon, Whig, serving from November 4, 1811, to 1814, when he resigned; was a member of the Tennessee House of Representatives 1815-1819; was elected a United-States senator from Tennessee (in place of John H. Eaton, resigned), serving from December 7, 1820, to July 4, 1838, when he resigned; was appointed by President Van Buren attorney-general of the United States, serving from July 5, 1838, to December 1, 1840, when he resigned, having again been elected United-States senator. Having doubts as to whether he was eligible, he returned to Tennessee; and, becoming an "inhabitant" of the State, he was again elected December 14, 1840; but he died at Nashville, Tennessee, December 19, 1840.

Gunckel, Lewis B., was born at Germantown, Ohio, October 15, 1826; graduated at Farmer's College in 1848, and at the law-school of Cincinnati College in 1851; was admitted to the bar the same year, and has been in active practice in Dayton ever since; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1856; was a member of the Senate of Ohio during the sessions of 1862, 1863, 1864, and 1865; was a presidential elector in the Ohio Electoral College of 1864; was appointed by Congress one of the managers of the National Asylum for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers in 1864, and re-appointed for a term of six years in 1870; was appointed United-States commissioner to investigate Indian frauds in 1871; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,604 votes against 14,627 votes for J. J. Winans, Liberal Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,312 votes against 15,411 votes for J. A. McMahon, Democrat.

Gunn, James, was born in Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Savannah, Georgia; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia in the First Congress; and was re-elected, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1801.

Gunter, Thomas Monticue, was born in Middle Tennessee, September 18, 1826; received a classical education, graduating at Irving College in 1850; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fayetteville in 1853; was a delegate from Washington County in the Arkansas State Convention of May, 1861; served in the Confederate army as colonel of the Thirteenth Arkansas Volunteers; was elected prosecuting-attorney for the Fourth Judicial Circuit in 1866, and held the office until his official position was terminated by the reconstruction of the State in 1868; contested the seat of W. W. Wilshire in the Forty-third Congress, and the House declared that he was entitled to it June 16, 1874; was re-elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,828 votes against 791 votes for W. L. Landers, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,355 votes against 4,167 votes for Huckleberry, Republican, serving from June 16, 1874.

Gurley, Henry H., was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, in 1787; received a classical education, graduating at Williamstown College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Baton Rouge, Louisiana; was United-States judge for the district of Louisiana; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Eighteenth Congress, defeating W. S. Hamilton; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress without opposition; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 137 majority over W. S. Hamilton; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1831; died at Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in 1832.

Gurley, John A., was born at East Hartford, Connecticut, December 8, 1813; received an academic education; studied theology; was ordained as pastor of a Universalist church at Methuen, Massachusetts, 1834-1837; removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was pastor of a society, and editor of "The Star in the West;" retired from the ministry in 1850; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,343 votes against 5,738 votes for W. S. Groesbeck, Democrat; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,054 votes against 7,203 votes for W. S. Groesbeck, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 8,469 votes against 7,586 votes for Long, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was appointed by President Lincoln governor of Arizona, and was on his way there, when he died suddenly at Cincinnati, Ohio, August 19, 1863.

Gustine, Amos, resided at Mifflintown, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat (in the place of William S. Ramsey, deceased), serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Guthrie, James, was born in Nelson County, Kentucky, December 5, 1792; was educated at McAlister's Academy, Bardstown, Kentucky; commenced life in the Mississippi-river trade, buying up the produce of the country, and taking it to New Orleans in flatboats, returning by land either on foot or on horseback; studied and practised law at Bardstown, Kentucky; in 1820 moved to Louisville with an appointment from the governor as Commonwealth's attorney; was a member of the legislature of Kentucky for a number of years, first as representative, and afterwards as senator; was elected a delegate to and chosen president of the convention that framed the new constitution of Kentucky; was president of the University of Louisville, of the Louisville and Portland Canal Company, and of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company; was appointed secretary of the treasury in 1853; was elected United-States senator from Kentucky as a Democrat (to succeed L. Powell), serving from March 4, 1865, to February 7, 1868, when he resigned on account of ill health; died at Louisville, Kentucky, March 13, 1869.

Guyon, James, jun., was born in Richmond County, New York, in 1777; received an academic education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1812-1814; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress, having successfully contested the election of Ebenezer Sage, serving from January 14, 1820, to March 3, 1820; died on his ancestral estate in Richmond County, New York, March 8, 1846.

Gwin, William M., was born in Summer County, Tennessee, October 9, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University, Lexington, Kentucky; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and removed to Mississippi; was appointed United-States marshal for Mississippi in October, 1833; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 23, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was superintendent of the erection of the Custom House at New Orleans; removed to California in 1848; was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1849; was elected one of the first United-States senators from California as a Democrat, serving from September 10, 1850, to March 3, 1855; was re-elected a senator, serving from February 16, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was identified with the Southern Confederacy, and with the Mexican imperial government of Maximilian as the leader of a proposed southern emigration to Sonora; returned to California, and engaged in agricultural pursuits.

Gwinnett, Buton, was born in England in 1732; received an academic education; immigrated to America in 1770, and settled at Charleston, where he engaged in commercial pursuits; removed to St. Catherine's Island, Georgia, and became a planter; was prominent in the ante-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1775-1776, and was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in February, 1777; was an unsuccessful candidate for governor of Georgia; was mortally wounded in a duel with General McIntosh May 15, 1777, and died May 27, 1777.

Habersham, John, was born at Savannah, Georgia, in 1754; received a good English education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was major of the First Georgia Continental Regiment; was a member of the Continental Congress from Georgia 1785-1786; was collector of customs at Savannah 1789-1799; died at his residence, near Savannah, November 19, 1790.

Habersham, Joseph, was born at Savannah, Georgia, July 28, 1751; received a thorough English education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was one of the original Sons of Liberty in July, 1774; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements, and in several seizures of royal munitions of war; served in the Revolutionary army as major, and afterwards as lieutenant-colonel of the First Georgia Battalion; was a member of the State Assembly and its speaker in 1785 and 1790; was postmaster-general of the United States February 25, 1795-November 28, 1801; was president of the branch of the United-States Bank at Savannah from 1802 until the expiration of its charter; died at Savannah, Georgia, November 17, 1815.

Habersham, Richard W., was born at Savannah, Georgia, in 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1805; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Clarksville, Habersham County; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a State-rights Democrat, receiving 32,150 votes against 30,967 votes for Iverson, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 39,379 votes against 35,496 votes for Edward J. Black, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, until his death at Clarkesville, Georgia, December 2, 1842.

Hackett, Thomas C., was born in Georgia; received a public-school education; resided at Rome; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,773 votes against 5,864 votes for Calhoun, Whig, and serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Marietta, Georgia, October 8, 1851.

Hackley, Aaron, jun., was born at New Haven, Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Herkimer, New York; was a member of the New-York State House of Representatives 1814, 1815, and 1818; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821.

Hagans, John Marshall, was born at Brandonville, Virginia, August 13, 1838; received an academic education; attended the law-school at Harvard University, and was admitted to the bar in 1859; was elected prosecuting-attorney for Monongalia County, West Virginia, in 1862; was re-elected in 1863, 1864, and 1870; was appointed law-reporter of the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia in January, 1864, and held the position until the 4th of March, 1873; was elected mayor of Morgantown in 1866, 1867, and 1869; was the elector on the Republican ticket for the Second Congressional District during the presidential contest in 1868; was elected a delegate for the County of Monongalia to the convention which framed the present constitution of West Virginia in October, 1871; and was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-third Congress in August, 1872, as a Republican, receiving a majority of 2,841 over his competitors, serving from January 27, 1874, to March 3, 1875; his election was unsuccessfully contested by Benjamin F. Martin.

Hager, John S., was born in Morris County, New Jersey, March 12, 1818; was graduated at Princeton College, New Jersey, in 1836; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and practised law at Morristown, New Jersey; went to California in 1849; in 1852 was elected to the State Senate from the city and county of San Francisco, and served two years; in 1855 was elected State district-judge for the district of San Francisco, and served six years; in 1865, and again in 1867, was elected to the State Senate from San Francisco, and served six years; in 1871 was elected a regent of the University of the State of California; was elected United-States senator from California as an Anti-Monopoly Democrat (for the unexpired term of Eugene Casserly, resigned), and served from February 9, 1874, to March 3, 1875.

Hahn, John, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from that State in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Hahn, Michael, was born at Klingeminster, Bavaria, November 7, 1830; his family emigrated in the following year to New-York City, where they remained until 1840; they then removed to Texas, and soon after to New Orleans; received a public-school education; studied law in the office of Christian Roselius; was admitted to the bar before he was twenty-one, and commenced practice at New Orleans; was appointed a notary under the Confederate-States Government, and took an oath of allegiance to the Southern Confederacy; when the Union forces captured New Orleans he repudiated this oath, and identified himself with the reconstruction movements; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, receiving 2,581 votes against 1,450 votes for Durell, Unionist, and 436 votes for Jacob Barker, Secessionist, and serving from February 17, 1863, to March 3, 1863; was governor of Louisiana 1864-1868.

Haight, Charles, was born at Colt's Neck, New Jersey, January 4, 1838; graduated at Princeton College in 1857; studied and practised law; was a member of the State legislature of New Jersey in 1861 and 1862, serving the last year as speaker of the House; was commissioned as brigadier-general of militia in 1861, and was active in raising troops during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,825 votes against 13,476 votes for Newell, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,299 votes against 15,494 votes for Rusling, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871.

Haight, Edward, was born at New York March 26, 1817; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was president of the Bank of the Commonwealth, and a director of several charitable institutions; resided at Westchester; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,389 votes against 9,832 votes for Nelson, Republican, and serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Haile, William, was born in 1797; removed to Mississippi, and settled at Woodville; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of Christopher Rankin, deceased), and was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 1,265 votes against 1,016 votes for Bingham, and 911 votes for Grayson, serving from December 4, 1826, to 1828, when he resigned; died at Woodville, Mississippi, March 7, 1837.

Hailey, John, was born in Smith County, Tennessee, August 29, 1835; received a limited common-school education; removed with his parents to Missouri in 1848; left home in 1853, and went to Oregon; left Oregon in 1863, and settled in Idaho; and was elected a delegate from Idaho in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,699 votes against 1,654 votes for J. W. Huston, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Haldeman, Richard J., was born at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, May 19, 1831; studied in the academy and at Captain Partridge's military school at Harrisburg; graduated at Yale College, Connecticut, in August, 1851; the same year he visited Europe, and studied a short time in the universities of Berlin and Heidelberg; in 1853 he went with Hon. John Y. Mason, United-States minister to France, as attaché of legation in Paris, and later accompanied Hon. Thomas H. Seymour in a similar capacity to St. Petersburg; he travelled throughout Scandinavia, Central and Southern Europe, and the Far East; in 1857 purchased "The Daily and Weekly Patriot and Union" in Harrisburg, and edited it until 1860; in 1860 he was a delegate to the Charleston and Baltimore conventions; he was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,818 votes against 12,519 votes for Small; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,866 votes against 10,416 votes for W. B. Raber, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Hale, Artemas, was born at Winchendon, Massachusetts, October 20, 1783; worked on a farm until he was twenty-one years of age, receiving a public-school education; taught school at Hingham 1804-1814; removed to Bridgewater, where he engaged in manufacturing; was a member of the State Senate and House of Representatives for several years; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1853; was elected a Representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-ninth Congress (in the place of Isaac C. Bates, deceased) as a Whig, and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 4,937 votes against 3,718 votes for Hooper, Democrat, and 1,205 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from December 7, 1846, to March 3, 1849; was a presidential elector on the Lincoln and Johnson ticket in 1864.

Hale, Eugene, was born at Turner, Maine, June 9, 1836; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1857, and commenced practice at Ellsworth; was for nine successive years county-attorney for Hancock County; was a member of the legislature of Maine in 1867 and 1868; was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,363 votes against 11,677 votes for Wiswell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,806 votes against 8,876 votes for P. J. Carleton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,181 votes against 10,918 votes for F. A. Pike, Liberal Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,695 votes against 8,226 votes for C. A. Spofford, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,089 votes against 12,178 votes for W. H. McLellan, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869. He declined the office of postmaster-general offered him by President Grant in June, 1874, and by President Hayes in March, 1877.

Hale, James T., was born in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, October, 1810; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania; was appointed president-judge of the Twentieth Judicial District; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,238 votes against 7,349 votes for White, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,907 votes against 10,243 votes for Fleming, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 9,272 votes against 8,855 votes for Armstrong, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; died at Bellefonte, Pennsylvania, April 7, 1865.

Hale, John Parker, was born at Rochester, New Hampshire, March 31, 1806; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1827; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Dover, New Hampshire; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832; was appointed by President Jackson in 1834 United-States attorney for the district of New Hampshire, and was removed by President Tyler in 1840 for party reasons; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was re-nominated by the Democrats as their candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress, but his views against the annexation of Texas on antislavery grounds caused the Democratic leaders to pronounce him a traitor, call a new convention, and nominate another candidate; he ran as an Independent candidate, receiving 3,137 votes against 5,388 votes for Woodbury, Democrat, and 4,357 votes for Goodwin, Whig (there being no choice, the district was unrepresented); was again elected to the legislature in 1846, and was chosen speaker; was elected a United-States senator as an Antislavery man, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was nominated in 1852 as the Free-soil candidate for the presidency against Franklin Pierce, Democrat, and Winfield Scott, Whig, receiving 157,685 votes, of which 440 were from the slave States; at the expiration of his senatorial term the Democrats were in power, and he was not re-elected; he devoted the ensuing two years to professional duties in New-York City, but retained his residence in Dover; was elected again in 1855 to the United-States Senate for the short term, and re-elected for the long term, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1865; he was appointed by President Lincoln minister to Spain, serving March, 1865-July, 1869; returning to Dover, his health became impaired, which he ascribed to the results of the National-hotel poisoning; and he met with two accidents, which caused him great pain until he died at Dover, New Hampshire, November 18, 1873.

Hale, Robert S., was born at Chelsea, Vermont, September 24, 1822; graduated at the University of Vermont in 1842; studied law, and, after having been admitted to the bar, practised at Elizabethtown, New York; was judge of Essex County, New York, from 1856 until 1864; was appointed a regent of the University of New York in 1859; was a presidential elector from the Twenty-first District of New York in 1860; was special counsel of the United States, charged with the defence of the "abandoned and captured property claims" from 1868 to 1870; was agent and counsel for the United States before the American and British Mixed Commission under the Treaty of Washington from 1871 to 1873; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Orlando Kellogg); and was elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,025 votes against 8,174 votes for R. Heaton, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Hale, Salma, was born at Alsted, New Hampshire, March 7, 1787; learned the art of printing in the office of "The Walpole Farmer's Museum," and in 1805 became the editor of "The Walpole Political Observatory;" studied law with Hon. Roger Vose; was appointed clerk of the Cheshire-county Court of Common Pleas, and removed to Keene in 1813; was elected as a Democrat to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1819, and declined a re-election; was clerk of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire from May, 1817, until May, 1834; was admitted to the bar in October, 1834; was secretary to the Boundary Commission appointed under the Treaty of Ghent; was several times a member of the New-Hampshire Senate and House of Representatives; died at Keene November 19, 1866. He published the "Annals of Keene," a "History of the United States for Schools," and other works.

Hale, William, was born at Dover, New Hampshire; received a thorough English education; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was again elected to the Thirteenth Congress on the Peace ticket headed by Daniel Webster, receiving 18,583 votes against 16,066 votes for D. L. Merrill, War Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died at Dover, New Hampshire, November 8, 1840.

Haley, Elisha, was born at Mystic, Connecticut; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Hall, Augustus, was born at Batavia, New York, April 29, 1814; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and commenced practice at Marysville, Ohio, in 1837; was county-attorney 1840-1842; removed to Kessauque, Iowa, in 1844; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,221 votes against 11,042 votes for R. G. B. Clarke, Republican, and serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; his election was unsuccessfully contested by Mr. Clarke; was appointed by President Buchanan chief justice of Nebraska; died near Bellevue, Nebraska, February 1, 1861.

Hall, Bolling, was born in Georgia in 1789; received a classical education from a private tutor; held several local offices; was for four years a member of the State legislature; was elected a repre-representative from Georgia in the Twelfth Congress as a War Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 13,126 votes; was re-elected to the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congresses from March 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817; retired to private life; removed to Alabama, where he engaged in planting, near Montgomery, and died March 25, 1836.

Hall, Chapin, was born at Ellicott, Chautauqua County, New York, July 12, 1816; received a public-school education; removed to Warren, Pennsylvania; engaged in lumbering and mercantile operations; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,905 votes against 8,111 votes for James L. Gillis, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Hall, George, was born at New Haven, Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Onondaga, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821.

Hall, Hiland, was born at Bennington, Vermont, July 20, 1795; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1819, and commenced practice at Bennington; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827; was State's attorney 1828-1831; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Congresses, receiving at the last election 5,211 votes against 4,328 votes for John Roberts, Democrat, and 138 scattering; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 6,381 votes against 4,116 votes for Daniel Kellogg, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1843; was State bank-commissioner 1843-1846; was judge of the State Supreme Court 1846-1850; was second comptroller of the treasury November 27, 1850-September 10, 1851; was United-States land-commissioner for California 1851-1854; returning to Vermont, he resided on the farm on which he was born; was governor of Vermont 1859; was a delegate to the Peace Congress of 1861. He published the History of Vermont.

Hall, Joseph, was born in Essex County, Massachusetts, June 26, 1793; received an academical education at Andover; removed to Camden, Maine, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a sheriff, and held other local offices; was for four years postmaster at Camden, Maine; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 1,600 majority, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was navy agent of the port of Boston 1849-1853; was a clerk in the Boston Custom House; died in 1857.

Hall, Lawrence W., was born in Lake County, Ohio, in 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Hudson College in 1839; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Bucyrus; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1851-1856; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,561 votes against 9,382 votes for Watson, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was imprisoned for alleged disloyalty in 1862; and died, shortly after his release, at Bucyrus, Ohio, January 26, 1863.

Hall, Lyman, was born in Connecticut in 1725; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1747; studied medicine; was licensed to practise, and established himself at Sunbury, Georgia; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements, and was a member of the conventions held in 1774 and 1775; was sent as a delegate to the Continental Congress in March, 1775, by the parish of St. John's; he was elected in July by the whole province, and was re-elected several times, serving until 1780, when he was called home by the invasion of the State by the British, who confiscated his property; was governor of Georgia in 1783; and died in Burke County, Georgia, October 19, 1790.

Hall, Nathan K., was born at Marcellus, New York, March 28, 1810; received an academical education; studied law at Buffalo with Millard Fillmore; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Buffalo as a member of the firm of Fillmore, Hall, & Haven; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was appointed by Mr. Fillmore postmaster-general, serving from July 23, 1850-August 31, 1852; was appointed United-States district-judge for the western district of New York, and held the position until his death at Buffalo, New York, March 2, 1874.

Hall, Obed, was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twelfth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813.

Hall, Robert B., was born at Boston, Massachusetts, January 28, 1812; received a liberal education; studied theology, and was ordained; was one of the twelve original members of Garrison's Antislavery Society in 1832; removed to Plymouth, Massachusetts; was a member of the State Senate in 1855; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 5,335 votes against 2,238 votes for Thomas D. Elliot, Whig, and 854 votes scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,094 votes against 1,830 votes for Moses Bates, jun., Democrat, and 1,601 votes for Daniel Fisher, Abolitionist, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; was a delegate to the Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; died at Plymouth, Massachusetts, of apoplexy.

Hall, Thomas H., was born in Edgecombe County, North Carolina, in 1733; received a classical education; studied medicine, and practised medicine at Tarborough; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1825; was defeated for re-election by Richard Hines; was again elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1835; was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina in 1836; died at Tarborough, North Carolina, June 30, 1853.

Hall, Willard, was born at Westford, Massachusetts, December 24, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1799; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1803, and commenced practice at Wilmington, Delaware; was secretary of state of the State of Delaware 1811-1814; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; was again secretary of state in 1821; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822; was United-States district-judge for the district of Delaware 1823-1872, when he resigned; and died at Wilmington, Delaware, May 10, 1875. He published a revision of the State laws of Delaware in 1829.

Hall, Willard P., was born in Virginia; removed to St. Joseph, Missouri; was elected a representative from that State in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 10,840 votes against 4,418 votes for Samuel, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,606 votes against 5,505 votes for Bowman, Whig, and 3,826 votes for Gardenhire, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was lieutenant-governor of Missouri in 1861-1862, and acting governor.

Hall, William, was born in Virginia in 1774; received an English education; removed to Green Garden, Tennessee; served in the Indian wars, and commanded a regiment of Tennessee riflemen under General Jackson in the war of 1812; was for a number of years a member of the State legislature, and, as speaker of the Senate, became governor of Tennessee on the resignation of Governor Sam. Houston in 1820; was major-general of militia; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 114 majority over Robert M. Barton, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; died at Green Garden, Tennessee.

Hall, William A., was born in Maine; was taken in early childhood to Virginia, and removed thence to Missouri in 1841; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844; was appointed a judge of the Circuit Court in 1847; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1861; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-seventh Congress (in place of John B. Clark, expelled) as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 6,244 votes against 5,534 votes for Green, Republican, serving from January 20, 1862, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864.

Hallock, John, jun., was born in Orange County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816, 1817, 1820, and 1821; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829.

Halloway, Ransom, was born in Dutchess County, New York; received a thorough English education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,301 votes against 1,681 votes for Bailey, Democrat, and 4,333 votes for Gannun, Cass Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Mount Pleasant, Maryland, April 6, 1851.

Halsey, George A., was born at Springfield, New Jersey, December 7, 1827; was educated at Springfield Academy; established himself in Newark as a manufacturer in 1844; was a member of the State Assembly of New Jersey in 1861 and 1862; was United-States assessor of internal revenue from 1862 until 1866; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,782 votes against 11,847 votes for Gilchrist, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869; and was again elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,092 votes against 14,694 votes for O. Cleveland, Democrat, and 630 votes for Fitzpatrick, Independent Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Halsey, Jehiel H., was born at Lodi, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was a member of the State Senate 1832-1835.

Halsey, Nicoll, was born in Seneca County, New York; resided at Trumansburg; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1824; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835.

Halsey, Silas, was born in the State of New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives from Onondaga County 1796-1798, and from Cayuga County 1800-1804; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was a State senator in 1809.

Halsted, William, was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1812; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was refused admission to the Twenty-sixth Congress, although he had a certificate of election with the broad seal of the State; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 28,192 votes against 27,951 votes for Philemon Dickerson, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Hambleton, Samuel, was born in Talbot County, Maryland, in 1812; was educated at the county academy; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Easton; was a member of the State House of Delegates in 1834, 1835, and 1853; was a member of the State Senate from 1844 to 1850; was an elector of President and Vice-President in 1844; was the president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in 1853 and 1854; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,703 votes against 4,606 votes for Torbet, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,314 votes against 13,348 votes for H. R. Torbet, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Hamer, Thomas L., was born in Pennsylvania; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1821, and commenced practice at Georgetown, Ohio; served for several years in the Ohio House of Representatives, and was one year its speaker; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839; while a representative he nominated U. S. Grant, the son of a constituent, to be a cadet at West Point; served in the Mexican war, volunteering as a private, and receiving the next day the commission of brigadier-general; died, while in the service, at Monterey, Mexico, December 3, 1846.

Hamill, Patrick, was born in the Green Glades, Alleghany County, Maryland, April 28, 1817; was educated at private schools; was appointed collector of taxes in 1841 and 1842; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Maryland in 1843 and 1844; was appointed and served for three years as judge of the Orphans' Court of Alleghany County, and was then elected, and served for four years more; declined a nomination to the State convention in 1852; engaged in farming and mercantile pursuits; was re-elected in 1867 chief judge of the Orphans' Court of Alleghany County; and was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,239 votes against 11,653 votes for Weisel, Radical, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Hamilton, Alexander, was born in the Island of Nevis, British West Indies, January 11, 1757; was a counting-house clerk at Santa Cruz; was sent to the United States to be educated in 1772; was a student at King's (now Columbia) College 1773-1776; entered the Continental army in March, 1776, as captain of artillery; was appointed aide-de-camp by General Washington March 1, 1777, and served until February, 1781; was elected as a Federalist a member of the Continental Congress, and served from November, 1772, until the autumn of 1783; was a member of the convention at Annapolis in 1786 that laid the foundation of the general convention adopting the Constitution; was a member of the legislature of the State of New York in 1787; was a member of the Constitutional Convention which met at Philadelphia in 1787; engaged in the practice of law at New-York City; was secretary of the treasury under President Washington from September 11, 1789, until February 3, 1795; resumed practice at New York; declined the position of chief justice; was appointed by General Washington inspector-general and second in command of the army in 1798; was distinguished as a political writer; was mortally wounded by Aaron Burr in a duel at Hoboken, and died at New York the next day, July 12, 1804. He published "The Federalist," of which he wrote the larger half; and his works, edited by his son, were published in seven volumes.

Hamilton, Andrew H., received a common-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fort Wayne: was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,318 votes against 12,683 votes for Taylor, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,142 votes against 12,777 votes for Bonham, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Hamilton, Andrew J., was born in Madison County, Alabama, January 28, 1815; received a public-school education; was clerk of the Circuit Court; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at La Grange, Texas, in 1846; was attorney-general of Texas; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from Texas in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,499 votes against 15,961 votes for Waul, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was appointed by President Lincoln military governor of Texas in 1862, and provisional governor by President Johnson in 1865; was a delegate to the Loyalists' Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; resided at Washington as a claim agent; and died at Austin, Texas, April 11, 1875.

Hamilton, Charles M., was born in Clinton County, Pennsylvania, November 1, 1840; received an academic education; studied law; entered the Union army as a private in 1861; participated in sixteen battles, and was wounded at Gaines's Mill, at Antietam, and at Fredericksburg; was appointed a lieutenant in the Veteran Reserve Corps in October, 1863; was detailed as judge-advocate, and served in that capacity until 1865; was appointed assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Freedmen and Refugees; commenced the practice of law in 1868; was elected a representative from Florida in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 7,863 votes against 3,846 votes for Barnes, Democrat, and 831 votes for Sanders, Independent, serving from July 1, 1868, to March 3, 1871.

Hamilton, Cornelius S., was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, January 2, 1821; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice, paying at the same time some attention to farming, banking, and editing a newspaper; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1856; was appointed an assessor of internal revenue; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,710 votes against 9,858 votes for Reid, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867; he was summoned home to see a grown son, who had suddenly become insane, and was killed by that son at Marysville, Ohio, December 21, 1867.

Hamilton, James, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1789; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Charleston; served in the war of 1812 as major on the Canadian frontier; was for several years mayor of Charleston; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of William Lowndes, resigned) as a State-rights Free-Trader; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from January 6, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was governor of South Carolina 1830-1832; was general of the State troops raised under the Nullification Act; removed to Texas, and took an active part in securing her recognition as a republic by England and France in 1841; aided in procuring the admission of Texas into the Union; was elected United-States senator from Texas; was drowned on his passage from New Orleans to Galveston (the steamer "Opelousas," on which he was, having been run into by the steamer "Galveston") November 15, 1857. He was one of the founders of "The Southern Quarterly Review."

Hamilton, John, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1763; was high sheriff of that county for several years; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; died at his home in Washington County, Pennsylvania, August 31, 1837.

Hamilton, Morgan C., was born in the territory west of Georgia, near what is now Huntsville, Alabama, February 25, 1809; received a country-school education at intervals from labor; was brought up to and followed mercantile pursuits; removed to the republic of Texas in 1837; was a clerk in the War Department from 1839 until April, 1845, acting as secretary of war the greater portion of the last three years; was appointed comptroller of the treasury of the State by the commander of the Fifth Military District in September, 1867; was elected a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1868; was elected United-States senator from Texas as a Republican on the reconstruction of Texas; took his seat March 31, 1870; and was re-elected, serving until March 3, 1877.

Hamilton, Robert, was born at Hamburg, Sussex County, December 5, 1816; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to practice as an attorney in 1836, and as a counsellor in 1840; was appointed prosecutor of pleas, and filled that office fifteen years; was a member of the State legislature in 1863 and 1864, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,458 votes against 10,994 votes for F. A. Potts, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,585 votes against 9,931 votes for Charles Place, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Hamilton, William T., was born in Washington County, Maryland, September 8, 1820; received an academic education, and was at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hagerstown; was a member of the State legislature in 1846; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,307 votes against 7,191 votes for T. J. McKaig, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,863 votes against 6,626 votes for Roman, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,545 votes against 6,429 votes for Thomas, Independent, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855; was elected United-States senator from Maryland as a Democrat (in place of W. P. Whyte, who had been appointed in place of Reverdy Johnson, resigned), and served from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875.

Hamlin, Edward S., resided at Elyria, Ohio; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-eighth Congress (in place of Henry R. Brinkerhoff, deceased), serving from December 2, 1844, to March 3, 1845.

Hamlin, Hannibal, was born at Paris, Maine, August 27, 1809; was prepared for a collegiate education, but was obliged, by the death of his father, to take charge of his home-farm until he was of age; was a year in a printing-office as a compositor; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1833, continuing in active practice at Hampden until 1848; was a member of the legislature of Maine 1836-1840 and 1847, presiding as speaker of the House in 1837, 1839, and 1840; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress by Elisha H. Allen, Whig, who received about 250 majority in a poll of nearly 15,000; was elected a representative from Maine as a Democrat in the Twenty-eighth Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was elected United-States senator in 1848 for four years (to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of John Fairfield); was re-elected in 1851, but resigned in 1857 to act as governor; was again elected United-States senator in 1857, and served until January, 1861; having been elected Vice-President on the ticket with Abraham Lincoln, he presided over the Senate from March 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was appointed collector of the port of Boston in 1865, but resigned in 1866; served as a regent of the Smithsonian Institution 1861-1865, and was appointed again in 1870; was again elected United-States senator, and re-elected, serving from March 4, 1869. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Hammett, William H., was born in Virginia; received a classical education; studied theology; was chaplain at the University of Virginia; was chaplain to the House of Representatives; removed to Mississippi, and settled at Princeton; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Hammond, Edward, was born at Ellicott's Mills, Maryland; received a liberal education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,903 votes against 4,456 votes for George W. Gray, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,434 votes against 2,968 votes for Lynch, Independent, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Hammond, Jabez D., was born at New Bedford, Massachusetts, August 2, 1778; received a public-school education; taught school; studied medicine; was licensed to practise, and established himself at Reading, Vermont, in 1799; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cherry Valley, New York, in 1805; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was a State senator 1817-1821; removed to Albany, and practised there 1822-1830; was commissioner to settle the claims of New York on the Federal Government 1825-1826; visited Europe in 1831, and on his return settled again at Cherry Valley; was elected judge of Otsego County in 1838; and died at Cherry Valley, New York, August 13, 1855. He published "History of Political Parties in the State of New York," "Julius Melbourn," and "Life and Times of Silas Wright."

Hammond, James Hamilton, was born in Newbury District, South Carolina, November 15, 1837; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice; was appointed a member of the governor's staff, and aided in organizing the nullification forces raised in 1833; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to February 16, 1836, when he resigned; was governor of South Carolina 1842-1844; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina, serving from December 7, 1857, to November 11, 1860; retiring from the Senate, he resumed the charge of his large landed estates on the coast; died at Beach's Island November 13, 1864. He published "The Proslavery Argument," and a "Sketch of the Life of Calhoun."

Hammond, Robert H., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Milton; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,227 votes against 5,407 votes for James Merrill, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841.

Hammond, Samuel, was born in Richmond County, Virginia, September 21, 1757; received a good English education; served with the Colonial forces in the Indian war; was prominent in pre-Revolutionary movements; served in the Revolutionary army, distinguishing himself at King's Mountain, the Cow-Pens, and Eutaw; settled at Savannah after independence was secured; was surveyor-general of Georgia; commanded a corps of Georgia volunteers in the Creek war; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was civil and military governor of Upper Louisiana Territory 1805-1824; was during the latter portion of this time receiver of public moneys at St. Louis; removed to South Carolina in 1824; was a member of the State legislature; was surveyor-general 1825; was secretary of state of South Carolina 1831-1835; and died near Augusta, Georgia, September 11, 1842.

Hammons, David, was born in Oxford County, Maine, in 1807; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and commenced practice at Lovell, Maine; was a member of the State Senate 1840-1841; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,430 votes against 3,521 votes for Hopkins, Whig, and 1,185 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; resumed practice at Bethel, Maine.

Hammons, Joseph, was born at Farmington, New Hampshire, received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-first Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was appointed postmaster at Dover in June, 1833.

Hampton, James G., was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1835; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,440 votes against 6,053 votes for Ellsler, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,472 votes against 4,344 votes for Thompson, Democrat, and 1,151 votes for Hollis, American, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849.

Hampton, Moses, was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, October 28, 1803; removed with his parents, when young, to Trumbull County, Ohio; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College, Pennsylvania; studied law at Uniontown; was admitted to the bar in 1829; commenced practice at Somerset, and removed in 1838 to Pittsburgh; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,666 votes against 6,613 votes for S. W. Black, Democrat, and 200 votes for D. McLaughlin, Free-Soiler, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; and, declining to be a candidate for re-election, was elected president-judge of the Alleghany-county District Court in 1853.

Hampton, Wade, was born in South Carolina in 1754; received a thorough English education; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; raised a company of light horse, with which he served under Marion and Sumter; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; was a presidential elector on the Jefferson and Burr ticket in 1801; was again elected to the Eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; entered the United-States army as colonel in October, 1808; was promoted to be brigadier-general in February, 1808, and major-general in March, 1813; served on the Northern frontier in the war with Great Britain, and resigned April 6, 1814; became the proprietor of very large plantations, and was the owner of more than three thousand slaves when he died at Columbia, South Carolina, February 4, 1834.

Hanchett, Luther, was born in Portage County, Ohio, October 25, 1825; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice at Fremont; removed to Portage County, Wisconsin, in 1849; engaged in lumbering and lead-mining; was for four years county-attorney; was a member of the State Senate 1856-1860; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 36,223 votes against 23,008 votes for Keymert, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, until his death at Madison, Wisconsin, November 26, 1862.

Hancock, George, was born in Virginia in 1755; received a classical education from private tutors; served in the Revolutionary war as colonel of infantry; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; died at Fotheringay, Virginia, after a brief illness, August 1, 1820.

Hancock, John, was born at Quincy, Massachusetts, January 12, 1737; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1754; was trained to mercantile pursuits in the counting-room of his uncle, whose large fortune and extensive business he afterwards inherited; was for several years one of the selectmen of Boston; was a member of the Provincial legislature 1766-1772; was prominently identified with pre-Revolutionary measures, and, together with Samuel Adams, was exempted from pardon in Governor Gage's proclamation June 12, 1775; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1775-1780 and 1785-1786, serving as president May 27, 1775-October, 1777; was commissioned senior major-general of the Massachusetts militia February 6, 1778, and in the following August commanded a division in the expedition against Rhode Island; was a member of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention of 1780; was governor of Massachusetts 1780-1785 and 1787, until his death at Quincy October 8, 1792.

Hancock, John, was born of Virginia parents in Jackson County, Alabama, October 29, 1824; was educated partly in Alabama, and partly in Tennessee; studied law at Winchester, Tennessee, and was admitted to the bar in 1846; settled in Texas in 1847, practising his profession there until August, 1851, when he was elected to the district bench of the State, and served as judge until 1855, when he resigned, and resumed practice and planting; was a member of the State legislature in 1860 and 1861, when he refused to take the oath of allegiance to the Confederate States, and was expelled; was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1866; was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-second Congress, defeating E. Degener, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,587 votes against 11,024 votes for W. O. Hutchinson, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress without any opposing candidate, serving from December 2, 1872, to March 3, 1877.

Hand, Augustus C., was born at Shoreham, Vermont, in 1806; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Elizabethtown, New York; was surrogate of Essex County 1831-1839; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,480 votes against 4,436 votes for T. A. Tomlinson, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was a member of the State Senate 1845-1848; was a justice of the State Supreme Court 1848-1856; resumed the practice of his profession; died at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, March 8, 1878.

Hand, Edward, was born in Pennsylvania, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1784-1785.

Handley, William A., was born near Franklin, Georgia, December 15, 1834; removed when young to Alabama; received a public-school education; was when a youth a United-States mail-carrier for two years, afterward a post-office clerk in connection with mercantile business, and then for many years a contractor for the conveyance of the United-States mails, which made the postal laws and regulations his especial study; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Roanoke, Alabama; was in the service of the Confederate States as a civil and military officer 1861-1865; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving about 4,000 majority over B. W. Norris, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; his election was unsuccessfully contested by B. W. Norris.

Hanks, James M., was born at Helena, Arkansas, February 12, 1833; received a public-school education; was a student at the college at New Albany, Indiana, and afterward at Jackson College, Columbia, Tennessee, where he completed the course of study, with the exception of Greek, in 1851; studied law; graduated at the law department of the University of Louisville in 1855; commenced practice, and continued it at Helena until the breaking-out of the war; was opposed to secession, and took part in the last canvass prior to hostilities as a Union man; was elected judge of the First Judicial District of Arkansas in 1864 upon the re-organization of the State, and remained upon the bench until August, 1868; and was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,318 votes against 7,748 votes for Roots, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Hanna, John, was born in Marion County, Indiana, September 3, 1827; received a classical education, graduating at Indiana, Asbury University, in 1850; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Greencastle; was mayor of Greencastle 1851-1854; removed to Kansas, and was a member of its Territorial legislature in the winters of 1857 and 1858 from the then county of Lykins, now known as Miami; returned to Indiana; was presidential elector on the Lincoln and Hamlin ticket in 1860; was appointed United-States district-attorney for the district of Indiana by President Lincoln in 1861, and re-appointed by him in 1865, but, when the breach occurred between President Johnson and the Republican party, his denunciation of the policy of the administration was followed by his removal; he has since devoted his time exclusively to the practice of law at Indianapolis, and was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,634 votes against 18,236 votes for Franklin Landers, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Hanna, John A., was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from that State in the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1805.

Hanna, Robert, was born in Laurens District, South Carolina, April 6, 1786; removed with his parents to Indiana, and subsequently settled in Brookville in 1802; was sheriff of the Eastern District of Iowa in 1809, and held the position until the organization of the State Government; was appointed register of the Land Office, and removed to Indianapolis in 1825; was appointed a United-States senator from Indiana as a Whig (in place of James Nobles, deceased), serving from December 5, 1831, to January 3, 1832, when his successor took his seat; was elected a State senator, but was defeated when a candidate for re-election; was killed by a railroad train while walking on the track at Indianapolis November 19, 1858.

Hannegan, Edward A., was born in Ohio; received an academic education at public schools in Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Covington, Indiana; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was minister to Prussia March 22, 1849-January 13, 1850; killed his brother-in-law, Captain Duncan, in 1852, while intoxicated; removed to St. Louis, Missouri, and died there February 25, 1859.

Hanson, Alexander Contee, was born in Maryland; received a liberal education; was a presidential elector on the Washington and Adams ticket in 1789 and 1793; edited "The Federal Republican" at Baltimore, when in 1812, a mob, irritated by his articles denouncing the administration, destroyed his printing-office; he persisted in issuing his paper the next day, and the house in which he printed it was attacked, and, after a fight, he and his friends were escorted to jail, where the mob again attacked them, and nearly killed him; he removed "The Federal Republican" to Georgetown, District of Columbia, where he published it unmolested; returning to Baltimore, he was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 914 majority, and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to January 2, 1817, when he took his seat as a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Robert G. Harper, resigned), serving to April 23, 1819, when he died at Belmont, Maryland.

Hanson, John, was born in Charles County, Maryland, in 1715; received a thorough English education; was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, with the exception of a few years, 1757-1781; removed to Frederick County in 1773; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary measures; was commissioned treasurer of Frederick County June 21, 1775; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress from February 22, 1781, until his death, serving one year as President, and, as such, thanking General Washington for his victory at Yorktown; died November 22, 1783, at Oxen Hill, Prince George County, Maryland, while on a visit to his nephew, Thomas Hanson.

Haralson, Hugh Anderson, was born near Penfield, Georgia, November 13, 1805; was reared on a farm, and received a classical education, graduating at Franklin College in 1825; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1825 by a special act of the legislature; commenced practice at Monroe, and subsequently located at La Grange, Georgia; was a member of the State Senate in 1837 and 1838; was defeated as a Democratic candidate for Congress on general ticket in 1840; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 35,163 votes against 38,827 votes for Augustus H. Kenan, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, the State having been districted, receiving 5,771 votes against 5,214 votes for Floyd, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851; served in the militia, attaining the rank of major-general; was a prominent Freemason; and died at La Grange, Georgia, October 6, 1854.

Haralson, Jere, was born in Muscogee County, Georgia, April 1, 1846, the slave property of John Walker; after Walker's death, was sold on the auction-block in the city of Columbus, and bought by J. W. Thomson, after whose death he became the property of J. Haralson of Selma, and so remained until emancipated in 1865; received no education until after he was free, when he instructed himself; was elected to the State House of Representatives of Alabama in 1870; was elected to the State Senate of Alabama in 1872; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,551 votes against 16,953 votes for F. G. Bromberg, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,875 votes against 9,885 votes for Charles L. Shelley, Democrat, and 7,236 votes for James T. Rapier, Republican.

Hard, Gideon, resided at Albion, New York; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was a member of the State Senate 1842-1847.

Hardeman, Thomas, jun., was born in Bibb County, Georgia, January 12, 1825; received a liberal education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a National American, receiving 5,636 votes against 5,483 votes for Speer, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to January 23, 1861, when he retired from the House, and identified himself with the Southern Confederacy.

Hardenbergh, Augustus A., was born at New Brunswick, New Jersey, May, 1830; entered Rutgers College in 1844, but was only enabled to continue his studies through the freshman year, as he was called upon to act as amanuensis for his father, Cornelius Hardenbergh, LL.D., who had been stricken with blindness; in 1846 entered a counting-room in New York, and took up his residence in Jersey City; in 1852 became connected with the Hudson-county Bank, and has been its cashier since 1853; in 1853 was elected to the House of Assembly of the State legislature; was an alderman of Jersey City in 1857-1860 and 1862; in 1868 was elected by the legislature State director of railroads; removing to the county of Bergen in 1868, was elected a councilman, and represented that district in the Baltimore National Democratic Convention of 1872; in 1873 he removed back to Hudson County; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,189 votes against 9,108 votes for Isaac W. Scudder, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,260 votes against 11,391 votes for Leonard J. Stiatny, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Hardin, Benjamin, was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1806, and commenced practice at Elizabethtown, but removed to Bardstown in 1808; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1810, 1811, 1824, and 1825; was State senator 1828-1832; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fourteenth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress, and re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1823; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was secretary of state of Kentucky 1844-1847; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention 1849; was injured by a fall from his horse, and died soon after at Bardstown, Kentucky, September 24, 1852.

Hardin, John J. (son of Martin D. Hardin), was born at Frankfort, Kentucky, in 1810; received a classical education, graduating at the Transylvania University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Jacksonville, Illinois; was prosecuting-attorney for several years; was a member of the State legislature 1836-1842; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,230 votes against 5,357 votes for McDougal, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; commanded a regiment of Illinois volunteers in the Mexican war, and was killed at the battle of Buena Vista, while gallantly leading his men in the final charge, February 27, 1847.

Hardin, Martin D. (father of John J. Hardin), was born on the Monongahela River, Western Pennsylvania, June 21, 1780; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Franklin County, Kentucky; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was State secretary of state; served in the war of 1812 as major of volunteers; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of William T. Barry, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1816, to March 3, 1817; and died in Franklin County, Kentucky, October 8, 1823.

Harding, Aaron, was born in Greene County, Kentucky; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Greensburg, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1840; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, receiving 10,339 votes against 2,469 votes for Talbot, Secessionist; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,435 votes against 2,508 votes for Heady, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,437 votes against 3,652 votes for Marion C. Taylor, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1867.

Harding, Abner C., was born at East Hampton, Connecticut, February 10, 1807; received an academical education; studied law, and practised at Monmouth, Illinois; became interested in railroads; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Illinois in 1843; was a member of the State legislature of Illinois in 1848, 1849, and 1850; enlisted as a private, and rose to the rank of brigadier-general in the Union army; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,569 votes against 12,721 votes for Charles M. Harris, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Union Republican, receiving 15,952 votes against 13,391 votes for Thompson, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Harding, Benjamin F., was born in Wyoming County, Pennsylvania, January 4, 1823; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and commenced practice in Illinois the following year; removed to Oregon in 1849; was clerk of the Territorial legislature 1850, 1851; was a member of the Territorial legislature and its speaker 1852; was United-States district-attorney for Oregon 1853; was secretary of the Territory 1854-1859; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1859-1862, serving the last two years as speaker; was elected a United-States senator from Oregon as a Republican (in place of Edward D. Baker, deceased), serving from December 1, 1862, to March 3, 1865.

Hardy, Samuel, was born in Virginia; was a member of the Continental Congress from 1783 until 1785; gave evidence of great talents, but died suddenly at an early age.

Haring, John, was born in New York, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1774-1775 and 1785-1788.

Harlan, Aaron, was born in Warren County, Ohio, September 8, 1802; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1825, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831; was a State senator in 1838, 1839, and 1840; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,580 votes against 5,018 votes for Telfair, Democrat, and 1,252 for Nixon, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,928 votes against 2,307 votes for Hinkson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,027 votes against 5,076 votes for Ward, Democrat, and 1,011 votes for Elsbury, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859.

Harlan, Andrew J., was born at Chester, Ohio, March 29, 1815; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, but never practised; was clerk of the Indiana House of Representatives in 1842; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1846-1848; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,366 votes against 6,777 votes for Kilgore, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,779 votes against 6,607 votes for Wallace, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Harlan, James, was born in Mercer County, Kentucky, June 22, 1800; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits 1817-1821; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1823, and commenced practice at Harrodsburg; was circuit prosecuting-attorney 1829-1833; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, defeating S. H. Anderson, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was secretary of state of Kentucky 1840-1844; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1840; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845; was appointed attorney-general of Kentucky in 1850, and held the office until his death at Frankfort February 18, 1863.

Harlan, James, was born in Clarke County, Illinois, August 26, 1820; received a classical education, graduating at the Asbury University, Indiana; studied law; was the Iowa State superintendent of public instruction in 1847; was president of the Wesleyan University, Iowa, in 1848; was elected United-States senator from Iowa as a Whig in May, 1855, and, his seat having been declared vacant on the ground of an informality in his election, he was again elected in 1856 for the remainder of the term; he was re-elected in 1860; in 1865 he entered the cabinet as secretary of the interior, and resigned in September, 1866, having been re-elected to the United-States Senate as a Republican (to succeed S. J. Kirkwood, Republican), and serving from September, 1866, to March 3, 1873.

Harmanson, John H., was born at Norfolk, Virginia, January, 1803; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College, Mississippi; removed to Louisiana, where he devoted himself to the law, and afterwards to agricultural pursuits; was a State senator in 1844; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 3,909 votes against 3,323 votes for Saunders, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 2,740 votes against 2,266 votes for Stewart, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to October 25, 1850, when he died at New Orleans.

Harmer, Alfred C., was born in Germantown (now part of the city of Philadelphia), Pennsylvania, August 8, 1825; received a public-school education; commenced business as a shoe-manufacturer at twenty years of age, and became a wholesale dealer; was elected a member of the city councils of Philadelphia in 1856, and served four years; was elected recorder of deeds for Philadelphia in 1860, and served three years; was a delegate to the last National Republican Convention at Chicago; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,561 votes against 11,401 votes for Dr. John R. Reading, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,743 votes against 12,040 votes for S. Phillips, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,973 votes against 14,722 votes for Duval, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Harnett, Cornelius, was a delegate from North Carolina to the Continental Congress 1777-1780.

Harper, Alexander, was born in Ireland; emigrated to Ohio, and located at Zanesville; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, defeating Hamer, Van Buren Democrat, and serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,196 votes against 4,002 votes for Jennings, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,108 votes against 4,750 votes for Maxfield, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Harper, Francis J., was born at Frankford, Pennsylvania, in 1799; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832, and of the State Senate in 1834-1835; was elected a representative in the Twenty-fifth Congress from Pennsylvania as a Democrat, defeating Charles Naylor, Whig; and died before taking his seat, at Frankford, Pennsylvania, March 18, 1837.

Harper, James, was born in Ireland in 1779; was a brickmaker; immigrated to the United States, and located at Philadelphia; became a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Clay Democrat, receiving 5,104 votes against 3,396 votes for Richards, Jackson Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,550 votes against 4,574 votes for his Democratic opponent, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; died at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, March 31, 1873.

Harper, James C., was born in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, December 6, 1819; removed in 1831 with his parents to Darke County, Ohio, where he was raised on a farm, and received a common-school education; removed in 1840 to Caldwell County, North Carolina, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits, and afterward in manufacturing and farming; filled various county offices; was elected to the House of Commons of the State legislature in 1865 and 1866; was elected to the House of Representatives of the State legislature in 1868, and was barred by the adoption of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, but his political disabilities were removed by Act of Congress in 1869; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-second Congress as a Conservative, receiving 12,130 votes against 9,231 votes for A. H. Jones, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Harper, John A., was a native of New Hampshire; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Meredith, New Hampshire; was major of the Twenty-ninth Regiment in 1809-1810, and lieutenant-colonel in 1811-1814; was aide-de-camp to Governor Langdon in 1811, and aide-de-camp to Governor Plumer in 1812; was elected a representative from New Hampshire to the Twelfth Congress as a War Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, until March 3, 1813; was defeated as a candidate for reelection to the Thirteenth Congress as a War Democrat, receiving 15,985 votes against 18,585 votes for B. Cilly, Peace Federalist.

Harper, Joseph M., was born at Limerick, Maine, June 21, 1787; was reared on a farm; received a public-school education; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Canterbury, New Hampshire, in 1811; served in the war against Great Britain as assistant surgeon of the Fourth United-States Infantry; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826 and 1827, and of the State Senate in 1829 and 1830, serving the last year as president of the Senate, and ex officio as governor from February until June, 1831; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 22,992 votes against 6,013 votes for S. E. Cones, Whig, and 1,820 votes for D. C. Atkinson, Anti-Mason, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; retired from practice to his farm in Canterbury, retaining the presidency of the Mechanics' Bank in Concord; and died at Canterbury January 14, 1865.

Harper, Robert Goodloe, was born near Fredericksburg, Virginia, in 1765; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1785, and was for a time a teacher there; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1786, and commenced practice at Charleston, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Third Congress (in place of Alexander Gillon, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Congresses, serving from February 9, 1795, to March 3, 1801; served in the war of 1812, receiving promotion from the rank of colonel to that of major-general; married a daughter of Charles Carroll of Carrollton; removed to Baltimore, and practised law there; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland, to serve from January 29, 1816, to March 3, 1821, but resigned in 1816; visited Europe in 1819-1820; delivered an eloquent address to a jury one day, and the next morning, while reading a newspaper after breakfast, fell from his chair, and expired, January 15, 1825. He published a number of pamphlets on the diplomatic questions of the day.

Harper, William, was born in the Island of Antigua January 17, 1790; was brought by his father to Baltimore, and went from there to Charleston, South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at the South-Carolina College in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbia; removed to Missouri in 1818; was State chancellor 1819; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1821; returned to South Carolina in 1823; was State reporter in 1824, 1825; was appointed a United-States senator from South Carolina (in place of John Gaillard, deceased), serving from March 28, 1826, to December 7, 1826, when his successor took his seat; resumed the practice of law at Charleston; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and speaker of the House, in 1828; was appointed a judge of the State Court of Appeals in 1831; was chancellor of the State of South Carolina from 1834 until his death in South Carolina October 10, 1847. He published a volume of "South-Carolina Reports," a "Eulogy on Chancellor De Saussure," and several magazine articles.

Harrington, Henry W., was born in Otsego County, New York, September 12, 1825; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice, removing to Madison, Indiana, in 1856; was a delegate to the Democratic Convention at Charleston in 1860; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,524 votes against 10,144 votes for W. McKee Dunn, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the Democratic Convention at New York in 1868; was assessor of internal revenue in Indiana.

Harris, Benjamin Gwinn, was born near Leonardstown, St. Mary's County, Maryland, December, 13, 1806; received an academical education; was a student at Yale College, and afterwards at the Cambridge Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Leonardstown, devoting himself also to agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832, 1833, 1836, 1849, 1852, and 1856; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,939 votes against 3,352 votes for Holland, Union, and 2,237 votes for Calvert, Constitutional Union; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 8,839 votes against 3,389 votes for Holland, Union, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; was tried at Washington in May, 1865, by a court-martial, for having given aid and comfort to the enemy by harboring two paroled Confederate soldiers, and sentenced to be imprisoned for three years, and forever disqualified from holding any office under the United-States Government; but, new evidence having been produced, President Johnson remitted the sentence.

Harris, Benjamin W., was born at East Bridgewater, Massachusetts, November 10, 1823; received an academic education; studied law, graduating at the Dane Law School, Cambridge, in 1849, and was admitted to the bar at Boston in April, 1850; commenced practice at East Bridgewater in July, 1850, and has been constantly engaged in it since; was a member of the State Senate from Plymouth County in 1857, and a representative in the State legislature from East Bridgewater in 1858; was district-attorney for the South-eastern District of Massachusetts from July 1, 1858, until June 30, 1866; was collector of internal revenue for the Second District of Massachusetts from June 20, 1866, until March 1, 1873, when he resigned; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,752 votes against 5,090 votes for E. Avery, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,651 votes against 6,688 votes for Edward Avery, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,550 votes against 9,757 votes for Edward Avery, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Harris, Charles M., was born at Munfordsville, Kentucky, April 10, 1821; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Oquawka, Illinois; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,626 votes against 8,711 votes for Lawrence, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Harris, G. E., was born in Orange County, North Carolina, January 6, 1827; was raised in Caroline County, Tennessee; removed to Mississippi in 1844; studied law without a preceptor; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and commenced practice at Hernando, Mississippi; was an Old-Line Whig, and opposed to secession, but, when his State severed her connection with the Federal Union, he entered the Confederate army, serving until the close of the war; was elected district-attorney in 1865, re-elected in 1866, and removed from office by the Reconstruction Acts; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,200 votes against 6,360 votes for Wofford, Democrat, and 429 votes for Avery, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress; was elected attorney-general of the State of Mississippi.

Harris, Henry R., was born at Sparta, Georgia, February 2, 1828; removed to Greenville, Georgia, in 1833; received a liberal education, graduating at Emory College in 1847; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a delegate to the State Convention of 1861; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,631 votes against 8,466 votes for Marion Bethune, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,236 votes; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,797 votes against 5,785 votes for H. W. Hilliard, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Harris, Ira, was born at Charleston, New York, May 31, 1802; was reared on a farm; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1824; studied law at Cortland with Augustus Donnelly, and afterwards at Albany with Ambrose Spencer; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Albany; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844 and 1845; was a State senator in 1846; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1846; was a justice of the Supreme Court 1847-1859; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1867; was a delegate at large to the State Constitutional Convention of 1867; was professor of equity, jurisprudence, and practice in the Albany Law School; was for many years president of the Board of Trustees of Union College; was the first and only chancellor, until his death, of the Rochester University; was president of the American Baptist Missionary Union and several other religious institutions; was struck with paralysis, and died at Albany December 2, 1875.

Harris, Isham G., was born in Franklin County, Tennessee, in 1818; was educated at the academy at Winchendon; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Paris, Tennessee, in 1841; was elected to the State legislature as a Democrat in 1847; was defeated as a Democratic candidate for presidential elector in 1848; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,433 votes against 4,362 votes for Morris, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 4,744 votes against 2,852 votes for Hornberger, Whig, serving from December 8, 1849, to March 3, 1853; declined a renomination, and removed to Memphis; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket in 1856; was elected governor of Tennessee as a Democrat in 1857; re-elected in 1859, and again in 1861; was a volunteer aide upon the staff of the commanding general of the Confederate army of Tennessee for the last three years of the war; returned to the practice of law at Memphis in 1867, and was engaged in it when elected to the United-States Senate as a Democrat, defeating Judge L. L. Hawkins, Republican (to succeed Henry Cooper, Democrat), and took his seat March 5, 1877.

Harris, J. Morrison, was born at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1821; received a classical education, graduating at Lafayette College, Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Baltimore; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,538 votes against 6,484 votes for Vansant, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,761 votes against 5,455 votes for Wythe, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,617 votes against 4,226 votes for Preston, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1864; was defeated as the Independent candidate for governor of Maryland in 1867.

Harris, John, was born in New York; resided in Herkimer County; was elected a representative from New York in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809.

Harris, John S., was born at Truxton, Cortland County, New York, December 18, 1825; received an academic education; removed to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in 1846, where he followed commercial and financial pursuits until 1863, when he removed to Concordia Parish, Louisiana, and engaged in the cultivation of cotton; he was elected to the Constitutional Convention of that State in 1867, and to the State Senate in April, 1868; he was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana in July, 1868, as a Republican, and served from July 17, 1868, to March 3, 1871; engaged in planting in Louisiana; held several State offices.

Harris, John T., was born in Albemarle County, Virginia, May 8, 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Harrisonburg; was attorney for the Commonwealth 1852-1859; was presidential elector on the Buchanan ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,011 votes against 5,080 votes for Skinner, Opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was a member of the Confederate legislature from 1863 to 1865; was judge of the Twelfth Judicial Circuit of Virginia from 1866 to 1869; was elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,300 votes against 520 votes for Reynolds, Independent, and 3,000 votes for Gray, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 10,894 votes against 6,736 votes for O'Ferrall, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,626 votes against 7,723 votes for Lewis, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,143 votes against 6,250 votes for Early, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871.

Harris, Mark, was born at Ipswich, Massachusetts, in 1779; removed to Portland (then in the district of Maine) in 1800; was in the grocery business; was county treasurer for many years; was a member of the Massachusetts Senate in 1816 and 1819; was a State councillor on the organization of Maine as an independent State; was elected a representative from Maine in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Ezekiel Whitman, resigned), serving from December 20, 1822, to March 3, 1823; was for many years State treasurer; and died at New-York City March 2, 1843.

Harris, Robert, was born in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania; resided at Harrisburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827.

Harris, Sampson W., was born in Elbert County, Georgia, February 23, 1809; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Georgia in 1828; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Eatonton; was a member of the House of Representatives of Georgia; removed to Wetumpka, Alabama, in 1838; was elected solicitor of the Eighth Circuit in 1841; was an unsuccessful candidate for circuit-judge; was State senator in 1844, and again in 1845; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat without opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,511 votes against 4,969 votes for John S. Hunter, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,677 votes against 5,085 votes for William S. Mudd, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,285 votes against 1,560 votes for J. Moore, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,999 votes against 5,220 votes for W. B. Martin, Know-Nothing, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1857; declined a re-election; was seized before the close of the session with sore throat, and died at Washington City April, 1857.

Harris, Thomas K., was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; his election was unsuccessfully contested by William Kelly; he died from wounds received in a encounter with Colonel Simpson, April 18, 1816.

Harris, Thomas L., was born at Norwich, Connecticut, October 29, 1816; received a classical education, graduating at Trinity College, Hartford, in 1841; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Springfield, Illinois, but removed in 1843 to Mound City; was elected to the State Senate in 1846, but did not accept, as he served in the Mexican war, distinguishing himself in several engagements; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,201 votes against 7,095 votes for Logan, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,254 votes against 7,008 votes for Yates, Whig; was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,090 votes against 9,890 votes for Yates, Republican; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,196 votes against 12,077 votes for Williams, Republican, serving from December 3, 1855, to November 24, 1858; on the first Monday in that month he had been re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 16,193 votes against 11,646 votes for Matheny, Republican; but his efforts during the canvass hastened his death, from pulmonary consumption, at Springfield, Illinois, November 24, 1858.

Harris, Wiley P., was born in Mississippi; resided at Monticello; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving no opposition, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; a change in the congressional districts prevented his re-election; was a deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which assembled at Montgomery, Alabama, February, 1861.

Harris, William A., was born in Fauquier County, Virginia, August 8, 1805; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Luray; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren and Johnson ticket in 1840; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was editor of "The Spectator," and subsequently of "The Constitution," published at Washington City; was chargé d'affaires to the Argentine Republic February 19, 1846-February 27, 1851; removed to Missouri; was editor of "The Washington Union," and printer to the United-States Senate, 1857-1859; and died in Pike County, Missouri, March 28, 1864.

Harrison, Albert G., was born in Kentucky; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fulton, Missouri; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, receiving 4,278 votes against 3,479 votes for James Birch White, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 23,425 votes against 16,708 votes for Wilson, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; died at Fulton, Missouri, September 7, 1839.

Harrison, Benjamin (father of William Henry Harrison, and grandfather of John Scott Harrison), was born in Berkeley County, Virginia, April 5, 1740; received a classical education, studying, but not graduating, at William and Mary College; was a member of the Colonial House of Burgesses in 1764; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Virginia in the Continental Congress 1774-1778; resigning, he was again elected to the House of Burgesses, and was chosen speaker; was governor of Virginia 1782-1784; was a delegate to the State Convention that ratified the Federal Constitution, but voted against it; died at City Point, on the James River, April 24, 1791.

Harrison, Carter B., was born in Charles County, Virginia; received a classical education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress, and re-elected to the Fourth and Fifth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1799.

Harrison, Carter H., was born in Fayette County, Kentucky, February 15, 1825; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1845; studied law, but was a farmer in his native county until 1855; spent two years in foreign travel; graduated at Transylvania Law School, Lexington, Kentucky, in 1855; removed to Chicago; did not enter into active practice of law, but was a real-estate owner and operator there; was elected a Cook-county commissioner in 1871, and served until December, 1874; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as an Oppositionist (Democratic), receiving, according to the returns, 9,189 votes against 9,181 votes for Jasper D. Ward, Republican; Mr. Ward gave notice of contest, but, a recount of the ballots increasing Mr. Harrison's majority to upward of 160, the contest was abandoned; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,732 votes against 14,090 votes for George R. Davis, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Harrison, Horace H., was born in Wilson

County, Tennessee, August 7, 1829; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1857, and commenced practice at Nashville in 1859; was United-States district-attorney for the Central Tennessee District 1863-1866; was elected chancellor in the Nashville Chancery Division; was judge of the State Supreme Court 1867, 1868; was presidential elector on the Grant and Colfax ticket in 1869; was again United-States district-attorney for the Central Tennessee District 1872-1873; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,033 votes against 8,131 votes for E. I. Golladay, Democrat, and 5,684 votes for W. G. Brien, Independent Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Harrison, James T., of Lowndes County, Mississippi, presented to the House of Representatives on the 4th of June, 1866, credentials signed by Governor Humphreys, declaring that he had been elected to represent the Third District of Mississippi in the Thirty-sixth Congress.

Harrison, John Scott (grandson of Benjamin Harrison, and son of William Henry Harrison), was born at North Bend, Ohio; received a liberal education; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,780 votes against 3,849 votes for Rollins, Democrat, and 142 votes for Hine, Free-Soiler; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,562 votes against 3,891 votes for Groesbeck, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; died suddenly on his farm, near North Bend, Ohio, May 26, 1878.

Harrison, Richard A., was born in England in 1827; emigrated with his parents to America in 1833, and settled in Ohio; received a public-school education; served a partial apprenticeship to the art of printing; studied law at the Cincinnati Law School, graduating in 1846, and commenced practice at London; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846, and of the State Senate in 1848; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Union Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Thomas Corwin, who had been appointed minister to Mexico), serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Harrison, Samuel S., was born in Maryland; removed to Pennsylvania, and located at Kittanning; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Harrison, William, was born in Maryland, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress, serving 1785-1787.

Harrison, William Henry (son of Benjamin Harrison, and father of John Scott Harrison), was born in Charles County, Virginia, February 9, 1773; received a classical education, studying, but not graduating, at Hampden-Sydney College; studied medicine; was commissioned by President Washington, in April, 1791, ensign, and by gallant conduct in Indian wars had reached the rank of captain when he resigned in 1797; was appointed secretary of the North-west Territory, and was elected its delegate in the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March, 1800, when he resigned; was governor of Indiana 1801-1813, and also Indian agent; was major-general of volunteers; defeated the British and Indians at Tippecanoe November 7, 1811; served with distinction in the war of 1812, resigning in 1814; was at the head of a commission to treat with the Indians; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of John McLean, resigned) as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1816, to March 3, 1819; was a member of the State Senate 1819-1821; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio, serving from December 5, 1825, to May 20, 1828, when he resigned; was minister to Columbia May 24, 1828, to September 26, 1829; was elected President of the United States in 1840, and was inaugurated March 4, 1841; died at Washington City April 4, 1841.

Hart, Emanuel B., was born at New York October 29, 1811; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was an active militia officer, attaining the rank of lieutenant-colonel; was a member of the Board of Aldermen; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,679 votes against 1,755 votes for Bowen, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was appointed by President Buchanan surveyor of the port of New York.

Hart, E. Kirke, was born at Albion, New York, April 8, 1841; was educated at Albion Academy; engaged in banking business in 1860, and became cashier of the Orleans-county National Bank; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1872; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,797 votes against 17,138 votes for John M. Davy, Republican, and 167 votes for Alphonso A. Hopkins, Prohibitionist, serving from October 15, 1877.

Hart, John, was born at Hopewell, New Jersey, in 1708; received a public-school education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1774-1777; was hunted by the Hessians, but escaped capture; and, after peace was declared, he returned to his farm, where he died in 1780.

Hart, Roswell, was born at Rochester, New York, in 1824; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1847, but did not practise; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,081 votes against 11,841 votes for James L. Angle, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Fortieth Congress, receiving 10,757 votes against 12,791 votes for Lewis Selye, Independent Republican.

Hartley, Thomas, was born at Reading, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1848; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at York, Pennsylvania; served in the Revolutionary war as colonel of the Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1778; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to December 21, 1800, when he died at York, Pennsylvania.

Hartridge, Julian, was born at Savannah, Georgia; received a collegiate education; attended the Law School at Cambridge, Massachusetts; practised law; was solicitor-general of the Eastern Judicial Circuit of Georgia; member of the legislature of Georgia; delegate to the Charleston Democratic Convention in 1860; was in the Confederate army during the first year of the war; was a member of the Confederate Congress; was chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic party of Georgia in 1871, delegate for the State at large to the National Democratic Convention in 1872, elector for the State at large on the Democratic ticket in 1872, and was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,252 votes against 6,714 votes for John E. Bryant, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,465 votes against 5,922 votes for John E. Bryant, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Hartzell, William, was born in Stark County, Ohio, February 20, 1837; removed with his parents to Illinois in 1840, and thence to the then republic of Texas in 1844, where he remained until 1853, when he removed to Randolph County, Illinois, where he has since resided; was reared on a farm; graduated at McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois, in June, 1859; studied law; was admitted to the bar in June, 1864, and has since practised; was a Democratic nominee for the Forty-second Congress, and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat (receiving the vote of the Liberal Republicans and the Independent Reform party) by 10,866 votes against 9,280 votes for Isaac Clements, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,691 votes against 14,671 votes for Benjamin L. Wiley, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Harvey, James M., was born in Monroe County, Virginia, September 21, 1833; studied principally in the public and select schools of Indiana, Iowa, and Illinois; practised surveying and civil engineering as a profession until he removed to Kansas at its settlement in 1859, and has since been a farmer there; was captain in the Fourth and Tenth Regiments of Kansas Volunteer Infantry from 1861 until 1864; was a member of the Lower House of the State legislature in 1865, and again in 1866, and a member of the State Senate in 1867-1868; was governor of Kansas in 1869-1870, and again in 1870-1871; was elected a United-States senator from Kansas as a Republican (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Alexander Caldwell, Republican, which had been temporarily filled by the appointment of Robert Crozier), serving from February 12, 1874, to March 3, 1877.

Harvey, Jonathan (brother of Matthew Harvey), was born in Merrimack County, New Hampshire, in 1780; received a good English education; resided at Sutton; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives and Senate, serving as president of the Senate 1817-1823; was a member of the Executive Council 1823-1825; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1831; died at Sutton, New Hampshire, August 23, 1859.

Harvey, Matthew, was born at Sutton, New Hampshire, June 21, 1781; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1806; studied law under John Harris; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hopkinton, New Hampshire, in 1809; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814, 1815, 1816, 1817, 1818, 1819, and 1820, and was speaker the last three years; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Seventeenth Congress on a general ticket as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1825; was a State senator in 1825, 1826, and 1827, serving as president of the Senate; was State councillor in 1828 and 1829; was governor of New Hampshire in 1830-1831; was appointed by President Jackson judge of the United-States District Court for New Hampshire in 1831, which office he held until he died at Concord, New Hampshire, April 7, 1856.

Harvie, John, was born in Virginia, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1778-1779.

Hasbrouck, Abraham, was born at Kingston, Ulster County; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1781, 1782, and 1811; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from June 28, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was a member of the State Senate in 1822.

Hasbrouck, Abraham B., was born in Ulster County, New York; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1810; resided at Kingston; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; removed to New Jersey, and was for several years president of Rutgers College.

Hasbrouck, Josiah, was born at Kingston, New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1796, 1797, 1802, and 1806; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; and was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Hascall, Augustus P., was born in Massachusetts; removed to New York, and located at Le Roy; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,715 votes against 3,699 votes for Sprague, Democrat, and serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Haskell, Dudley C., was born at Oxford, New York, November 25, 1837; lived in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, from infancy until 1865, when he removed to Topeka, Kansas, and located there; received an academic education; entered the volunteer army of the United States in 1862, and was mustered out as a captain in the fall of 1864 on account of wounds received in the battle of the Wilderness; was admitted to the practice of law in 1861; was county-attorney in Kansas for eight successive years; was assistant United-States attorney for Kansas from 1873 to 1877; was elected a representative from Kansas in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 22,088 votes against 17,518 votes for John R. Goodin, Democrat, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Haskell, William T., was born in Tennessee; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; served in the Mexican war as colonel of a regiment of Tennessee volunteers, distinguishing himself at Cerro Gordo; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; resumed practice; was attacked with insanity in August, 1858, and died in the lunatic asylum at Hopkinsville, Kentucky, March 20, 1859.

Haskin, John B., was born at Fordham, Westchester County, New York, August 7, 1821; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York City in 1845; held several city offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,195 votes against 5,935 votes for Strang, Republican, and 5,084 votes for Cobb, American; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,637 votes against 7,624 votes for Kemble, Democrat, and 546 votes for Andrews, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Hastings, George, was born at Clinton, Oneida County, New York, March 13, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Hamilton College in 1826; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Clinton; removed to Mount Morris; was district-attorney for Livingston County 1839-1848; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,681 votes against 9,225 votes for Irvine, Whig, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was elected judge of the county court of Livingston County, serving from November, 1855, until his death at Mount Morris, New York, August 29, 1866.

Hastings, John, resided at Salem, Ohio; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 54 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; died at Columbus, Ohio, December 29, 1854.

Hastings, Samuel Clinton, received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Iowa; was a judge of the State Supreme Court; was elected one of the first representatives from Iowa in the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 29, 1846, to March 3, 1847; removed to California, and practised at San Francisco.

Hastings, Seth (father of William S. Hastings), was born at Mendon, Massachusetts, in 1761; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1782; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Worcester County; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1807; was a member of the State Senate in 1810 and 1814; was appointed chief justice of the Court of Sessions; and died at Mendon, Massachusetts, in 1831.

Hastings, William Soden (son of Seth Hastings), was born at Mendon, Massachusetts; received a classical education; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,049 votes against 3,090 votes for Alexander H. Everett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to June 17, 1842, when he died at the Red Sulphur Springs, Virginia.

Hatch, Israel T., was born at Owasco, New York, in 1808; received a public-school education; was a grain merchant and forwarder; was elected a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,399 votes against 6,923 votes for Spaulding, Republican, and 5,548 votes for Haven, American, and serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,539 votes against 12,427 votes for E. G. Spaulding, Republican; was appointed by President Buchanan to report on the workings of the reciprocity treaty, and his adverse statements were instrumental in bringing about its abrogation; was postmaster at Buffalo 1859-1861; and died at Buffalo, New York, September 24, 1875.

Hatcher, Robert A., was born in Buckingham County, Virginia, February 24, 1819; was educated at private schools in Lynchburg, Virginia; studied law; was admitted to the bar in Kentucky, and commenced practice at New Madrid, Missouri, in 1847; was for six years circuit-attorney of the Tenth Judicial Circuit of Missouri; was a member of the State legislature in 1850 and 1851; was a member of the State Convention in 1862; was a member of the Confederate Congress in 1864-1865, and was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,340 votes against 4,594 votes for M. Ward, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 19,087 votes, without opposition; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 21,389 votes against 3,953 votes for L. Davis, Republican, and 1,737 votes for W. Ballentine, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Hathaway, Samuel G., was born at Free-town, Massachusetts, July 18, 1780; received a public-school education; went to sea before the mast; removed to Solon, New York, in 1808; was a member of the State Assembly in 1814 and 1818, and of the State Senate in 1823; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; declining a re-election, he devoted himself to agricultural pursuits, and died at Solon May 2, 1867.

Hathorn, Henry H., was born at Greenfield, New York, November 28, 1813; received an academic education; was a merchant at Saratoga Springs from 1839 to 1849, and subsequently largely interested in the hotel business there as one of the proprietors of Congress Hall, and also owner of the Hathorn Spring; was supervisor for Saratoga Springs four years between 1850 and 1860; was elected sheriff of Saratoga County in 1853; and again in 1862, serving six years; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,762 votes against 14,756 votes for D. B. Judson, Greeley Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,933 votes against 15,183 votes for Sanders, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Hathorn, John, resided at Warwick, Orange County, New York; was elected a representative from that State in the First Congress, serving from April 23, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was defeated as the Federal candidate to the Second and subsequently to the Third Congress; was again elected to the Fourth Congress as a Federalist, defeating Lucas Elmendorph, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; was defeated as the Federal candidate for the Fifth Congress by Lucas Elmendorph, Democrat; was a member of the State Senate in 1804; was defeated as a candidate for presidential elector in 1804.

Hatton, Robert, was born in Sumner County, Tennessee, in 1827; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice at Lebanon; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a National American, receiving 6,719 votes against 5,844 votes for Ready, Independent, and serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; entered the Confederate States army, was appointed brigadier-general May 23, 1862, and assigned to the command of the Fifth Brigade, First Division, First Corps, Army of Virginia; was killed in action at Edwards's Farm June 1, 1862.

Haughey, Thomas, was born at Glasgow, Scotland, in 1826; immigrated to the United States, and located in Alabama in 1840; received a classical education; studied medicine; graduated at the New-Orleans Medical College in 1858; served as a surgeon in the United States army 1862-1865; was subsequently staff-surgeon in the military college at Chattanooga; was a delegate to the Alabama State Constitutional Convention of 1867; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Fortieth Congress, serving from July 21, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Haun, H. P., was born in Scott County, Kentucky, January 18, 1815; received an academic education; studied law at Lexington; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and was elected county-attorney; removed to Iowa in 1845, and was a member of the convention which framed the constitution of that State in 1846; removed to Yuba County, California, in 1849; was elected county-judge in 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor; was appointed a United States senator from California as a Democrat (in place of David C. Broderick, deceased), serving from December 5, 1859, to March 5, 1860, when his successor took his seat; died at Maysville, California, May 6, 1860.

Haven, Nathaniel A., was born in New Hampshire in 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1779; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; died March 7, 1831.

Haven, Solomon G., was born in New York; studied and practised law; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,613 votes against 5,365 votes for Stevens, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,037 votes against 7,054 votes for Verplanck, Democrat, and 434 votes for Davis, Free-Soiler; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,075 votes against 5,388 votes for Hatch, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1857; died at Buffalo, New York, December 24, 1861.

Havens, Harrison E., was born in Franklin County, Ohio, December 15, 1837; received a common-school education; studied law in Illinois, and practised in that State, and afterward in Iowa; removed to Springfield, Missouri, in 1867, and became editor of "The Springfield Patriot;" was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-second Congress as a Regular Republican, receiving 8,830 votes against 7,833 votes for W. E. Gilmore, Bolting Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,156 votes against 12,578 votes for C. B. McAfee, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Havens, Jonathan Nicoll, was born on Staten Island, New York; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1777; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1786-1795; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourth Congress, and was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1799; died at his residence on Staten Island July 7, 1799.

Hawes, Albert G., was a native of Kentucky; resided at Hawesville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 3,861 votes against 3,852 votes for Chilton, Clay Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, defeating R. R. Thompson; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating Robert Triplett, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; died at Hawesville, Kentucky, April 14, 1849.

Hawes, Aylett, was born in Culpepper County, Virginia; received a classical education; studied medicine, and practised; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817; resumed practice, and died in Culpepper County, Virginia, August 31, 1833.

Hawes, Richard, was born in Caroline County, Virginia, February 6, 1797; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Winchester, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1828, 1829, and 1830; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841.

Hawkes, James, was born at Worcester, Massachusetts; removed to Richfield, New York, where he held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Hawkins, Benjamin, was born in Bute (afterwards Warren) County, North Carolina, August 15, 1754; received a classical education, and was at Princeton College, but the Revolutionary war suspended the exercises while he was in the senior class; having acquired a knowledge of the French language, Hawkins was placed on the staff of General Washington as interpreter; was at the battle of Monmouth and other engagements; was sent to the Island of St. Eustatia as purchasing agent of North Carolina in 1780; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1781-1784 and 1786-1787; was appointed by Congress on commissions to negotiate treaties with the Creeks and Cherokees in 1785; was elected a United-States senator to the First Congress, serving from January 13, 1790, until March 3, 1795; was appointed Indian agent for all the tribes south of the Ohio River by President Washington in 1796, and held the office by successive re-appointments until he died at the Creek agency June 6, 1816.

Hawkins, George S., was born in New York; removed to Pensacola, Florida; was elected a representative from that State in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,985 votes against 5,226 votes for Baker, American; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,465 votes against 4,070 votes for Wescott, Independent Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March, 1861.

Hawkins, Isaac R., was born in Maury County, Tennessee, May 16, 1818; received an academic education; studied and practised law; served in the Mexican war as a first lieutenant of volunteers; was elected by the Tennessee legislature as a delegate to the Peace Congress of 1861; was elected as the Union candidate by a majority of 3,000 to the State convention called to consider the relations of Tennessee with the General Government; entered the Union army as lieutenant-colonel in 1862; was appointed chancellor of the Sixth Division in 1865, but declined; was unanimously chosen to represent his district in the Chicago Convention of 1868; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 3,322 votes against 1,819 votes for Etheridge, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 5,000 votes against 981 votes for William D. Coldwell, Conservative; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 2,825 votes against 1,136 votes for Foote, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1866, to March 3, 1871.

Hawkins, Joseph, was born in the State of New York; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Henderson; was for some years a judge; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as an Adams Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 31, 1831; died at Henderson, New York, May 9, 1832.

Hawkins, Joseph H., resided in Lexington, Kentucky; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1810-1813, serving the last two years as speaker; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirteenth Congress (in place of Henry Clay, resigned), serving from March 29, 1814, to March 2, 1815.

Hawkins, Micajah Thomas, was born in Warren County, North Carolina; received a liberal education at the University of North Carolina; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1819, and of the State Senate in 1823, 1824, 1825, 1826, 1827, and 1828; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Congresses as a Democrat, receiving at the first election 949 votes against 863 votes for Mann, 533 votes for Wyche, and 342 votes for Pope, and at the last election 1,625 votes against 1,621 votes for R. C. Hilliard, also a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, until March 3, 1841; was a major-general of militia; and died in Warren County December 22, 1858.

Hawley, John B., was born in Fairfield County, Connecticut, February 9, 1831; went to Illinois with his parents when quite young; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and commenced practice at Rock Island; in 1856 he was elected State's attorney, serving four years; in 1861 he entered the Union army as captain, and took an active part in the battles of Forts Henry and Donelson, receiving injuries in the last engagement which made it necessary for him to retire from military duty in 1862; in 1865 he was appointed by President Lincoln postmaster of Rock Island, and removed the year following by President Johnson; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,269 votes against 15,547 votes for Singleton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 12,023 votes against 11,982 votes for P. L. Cable, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,123 votes against 7,215 votes for C. Truesdale, Liberal and Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was appointed assistant secretary of the treasury December 6, 1877.

Hawley, Joseph Roswell, was born at Stewartsville, North Carolina, October 31, 1826; his family removed to Connecticut in 1837; was educated in Connecticut and New York, and graduated at Hamilton College in 1847; studied law at Cazenovia, New York, and Farmington, Connecticut, and commenced practice at Hartford September 1, 1850; became editor of "The Hartford Evening Press" in February, 1857; enlisted in the First Regiment Connecticut Volunteers April 15, 1861, and was commissioned a captain; served three months, and immediately engaged in recruiting the Seventh Connecticut Volunteers, in which he was commissioned lieutenant-colonel; became colonel in 1862, and brigadier-general in 1864; was brevetted major-general in 1865, and was mustered out January 15, 1866; was elected governor of Connecticut in April, 1866, holding the office one year; returned to journalism as editor of "The Hartford Courant," with which "The Press" had been consolidated; was president of the National Republican Convention in 1868; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican November 5, 1872 (to succeed Julius L. Strong, deceased), by 633 majority over W. W. Eaton, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,048 votes against 10,766 votes for S. P. Kendall, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1872, to March 3, 1875; was president of the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876.

Haws, J. H. Hobart, was born at New-York City, and resided there; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,155 votes against 3,824 votes for Marsh, Democrat, and serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Hay, Andrew K., was born in Massachusetts; received a public-school education; removed to Winslow, New Jersey; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,052 votes against 6,048 votes for Pitney, Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Hay, John B., was born at Belleville, Illinois, January 8, 1834; received a common-school education; worked on a farm, and in his sixteenth year became a printer; subsequently studied law, and devoted himself to the profession; was for eight years State's attorney for the Twenty-fourth Judicial District of Illinois; served in the Union army during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,980 votes against 13,338 votes for Snyder, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,903 votes against 10,126 votes for W. Hartzell, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Hayden, Moses, was born in Hampshire County, Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College in 1804; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at York, Livingston County; was first judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Livingston County 1821-1823; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress; and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827.

Hayes, Philip C., was born at Granby, Connecticut, February 3, 1833, and removed with his father's family to La Salle County, Illinois, during the summer of the same year; spent the first twenty years of his life on a farm; received a collegiate education; served in the Union army, having been commissioned successively captain, lieutenant-colonel, and colonel, and brevetted brigadier-general; after the war, became one of the publishers of "The Morris Herald;" was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,849 votes against 13,313 votes for Alexander Campbell, Democrat, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Hayes, Rutherford B., was born at Delaware, Ohio, October 4, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at Kenyon College, Ohio; studied law at the Cambridge Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cincinnati, Ohio; was city solicitor 1858-1861; entered the Union army in 1862 as major of the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteers; received rapid promotion for brilliant services, and, when mustered out after the cessation of hostilities, was brigadier-general; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,425 votes against 7,327 votes for Joseph C. Butler, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,549 votes against 8,991 votes for Theodore Cook, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to December, 1867, when he resigned, having been elected governor of Ohio; he was re-elected in 1869, serving 1868-1872; was again elected governor of Ohio, serving 1876-1877; was elected President of the United States in 1876, and inaugurated March 4, 1877.

Haymond, Thomas S., was born in Virginia; resided at Fairmount; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress (in place of Alexander Newman, deceased), serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Haymond, William S., was born near Clarksburg, Virginia (now West Virginia); received a thorough classical and scientific education; taught school two years, and served as a civil engineer about one year; studied medicine in his native State, and is a graduate of two medical colleges, one of which is the Bellevue Hospital College of New-York City; commenced practice at Monticello in 1851, and has continued it since, except when interrupted by other duties imposed upon him; entered the Union army in 1861 as a surgeon, and served until 1863; was the unsuccessful candidate of the Democrats and Liberals in his district for the State Senate in 1866; was elected president of the Indianapolis, Delphi, and Chicago Railroad in 1872, 1873, and 1874; is the projector of the Chicago and South-Atlantic Railroad, — a trunk-line which will extend from Chicago to Charleston and Port Royal, South Carolina; and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as the candidate of the Democrats and Liberals, receiving 15,088 votes against 14,423 votes for W. H. Calkins, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 4, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,390 votes against 16,439 votes for W. H. Calkins, Republican.

Hayne, Arthur P. (brother of Robert Y. Hayne), was born at Charleston, South Carolina, March 12, 1788; received an English education, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; served in the war of 1812, receiving promotion until he became an inspector-general; participated in engagements on the Northern frontier, at Pensacola, and at New Orleans; studied law in Pennsylvania, and was admitted to the bar; served in the Florida war in command of the Tennessee volunteers; was a member of the State House of Representatives of South Carolina; was a presidential elector on the Jackson and Calhoun ticket in 1828; was United-States naval agent in the Mediterranean for five years; was offered and declined the Belgian mission; was appointed a United-States senator from South Carolina (in place of Josiah J. Evans, deceased), serving from May 20, 1858, to January 5, 1859, when his successor took his seat; died at Charleston, South Carolina, January 6, 1867.

Hayne, Robert Y. (brother of Arthur P. Hayne), was born near Charleston, South Carolina, November 10, 1791; received an academic education; studied law with Langdon Cheves and A. B. Northrop; was admitted to the bar eight days before he was of age, and commenced practice at Charleston; was a member of the State legislature 1814-1818, serving the last year as speaker; was attorney-general 1818-1822; was elected United-States senator from South Carolina as a State-rights Democrat, defeating Judge William Smith, serving from December 1, 1823, to December, 1832, when he resigned, having been elected governor; served as governor 1832-1834; was intendant and afterwards mayor of Charleston 1835-

1836; was president of the Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad 1836-1839; and died at Ashville, North Carolina, where he was in attendance on a railroad convention, September 24, 1839; was a contributor to "The Southern Review." His life and speeches were published in 1845.

Haynes, Charles E., was born at Brunswick, Virginia; removed to Georgia, and located at Sparta; was defeated as a Clark Democratic candidate for the Eighteenth Congress by Crawford, State-rights, on a general ticket; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1831; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Union man, receiving 27,631 votes against 24,734 votes for Daniell, State-rights; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 29,490 votes against 28,450 votes for King, State-rights, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Hays, Charles, was born in Greene County, Alabama, February 2, 1834; was educated at the University of Georgia, and matriculated at the University of Virginia in May, 1864; devoted himself entirely to agricultural pursuits; was elected to the Constitutional Convention of Alabama in 1867; was elected to the State Senate of Alabama in 1868, and, while a member, was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving a majority of 16,000 votes over Dustin, Independent, and Read, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 18,373 votes against 16,540 votes for J. G. Harris, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress by a majority of 5,212 over his competitor; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 23,900 votes against 18,378 votes for James T. Jones, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1869, to March 3, 1877.

Hays, L. Samuel, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Virginia, locating at Stuard's Creek; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Hays, Samuel, was born in Virginia; resided at Franklin, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,044 votes against 892 votes for Doughty, Abolition, and serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Haywood, William Henry, jun., was born in Wake County, North Carolina, in 1801; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1819; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1831 and 1834-1836, serving the last year as speaker; was elected United-States senator in 1842 as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, until he resigned, July 25, 1846; returned to practice; was a great sufferer from a cancer at the root of his tongue, and died at Raleigh, North Carolina, October 6, 1852.

Hazard, Jonathan, was born in Rhode Island, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress in 1787 and in 1788.

Hazard, Nathaniel, was born at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1773; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1792; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to his death, after ten days' sickness, at Washington City, December 17, 1820. He had been defeated the previous August for re-election as the Democratic candidate for the Seventeenth Congress, having received 2,033 votes against 3,563 votes for Job Durfee, Federalist.

Hazeltine, Abner, was born in the State of New York; resided at Jamestown; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1829 and 1830; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Hazeltone, George C., was born at Chester, New Hampshire, January 3, 1833; received a classical education, graduating at Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1858; studied law; was admitted to the bar in the State of New York, and commenced practice at Boscobel, Wisconsin, in 1863; was elected district-attorney of Grant County in 1864, and re-elected in 1866; in 1867 was elected State senator, and chosen president pro tempore of the Senate, and was re-elected to the Senate in 1869; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,582 votes against 13,034 votes for Philo A. Orton, Democrat, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Hazeltone, Gerry W., was born at Chester, New Hampshire, February 24, 1829; educated at the Pinkerton Academy, Derry, New Hampshire, and afterward with a private tutor; studied law in New York; removed to Wisconsin in 1856; elected to the State Senate of Wisconsin in 1860, and twice chosen president pro tempore; elected district-attorney for Columbia County in 1864; appointed collector of internal revenue for the Second District in the winter of 1866, and removed by Andrew Johnson in the same year; appointed United-States attorney for the district of Wisconsin in 1869, which place he held until elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,467 votes against 11,568 votes for A. G. Cook, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,745 votes against 9,880 votes for A. Warden, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Hazeltone, John W., was born at Mullica Hill, New Jersey; attended the public schools there, and the high school at Burlington; was a practical farmer; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1868; was an elector on the Grant and Colfax ticket in the fall of that year; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,502 votes against 12,469 votes for B. F. Lee, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,312 votes against 8,948 votes for O. A. Chute, Liberal Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Head, John W., was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, but died before taking his seat. His successor also died before taking his seat, and Congress voted each of their widows $1,250.

Healy, Joseph, was born at Cheshire, New Hampshire, in 1776; received a good English education; was a member of the State Senate in 1824; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,000 majority over Ezekiel Webster, Federalist; and was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was a member of the State Executive Council 1829-1832; died at Washington, New Hampshire, October 10, 1861.

Heath, James P., was born in Delaware December 21, 1777; received an academic education; fought a duel when nineteen years of age with John Knight, receiving a ball, which was never extracted; was a lieutenant of engineers in the regular army 1799-1802; was register in chancery at Annapolis; served throughout the war of 1812 as aide-de-camp to General Winder of the Maryland militia; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 400 majority over Benjamin C. Howard, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for re-election to the Twenty-fourth Congress by Benjamin C. Howard, Whig; was one of the survivors of the wreck of the steamer "Pulaski" in 1838; and died at Georgetown, District of Columbia, June 12, 1854.

Heath, John, was born in Virginia; received a classical education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress, and was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797.

Heaton, David, was born at Hamilton, Ohio, March 10, 1823; received an academic education; read law, and was admitted to practice; was elected as a Whig to the State Senate of Ohio in 1855; advocated the election of Frémont in 1856; removed to St. Anthony's Falls, Minnesota, in 1857; was a member of the State Senate of Minnesota 1858-1863; was appointed by Secretary Chase special agent of the Treasury Department and United-States Depository at New Berne, North Carolina, in 1863; was appointed third auditor of the treasury in 1864, but declined; was the author of the Republican platform adopted at the Raleigh Convention March 27, 1867; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of North Carolina in 1867; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican in April, 1868; was re-elected in 1868, receiving 14,895 votes against 12,293 votes for Kenan, Democrat; and was renominated in 1870, serving from July 15, 1868, until he died at Washington of consumption June 25, 1870.

Hebard, William, was born in Connecticut; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Chelsea, Vermont; was judge of probate for Orange County seven years; was several times a member of the State legislature; was judge of the State Supreme Court 1842-1845; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,693 votes against 5,228 votes for Webber, Democrat, and 296 votes for Weston, Cass Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,652 votes against 4,384 votes for Jefferson P. Kidder, Democrat, and 206 scattering, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Heflin, Robert S., was born near Madison, Georgia, April 15, 1815; received an academic education; served in the Creek war in 1836; was elected clerk of the Superior Court of Fayette County, Georgia, 1836-1840; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1840; was a member of the State Senate of Georgia in 1840 and 1841; removed to Randolph County, Georgia, in 1844; was a member of the House of Representatives of Georgia in 1849, and of the Senate in 1860; was an uncompromising Union man during the war of the Rebellion, and in August, 1864, was compelled to leave his home to save his life, passing through the lines to the Union army at Rome, Georgia, and accompanying General Sherman's command to Savannah; was appointed judge of probate in 1865 by Provisional-Governor Parsons, and was subsequently elected to that office, which he held until the State was admitted into the Union; was a presidential elector on the Grant and Colfax ticket in 1872; and was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,895 votes against 9,652 votes for Parkenson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Heister, Daniel (brother of John Heister, and uncle of John Heister), was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, in 1747; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits in Montgomery County; was actively engaged in pre-Revolutionary movements; was colonel and afterwards brigadier-general of militia, and saw some service in the Revolutionary war; was a member of the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania 1784-1786; was appointed a commissioner of the Connecticut Land Claims in 1787; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the first Congress; was re-elected to the Second, Third, and Fourth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to July 1, 1796, when he resigned; removed to Hagerstown, Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Seventh Congress, and was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 8, 1804, when he died at Washington City.

Heister, Daniel (son of John Heister, and nephew of Daniel Heister), was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811.

Heister, Isaac E., was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1842; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lancaster; was deputy-attorney-general for Lancaster County in 1848; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,840 votes against 6,456 votes for Sampson, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; died at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, February 6, 1871.

Heister, John (brother of Daniel Heister, and uncle of Daniel Heister), was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, April 9, 1746; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; died October 15, 1821.

Heister, Joseph, was born at Berne Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania, November 18, 1752; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; served in the Revolutionary army as captain of a company which he raised and equipped; was promoted to the rank of colonel; was taken prisoner, and confined on the Jersey prison-ship; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1776; served five years in the State House of Representatives, and four years in the State Senate; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1790; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifth Congress (in place of George Ege, resigned); was re-elected to the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1797, to March 3, 1805; was appointed major-general in 1807 to command the quota of Pennsylvania militia called for by the President; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to 1820, when he resigned; was governor of Pennsylvania 1820-1823; retired from public life, and died at Reading, Pennsylvania, June 10, 1832.

Heister, William (nephew of Daniel Heister and John Heister), was born at Berne Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania, in 1791; received a public-school education; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits on a farm in Lancaster County; was a leading anti-Mason; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 1,422 votes against 1,067 votes for B. Champneys, Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1837; and died on his farm in Lancaster County October 14, 1853.

Helmick, William, was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, September 6, 1817; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice; was elected prosecuting-attorney in 1851; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,949 votes against 8,719 votes for Burns, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was a clerk in the Department of the Interior.

Helms, William, was born in New Jersey; served in the Revolutionary war; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1811; removed to Tennessee, and died there in 1813.

Hemphill, John, was a native of Chester District, South Carolina; located at Sumter, South Carolina, where he edited a nullification paper in the crisis of 1832-1833; removed to Texas; was for many years chief justice of the Supreme Court of that State; was elected a United-States senator from Texas, serving from December 5, 1859, until he withdrew, and was subsequently expelled July 10, 1861; was a deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which assembled at Montgomery in February, 1861; was chief justice of Texas; and died at Richmond, Virginia, January 4, 1862.

Hemphill, Joseph, was born in Delaware County, Pennsylvania, in 1770; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Chester County; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; removed to Philadelphia; was appointed the first president-judge of the city and county; was again elected a representative in the Sixteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to 1826, when he resigned; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1831, 1832; and died at Philadelphia May 29, 1842.

Hempstead, Edward, was born at New London, Connecticut, June 3, 1780; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1801; commenced practice in Rhode Island, and in 1805 removed to St. Louis; was attorney-general for the Territory of Upper Louisiana 1809-1811; was elected a delegate from Missouri Territory in the Twelfth Congress, and re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from January 4, 1813, to March 2, 1815; went on several expeditions against the Indians; was a member of the Territorial Assembly, and its speaker; and died at St. Louis August 10, 1817.

Hemsley, William, resided in Maryland, and was a delegate from that State in the Continental Congress 1782-1784.

Hendee, George Whitman, was born at Stow, Vermont, November 30, 1832; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Morrisville; was prosecuting-attorney in 1858-1859; was a member of the Vermont House of Representatives in 1861 and 1862; was a member of the State Senate of Vermont in 1866, 1867, and 1868, and president pro tempore the last year; was lieutenant-governor of Vermont in 1869; was governor of Vermont in 1870; and was elected a representative from Vermont in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,473 votes against 3,182 votes for H. C. Adams, Liberal Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,043 votes against 3,646 votes for Edwards, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,974 votes against 5,367 votes for Edwards, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Henderson, Archibald, was born in Salisbury, North Carolina, August 7, 1768; received a public-school education; studied law with his father, Judge Richard Henderson; was admitted to practice, and became the head of the bar in North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Sixth Congress, defeating Matthew Locke; and was re-elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, until March 3, 1803; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1807, 1808, and 1819; and died at Salisbury October 21, 1822.

Henderson, Bennett H., was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Henderson, James Pinckney, was born in Lincoln County, North Carolina, March 31, 1808; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Mississippi; removed to the republic of Texas in 1836; was appointed by President Houston attorney-general, and subsequently secretary of state; visited Europe as the diplomatic representative of Texas, and in 1844 visited the United States as special minister to negotiate annexation; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1845; was governor of Texas in 1846, and commanded in person the State volunteers called for by General Taylor, distinguishing himself at Monterey; received from Congress a vote of thanks, and a sword which cost $1,500; was elected a United-States senator from Texas as a State-rights Democrat (in place of Thomas J. Rusk, deceased), serving from March 1, 1858, to June 4, 1858, when he died at Washington City.

Henderson, John, was born in 1795; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Pass Christian, Mississippi; was a brigadier-general of militia; was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi as a Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845; practised at New Orleans; was tried at New Orleans on a charge of having been engaged in fitting out an armed expedition against Cuba, and acquitted; and died at Pass Christian, Mississippi, in 1857.

Henderson, John B., was born near Danville, Virginia, November 16, 1826; removed to Missouri when a child; received an academical education, and taught school for several years; studied and practised law; was a member of the State legislature of Missouri in 1848 and 1856; originated the State railroad and banking laws in 1857; was a presidential elector in 1856 on the Buchanan ticket, but opposed the administration after the President's message on the Lecompton Constitution of Kansas; was a candidate for Congress in 1858 as a friend of Mr. Douglas, but was defeated by Gilchrist Porter; was an elector on the Douglas ticket in 1860, pledging himself to vote for either Douglas or Bell to carry the State against Breckinridge, the Secession candidate; was beaten again for Congress in 1860, after a most exciting canvass, by James S. Rollins, the majority being about 200 in a total vote of 23,000; was a member of the State Convention in 1861 called to determine whether Missouri should secede, and took a prominent part in its proceedings as a Union man; in June, 1861, he procured arms, and equipped a regiment of loyal State militia, and went into service with them that fall; was appointed, in January, 1862, to succeed Truett Polk in the United-States Senate; was elected United-States senator from Tennessee January, 1863, to serve out Mr. Polk's unexpired term; and was re-elected in 1863, serving from February, 1863, to March 3, 1869; was a commissioner to treat with hostile tribes of Indians in 1867; was appointed assistant United-States district-attorney in 1875 to conduct the prosecution of parties accused with having evaded the revenue laws, but reflected on President Grant in an argument, and was removed.

Henderson, John H. D., was born near Salem, Kentucky, July 23, 1810; was taken to Missouri Territory by his parents in 1817; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; entered the ministry, and was pastor of the Concord congregation, Washington County, Pennsylvania, 1843-1851; returned to Missouri; left April 8, 1852, for Oregon, across the continent, arriving October 12, 1852; was defeated as a Temperance candidate for the Territorial Council by 30 votes in 1854; was elected superintendent of public schools in Lane County in 1859; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,719 votes against 5,992 votes for Kelly, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; retired to private life, lecturing and preaching as occasion offered.

Henderson, Joseph, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, defeating James Miller, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 603 majority, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Henderson, Samuel, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress (in place of Jonathan Roberts, elected senator), serving from March 29, 1814, to March 2, 1815.

Henderson, Thomas, was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1761; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from New Jersey 1779-1780; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797.

Henderson, Thomas J., was born at Brownsville, Tennessee, November 29, 1824; received an academic education; removed to Illinois at the age of eleven; was reared upon a farm; was elected clerk of the County Commissioners' Court, and then clerk of the County Court, holding the office from 1847 until 1853; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1853, and has since practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1855-1856, and of the State Senate in 1857-1861; entered the Union army in 1862 as colonel of the One Hundred and Twelfth Regiment of Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and was brevetted in January, 1865, for gallant services in the Georgia and Tennessee campaigns, especially at the battle of Franklin, Tennessee; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,389 votes against 6,279 votes for Isaac H. Elliott, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,560 votes against 9,821 votes for Charles Dunham, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Hendricks, Thomas Andrews (nephew of William Hendricks), was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, September 7, 1819; was taken when three years of age to Shelby County, Indiana; received a classical education, graduating at Hanover College in 1841; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Shelbyville; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848, and of the State Senate in 1849; was a delegate to the State Convention in 1850; was nominated on the fifty-third ballot and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,286 votes against 9,824 votes for Lucian Barbour, Republican; was commissioner of the General Land Office 1855-1859; was defeated as Democratic candidate for governor by Oliver P. Morton in 1859; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869; was again defeated as Democratic candidate for governor in 1868; was elected governor of Indiana in 1872, and re-elected, serving until 1877; was nominated for Vice-President on the Democratic ticket at St. Louis in 1876, and defeated.

Hendricks, William (uncle of Thomas A. Hendricks), was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1783; received a public-school education; removed to Indiana, and was one of the first settlers at Madison in 1814; was secretary of the first State Convention; was elected the only representative from Indiana in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,160 votes against 1,629 votes for General Posey; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, receiving 5,691 votes against 3,461 votes for General Posey; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, defeating Reuben W. Nelson; and was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1816, to 1822, when he resigned; was governor of Indiana 1822-1825; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1837; was defeated for re-election as United-States senator; and died at Madison, Indiana, May 16, 1850.

Henkle, Eli Jones, was born in Baltimore County, Maryland, November 24, 1828; received an academic education; taught school three years; studied medicine, and graduated at the University of Maryland in 1850; has devoted his attention chiefly to the practice of his profession and to fruit-culture; was a trustee, and also professor of anatomy, physiology, and hygiene, in the Maryland Agricultural College; was president of the Board of Visitors of Washington University of Baltimore, and a director in the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Company; was elected to the House of Delegates in 1863; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1864; was elected to the State Senate in 1866, and again in 1867, serving in 1867, 1868, and 1870; was again elected to the House of Delegates in 1871 and 1873; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1872; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,862 votes against 10,452 votes for A. B. Hagner, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,436 votes against 11,705 votes for John H. Sellman, Republican, serving from December 1, 1875.

Henley, Thomas J., was born in Indiana in 1810; was educated at the Indiana State College; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1832-1842; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,020 votes against 6,070 votes for White, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,219 votes against 6,376 votes for Martin, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 7,170 votes against 7,130 votes for John S. Davis, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; removed to California, where he was a member of the first State legislature; was for seven years superintendent of Indian affairs for California; was postmaster at San Francisco.

Henn, Bernhart, was born in New York; received a public-school education; removed to Iowa, locating at Fairfield; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,437 votes against 6,985 votes for Wright, Whig, and 301 votes Free-Soil; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 9,453 votes against 7,850 votes for Viele, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Henry, Daniel M., was born near Cambridge, Dorchester County, Maryland, February 19, 1823; was educated at Cambridge Academy, and at St. John's College, Annapolis; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice; was elected a member of the House of Delegates of Maryland in 1846, and again in 1849; was elected a member of the State Senate in 1869; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,287 votes against 11,905 votes for Thomas A. Spence, Republican, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Henry, James, was born in Virginia; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to practice, and was appointed a judge; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Virginia 1780-1781; died in Virginia January 17, 1805.

Henry, John, was born at Easton, Maryland; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1769; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Easton; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1778-1781 and 1784-1787; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland, serving from March 4, 1789, to December 10, 1797, when he resigned, having been elected governor; was governor of Maryland 1797-1798; and died at Easton, Maryland, December 16, 1798.

Henry, John F. (brother of Robert P. Henry), was born in Scott County, Kentucky, January 17, 1793; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits and to the practice of medicine; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of his brother Robert P. Henry, deceased), serving from December 11, 1826, to March 3, 1827.

Henry, Patrick, was born at Studley, Hanover County, Virginia, May 29, 1736; was educated by his father; engaged unsuccessfully in mercantile pursuits; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1760, and commenced practice; removed to Louisa County in 1764; was a member of the Colonial House of Burgesses 1765; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1774-1776; was colonel of the First Virginia Regiment for a few months; was governor of Virginia 1776-1779 and 1784-1786; was a member of the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution in 1788; retired from the bar in 1794, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; declined the appointment of Federal secretary of state offered by Washington, and that of minister to France offered by John Adams; was elected to the State Senate in March, 1799, but never took his seat; and died on his estate of Red Hill, in Charlotte County, June 6, 1799. His life was written by William Wirt, and also by Alexander H. Everett.

Henry, Robert P. (brother of John F. Henry), was born in Scott County, Kentucky, November 24, 1788; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania College; studied law with Henry Clay; was admitted to the bar in 1809, and commenced practice; was prosecuting-attorney for his judicial circuit; served in the war of 1812 as aide-de-camp to his father, Major-General William Henry; removed to Hopkinsville; was again prosecuting-attorney for his judicial circuit; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighteenth Congress as a Clay Democrat; and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to August 25, 1826, when he died of fever at Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

Henry, Thomas, was born in Ireland in 1785; immigrated to the United States, and located at Beaver, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,260 votes against 4,330 votes for James D. White, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; and died at Beaver, Pennsylvania, July 27, 1849.

Henry, William, was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1784-1786.

Henry, William, was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; removed to Vermont, and settled at Bellows Falls; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,627 votes against 3,071 votes for Bradley, Democrat, and 2,580 votes Abolition and scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851.

Herbert, Hillary A., was born at Laurensville, South Carolina, March 12, 1834; removed to Greenville, Butler County, Alabama, in 1840; attended the University of Alabama in 1853-1854, and the University of Virginia 1855-1856; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; entered the Confederate service as captain; was promoted to the colonelcy of the Eighth Alabama Volunteers; was disabled at the battle of the Wilderness May 6, 1864; continued the practice of the law at Greenville, Alabama, until 1872, when he removed to Montgomery; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,435 votes against 9,394 votes for Gerald B. Hall, Republican, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Herbert, John C., was born in Maryland; was elected a representative from that State in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819.

Herbert, Philemon T., was born in Alabama; removed to California, locating at Mariposa City; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 37,409 votes against 36,158 votes for Benham, Whig, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Hereford, Frank, was born in Fauquier County, Virginia, July 4, 1825; graduated in 1845; studied law, and practised his profession; removed to California; was district-attorney of Sacramento County, California, October, 1855-October, 1857; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving (including two counties which were not officially counted by reason of their returns not having been received) 8,982 votes against 7,189 votes for John S. Witcher, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, having as a competitor, in August, J. B. Walker, Republican, and, in October, J. S. Swan; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,524 votes against 7,745 votes for Witcher, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to January 31, 1877, when, having been elected a United-States senator (in place of Allen T. Caperton, deceased), he took his seat in the Senate.

Herkimer, John, was born at Danube, Herkimer County, New York, in 1773; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1800-1808; was for several years a judge of the Circuit Court; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; removed to Meriden, New York; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; returned to Danube, and died there June 8, 1845.

Hernandez, Joseph M., was born at St. Augustine, Florida, when it was a Spanish colony; transferred his allegiance to the United States; was elected the first delegate from the Florida Territory in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from January 3, 1823, to March 3, 1823; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives, and its presiding officer; was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers during the war against the Florida Indians; and died near Matanzas, Cuba, June 8, 1857.

Herndon, William S., was born at Rome, Georgia, November 27, 1837; removed with his father to Wood County, Texas, in May, 1852; received a collegiate education at McKenzie College, Texas; studied law, and commenced practice in 1860; enlisted in the Confederate army as a private in 1861, and remained until the close of the war; resumed the practice of the law at Tyler, Smith County; was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,521 votes against 10,209 votes for G. W. Whitmore, Radical; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Herod, William, received a thorough English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbus, Indiana; was a member of the Indiana State Senate; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-fourth Congress (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of George L. Keimard) as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,635 votes against 5,888 votes for J. B. Ray, Democrat, serving from January 25, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress by W. W. Wick, who received 800 majority.

Herrick, Anson (son of Ebenezer Herrick), was born at Lewiston, Maine, January 21, 1812; received a public-school education, and learned the art of printing; established "The Citizen" at Wiscasset, Maine, in 1833; removed to New York in 1836, and worked as a journeyman printer until 1838, when he established "The New-York Atlas," a weekly newspaper, of which he was the editor until his death; was alderman from the Nineteenth Ward of New-York City in 1854-1856; was appointed by President Buchanan naval storekeeper of the port of New York, and served 1857-1861; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,323 votes against 4,085 votes for Murphy, Union, serving from December 7, 1863, until March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; and died at New York February 5, 1868.

Herrick, Ebenezer (father of Anson Herrick), was born in Lincoln County, Maine; received a public-school education; was secretary of the State Senate of Maine 1820; was elected a representative from Maine in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, defeating M. L. Hill; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, defeating Smith and Rose, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1827; declined a re-election; was a member of the State Senate of Maine 1828 and 1829; and died at Lewiston, Maine, May 7, 1839.

Herrick, Joshua, was born at Beverly, Massachusetts, March 18, 1793; received a public-school education; removed in 1811 to the then district of Maine, and engaged in the lumbering business on the Upper Androscoggin; served in the war of 1812, and was stationed on the Lower Kennebec; removed to Brunswick, where he was connected with the first cotton-factory erected in Maine; was appointed in 1819 deputy-sheriff of Cumberland County, which position he held for many years; removed early in 1829 to Kennebunkport, and in the spring of that year was appointed by President Jackson deputy-collector and inspector of customs, which position he held until March, 1841; was chairman of the county commissioners of York County 1842-1843; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Rev. Samuel Hopkins, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again deputy-collector and inspector of customs at Kennebunkport 1847-1849; was register of probate of York County 1849-1855; was for several years colonel of militia, and held various local and municipal offices; was a warm personal friend of Professor Morse, and aided him in establishing the first line of telegraph in this country between Washington and Baltimore in 1844; died at Alfred, Maine, August 30, 1874.

Herrick, Richard P., was born in Rensselaer County, New York, in 1791; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,242 votes against 5,692 votes for Seymour, Democrat, and 175 votes for Griffith, American, and serving from December 1, 1845, to June 20, 1846, when he died at Washington City.

Herrick, Samuel, was born in Dutchess County, New York, April 14, 1779; received an academical education; studied law at Carlisle, Pennsylvania; was admitted to the bar in 1805, and commenced practice; removed to Zanesville, Ohio, in 1810; held a number of local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; his election was unsuccessfully contested by C. Hammond in the Fifteenth Congress; was a presidential elector on the Jackson and Calhoun ticket in 1828; was appointed United-States district-attorney for Ohio in 1829; died December 16, 1851.

Hersey, Samuel F., was born at Sumner, Maine, April 12, 1812; received an academic education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Bangor, and was engaged in banking and the lumber business in Maine, Minnesota, and Wisconsin; was a member of the legislature of Maine in 1842, 1857, 1865, 1867, and 1869, and of the Executive Council in 1851 and 1852; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago, in 1860, also at Baltimore in 1864, and was a member of the National Republican Committee from 1864 to 1868; and was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,814 votes against 8,706 votes for M. Emery, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to February 3, 1875, when he died at Bangor, Maine.

Hewes, Joseph, was born at Kingston, New Jersey, in 1730; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College; engaged in mercantile pursuits, and, at the age of thirty, located at Wilmington, where he accumulated a fortune; removed to Edenton, and was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1774, 1775, and 1776; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from 1774 (signing the Declaration of Independence in 1776) until his death at Philadelphia November 10, 1779.

Hewitt, Abram Stevens, was born at Haverstraw, New York, July 31, 1822; received his elementary education at the public schools of New-York City, where he received a prize-scholarship to Columbia College, whence he graduated at the head of his class in 1842; was acting professor of mathematics in 1843; studied law, and was admitted to practice in the State Supreme Court in October, 1845; his eyesight failing, he engaged in the iron business, and, under the firm of Cooper & Hewitt, established extensive iron-works mainly in New Jersey and Pennsylvania; was appointed one of the ten United-States scientific commissioners to visit the French "Exposition Universelle" of 1867, and made a report on "Iron and Steel," which was published by Congress, and has been translated into most foreign languages; has organized and managed the "Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art," designed especially for the education of the working-classes; and he was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress on the regular Democratic ticket, receiving 9,503 votes against 8,083 votes for J. O'Brien, Irregular Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,136 votes against 6,805 votes for Hamilton Babcock, Republican, and 696 votes scattering, serving from December 6, 1875.

Hewitt, Goldsmith W., was born in Jefferson County, Alabama, February 14, 1834; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1856, and has since practised; entered the Confederate army in 1861, and served until severely wounded at the battle of Chickamauga in 1863; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1870, and to the State Senate in 1872 and 1874, but resigned when he was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,048 votes against 9,172 votes for J. H. Sloss, Independent Democrat; and was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,634 votes against no opposition, serving from December 6, 1875.

Heyward, Thomas, was born in the parish of St. Luke, South Carolina, in 1746; received an academic education; studied law in the Temple at London; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the Colonial Assembly of North Carolina; was a delegate from North Carolina in the Continental Congress 1776-1798; served in the Revolutionary war as captain of artillery; was taken prisoner at the capture of Charleston, and carried to St. Augustine; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1790; and died on his plantation in the parish of St. Luke, South Carolina, in March, 1809.

Heyward, William, jun., received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1808; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Hibbard, Ellery A., was born at St. Johnsbury, Vermont, July 31, 1826; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was clerk of the New-Hampshire House of Representatives in 1852, 1853, and 1854; was a member of the New-Hampshire House of Representatives in 1865 and 1866; and was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, and also as the candidate of the Labor Reformers, receiving 12,444 votes against 12,085 votes for W. B. Small, Republican, 216 votes for B. Van Dame, Prohibitionist, and 15 scattering votes, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont 1873-1874, declining a re-appointment under the revised judiciary system, and resuming the practice of his profession.

Hibbard, Harry, was born at Concord, Vermont, July 1, 1816; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1835; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Bath, New Hampshire; was assistant clerk of the State House of Representatives 1839, and clerk 1840-1843; was a member of the State House of Representatives and speaker 1844-1845; was a member of the State Senate 1846-1849; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,363 votes against 3,358 votes for J. Kittredge, Whig, and 1,712 votes for White, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,125 votes against 2,248 votes for J. Kittredge, Whig, and 1,018 votes for White, Free-Soiler; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 9,635 votes against 7,556 votes for Perkins, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855; and died at Somersville, New Hampshire, July 27, 1872.

Hibshman, Jacob, was born at Lancaster, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821.

Hickman, John, was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, September 11, 1810; received an academic education; commenced the study of medicine, but, finding his health too feeble for the dissecting-room, he studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at West Chester; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1844; was district-attorney for Chester County 1844-1845; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,733 votes against 6,077 votes for Broomall, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,024 votes against 7,851 votes for Bowen, Republican, and 532 votes for Larkin, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Douglas Democrat, receiving 6,786 votes against 5,185 votes for Manley, Democrat, and 4,676 votes for Broomall, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,140 votes against 7,701 votes for Brinton, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1863; declined a re-election to the Thirty-eighth Congress; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1869; and died at West Chester, Pennsylvania, March 23, 1875.

Hicks, Thomas Hollyday, was born in Dorchester County, Maryland, September 2, 1798; received a public-school education; worked on his father's farm; was elected constable; was sheriff of Dorchester County in 1831; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1830; was appointed register of wills in 1838, and held the office a number of years; was governor of Maryland 1858-1862, taking a firm stand against secession; was appointed a United-States senator from Maryland as a Republican (in place of James A. Pearce, deceased), and was subsequently elected by the legislature, serving from January 14, 1863, to February 13, 1865. He injured one of his feet while getting out of the cars when on an excursion with the Naval Committee of the Senate; erysipelas set in, and amputation became necessary, while his health was enfeebled, and he died of paralysis at Washington City February 13, 1865.

Hiester, Isaac Ellmaker (son of William Heister), was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lancaster; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,840 votes against 6,456 votes for Sampson, Whig, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Antislavery Whig candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,731 votes against 6,561 votes for Anthony E. Roberts, American Whig; resumed practice, and died at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, February 6, 1871.

Higby, William, was born at Willsborough, New York, August 18, 1813; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Vermont; studied and practised law; went to California in 1850; was district-attorney from 1853 to 1859; was a member of the State Senate of California in 1862 and 1863; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Union Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 23,092 votes against 14,557 votes for Coffroth, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 16,053 votes against 14,786 votes for Coffroth, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Higginson, Stephen, was born at Salem, Massachusetts, November 28, 1743; was bred to mercantile pursuits and navigation; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1782-1783; was appointed navy agent at Boston 1797-1801; was a Federalist, strongly opposed to Jefferson; was lieutenant-colonel of a regiment of volunteers sent from Boston to aid in putting down the Shays rebellion; was a heavy loser by the war of 1812; and died at Boston November 22, 1828. He published several political pamphlets.

Hill, Benjamin Harvey, was born in Jasper County, Georgia, September 14, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Georgia at Athens in 1844; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice at La Grange, Georgia; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851, 1859, and 1860; was defeated as the American candidate for Congress in 1855, receiving 6,813 votes against 6,883 votes for H. Warner, Democrat; was defeated as the American candidate for governor of Georgia in 1857, receiving 46,889 votes against 57,631 votes for J. E. Brown, Democrat; was a presidential elector on the Bell and Everett ticket in 1861; was a delegate to the State Convention of 1861, and advocated the Union until the secession ordinance had been adopted; was a delegate from Georgia to the Confederate Provisional Congress, and subsequently a senator from Georgia in the Confederate Congress; was arrested in 1865, and imprisoned in Fort Lafayette; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-fourth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Garrett McMillan), and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,790 votes without any opposition; resigned, having been elected a United-States senator from Georgia, and took his seat March 5, 1877.

Hill, Clement S., was born in Kentucky; resided at Lebanon; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-third Congress as an Independent Democrat, receiving 6,126 votes against 5,996 votes for Stone, Democrat, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Hill, Hugh L. W., was born in Tennessee; resided at Irving College; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Hill, Isaac, was born at Somerville, Massachusetts, April 6, 1788; received a public-school education; his parents removed to a farm in Ashburham, Massachusetts, in 1798; was apprenticed to the art of printing at Amherst 1802-1809; removed to Concord; purchased a newspaper, and issued it as "The New-Hampshire Patriot" for twenty years; was a member of the New-Hampshire House of Representatives, and was a member of the State Senate in 1820-1822 and 1827; was defeated as a candidate for the United-States Senate in 1828; was second comptroller of the United-States Treasury March 21, 1829-May 25, 1830; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to May 28, 1836, when he resigned, having been elected governor; was governor of New Hampshire 1836-1839; was United-States sub-treasurer at Boston 1840-1841; edited and published "Hill's New-Hampshire Patriot" 1840-1847; edited and published "The Farmer's Monthly Visitor" 1841-1851; died at Washington City March 22, 1851. His biography and speeches were published at Concord in 1835.

Hill, John, was born at Crawford, North Carolina; received a public-school education; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1819-1822, and of the State Senate in 1823-1826; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,743 votes against 3,696 votes for A. H. Sheppard, Whig, and serving from December 2, 1839, until March 3, 1841; was reading-clerk of the State Senate of North Carolina in 1850.

Hill, John, was born in Buckingham County, Virginia; was reared on a plantation, receiving a good English education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 913 votes against 708 votes for D. A. Wilson, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Hill, John, was born at Catskill, New York, June 10, 1821; received a private-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; removed to Boonton, New Jersey, where he held several local offices; was a member of the State Assembly of New Jersey in 1861, 1862, and 1866, serving the last year as speaker; was active in raising troops for the Union army during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,861 votes against 13,399 votes for Rogers, Democrat, and 194 votes for Huyler, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,486 votes against 16,410 votes for Philip Rafferty, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 18,057 votes against 15,304 votes for Philip Rafferty, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873.

Hill, Joshua, was born in Abbeville District, South Carolina, January 10, 1812; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Madison, Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-fifth Congress as an American, receiving 4,800 votes against 4,525 votes for L. Stephens, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,492 votes against 4,353 votes for Harper, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to January 23, 1861, when he resigned, in obedience to the wish of the Georgia Convention; remained on his plantation during the war; was appointed collector of customs at Savannah in 1866; was appointed a register in bankruptcy in 1867; was a visitor to West Point in 1867; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia, serving from January 30, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Hill, Mark L., was born at Biddeford, Massachusetts (now Maine), June 30, 1772; received a public-school education; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and subsequently of the Senate of that State; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was elected a representative from Maine in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was postmaster at Phippsburg, Maine; was an overseer of Bowdoin College for many years; was collector of customs at Bath, Maine; and died at Phippsburg, Maine, November 26, 1842.

Hill, Ralph, was born at Johnson, Ohio, October 12, 1827; received an academical education; studied law at the New-York Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbus, Indiana, in 1852; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,017 votes against 11,173 votes for W. Harrington, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Hill, Whitmil, was born in Bertie County, North Carolina, February 12, 1743; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania; was a man of fine literary attainments, and entered zealously into the Revolutionary struggle; was a delegate to the Assembly of Freeman at Hillsborough in 1775, the State Congress at Halifax in April, 1776, and the Constitutional Convention at Halifax December 18, 1776; was lieutenant-colonel in the North-Carolina militia; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1777, and of the State Senate in 1778-1780, 1784, and 1785; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from North Carolina 1778-1781; died at Hill's Ferry, North Carolina, September 26, 1797.

Hill, William H., was born in North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Sixth Congress, and was re-elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1808; was judge of the United-States District Court for the district of North Carolina; died in 1809.

Hillen, Solomon, jun., was born in Baltimore County, Maryland, in 1813; received a classical education, graduating at Georgetown College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Baltimore; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1834-1838; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Pitts, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was mayor of Baltimore 1842-1845; resigned on account of ill health, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits.

Hillhouse, James (son of William Hillhouse), was born at Montville, Connecticut, October 21, 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1773; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Haven; served in the Revolutionary war in the defence of the Connecticut coast; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Second Congress as a Federalist, and was re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1795; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut (in place of Oliver Ellsworth, resigned), serving from December 6, 1796, to June 10, 1810, when he resigned to accept the office of commissioner of the School Fund, which he held until 1825; was a member of the Hartford Convention; was president of the Farmington and Hampshire Canal Company; was treasurer of Yale College 1782-1832; and died at New Haven, Connecticut, December 29, 1832.

Hillhouse, William (father of James Hillhouse), was born at Montville, Connecticut, in 1729; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was for fifty years a member of the Colonial and State House of Representatives; was for forty years a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1783-1786; died at Montville, Connecticut, January 12, 1816.

Hilliard, Henry Washington, was born in Cumberland County, North Carolina, August 8, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, South Carolina, in 1826; studied law; removed to Athens, Georgia, and was admitted to the bar; was elected professor of the University of Alabama in 1831, but resigned in 1834 to practise law at Montgomery, exercising meanwhile the functions of a local preacher of the Methodist-Episcopal Church; was elected to the State legislature of Alabama in 1836, and again in 1838; was a member of the Whig National Convention which nominated Harrison and Tyler in 1839; was chargé d'affaires to Belgium May 12, 1842-August 15, 1844; was elected a representative in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,913 votes against 2,753 votes for John Cochran, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig without opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, defeating James L. Pugh, Southern-rights candidate, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; resuming the practice of law, he published a volume of his speeches, and occasionally preached; he commanded a legion of volunteers in the Confederate service, and, soon after the war, removed to Georgia; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,785 votes against 13,797 votes for Henry R. Harris, Democrat; was appointed minister to Brazil July 31, 1877.

Hillyer, Junius, was born in Wilkes County, Georgia, April 23, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at the State University at Athens in 1823; studied law while in college; was admitted to the bar in one week after graduating, and commenced practice at Athens; was elected by the legislature solicitor-general for the Western District in 1834; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,937 votes against 2,819 votes for Jones, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 5,439 votes against 2,954 votes for Wofford, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was solicitor of the United-States Treasury December 1, 1857-February 13, 1861, when he resigned.

Hindman, Thomas C., was born in Tennessee in 1818; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Mississippi; served in the Mexican war as second lieutenant of Mississippi volunteers; removed to Helena, Arkansas; was elected a representative from that State in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 18,255 votes against 2,853 votes for Crosby, Independent, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was re-elected a representative from Arkansas to the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Secessionist, defeating Jesse M. Cyprett, but did not take his seat; was appointed brigadier-general in the Southern Confederacy September 28, 1861, and placed in command of eight Arkansas regiments in the Army of the West; was promoted to be major-general April 18, 1862, and placed in command of the brigades of Deas, Walthall, Manigault, and Anderson, in Polk's corps, Army of the Tennessee; after the war he resided for a time in Texas, but returned in 1868 to Helena, where he was assassinated at his residence September 28, 1868.

Hindman, William, was born in Maryland; received a classical education, from tutors; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress (in place of Joshua Seney, resigned); was re-elected to the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Congresses, serving from January 30, 1793, to March 3, 1799; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of James Lloyd, resigned), serving from December 15, 1800, to March 3, 1803; and died January 26, 1822.

Hinds, James, was born at Hebron, New York, December 5, 1833; received a liberal education; studied law, graduating at the Cincinnati Law College in 1856, and commencing practice in Minnesota; served in the Union army as a private; settled at Little Rock, Arkansas; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was appointed commissioner to codify the State laws; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Fortieth Congress, serving from June 24, 1868, to October 22, 1868, when he was assassinated at Monroe, Arkansas.

Hinds, Thomas, was born in 1775; settled at Greenville, Mississippi; served in the war of 1812, and distinguished himself at the battle of New Orleans; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twentieth Congress (in place of William Halle, resigned) as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 8, 1828, to March 3, 1831; died at Greenville, Mississippi, August 23, 1840.

Hines, Richard, was born in Edgecombe County, North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Nineteenth Congress, defeating the incumbent, Dr. Thomas H. Hall, and serving from December 5, 1825, until March 3, 1827; removed to Raleigh; was for many years chairman of the Whig State Central Committee; and died at Raleigh, North Carolina, in November, 1851.

Hiscock, Frank, was born at Pompey, New York, September 6, 1834; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1855, and commenced practice at Tully, Onondaga County; was elected district-attorney of Onondaga County, serving 1860-1863; removed to Syracuse; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1867; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,425 votes against 13,834 votes for Daniel Pratt, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Hise, Elijah, was born in Kentucky July 4, 1802; was defeated as Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor in 1836; was chargé d'affaires to Guatemala March 31, 1848-June 21, 1849; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket in 1853; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress (in place of Henry Grider, deceased) as a Democrat, receiving 6,493 votes against 2,244 votes for P. B. Hawkins, Republican, and serving from December 3, 1866, to March 3, 1867; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, but committed suicide at Russellville, Kentucky, May 8, 1867.

Hitchcock, Peter, was born at Cheshire, Connecticut, October 19, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1801; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1804, and commenced practice at Cheshire, Connecticut; removed to Geauga County, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1810, and of the State Senate in 1812-1816; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was successively chosen a judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio, serving 1824-1852, a part of which time he was chief justice; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1850; and died at Painesville, Ohio, May 11, 1853.

Hitchcock, Phineas W., was born at New Lebanon, New York, November 30, 1831; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, in 1855; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Nebraska in 1857; was a member of the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was appointed United-States marshal in 1861, resigning in 1864 when elected Territorial delegate to the Thirty-ninth Congress; on the admission of Nebraska as a State was appointed surveyor-general, which position he held two years; was elected United-States senator from Nebraska as a Republican (to succeed General John M. Thayer), and served from March 4, 1871, until March 3, 1877.

Hoag, Truman H., was born at Manlius, New York, April 9, 1816; received a public-school education; was a clerk in a store at Syracuse 1832-1839; engaged in the steamboat business on Lake Ontario in 1842; removed to Toledo in 1848, and established himself in the transportation business; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,507 votes against 14,595 votes for Ashley, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to February 5, 1870, when he died at Washington City.

Hoagland, Moses, was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Millersburg; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,104 votes against 5,144 votes for Weeker, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was appointed United-States judge for Washington Territory.

Hoar, Ebenezer Rockwood (son of Samuel Hoar, and brother of George Frisbie Hoar), was born at Concord, Massachusetts, February 21, 1816; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1835; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and commenced practice at Concord and Boston; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1840-1855; was judge of the Supreme Court 1859-1869; was attorney-general of the United States March, 1869-July, 1870; was a member of the Joint High Commission which framed the Treaty of Washington in 1871; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,742 votes against 5,989 votes for John K. Tarbox, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; resumed the practice of his profession.

Hoar, George Frisbie (son of Samuel Hoar, and brother of Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar), was born at Concord, Massachusetts, August 29, 1820; studied in early youth at Concord Academy; graduated at Harvard College in 1846; studied law, and graduated at the Dane Law School, Harvard University; settled at Worcester, where he practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1852, and of the State Senate in 1857; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,307 votes against 4,974 votes for Stevens, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,487 votes against 4,277 votes for Cook, Democrat, 1,734 votes for Johnson, Labor Reformer, and 566 votes for Walker, Prohibitionist; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 11,929 votes against 5,829 votes for G. F. Verry, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,423 votes against 8,961 votes for Eli Thayer, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1877; declined a renomination, and was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts, serving from March 4, 1877.

Hoar, Samuel (father of Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar and George Frisbie Hoar), was born at Lincoln, Massachusetts, May 18, 1778; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge in 1802; was two years a private tutor in Virginia; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1805, and commenced practice at Concord; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1820; was a member of the State Senate in 1825 and 1833; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was sent as a commissioner from Massachusetts to South Carolina in 1844 to test in the courts the constitutionality of State laws authorizing the imprisonment of colored persons entering it, but was expelled from Charleston December 5, 1844; was prominently connected with several religious, charitable, historical, and scientific societies; and died at Concord, Massachusetts, November 2, 1856.

Hoard, Charles B., was born at Springfield, Vermont, June 28, 1805; received a public-school education; learned a trade; removed to Antwerp, New York, and was clerk in a private land-office; removed to Watertown, where he was postmaster under Presidents Jackson and Van Buren; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1838; was county-clerk of Jefferson County 1844-1846; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,149 votes against 6,070 votes for Dorwin, Democrat, and 39 votes for Clark, American; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,162 votes against 7,177 votes for Lyon, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Hobart, Aaron, was born at Abington, Massachusetts, June 26, 1787; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1805; studied law with Judge Mitchell of East Bridgewater; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice at Abington; his health failing, he visited England in 1810, and on his return in 1811 resumed practice at Hanover Four Corners, where he remained until his removal to East Bridgewater in 1824; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814, and of the State Senate in 1819; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixteenth Congress (in place of Zabdiel Sampson, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 18, 1820, to March 3, 1827; was a member of the State Executive Council 1827-1831; was appointed judge of probate in 1843, and held the office until it was abolished March 25, 1858; died at East Bridgewater, Massachusetts, July 1, 1858.

Hobart, John Sloss, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, in 1738; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1757; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in the State of New York; was a deputy to the Provincial Convention of 1775; was a delegate to the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Provincial Congresses 1775-1777; was a puisne justice of the Supreme Court 1777-1798; was elected a United-States senator from New York (in place of Philip Schuyler, resigned), serving from February 2, 1798, to April, 1798, when he resigned, having been appointed judge of the United-States District Court of New York; died February 4, 1805.

Hobbie, Selah R., was born at Newburg, New York, March 10, 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Delhi; was district-attorney of Delaware County November 11, 1823-June 11, 1827; was brigade-major and inspector of militia; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; was second assistant postmaster-general 1829-1836; was first assistant postmaster-general 1836-1851; resigned on account of ill health, but recovered, and was again first assistant postmaster-general March 22, 1853-March 23, 1854, when he died of pulmonary consumption at Washington City.

Hodges, Asa, was born January 22, 1823; removed to Marion, Arkansas, in 1859; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and continued to practise law until 1860; was elected in 1866 as a delegate from Crittenden County to the Constitutional Convention under the Reconstruction Acts of Congress; was elected in 1868 a representative in the General Assembly of Arkansas; was elected in 1870 a member of the State Senate for four years; and was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, serving from February 4, 1874, to March 3, 1875.

Hodges, Charles D., resided at Carrollton, Illinois; was elected a representative from that State in the Thirty-fifth Congress (in place of Thomas L. Harris, deceased), serving from January, 1859, to March 3, 1859.

Hodges, George T., was born at Clarendon, Vermont, July 4, 1789; received a public-school education; was trained to business pursuits, and was for many years a successful merchant at Rutland; was for several successive years a member of the State House of Representatives and a member of the State Senate; was for upwards of twenty-five years president of the Bank of Rutland; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-fourth Congress (in place of James Meacham, deceased) as a Republican, serving from December 1, 1856, to March 3, 1857; was a leading officer of the Vermont State Agricultural Society; and died at Rutland, Vermont, September 9, 1860.

Hodges, James L., was born in Bristol County, Massachusetts, August 7, 1790; received a public-school education; was a member of the State Senate of Massachusetts 1823-1824; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress on the seventh trial, receiving 3,438 votes against 3,217 votes for Ruggles, and 147 scattering votes, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833; died at Bristol, Massachusetts, March 8, 1846.

Hoffman, Henry W., was born in Maryland; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 8,320 votes against 7,569 votes for Hamilton, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,716 votes against 8,849 votes for Kunkel, Democrat; was elected sergeant-at-arms of the Thirty-sixth Congress; was collector of customs at Baltimore 1861-1866.

Hoffman, Michael, was born at Clifton Park, New York, in 1788; received an academic education; was educated as a physician, but afterwards studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Herkimer; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 2, 1833; was canal commissioner of the State of New York April 4, 1833-May 9, 1835; was appointed register of the land-office at Saginaw, Illinois, in 1836; returned to Herkimer, New York, and was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841, 1842, and 1844; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention 1846; was naval officer of the New-York customs district; and died at Brooklyn September 27, 1848.

Hoffman, Ogden, was born in the city of New York May 3, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1812; he soon after entered the navy as a midshipman, but in three years he resigned; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Orange County; was district-attorney of Orange County May 9, 1823-January 6, 1826; removed to New-York City; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828; was district-attorney of the city and county of New York 1829-1835; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 20,577 votes against 19,287 votes for John McKeon, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was United-States district-attorney at New York 1841-1845; was attorney-general of the State of New York November 8, 1853-November 7, 1855; and died suddenly at New-York City May 1, 1856.

Hogan, John, was born at Mallow, Cork County, Ireland, January 2, 1805; immigrated with his father to the United States in 1817, and located at Baltimore; was apprenticed to the shoemaker's trade; received a Sunday-school education; went West in 1826; opened a store in Madison County, Illinois, in 1831; was a member of the State legislature in 1836; was register of the land-office at Dixon, Illinois, 1841-1845; removed to St. Louis, Missouri, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits and banking; was postmaster at St. Louis 1857-1861; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,026 votes against 4,781 votes for Johnson, Radical, and 3,157 votes for Knox, Radical, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867. He has published a work on "The Resources of Missouri," and another on "The Commerce and Manufactures of St. Louis."

Hogan, William, was born in New York 1792; was taken by his father to Cape Colony when a lad, and there learned Dutch; returned to New York; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but did not practise; became largely interested in wild lands in Franklin County; founded the town of Hogsburg; was county judge of Franklin County; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was examiner of claims, and afterwards translator in the Department of State at Washington 1850-1860.

Hoge, John (brother of William Hoge), was born near Carlisle, Pennsylvania, September 10, 1760; received an English education from a private tutor; served in the Revolutionary war as ensign of the Ninth Pennsylvania Regiment; removed with his brother William to the wilds of Western Pennsylvania in 1782, and founded the town of Washington; was a delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution in 1789; was a member of the State Senate 1790-1795; was chosen a member of the American Philosophical Society in 1799; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighth Congress (in place of William Hoge, resigned), serving from November 27, 1804, to March 3, 1805; died near Washington, Pennsylvania, August 4, 1824.

Hoge, Joseph P., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; removed to Galena, Illinois; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,796 votes against 7,222 votes for Walker, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, defeating M. P. Sweet, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Hoge, Solomon La Fayette, was born in Logan County, Ohio; received a liberal education; studied law; graduated at the Cincinnati Law College in 1859, and practised at Bellefontaine; entered the Union army in 1861 as first lieutenant in the Ohio Volunteer Infantry; was promoted captain; was severely wounded at the second battle of Bull Run; was twice brevetted for gallant conduct in battle, and at the close of the war received a commission in the regular army; he materially aided in the reconstruction of South Carolina, and was elected associate justice of the Supreme Court; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, and was given the seat which was contested by Mr. Reed; was comptroller-general of South Carolina 1874-1875; was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,431 votes against 12,873 votes for S. McGowan, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Hoge, William, was born near Carlisle, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; removed with his brother John to the wilds of Western Pennsylvania in 1782, and founded the town of Washington; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventh Congress, and was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to 1804, when he resigned; was again elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; died near Washington, Pennsylvania.

Hogeboom, James L., resided at Castleton, Rensselaer County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804, 1805, and 1808; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Hogg, Samuel, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Holbrook, E. D., was born at Elyria, Ohio, in 1836; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Idaho City in Idaho Territory; was elected a delegate from Idaho Territory in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 3,641 votes against 2,923 votes for Kirkpatrick, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869; was assassinated at Idaho City June 18, 1870.

Holcomb, George, was born at Lambertsville, New Jersey, in 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1805; studied medicine, and practised at Allentown, New Jersey; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to January 14, 1828, when he died at Allentown, New Jersey.

Holladay, Alexander R., was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; resided at Mansfield; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,163 votes against 2,078 votes for Forbes, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Holland, Cornelius, was born July 9, 1783; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Canton, Maine; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention which formed the State of Maine in 1819; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820 and 1821; was a member of the State Senate in 1822, 1825, and 1826; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-first Congress (in place of James W. Ripley, resigned), and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 6, 1830, to March 2, 1833; died at Canton, Maine, June 2, 1870.

Holland, James, was born in North Carolina; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; was re-elected to the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1811.

Holleman, Joel, was born in Isle of Wight County, Virginia, October 1, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at Chapel Hill, North Carolina; taught school for some years; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Burwell Bay; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, receiving 140 majority over Francis Mallory, Whig, and serving from December 2, 1839, to 1840, when he resigned; was a member of the State House of Representatives; and was serving as speaker when he died, August 5, 1844.

Holley, John M., was born at Salisbury, Connecticut, November 1802; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1822; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1825, and commenced practice at Lyons, New York; held several local offices; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1838-1841; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1848, when he died at Jacksonville, Florida, where he had gone for his health.

Holloway, David P., was born at Waynesville, Ohio, December 6, 1800; was taken by his parents to Cincinnati in 1813; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing at Richmond, Indiana; worked for four years in the office of "The Cincinnati Gazette," established "The Richmond Palladium" in 1832, and edited it for many years; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1843, and of the State Senate 1844-1853; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,419 votes against 5,242 votes for Bucklins, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was commissioner of patents March 28, 1861-August 17, 1865.

Holman, William S., was born at a pioneer homestead called Veraestau, in Dearborn County, Indiana, September 6, 1822; received a common-school education, and studied at Franklin College, Indiana, for two years; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Aurora; was judge of the Court of Probate from 1843 to 1846; was prosecuting-attorney from 1847 to 1849; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Indiana in 1850; was a member of the legislature of Indiana in 1851; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas from 1852 to 1856; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,425 votes against 7,856 votes for Hackleman, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,299 votes against 10,007 votes for Yatar, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,926 votes against 7,992 votes for Gavin, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,921 votes against 11,052 votes for Grover, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 15,665 votes against 14,903 votes for Lamb, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 15,396 votes against 12,272 votes for Pritchard, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 16,367 votes against 15,039 votes for Herod, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,302 votes against 10,835 votes for Claypool, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1877.

Holmes, David, was born in Virginia; received a good English education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1809; was governor of the Territory of Mississippi by appointment 1809-1817; was governor of the State of Mississippi 1817-1819; was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi (in place of Walter Leake, resigned), serving from November 13, 1820, to 1825, when he resigned; and died at Washington, Mississippi, August 20, 1832.

Holmes, Elias Bellows, was born at Fletcher, Vermont, May 27, 1807; received a public-school education; taught school; studied law at Pittsfield, New York; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Brockport, New York, in 1831; became very wealthy by successful investments in real estate; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,807 votes against 5,722 votes for Selden, Democrat, and 395 votes for Sperry, American; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849.

Holmes, Gabriel, was born in Duplin (now Sampson) County, North Carolina, in 1764; received a classical education from Rev. Dr. McCorkle of Iredell County, and was a student at Harvard College; studied law with Judge Taylor at Raleigh; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Clinton, North Carolina; was a State senator in 1807; was governor of North Carolina 1821-1824; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Nineteenth Congress, and re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 3, 1825, until March 3, 1829; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, defeating General Dudley, but died near Clinton, North Carolina, September 26, 1829.

Holmes, Isaac Edward, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, April 6, 1796; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1815; studied law at Charleston; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice there; was one of the founders of the South-Carolina association organized to resist the attacks upon slavery; was a member of the State legislature in 1826 and 1832; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,594 votes against 854 votes for Hugh H. Legare, Union; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, and Thirtieth Congresses; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 600 majority over Barker, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1851; removed to California, where he practised 1851-1857; returned to South Carolina; was a State commissioner to confer with the Federal Government after the cessation of hostilities; and died at Charleston, South Carolina, February 25, 1867.

Holmes, John, was born at Kingston, Massachusetts, in March, 1773; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1796; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1799, and commenced practice at Alfred, Massachusetts (now Maine); was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1802 and 1803, and of the State Senate 1813-1817; was a member of the North-eastern Boundary Commission under the treaty of 1815; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to 1820, when he resigned; was a delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution of Maine, and chairman of the committee which draughted it; was elected a United-States senator from Maine, serving from November 13, 1820, to March 3, 1827; was appointed by the legislature of Maine a commissioner to digest and report a system of government for the State prison, and to revise the criminal code of the State; was again elected United-States senator (in place of Albion K. Parris, resigned), serving from January 23, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835-1838; was United-States district-attorney for the district of Maine from 1841 until his death at Portland, Maine, July 7, 1843. He published "The Statesman; or, Principles of Legislation and Law."

Holmes, Sidney T., was born at Schaghticoke, New York, August 7, 1815; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Morrisville; was loan commissioner for Madison County 1848-1851; was surrogate for Madison County 1851-1864; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,638 votes against 9,781 votes for Albertus Perry, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Holmes, Uriel, was born in Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to 1818, when he resigned; died in 1827.

Holsey, Hopkins, was born in Virginia in 1799; received an academical education; studied law at Judge Gould's Litchfield Law School, and commenced practice at Hamilton, Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving 39,468 votes against 27,476 votes for Beall, State-rights; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; removed to Athens, Georgia, where he edited "The Southern Banner;" and died at Columbus, Georgia, March 31, 1859.

Holt, Hines, was born in Georgia; was by profession a lawyer; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Walter T. Colquitt, resigned), serving from February 1, 1841, to March 3, 1841.

Holt, Orrin, was born in Connecticut; resided at Millington; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 6, 1836, to March 3, 1839.

Holten, Samuel, was born at Danvers, Massachusetts, June 9, 1738; was educated for the medical profession; was a member of the Continental Congress 1778-1787, serving one term as president; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was judge of probate for Essex County for a number of years; and died January 2, 1816.

Hook, Enos, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Waynesburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, but was attacked with bleeding of the lungs at Washington in the spring of 1841, and resigned April 18, 1841.

Hooker, Charles E., was born in Union District, South Carolina; studied law; graduated at the Harvard University Law School, Cambridge, Massachusetts, and practised at Jackson, Mississippi; was elected district-attorney of the River District in 1850; was elected to the Mississippi legislature in 1859, and resigned his seat to enter the Confederate army; was wounded during the siege of Vicksburg; was promoted to the rank of colonel of cavalry, and assigned to duty on the military court attached to General Polk's command; was elected attorney-general of the State of Mississippi in 1865, and re-elected in 1868, and, in common with the other civil officers of the State, was removed by the military authorities; was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 5,877 votes over James Hill, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,858 votes against 8,646 votes for Shaughnessy, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Hooks, Charles, was born in Bertie County, North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of William R. King, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1816, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; removed to Alabama, where he died in 1851.

Hooper, Samuel, was born at Marblehead, Massachusetts, February 8, 1808; received an academic education; was interested in mercantile pursuits, especially the China trade; was a member of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts in 1851, 1852, and 1853, declining a re-election; was a member of the State Senate in 1857, declining a re-nomination on account of business engagements; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-seventh Congress (in place of William Appleton, resigned) as a Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,828 votes against 5,351 votes for Abbott, People's candidate; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,403 votes against 5,485 votes for Abbott, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 7,902 votes against 3,183 votes for Wightman, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 11,328 votes against 8,592 votes for Harvey, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,025 votes against 5,605 votes for Morse, Democrat, and 688 votes for Sargent, Labor Reform; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 8,715 votes against 6,262 votes for Morse, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1861, to February 14, 1875, when he died, after a brief illness, at Washington City.

Hooper, William, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, June 17, 1742; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1760; studied law with James Otis; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wilmington, North Carolina, in 1767; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1773; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1774-1777; was obliged to resign on account of his embarrassed pecuniary condition; and died at Wilmington, North Carolina, in 1790.

Hooper, William H., was born in Dorchester County, Maryland, December 13, 1813; received a common-school education; was early engaged in mercantile pursuits, but subsequently was commander of a steamer on the Western rivers; was elected United-States senator from Utah under the State organization of Deseret adopted by the people of Utah in 1862; was elected a delegate to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Fortieth, Forty-first, and Forty-second Congresses, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1873; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Salt-Lake City.

Hopkins, Benjamin Franklin, was born at Hebron, New York, April 22, 1829; was reared on a farm; received an academic education; became a telegraph operator; removed to Wisconsin in October, 1849, and settled at Madison; was secretary of an insurance company, and manager of gas-works; was private secretary to Governor Bashford in 1856-1857; was a member of the State Senate in 1861, and of the State House of Representatives in 1865; was nominated as a representative from Wisconsin in the Fortieth Congress after 136 ballots, and elected as a Republican, receiving 14,129 votes against 8,833 votes for Pease, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 18,333 votes against 12,659 votes for Winans, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, until he died at Madison January 1, 1870.

Hopkins, George W., was born in Goochland County, Virginia, February 22, 1804; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lebanon, Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1834; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, defeating James H. Gholson; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 1,475 majority over John N. Humes, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 2,821 votes against 2,308 votes for George, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving about 1,000 majority over Fulton, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1847; was chargé d'affaires to Portugal March 3, 1847-October 18, 1849; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849; was a judge of the Circuit Court; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,318 votes against 5,249 votes for Martin, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was again elected a member of the State House of Representatives; and died March 2, 1861.

Hopkins, James H., was born November 3, 1832, in Washington County, Pennsylvania; graduated at Washington College in 1850; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1852 before he was of age; practised in Pittsburg for twenty years, then retired, and travelled for some time in Europe; engaged in the banking business; was elected Grand Master of Knights Templar in the United States in 1874 by an almost unanimous vote; never held any political office or was a candidate for one until he was defeated as representative from the State at large to the Forty-third Congress, and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat (the first since Judge Wilkins), receiving 10,091 votes against 7,777 votes for James S.

Negley, Republican, and 213 votes for Thomas Howard, Independent Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,913 votes against 14,561 votes for Russell Errett, Republican.

Hopkins, Samuel, was born in Albemarle County, Virginia; served with distinction in the Revolutionary war; removed to Kentucky in 1797; was for several years a member of the State legislature; commanded an expedition of 2,000 volunteers in a campaign against the Kickapoo Indians in 1812; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from June 20, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died in October, 1819.

Hopkins, Samuel M., was born in New York in 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1791; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Genesee County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1820 and 1821; and died at Geneva, New York, October 8, 1837.

Hopkins, Stephen, was born at Scituate, Rhode Island, March 7, 1707; was reared on a farm; received a public-school education; removed to Providence in 1731; engaged in mercantile pursuits and in land-surveying; was a member of the Colonial Assembly and its speaker 1732-1741; was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas in 1739, and of the Superior Court 1751-1754; was a delegate to the Colonial Congress which met at Albany in 1754; was Colonial governor of Rhode Island 1755, 1756, 1758-1761, 1763, 1764, 1767; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress 1774-1778; was many years chancellor of Brown University; and died at Providence, Rhode Island, July 19, 1785. He published by order of the Rhode-Island Assembly, in 1765, "Rights of the Colonies Examined," and an "Account of Providence," in the Massachusetts Historical Collection.

Hopkinson, Francis (father of Joseph Hopkinson), was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1738; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1765, and commenced practice; visited England 1766-1768; was appointed royal tax-receiver in New Jersey, but was removed when he espoused the popular cause; was a delegate from New Jersey in the Continental Congress 1776-1777; was judge of admiralty for Pennsylvania 1779-1789; was judge of the United-States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania 1790-1791; died of apoplexy at Philadelphia May 9, 1791. He wrote a number of popular songs, the music for which he composed; and his "Essays and Occasional Writings" was published in three volumes in 1791.

Hopkinson, Joseph (son of Francis Hopkinson), was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, November 12, 1770; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1791, and commenced practice at Easton, but soon removed to Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; resided three years at Bordentown, New Jersey; resumed practice at Philadelphia; was judge of the United-States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania 1828-1842; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1837; died at Philadelphia January 15, 1842. He published a number of scientific and literary addresses, and was the author of "Hail Columbia."

Horn, Henry, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 572 majority over Daniel W. Coxe, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-third Congress by Horace Binney, Whig.

Hornbeck, John W., was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Union College, New York; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Allentown, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to January 16, 1848, when he died at Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Hornblower, Josiah, was born in Staffordshire in 1729; received a mathematical and mechanical education; came to the United States in 1751 to build a steam-engine at the copper-mines near Belleville, New Jersey; was several years a member of the Colonial House of Representatives; took an active part in Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress in 1785-1786; was judge of the Essex-county Court 1798-1809; and died January 21, 1809.

Horse, Outerbridge, was born in Delaware in 1777; received an academical education; studied law with James A. Bayard; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wilmington, Delaware; was for many years attorney-general of Delaware; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware in place of Samuel White, deceased, serving from January 29, 1810, to March 3, 1821; died at Needwood, Maryland, June 9, 1842.

Horton, Thomas R., was born in the State of New York; resided at Fultonville; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,431 votes against 8,945 votes for Jackson, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Horton, Valentine B., was born at Windsor, Vermont, January 29, 1802; was educated at Partridge's Military College, and, when that institution was removed from Vermont to Connecticut, he accompanied it as a teacher; studied law at Middletown, Connecticut; was admitted to the bar in 1830; commenced practice at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and removed in 1833 to Cincinnati; in 1835 he again removed to Pomfret, Ohio, where he engaged in mining and manufacturing; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,818 votes against 6,907 votes for Smith, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 10,272 votes against 9,927 votes for Medill, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; declined a renomination to the Thirty-sixth Congress; was a member of the Peace Congress held at Washington in 1861; was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,965 votes against 11,275 votes for Martin, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Hosford, Jedediah, was born in Vermont; removed to New York, and located at Moscow; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,727 votes against 5,609 votes for Wadsworth, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Hoskins, George G., was born at Bennington, New York, December 24, 1824; received an academic education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected town clerk of Bennington in 1849, and held the office some years; was elected justice of the peace in 1851, and held the office for sixteen successive years; was supervisor in 1862; was appointed postmaster at Bennington, New York, by President Taylor, and held the office during the administration of President Fillmore; was again appointed postmaster at Bennington by President Lincoln, and held the office during his administration and until removed by President Johnson; was a member of the Assembly of the State of New York in 1860, 1865, and 1866, and was speaker in 1865; in 1868 was appointed by Governor Fenton State commissioner of public accounts, and held the office three years; in January, 1870, became a director of the Wyoming-county National Bank; in April, 1871, was appointed by President Grant collector of internal revenue for the Twenty-ninth District of New York, and entered upon the duties of the office May 1, 1871, resigning March 4, 1873, having been elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,233 votes against 9,509 votes for M. M. Southworth, Liberal; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,323 votes against 9,397 votes for John H. Buck, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,847 votes against 12,251 votes for Charles B. Benedict, Democrat, and 2,327 votes for Flugler, Republican.

Hosmer, Hezekiah L., was elected a representative from New York in the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799.

Hosmer, Titus, was born at Middletown, Connecticut, in 1736; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1757; studied law; was a member of the State Executive Council; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1773-1778, serving as speaker in 1777; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1777-1779; was appointed, in January, 1780, judge of the Maritime Court of Appeals for the United States; died at Middletown, Connecticut, August 4, 1780.

Hostetter, Jacob, was born at York, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress (in place of Jacob Spangler, resigned), and was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from November 16, 1818, to March 3, 1821.

Hotchkiss, Giles W., was born at Windsor, Broome County, New York, October 25, 1815; studied and practised law; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,889 votes against 9,781 votes for Day, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 15,543 votes against 10,806 votes for John Magee, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; and was again elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,393 votes against 12,280 votes for Devereux, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Hotchkiss, Julius, was born in Waterbury, Connecticut, July 11, 1810; received a common-school education; engaged in manufacturing pursuits; was mayor of Waterbury in 1852; was a member of the legislature of Connecticut in 1851 and 1858; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,730 votes against 12,937 votes for Northrup, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Houck, Jacob, jun., was born at Schoharie, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,210 votes against 10,143 votes for Jedediah Miller, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Hough, David, was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Eighth Congress; and was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807.

Hough, William J., was born at Cazenovia, New York; received an academical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835 and 1839; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,126 votes against 7,426 votes for Ledyard, Whig, and 2,268 votes for Brown, American, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Houghton, Sherman O., was born in the city of New York April 10, 1828; was educated at a commercial institute in New York; entered the army as a private in a volunteer regiment in 1846, and was sent to California, and afterward to Mexico, where he served until the close of the war between the United States and that country, having been promoted to the rank of lieutenant; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was mayor of San Francisco in 1855-1856; was elected a representative from California in the Forty-second Congress, receiving 18,504 votes against 17,303 votes for G. Pearce, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,391 votes against 9,012 votes for E. J. C. Kewen, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

House, John F., was born in Williamson County, Tennessee, January 9, 1827; received his early education at a grammar-school; afterward entered Transylvania University, Lexington, Kentucky, but left at the end of the junior year; studied law, and graduated at the Lebanon Law School, Tennessee, in 1850, and commenced practice at Clarksville; was a member of the Tennessee legislature in 1853-1854; was presidential elector on the Bell and Everett ticket in 1860; was a member of the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States from Tennessee; at the expiration of his term of service in said body, he entered the Confederate army, and continued therein until the close of the war, and was paroled at Columbus, Mississippi, in June, 1865; was a delegate from Tennessee to the National Convention of the Democratic party that nominated Seymour and Blair in 1868; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Tennessee in 1870; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,992 votes against 7,227 votes for Horace H. Harrison, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,719 votes against 8,987 votes for W. F. Prosser, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Houston, George Smith, was born in Williamson County, Tennessee, January 17, 1811; removed when a lad to Alabama, where he received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Limestone County; was a member of the State legislature of Alabama; was elected district-solicitor in 1837; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 2,000 majority over Armstrong, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 4,746 votes against 2,923 votes for David Hubbard, State-rights Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1849; declined being a candidate for the Thirty-first Congress; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving 4,720 votes against 4,268 votes for C. C. Howard, State-rights Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress without opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress without opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress without opposition, and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress without opposition, serving from December 6, 1845, until January 21, 1861, when he resigned, Alabama having seceded; was elected United-States senator in 1865, but was not permitted to take his seat; was an unsuccessful candidate for the United-States Senate in 1867; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866, and was governor of Alabama 1874-1876.

Houston, John, was one of the four citizens who originated revolutionary movements in Georgia in 1774; was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1775-1777; was a member of the State Council in 1777; was governor of Georgia 1778-1784; was appointed commissioner for establishing the boundary-line between Georgia and South Carolina 1787; was appointed judge of the State Supreme Court 1792; and died at Savannah, Georgia, July 20, 1796.

Houston, John Wallace, was born at Concord, Delaware; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1834; studied law with John M. Clayton; was admitted to the bar in 1837, and commenced practice at Georgetown, Delaware, in 1839; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,221 votes against 6,043 votes for Biddle, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 6,154 votes against 6,007 votes for Dillwent, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,369 votes against 6,026 votes for Whiteley, Democrat, and serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; was a delegate to the Peace Congress at Washington in 1861.

Houston, Samuel, was born near Lexington, Virginia, March 2, 1793; after his father's death in 1807 his mother removed to Blount County, Tennessee, where he was adopted into the Cherokee tribe; he served with distinction under General Jackson in the Creek war 1813-1814, receiving a severe wound at the battle of Tallapoosa; commenced the study of law at Nashville, March 1, 1818, and was admitted to the bar; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was governor of Tennessee 1827-1829, resigning before the expiration of his term on account of family trouble, and going to the Cherokee reservation in Arkansas, where he resided for several years, going to Texas with a party of emigrants in April, 1833; he was a member of the Constitutional Convention, and in October, 1835, was made commander-in-chief of the Texan army, terminating the war for independence by the victory at San Jacinto April 2, 1836, where he was severely wounded; was elected the first president of the republic of Texas, serving 1836-1838; being constitutionally ineligible for re-election, he became a member of the Texan Congress 1838-1840, and was again elected president, serving 1841-1844; was one of the first United-States senators from Texas, serving from March 30, 1846, to March 3, 1859; was governor of Texas 1859-1861, and was deposed by a vote of the convention which had passed the ordinance of secession February 16, 1861, the legislature confirming the action of the convention February 20, 1861; died at Huntersville, Texas, July 25, 1863.

Houston, William, was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1784-1787; was a delegate from Georgia to the convention which framed the Federal Constitution, but refused to sign that document.

Houston, William Churchill, was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1768; was professor of mathematics in that institution; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1779-1782 and 1784-1785.

Howard, Benjamin, was born in Virginia; received an academic education; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Tenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to April 10, 1810, when he resigned; was governor of Upper Louisiana 1810-1812; was appointed brigadier-general in the United-States army March 12, 1813, and assigned to the command of the Eighth Military Department, embracing the territory west of the Mississippi River; died at St. Louis, Missouri, September 18, 1814.

Howard, Benjamin C., was born at "Belvidere," Baltimore, Maryland, November 5, 1791; graduated at Princeton College in 1809; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Baltimore; commanded the "Mechanical Volunteers" at the battle of North Point September 12, 1814; connected himself with the Masonic fraternity in 1823, and was, before he died, the oldest past grand master of that order in Maryland; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1824; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,306 votes against 4,745 votes for Little, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1833; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,181 votes against 6,952 votes for Kennedy, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States 1843-1862; declined the appointment of United-States senator in 1848; was a delegate to the Peace Congress in 1861; and died at Baltimore March 6, 1872.

Howard, Jacob M., was born at Shaftsbury, Vermont, July 10, 1805; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts; studied law in Massachusetts, and commenced its practice in Michigan; was a member of the State legislature of Michigan in 1838; published a translation from the French of the secret memoirs of the Empress Josephine in 1847; drew up the platform of the first convention ever held of the Republican party in 1854, and christened that party; was elected attorney-general of Michigan in 1854, 1856, and 1858, serving in all six years; was a representative from Michigan in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Republican, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was elected United-States senator as a Republican (to fill the vacancy caused by the decease of K. S. Bingham); and was re-elected in 1865, serving from January 17, 1862, to March 3, 1871.

Howard, John Eager, was born in Baltimore County, Maryland, June 4, 1752; received a classical education; entered the Revolutionary army as captain in Hall's regiment, and was promoted after his gallantry in numerous battles, having attained the rank of colonel when peace was declared; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1787-1788; was governor of Maryland 1789-1792; declined the position of secretary of war tendered him by President Washington in 1795; was a member of the State Senate 1795; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Richard Potts, resigned), serving from December 27, 1796, to March 3, 1803; was selected by Washington as a brigadier-general, when, in anticipation of a war with France, he organized an army in 1798; and died at Baltimore, Maryland, October 12, 1827.

Howard, Tilghman A., was born near Pickinsville, South Carolina, November 14, 1797; received a public-school education; taught school; studied law in Tennessee with Hugh Lawson White; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Tennessee; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1824; was a presidential elector on the Jackson and Calhoun ticket in 1825; removed in 1830 to Rockville, Indiana, where he continued to practise; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,237 majority over Evans, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to August 1, 1840, when he resigned to run as Democratic candidate for governor against Samuel Bigger, but was defeated; was appointed chargé d'affaires to the republic of Texas June 11, 1844; and died at Washington, Texas, August 16, 1844.

Howard, Volney E., was born at Norridgewock, Maine; received an English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Vicksburg, Mississippi; fought a duel with Sergeant S. Prentiss, and another with Alexander G. McNutt; removed to San Antonio, Texas; was elected a representative from Texas in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,120 votes against 2,976 votes for Williamson, 2,135 votes for Timothy Pillsbury, Calhoun Democrat, and 721 votes for Hugh McLeod, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Howard, William, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and located at Batavia; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,792 votes against 6,922 votes for Clark, Republican, and serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Howard, William A., was born in Vermont; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1839; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Detroit; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,877 votes against 8,723 votes for Stuart, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,658 votes against 12,791 votes for Lothrop, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 1,600 majority, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861, having successfully contested the election of G. B. Cooper in the Thirty-sixth Congress; was appointed by President Lincoln postmaster at Detroit; was tendered the Chinese mission in 1869, but declined it.

Howe, Albert R., was born at Brookfield, Massachusetts, January 2, 1840; received a liberal education; enlisted as a private in the Forty-seventh Massachusetts Infantry, in which he was successively sergeant, second and first lieutenant, and acting adjutant, participating in the campaign in North Carolina under General A. G. Foster; upon the expiration of the nine-months' service of the regiment, he was commissioned second lieutenant in the Fifth Massachusetts Cavalry, in which he was subsequently promoted to be first lieutenant, captain, and major, serving in Virginia and Texas until November 30, 1865; settled in Como, Panola County, Mississippi, on a cotton-plantation, in December, 1865; was a member of the Mississippi State Constitutional Convention in 1868; was a delegate to the Chicago National Republican Convention in 1868; was appointed treasurer of Panola County in 1869; was a member of the State legislature of Mississippi in 1870, 1871, and 1872; and was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,831 votes against 8,216 votes for W. A. Alcorn, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Howe, John W., was born in New Hampshire; removed to Pennsylvania, locating at Franklin; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Free-soil Whig, receiving 7,509 votes against 7,166 votes for S. E. McFarland, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,284 votes against 5,882 votes for Shattuck, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Howe, Thomas M., was born in Vermont; received a public-school education; removed to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; was for many years cashier, then president, of the Pittsburgh Exchange Bank; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,406 votes against 4,247 votes for Salisbury, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,620 votes against 3,817 votes for Gibson, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Howe, Thomas Y., jun., was born at Auburn, New York; received a thorough English education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,037 votes against 7,011 votes for Morgan, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Howe, Timothy O., was born at Livermore,

Maine, February 24, 1816; received an academic education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was a member of the legislature of the State of Maine in 1845, in the latter part of which year he removed to Wisconsin; was elected a judge of the Circuit and Supreme Courts of Wisconsin in 1850, and held the office until he resigned in 1855; was elected United-States senator from Wisconsin as a Union Republican (to succeed Charles Durkee), and took his seat in 1861; was re-elected in 1867, and again re-elected in 1873; has served from March 3, 1861.

Howell, David, was born in New Jersey January 1, 1747; received a classical education, graduating at New-Jersey College in 1766; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Providence, Rhode Island; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress 1782-1785; was attorney-general of Rhode Island in 1789; was professor of law in Brown University 1790-1824; was judge of the United-States District Court for Rhode Island 1812-1824; and died at Providence, Rhode Island, July 29, 1826.

Howell, Edward, was born in the State of New York; received a public-school education; resided at Bath; was a member of the New-York House of Representatives in 1832; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835.

Howell, Elias, was born in New Jersey; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and located at Newark; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,446 votes against 2,066 votes for his opponent, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; died of apoplexy at his residence, near Newark, in Licking County, May, 1844.

Howell, James B., was born in New Jersey July 4, 1816; removed to Newark, Licking County, Ohio, in 1819; graduated at Miami University, Ohio, in 1837; studied law with Hocking H. Hunter of Lancaster, and was admitted to the bar in 1839; moved to Iowa in 1841, and settled at Keosauqua, where he practised law for several years; in 1845 he purchased the Whig paper, and has ever since been engaged in the newspaper business, removing to Keokuk in 1849, where in 1854 he started "The Daily Whig," afterwards changing the name to "The Daily Gate City;" he took a prominent part in organizing the Republican party in Iowa in 1855; was a delegate to the Fremont Convention in 1856, and has since taken an active and leading part in the politics of Iowa; was elected a United-States senator from Iowa as a Republican (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of James W. Grimes), and served from January 26, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Howell, Jeremiah B., was born in Rhode Island in 1772; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1789; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Providence; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817; and died at Providence, Rhode Island, in 1822.

Howell, Nathaniel, was born in the State of New York; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1788; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at Canandaigua, New York, October 16, 1821.

Howland, Benjamin, was born at Tiverton, Rhode Island, in 1756; received a public-school education; held several local offices; was a member of the State General Assembly; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Samuel J. Potter), and took his seat December 3, 1804, serving until March 3, 1807; and died at Tiverton, Rhode Island, May 9, 1821.

Howley, Richard, was born in Liberty County,

Georgia; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was governor of Georgia 1780; narrowly escaped capture when the British troops occupied the sea-coast counties of Georgia; was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1780-1781.

Hubard, Edmund W., was born in Virginia; resided at Curdsville; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, defeating Toher, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1847.

Hubbard, Asahel W., was born at Haddam, Connecticut, January 19, 1818; received a public-school education; went to Indiana, where he taught school; studied law, and commenced practice; was a member of the legislature of Indiana in 1847, 1848, and 1849; in 1857 he removed to Iowa, where he was elected judge of the Fourth Judicial District; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,386 votes against 2,755 votes for Duncombe, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 8,439 votes against 3,168 votes for L. Chapman, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,030 votes against 3,958 votes for Thompson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Hubbard, Chester D., was born at Hamden, Connecticut, November 25, 1814; went with his parents to Pennsylvania in 1815, and thence to Virginia in 1819; graduated at the Wesleyan University, Connecticut, in 1840; engaged in the lumber business and in banking; was a member of the State legislature of Virginia in 1852 and 1853; was a member of the Virginia (Richmond) Convention in 1861, and of the West Virginia (Wheeling) Convention a few months afterwards; was a member of the State Senate of West Virginia in 1863 and 1864; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving but little opposition; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 10,001 votes against 8,239 votes for Johnson, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Hubbard, David, was born in Virginia; received an academic education; removed at an early age to Alabama; studied and practised law; was solicitor of his judicial district; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831, 1842, 1843, 1845, and 1853, and of the State Senate in 1830; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a State-rights Democrat, receiving 1,527 majority over David G. Ligas, Whig, and serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1845; was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in 1849; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-first Congress as a State-rights Democrat, receiving 4,575 votes against 3,085 votes for John Wood, Whig; was a presidential elector on the Breckinridge and Lane ticket in 1860; and removed after the war to Nashville, Tennessee.

Hubbard, Demas, jun., was born at Winfield, New York, January 17, 1806; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Smyrna; held several local offices; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1840; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,067 votes against 14,078 votes for Hezekiah Sturges, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; died at Smyrna, New York, September 2, 1873.

Hubbard, Henry, was born at Charlestown, New Hampshire, May 3, 1784; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1803; studied law under Jeremiah Mason; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Charlestown in 1806; was a representative in the State legislature in 1812-1815, 1819-1820, 1823-1827, serving the last three years as speaker; was State solicitor for Cheshire County 1823-1828; was judge of probate 1827-1829; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, until March 3, 1835, and as speaker pro tempore May 16, 1834; was elected to the United-States Senate as a Democrat, and served from March 4, 1835, until March 3, 1841; was governor of New Hampshire 1841-1843; was United-States sub-treasurer at Boston 1846-1849; and died at Charlestown, New Hampshire, June 5, 1857.

Hubbard, John H., was born at Salisbury, Connecticut, in 1805; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1826, and commenced practice at Litchfield; was county-attorney for five successive years, and was twice elected a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,248 votes against 10,892 votes for Woodruff, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,747 votes against 9,112 votes for Taylor, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Hubbard, Jonathan H., was born at Windsor, Vermont, in 1768; received a liberal education; studied law, and was admitted to practice; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was judge of the State Supreme Court 1813-1845; and died at Windsor, Vermont, September 20, 1849.

Hubbard, Levi, was born in Massachusetts; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804-1805; was a State senator 1806-1811; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again a State senator in 1816; was for some years county-treasurer; was a member of the Executive Council in 1829.

Hubbard, Richard D., was born at Berlin, Connecticut, September 7, 1818; graduated at Yale College; studied and practised law; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,994 votes against 11,447 votes for Deming, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Hubbard, Samuel Dickinson, was born at Middletown, Connecticut, August 10, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1819; studied law, but did not practise, devoting himself to manufactures; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,266 votes against 5,814 votes for Stewart, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 7,325 votes against 6,669 votes for Ingham, Democrat, and 416 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was postmaster-general of the United-States August 31, 1852-March 7, 1853; retired to private life, and died at Middletown, Connecticut, October 8, 1855.

Hubbard, Thomas H., was born at New Haven, Connecticut, in 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1798; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hamilton, New York; was surrogate of Madison County March 26, 1806-February 26, 1816; was a presidential elector on the Madison and Gerry ticket in 1812; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; removed to Utica, New York; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844, and on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; and died at Utica, New York, May 22, 1857.

Hubbell, Edwin N., was born at Coxsackie, New York, August 13, 1815; received an academical education; engaged in agricultural and mechanical pursuits; was for several years supervisor of Greene County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,373 votes against 10,028 votes for Theodore B. Gates, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Hubbell, James R., was born in Delaware County, Ohio, in 1824; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was for four successive years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving two years as speaker; was a presidential elector on the Fremont and Dayton ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,903 votes against 8,963 votes for William Johnston, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Hubbell, Jay A., was born at Avon, Michigan, September 15, 1829; graduated at the University of Michigan in 1853; was admitted to the practice of law in 1855; removed to Ontonagon, Michigan, in November, 1855; was elected district-attorney of the Upper Peninsula in 1857, and again in 1859; removed to Houghton, Michigan, in February, 1860; was elected prosecuting-attorney of Houghton County in 1861, in 1863, and in 1865; was engaged in the practice of law until 1870, and has been identified with the development of the mineral interests of the Upper Peninsula; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,951 votes against 5,546 votes for S. P. Ely, Liberal Republican and Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,877 votes against 3,460 votes for H. D. Noble, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,224 votes against 12,656 votes for John H. Kilbourne, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Hubbell, William S., was born in Steuben County, New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,692 votes against 6,847 votes for Sherman, Whig, and 288 votes for Pitts, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Hubley, Edward B., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; and died at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, February 23, 1856.

Hudson, Charles, was born at Marlborough, Massachusetts, November 14, 1795; was reared on a farm; received a public-school education; studied theology, and was licensed as a Universalist preacher in 1810; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828-1833, and of the State Senate 1833-1839; was a member of the Executive Council 1839-1841; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 800 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Congresses, and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 6,068 votes against 4,107 votes for Bryant, Democrat, and 1,884 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-first Congress by Charles Allen, Free-Soiler; was naval officer of the port of Boston 1849-1853; edited "The Boston Daily Atlas," was assessor of internal revenue 1864-1865; presided at the centennial celebration of the battle of Lexington 1876. He has published "History of Westminster"

1832, "History of Marlborough" 1862, "History of Lexington" 1868, and a number of historical pamphlets and essays.

Hufty, Jacob, was a native of New Jersey, and was elected a representative from that State in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 18,705 votes against 14,702 votes for the Federal candidate; was re-elected to the Twelfth and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from May 22, 1809, to May 20, 1814, when he died at Salem, New Jersey.

Huger, Benjamin, was born near Charleston, South Carolina; received an academical education; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1805; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Huger, Daniel, was born at Limerick Plantation, South Carolina, and was one of five brothers distinguished in the struggle for independence; he was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1786-1788; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the First Congress; and was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793.

Huger, Daniel Elliot, was born in South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1798; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Charleston; was a member of the State House of Representatives and of the State Senate; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina as a State-rights Democrat (in place of John C. Calhoun, resigned), serving from December 7, 1843, to 1845, when he resigned; was a judge of the Superior Court; and died at Charleston, South Carolina, August 18, 1854.

Hughes, Charles, was born in Georgia; received a public-school education; removed to the State of New York, and located at Sandy Hill; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,988 votes against 9,693 votes for Northrup, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was provost-marshal for the Sixteenth Congressional District in 1862.

Hughes, George W., was born in New York in 1806; was educated at the West-Point Military Academy, graduating in 1827; left the military service, and was a civil engineer at New-York City; was re-appointed to the army as an officer of topographical engineers in 1838; served in the Mexican war, receiving two brevets; resigned his commission in 1851, and was made president of the Northern Central Railroad; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,302 votes against 5,354 votes for Haguer, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; died at West River, Maryland, in 1870.

Hughes, James, was born at Hampstead, Maryland, November 24, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at the State University of Indiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Bloomington, Indiana; served in the Mexican war in the Sixteenth Regiment United-States Infantry; was circuit-judge 1852-1857; was professor of law at the University of Indiana 1853-1856; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,329 votes against 9,113 votes for Hendricks, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was a judge of the Court of Claims 1861-1865; was appointed a cotton-agent of the Treasury Department 1866-1868; located at Washington City as a legal practitioner.

Hughes, James M., was born in Kentucky; removed to Missouri, and located at Liberty; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Hughes, Thomas H., was born in New Jersey; received a public-school education; resided at Cold Spring; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833.

Hughston, Jonas A., was born in New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Delhi; was district-attorney of Delaware County 1842-1845; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,744 votes against 6,444 votes for Palmer, Democrat, and 1,339 votes for Hawes, Free-Soiler, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by Secretary Seward marshal of the Consular Court at Shanghai, China, and died there in 1862.

Hugunia, Daniel, jun., was born in Montgomery County, New York, in 1791; received a liberal education; served in the war of 1812; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was appointed by President Harrison United-States marshal for the Territory of Wyoming; and died at Kenosha, Wisconsin, June 21, 1850.

Hulbert, John W., was born in Massachusetts; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress (in place of Daniel Dewey, resigned) as a Federalist; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from September 26, 1814, to March 3, 1817.

Hulburd, Calvin T., was born at Stockholm, New York, June 5, 1809; graduated at Middlebury College, Vermont; was a student at the Yale-College Law School; was engaged in mercantile and agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State legislature of New York in 1842, 1843, 1844, and 1862; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,015 votes against 5,867 votes for Judson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,133 votes against 5,659 votes for William J. Averill, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,449 votes against 5,116 votes for Lawrence, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Humphrey, Charles, was born in Orange County, New York, in 1791; received a public-school education; resided at Ithaca, Tompkins County; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1834-1836 and 1842, serving as speaker January 6, 1835-May 26, 1836; died at Albany, New York, July 18, 1850.

Humphrey, Charles, was born at Haverford, Pennsylvania, in 1811; received a public-school education; became a miller, and dealer in breadstuffs; was actively engaged in pre-Revolutionary measures; was a member of the Provincial Congress 1764-1774; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1774-1776; died at Haverford, Pennsylvania, March 11, 1786.

Humphrey, Herman L., was born at Candor, New York, March 14, 1830; received a public-school education, with the addition of one year in Cortland Academy; became a merchant's clerk at the age of sixteen in Ithaca, New York, and remained there for several years; studied law in the office of Walbridge & Finch; was admitted to the bar in July, 1854, and removed to Hudson, Wisconsin, where he commenced practice in January, 1855; was soon after appointed district-attorney of St. Croix County to fill a vacancy; was appointed by the governor county-judge of St. Croix County to fill a vacancy; in the fall of 1860, and in the spring of 1861, was elected for the full term of four years from the following January; was elected to the State Senate for two years, and in February, 1862, resigned the office of county-judge; was elected mayor of Hudson for one year; was elected in the spring of 1866 judge of the Eighth Judicial Circuit, and was re-elected in 1872, serving from January, 1867, until March, 1877; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,702 votes against 13,220 votes for Milton R. Gage, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Humphrey, James, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, October 9, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Amherst College (of which his father was president) in 1831; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar; commenced practice at Louisville, Kentucky, in 1837, and, after remaining there one year, removed to New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,475 votes against 4,578 votes for Taylor, Democrat, 5,581 votes for Litchfield, Independent Democrat, and 974 votes for Humphrey, American, and serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,752 votes against 11,168 votes for Favon, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to June 16, 1866, when he died at Brooklyn, New York.

Humphrey, James M., was born at Holland, New York, September 21, 1819; received a public-school education; studied and practised law; was district-attorney for Erie County in 1857, 1858, and 1859; was a member of the State Senate of New York in 1863, 1864, and 1865; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,231 votes against 12,861 votes for Samuel J. Holley, Republican; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,402 votes against 12,085 votes for Clapp, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Humphrey, Reuben, was born in the State of New York; received an academic education; resided at Marcenus, Onondaga County; was a member of the State Senate 1811-1814; was elected a representative from New York in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809.

Humphreys, Perry W., was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; removed to Hernando, Mississippi, and died there March 1, 1839.

Hungerford, John M., was born at Vernon, New York, December 31, 1825; graduated at Hamilton College in 1846; engaged in the business of banking in 1848 at Corning; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1872 which nominated Grant and Wilson; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 21,087 votes against 17,973 votes for Edwin D. Loveridge, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Hungerford, John P., was born in 1769; received an academic education; served in the Revolutionary war; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to December 2, 1811 (his election having been successfully contested by John Taliaferro, who obtained possession of the seat); was again elected to the Thirteenth Congress (John Taliaferro again contesting his election, but this time unsuccessfully); and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; served in the war of 1812 as brigadier-general of militia, and was active in the defence of the Virginia bank of the Potomac; and died in Westmoreland County, Virginia, December 21, 1833.

Hungerford, Orville, was born in Connecticut in 1790; received a public-school education; removed to Watertown, New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,579 votes against 4,810 votes for Merrick, Whig, and 275 votes for Keyes, Abolitionist; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,304 votes against 5,587 votes for Bradley, Whig, and 717 votes for Porter, American, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; and died at Watertown, New York, April 6, 1855.

Hunt, Hiram P., was born in New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by Henry Vail; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; published a circular-letter in 1842 declining a re-election; died at Troy, New York.

Hunt, James B., was born in New York in 1799; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New-York City; removed to Michigan in 1836, and located at Pontiac; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; died at Washington August 15, 1857.

Hunt, Jonathan, was born in the State of Vermont; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1807; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Brattleborough; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to May 14, 1832, when he died at Washington City.

Hunt, Samuel, studied law, and was admitted to practice in 1790; settled in Alstead, New Hampshire, and removed to Keene; left the practice in 1795; was a member of the State legislature of New Hampshire; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Seventh Congress (in place of Joseph Pierce, resigned); and was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 6, 1802, to March 3, 1805; died in Ohio in 1807.

Hunt, Theodore G., was born in South Carolina; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Orleans; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,555 votes against 5,445 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1833, to March 3, 1855.

Hunt, Washington, was born at Windham, Greene County, New York, August 5, 1811; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Lockport; was appointed first judge of Niagara County in 1836; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,672 votes against 4,347 votes for Piper, Democrat, and 226 votes for Hutchinson, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 5,733 votes against 4,948 votes for Piper, Democrat, and 552 votes for Hutchinson, Abolitionist; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was comptroller of the State of New York February 17, 1849-December 18, 1850; was elected governor of New York as a Whig, receiving 214,614 votes against 214,352 votes for Horatio Seymour, Democrat, serving 1850-1852; was defeated as the Whig candidate for governor in 1852 by Horatio Seymour and Minthorne Tompkins; retired to his farm near Lockport; was a delegate to the Chicago Convention of 1864; died at New-York City February 2, 1867.

Hunter, John, was born in South Carolina; received an academic education; was engaged in agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina (in place of Pierce Butler, resigned), serving from January 27, 1797, to 1798, when he resigned.

Hunter, John W., was born at Bedford, King's County, New York (now within the limits of the city of Brooklyn), October 15, 1807; engaged in business pursuits; was a clerk in the New-York Custom House 1831-1836, and was assistant auditor 1836-1865; was secretary of a banking institution at Brooklyn in 1865; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress (in place of James Humphrey, deceased), serving from December 4, 1866, to March 3, 1867.

Hunter, Morton C., was born at Versailles, Indiana, February 5, 1825; was educated at the Indiana State University, from the law department of which he was graduated in 1849; was elected a member of the House of Representatives of Indiana from Monroe County in 1858; was colonel of the Eighty-second Regiment of Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and commanded it until the fall of Atlanta; was brevetted brigadier-general for "gallant and meritorious service;" commanded the First Brigade, Third Division, Fourteenth Army Corps, from the fall of Atlanta until the close of the war; was in Sherman's "march to the sea," and participated in the great review at Washington after the termination of hostilities; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,848 votes against 13,158 votes for Harrington, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,792 votes against 18,135 votes for D. W. Voorhees, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,095 votes against 13,708 votes for Rice, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,265 votes against 13,165 votes for McLean, Democrat, and 4,704 votes for Davis, Greenback, serving from December 1, 1873.

Hunter, Naisworthy, was elected a delegate from Mississippi Territory in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 11, 1802, when he died.

Hunter, Robert M. T., was born in Essex County, Virginia, April 21, 1809; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 1,203 votes against 1,109 votes for Scott, Whig, and served as speaker; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 1,079 votes against 1,249 votes for Newton, Whig; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia, serving from December 6, 1847, until he withdrew from the Senate on the secession of Virginia, and was afterward expelled in July, 1861; was a delegate from Virginia to the Provisional Congress which assembled at Richmond in July, 1861; was a Confederate-States senator from Virginia in the First Confederate Congress; was Confederate secretary of state; was arrested after the war, and pardoned in 1867; was elected State treasurer of Virginia in 1877.

Hunter, William, was born at Newport, Rhode Island, November 23, 1775; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1791; went to London, where he studied medicine, and afterwards the law; returned to Newport, and was admitted to the bar 1796; was several times a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island (in place of Christopher G. Champlin, resigned), and was re-elected, serving from November 25, 1811, to March 3, 1821; was commissioned chargé d'affaires to Brazil June 28, 1834, and minister plenipotentiary September 13, 1841, serving until December 9, 1843; returned to Newport, Rhode Island, and resided there until his death December 3, 1849.

Hunter, William, was born in Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1807 and 1809; was a State councillor in 1809, 1814, and 1815; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Hunter, William F., was born at Alexandria, Virginia, December 10, 1808; received a public-school education; learned the cabinet-maker's trade; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Woodsfield, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,711 votes against 6,338 votes for Kennon, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,751 votes against 5,506 votes for Jewett, Democrat, and 1,120 votes for Root, Free-Soiler, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Hunter, William H., resided at Sandusky, Ohio; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Huntington, Abel, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, in 1776; received a classical education; studied medicine, and removed to East Hampton, Long Island, where he was for sixty years a practising physician; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was collector of customs at Sag Harbor 1845-1849; died at East Hampton May 18, 1858.

Huntington, Benjamin, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, April 19, 1736; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1761; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Norwich; was a delegate from Connecticut in the Continental Congress 1780-1784 and 1787-1788; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was a member of the State Senate 1781-1791 and 1791-1793; was judge of the State Superior Court 1793-1798; was mayor of Norwich 1784-1796; died at Norwich, Connecticut, October 16, 1800.

Huntington, Ebenezer, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, December 26, 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1775; left college to join the Revolutionary army, and served throughout the war; was selected for appointment as brigadier-general by Washington when a war with France seemed imminent in 1799; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Eleventh Congress (in place of Samuel W. Dana, elected senator), serving from December 3, 1810, to March 3, 1811; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; and died at Norwich, Connecticut, June 17, 1834.

Huntington, Jabez Williams, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, November 8, 1788; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Litchfield; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to 1834, when he resigned, having been appointed judge of the State Supreme Court of Errors; removed to Norwich; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut as a Whig (in place of Thaddeus Betts, deceased), serving from June 2, 1840, to November 1, 1847, when he died at Norwich, Connecticut.

Huntington, Samuel, was born at Windham, Connecticut, July 3, 1732; received a public-school education; worked at the cooper's trade; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1758, and commenced practice at Norwich; was a member of the Colonial Assembly in 1764; was appointed Crown's attorney in 1765; was a member of the Executive Council in 1763; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress January 16, 1766–November 4, 1783, serving as president September 28, 1779–July 6, 1781; was judge of the State Superior Court 1774–1784, and chief justice 1784; was lieutenant-governor 1785; was governor of Connecticut 1786–1796; died at Norwich, Connecticut, January 5, 1796.

Hunton, Eppa, was born in Fauquier County, Virginia, September 23, 1823; his early education was limited; studied and practised law; was Commonwealth attorney for the county of Prince William from 1849 up to 1862; was elected to the State Convention of Virginia which assembled at Richmond in February, 1861; served through its first session, and then entered the Confederate army as colonel of the Eighth Virginia Infantry; was promoted after the battle of Gettysburg, and served through the residue of the war as brigadier-general, succeeding Brigadier-General Garnett; was captured at Sailor's Creek April 6, 1865, and was released from Fort Warren in July, 1865; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,782 votes against 9,178 votes for E. Daniels, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,809 votes against 9,291 votes for Barbour, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,660 votes against 10,175 votes for J. C. O'Neal, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Huntsman, Adam, was born in Virginia; removed to Tennessee, and settled at Jackson; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 300 majority over David Crockett, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was defeated for re-election to the Twenty-fifth Congress by David Crockett.

Hurd, Frank H., was born at Mount Vernon, Ohio, December 25, 1841; received a liberal education, graduating at Kenyon College in 1858; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and has since practised; was county prosecuting-attorney in 1863; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1866; was appointed to codify the criminal laws of Ohio in 1868; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,108 votes against 11,271 votes for Pratt, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,361 votes against 17,276 votes for J. D. Cox, Republican.

Hurlbut, Stephen A., was born at Charleston, South Carolina, November 29, 1815; was thoroughly and liberally educated; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1837; removed to Illinois, settling at Belvidere; was elected as a Whig to the Constitutional Convention of Illinois in 1847; was a presidential elector on the Whig ticket in 1848; was a member of the State legislature in 1859, 1861, and 1867; was presidential elector at large on the Republican ticket in 1868; was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers, dating from May 27, 1861; commanded the Fourth Division at Pittsburg Landing in 1862; was promoted major-general in September, 1862; was assigned to the command of the Sixteenth Army Corps at Memphis, and to the command of the Department of the Gulf in 1864–1865; was honorably mustered out in July, 1865; was minister resident to the United States of Colombia from 1869 to 1872; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,532 votes against 5,134 votes for S. E. Bronson, Liberal and Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,776 votes against 7,503 votes for John F. Farnsworth, Opposition, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Hutchins, John, was born at Vienna, Ohio,

July 25, 1812; received a classical education, and studied one year at the Western-Reserve College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1837, and commenced practice; was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas for Trumbull County 1838–1843; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1849; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,321 votes against 4,541 votes for D. Tod, Democrat, and 388 votes scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,840 votes against 4,222 votes for Wilson, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863.

Hutchins, Wells A., was born at Hartford, Ohio, October 8, 1818; received a public-school education; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851; was appointed one of the six United-States provost-marshal for Ohio in 1862; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,605 votes against 6,702 votes for Bundy, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Hutson, Richard, was born in South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1865; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1778–1779.

Huyler, John, was born in New-York City June 16, 1809; received a public-school education; removed to Hackensack, New Jersey, in 1846, and engaged in the lumber business; was soon afterwards elected to the board of supervisors of Bergen County, and became president of that body; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1850–1853, serving the last year as president; was judge of the Court of Appeals 1853–1856; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,165 votes against 5,876 votes for Osborne, Republican, and 2,355 votes for Inglis, American, serving from December 5, 1857, until March 3, 1859; was a candidate for re-election to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Lecompton Democrat, but was defeated, receiving 8,154 votes against 8,837 votes for H. R. Riggs, Republican; died in consequence of an unprovoked assault which had been made upon him by a drunken man in the street at Hackensack, New Jersey, January, 1870.

Hyde, Ira B., was born at Guilford, New York, January 18, 1838; worked on a farm in early life; received an academic education at Oberlin College, Ohio; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1861 at St. Paul, Minnesota; entered the Union army as a private in a Minnesota cavalry regiment in August, 1862; removed to Missouri in May, 1866, and engaged in the practice of law; was appointed secretary and attorney of the C. and D. M. C. Railroad in 1868; was appointed prosecuting-attorney in February, 1872; and was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,953 votes against 12,318 votes for C. H. Mansur, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Hyman, John Adams, was born in Warren County, North Carolina, July 23, 1840, a slave; he acquired the rudiments of an English education, although he was sold and sent to Alabama when a lad because he was found studying a spelling-book; was emancipated in 1865; returned to North Carolina, and engaged in farming; was a trustee of the first public school in Warren County; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1868; was a member of the State Senate 1868–1874; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,176 votes against 11,144 votes for G. H. Blount, Democrat, and 1,091 votes for Garland H. White, Independent Republican; and was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Second District of North Carolina in June, 1877.

Hyneman, John M., was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania; received a thorough English education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1809; was clerk of the Berks-county Orphans' Court 1810-1816; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress, and was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to 1813, when he resigned; was county-surveyor of Berks County 1814-1824.

Hynes, William J., was born in the county of Clare, Ireland, March 31, 1843; immigrated to the United States; landed in New York November 29, 1854; was educated in public and private schools in Ireland, and the common schools of Springfield, Massachusetts, until sixteen years of age, after that from private tuition and unassisted study; learned the art of printing in the office of the Springfield, (Massachusetts) "Republican," and has been printer, clerk, lecturer, and editor; was a student at the junior and senior courses of law-lectures in Columbia College in 1869-1870, and was admitted to the bar at Little Rock, Arkansas, in August, 1870; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-third Congress from the State at large as a Reform Republican by a majority of 12,437, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; removed to Chicago in 1876, and practised his profession.

Ihrle, Peter, jun., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Easton; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, defeating George Wolf; and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833.

Iisley, Daniel, was born at Falmouth, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), in 1740; received a thorough English education; engaged in mercantile pursuits, and became a distiller; was a delegate to the State Convention which adopted the Federal Constitution; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809.

Imlay, James H., was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1786; was a tutor in that institution; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fifth Congress, and was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1801.

Ingalls, John James, was born at Middleton, Massachusetts, December 29, 1833; was educated at Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1857; removed to Kansas in October, 1858; was a member of the Wyandot Constitutional Convention in 1859; was secretary of the Territorial Council in 1860; was secretary of the State Senate in 1861; was a member of the State Senate of Kansas from Atchison County in 1862; was editor of "The Atchison Champion" in 1863, 1864, and 1865; was defeated as "anti-Lane" candidate for lieutenant-governor in 1862, and again in 1864; has since been engaged in the practice of law; was elected United-States senator from Kansas as a Republican (to succeed S. C. Pomeroy, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1873. His term of office will expire March 3, 1879.

Inge, Samuel W., was born in North Carolina, and removed to Greene County, Alabama, when a lad; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Livingston County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844-1845; was elected a representative from Alabama to the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,528 votes against 4,370 votes for W. M. Murphy, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,665 votes against 4,245 votes for J. G. Baldwin, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; while in Congress he fought a duel at Bladensburg with Honorable Edward Stanly of North Carolina, neither receiving serious injury; resuming practice, he was appointed by President Pierce United-States attorney for the district of California; and died at San Francisco in 1867.

Inge, William M., was born in Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; removed to Sumter County, Alabama, 1836, and resumed practice at Lexington in partnership with Robert H. Smith; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1840, 1844, and 1845; and died at Lexington, Alabama, of heart-disease, in 1846.

Ingersoll, Charles J. (brother of Joseph R. Ingersoll), was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, October 3, 1782; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was United-States district-attorney for Pennsylvania 1815-1829; was secretary of legation to Prussia 1837; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 1,203 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 3,316 votes against 2,664 votes for Conrad, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1849; was appointed by President Polk minister to France in 1847, but was rejected by the Senate; died at Philadelphia May 14, 1862.

Ingersoll, Colin M. (son of Ralph J. Ingersoll), was born in Connecticut in 1820; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Haven; was appointed by President Polk secretary of legation at St. Petersburg; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,331 votes against 6,786 votes for Babcock, Whig, and 530 votes for Booth, Free-Soiler; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Ingersoll, Ebon C., was born in Oneida County, New York, December 12, 1831; was taken by his parents to Illinois in 1843; received a classical education, which he completed at Paducah, Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-eighth Congress (in place of Owen Lovejoy, deceased) as a Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,152 votes against 11,282 votes for Eckels, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 18,437 votes against 9,605 votes for Ramsey, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 20,991 votes against 13,686 votes for Niglas, Democrat, serving from May 20, 1864, to March 3, 1871; engaged in the practice of his profession at Washington City.

Ingersoll, Jared (father of Joseph R. Ingersoll), was born in Connecticut in 1749; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1766; studied law at the Middle Temple in London; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1780-1781; was a representative in the convention which framed the Federal Constitution in 1787; was twice attorney-general of Pennsylvania; was United-States district-attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania; was defeated in 1812 as the Federal candidate for Vice-President of the United States; was presiding judge of the District Court of Philadelphia County; died at Philadelphia October 31, 1822.

Ingersoll, Joseph Reed (son of Jared Ingersoll), was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, June 14, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1804; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,550 votes against 4,574 votes for a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress (in place of John Sergeant, resigned), receiving 6,631 votes against 4,326 votes for a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,414 votes against 3,153 votes for Neal, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses, serving from December 9, 1841, to March 3, 1849; declined a re-election; was appointed by President Fillmore minister to Great Britain, serving August 21, 1852–August 23, 1853; died at Philadelphia February 20, 1868. He published a "Memoir of Samuel Breck" 1863, and a number of political pamphlets.

Ingersoll, Ralph J. (father of Colin M. Ingersoll), was born at New Haven, Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at New Haven; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 2, 1833; was State attorney-general of Connecticut; was minister to Russia August 8, 1840–July 1, 1848; died at New Haven, Connecticut, August 27, 1872.

Ingham, Samuel, was born at Hebron, Connecticut, September 5, 1793; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1815, and commenced practice at Saybrook in 1817; was State's attorney for Middlesex County 1827–1835; was judge of probate for Middlesex County 1829–1833; was a judge of the Middlesex-county Court 1840–1853; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was again State's attorney for Middlesex County 1843–1844; was a member for several years of the State House of Representatives, serving three years as speaker, and was for two years a State senator; was defeated in 1854 as Democratic candidate for United-States senator by L. F. S. Foster, Republican; was United-States commissioner of customs December 5, 1857–May 14, 1861.

Ingham, Samuel D., was born in Pennsylvania September 16, 1779; received a public-school education; was for several years the manager of a paper-mill at Easton, New Jersey; was for three successive years a member of the State legislature of Pennsylvania; was prothonotary at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from May 24, 1813, to July 6, 1818, when he resigned; was again elected a representative in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Samuel Moore, resigned), and re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1822, to March 3, 1829; was appointed by President Jackson secretary of the treasury, and served until he resigned (when the cabinet was broken up on account of the difficulty concerning Mrs. Eaton) August 8, 1831; died at Trenton, New Jersey, April 13, 1833.

Iredell, James, was born in Chowan County, North Carolina, in 1788; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; commanded a company of volunteers which marched to the relief of Norfolk, when threatened by the British, in 1812; was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina in March, 1819, and resigned in the May following; was governor of North Carolina 1827, 1828; was elected to the United-States Senate (in place of Nathaniel Macon, resigned), serving from December 23, 1828, to March 3, 1831; removed to Raleigh, where he practised, and was reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court; and died at Edenton, North Carolina, April 13, 1853.

Irvin, Alexander, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Clearfield; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Irvin, James, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Milesburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 860 majority, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845.

Irvin, William W., received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lancaster, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-third Congress by John Chaney; was a judge of the State Supreme Court; and died at Lancaster, Ohio, April 19, 1842.

Irvine, William, was born at Fermanagh, Ireland, November 3, 1741; received a classical education, graduating at the Dublin University; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and served as surgeon on a British man-of-war; immigrated to the United States, and located at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, 1763; was a delegate to the State Revolutionary conventions 1764–1770; entered the Revolutionary army as colonel of the Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment, and commanded it in the expedition against Canada, where he was captured June 16, 1776, and remained a prisoner of war until exchanged May 6, 1778; was appointed brigadier-general May 12, 1779, and served until the close of the war; was a delegate from Pennsylvania in the Continental Congress 1786–1788; commanded the State troops in subduing the Whiskey Insurrection 1794; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; removed to Philadelphia, where he was superintendent of military stores; died at Philadelphia July 29, 1804.

Irvine, William, resided at Corning, Steuben County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,382 votes against 6,568 votes for Bradley, Democrat, and 1,651 votes for Deniston, American, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Irving, William, was born at New York August 16, 1766; received a good English education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was engaged in the fur trade with the Indians on the Mohawk River 1787–1791; was a merchant in New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress (in place of Egbert Benson, resigned) as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 376 votes over Peter A. Jay, Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from January 22, 1814, to 1818, when he resigned in consequence of declining health; died at New-York City of a lingering illness November 9, 1821. He contributed several essays and poems to "Salmagundi," published by his brother, Washington Irving.

Irwin, Jared, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817.

Irwin, Thomas, was born in Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Uniontown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was appointed by President Jackson United-States judge for the Western District of Pennsylvania.

Irwin, William W., was born at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; received an academic education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was chargé d'affaires to Denmark March 3, 1843-June 12, 1847; died at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, September 15, 1856.

Isacks, Jacob C., was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania; removed to Winchester, Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 2, 1833; was defeated by 500 votes as a candidate for the Twenty-third Congress by John B. Forester.

Ittner, Anthony, was born at Lebanon, Warren County, Ohio, October 8, 1837; received a common-school education; became a bricklayer and builder; served as a private in Company G of the National Guards, called into service during Price's raid in 1864; was elected a member of the City Council of St. Louis in April, 1867, and was re-elected in April, 1868; was elected a member of the Lower House of the General Assembly of Missouri in the fall of 1868, of the State Senate in 1870, and re-elected to the latter body in 1874; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,043 votes against 6,834 votes for E. C. Kehr, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Iverson, Alfred, was born in Burke County, Georgia, December 3, 1798; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbus; was a member of the State House of Representatives for three years, and of the State Senate for one year; was judge of the State Supreme Court for seven years; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia, serving from December 3, 1855, to January 28, 1861, when he retired from the Senate; was an ardent advocate of secession; served in the war of the Rebellion as colonel of a Georgia regiment, and was appointed brigadier-general in November, 1862; died at Macon, Georgia, March 5, 1874.

Ives, Willard, was born at Watertown, New York, July 7, 1806; received a public-school education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,477 votes against 5,058 votes for Clarke, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Izard, Ralph, was born near Charleston, South Carolina, in 1742; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge University, England; was elected by the Continental Congress commissioner to Tuscany May 7, 1777, and, as he did not get beyond Paris, was recalled June 8, 1779; pledged his large estate in South Carolina for the payment for ships of war; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1781-1783; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1795; died near Charleston, South Carolina, May 30, 1804.

Jack, William, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Brookville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Jacks, T. M., was elected a representative from the First District of Arkansas to the Thirty-eighth Congress in March, 1864, as a Unionist, receiving 2,965 votes against 15 votes cast for others; the House committee on elections reported in favor of giving him the seat February 17, 1865, but the House refused to take action on the resolution, voting him, on the 3d of March, 1865, $2,000 for compensation, expenses, and mileage.

Jackson, Andrew, was born in the Waxhaw settlement, North Carolina, March 15, 1767; his education was limited, and he was passionately fond of athletic sports; accompanying the militia of his neighborhood, he was captured by the British, and brutally struck by an officer whose boots he refused to clean; left destitute by the death of his mother, he worked for a time in a saddler's shop, and afterwards taught school; studied law at Salisbury, North Carolina, and was admitted to the bar before he was twenty years of age; was appointed in 1788 solicitor of the Western District of North Carolina, embracing what is now the State of Tennessee; was a delegate to the convention which met in 1796 to frame a constitution for the new State; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1796, until March 3, 1797; was elected a United-States senator, serving from November 22, 1797, until he resigned in April, 1798; was elected a judge of the State Supreme Court of Tennessee, serving 1798-1804; entered into mercantile pursuits, dealing in cotton, wheat, horses, and mules; served in the Creek war of 1813, and was commissioned major-general in the United-States army May 31, 1814; captured Florida, then a Spanish province occupied by the British, and then led his army to New Orleans, where he defeated the British January 8, 1815; commanded an expedition which captured Florida in 1817; was governor of Florida March 10, 1821-July 18, 1821; was offered and declined the position of minister to Mexico; was grand master of Masons in Tennessee 1822-1823; was again elected a United-States senator, serving from December 1, 1823, to 1825, when he resigned; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for President in 1824; was elected President, and re-elected, serving from March 4, 1829, to March 3, 1837; retired to the Hermitage, his estate, near Nashville, Tennessee, where he died January 8, 1845.

Jackson, David, was a native of Pennsylvania, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1785-1786.

Jackson, David S., was born in New-York City; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,071 votes against 5,928 votes for James Monroe, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to April 19, 1848, when his seat, having been contested by James Monroe, was declared vacant by the House, and Horace Greeley was elected to fill it.

Jackson, Ebenezer, jun., was born in Connecticut; resided at Middletown; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Samuel A. Foot, resigned) as a Whig, receiving 16,178 votes against 15,920 votes for Samuel Ingham, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1834, to March 3, 1835.

Jackson, Edward B., was born in Harrison County, Virginia; received an academical education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and practised at Clarksburg; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress (in place of James Pindall, resigned); was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 1,237 votes against 721 votes for Lefler, and 62 votes for Mark A. Chilton, serving from November 13, 1820, to March 3, 1823; died at Clarksburg, Virginia, September 8, 1828.

Jackson, George, was born in Virginia, and was elected a representative from that State in the Fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; was again elected to the Sixth Congress, and re-elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1803.

Jackson, Jabez, was born in Georgia; resided at Clarksburg; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Union Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 30,881 votes against 28,128 votes for Thomas F. Foster, State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 29,227 votes against 28,273 votes for Joseph W. Jackson, State-rights Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Jackson, James, was born in Devonshire, England, in 1757, and immigrated to Georgia in 1772; received the masonic degrees in King Solomon's Lodge at Savannah in 1775; entered the Revolutionary army as captain, became brigade-major in 1778, and commander of the Georgia legionary forces in 1781; fought a duel with Lieutenant-Governor Wells in 1780, and killed him, but was wounded in both knees; received the keys of Savannah when the British evacuated that city July 12, 1782; was presented with a house at Savannah by the Assembly of the State of Georgia; was grand master of Masons in Georgia 1786-1789; was a member of the convention which adopted the first State Constitution of Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the First Congress, serving from April 20, 1789, to March 3, 1791; he contested the seat of Anthony Wayne in the Second Congress, and it was declared vacant by the House March 21, 1792; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia, serving from December 2, 1793, to 1795, when he resigned; was governor of Georgia 1798-1801; was again elected a senator, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 19, 1806, when he died at Washington City.

Jackson, James, was born in Jefferson County, Georgia, in 1819; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Georgia in 1837; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Athens in 1840; was secretary of the State Senate in 1842; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1845, and re-elected in 1847; was chosen by the legislature judge of the Western Judicial Circuit in 1843; was elected by the people in 1853, and again in 1857, to the same office, but resigned in June, 1857; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,751 votes against 5,956 votes for Simmons, Independent Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,644 votes against 3,251 votes for Lytle, Opposition, serving from December 7, 1857, to January 23, 1861, when he retired from the House.

Jackson, James S., was born in Madison County, Kentucky, in 1822; received a classical education, which was completed at Centre College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Greensburg, removing afterwards to Hopkinsville; fought several duels, one of them with Thomas F. Marshall; served in the Mexican war as a captain of mounted volunteers; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, receiving 9,281 votes against 3,364 votes for Bunch, Secessionist; raised a company of cavalry at the commencement of the war of the Rebellion; was commissioned colonel of the Third Kentucky Cavalry; took his seat in Congress July 4, 1861, but was absent in the field much of the time; was promoted to be brigadier-general of Union volunteers July 10, 1862; commanded a brigade at the battle of Perryville, where he was killed, October 8, 1862.

Jackson, John George, was born in Virginia in 1774; received an English education; was appointed a surveyor of public lands in what is now the State of Ohio in 1793; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Virginia 1797-1801; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from March 3, 1807, to 1810, when he resigned; he fought a duel with Joseph Pearson, representative from North Carolina, near Washington, December 4, 1809, and wounded him on the second fire; was again elected a member of the State House of Representatives in 1811; was chosen brigadier-general of militia; was again elected to the Thirteenth Congress, and re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; declined a re-election; was appointed by President Madison judge of the Western District of Virginia in 1819, and held the office until his death at Clarksburg, Virginia, in 1825.

Jackson, Jonathan, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, June 4, 1743; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1761; engaged in mercantile pursuits with his father-in-law, Patrick Tracy, at Newburyport; was a member of the Provincial Congress in 1775, and of the State legislature in 1777; was a delegate from Massachusetts in the Continental Congress in 1782; was a member of the State Senate 1789; was United-States marshal for the district of Massachusetts; was president of the State Bank; and died at Boston March 5, 1810. He published "Thoughts upon the Political Situation of the United States" 1788, and other political essays.

Jackson, Joseph W., was born in Georgia; received a public-school education; was for several years a member of the municipal councils of Savannah, and for two years mayor of that city; was a member of the State Senate and of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-first Congress (in place of Thomas Butler King, resigned) as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 4,279 votes against 3,011 votes for Hopkins, Union, serving from March 4, 1850, to March 3, 1853; declined a re-election; died at Savannah, Georgia, of the yellow-fever, September 20, 1854.

Jackson, Richard, jun., was born in Rhode Island in 1764; received a good English education; engaged in domestic manufactures and mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Tenth Congress (in place of Nehemiah Knight, deceased); and was re-elected to the Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from November 11, 1803, to March 2, 1815; died at Providence, Rhode Island, April 18, 1838.

Jackson, Thomas B., was born on Long Island, New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1835; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841.

Jackson, William, was born in Massachusetts September 6, 1783; received a public-school education; engaged in business pursuits; was one of the first to engage in the construction of railroads in Massachusetts; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1820-1832; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig on the second trial, receiving 2,872 votes against 1,899 votes for Dearborn, 684 votes for Thurbur, and 236 scattering votes; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from March 17, 1834, to March 3, 1837; declined a renomination; was president of the Newton Bank; died at Newton, Massachusetts, February 27, 1855.

Jackson, W. T., was born at Chester, New York, December 29, 1794; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Havana, New York; was a justice of the peace, and subsequently county-judge of Orange County for four years; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,444 votes against 6,396 votes for Wisner, Democrat, and 3,117 for Hathaway, Cass Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Jacobs, Israel, was born in Germany; removed when a lad to the United States; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 2, 1793.

Jacobs, Orange, was born in Genesee County, New York, in 1829; removed to the new Territory of Michigan in 1832, where he received his education; is a lawyer; removed to the new Territory of Oregon in 1852, remaining there until 1859; was appointed one of the associate justices of Washington Territory in the spring of 1860, and held that office for nearly a year; was then appointed chief justice of the Territory, and re-appointed at the expiration of four years, which position he occupied when elected a delegate from Washington Territory in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 4,765 votes against 3,505 votes for Sharples, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 238 majority over John P. Judson, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

James, Amaziah B., was born at Stephentown, New York, July 1, 1812; received an academic education; removed in 1814 to Sweden, Monroe County; studied law in Ogdensburg; was admitted to the bar in January, 1838, and commenced practice at Ogdensburg; was elected a justice of the Supreme Court in 1853, and resigned in 1876; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,275 votes against 8,756 votes for Magone, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

James, Charles Tillinghast, was born at West Greenwich, Rhode Island, in 1804; received a public-school education; learned the carpenter's trade, and at an early age manifested extraordinary mechanical talent; became superintendent of Slater's steam cotton-mill at Providence; was chosen major-general of the militia of Rhode Island; received the honorary degree of A.M. at Brown University in 1838; superintended the construction of steam cotton-mills at Newburyport and Salem, and furnished plans for other mills in New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Tennessee; built the Atlantic De Laine Mill at Olneyville, Rhode Island; was elected United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Protective Tariff Democrat, serving from March 4, 1851, to March 3, 1857; he invented a rifled cannon, and lost his life while experimenting with one at Sag Harbor October 17, 1862. He published pamphlets on the cultivation and manufacture of cotton at the South, and on rifled cannon.

James, Francis, was born at West Chester, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Jameson, John, was born in Kentucky; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fulton, Missouri; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Janez, Henry F., was born at Brimfield, Massachusetts, October 10, 1792; received an academical education; studied law at Burlington, Vermont; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Waterbury, Vermont; was postmaster at Waterbury 1824-1830; was a member of the State legislative council 1830-1834; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Benjamin F. Deming, deceased) as a Whig and anti-Mason, defeating Isaac Fletcher, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1834, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the anti-Masonic candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by Isaac Fletcher, Democrat; was State treasurer of Vermont 1838-1841; was a member of the State Council of Censors in 1848; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1855.

Jarnagin, Spencer, was born in Granger County, Tennessee; received a classical education, graduating at Greenville College in 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Athens, Tennessee; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Tennessee as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; died at Memphis, Tennessee, June 24, 1851.

Jarvis, Leonard, was born in Massachusetts October 19, 1781; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1800; was sheriff of Hancock County, Maine, 1821-1829; was collector of customs for the Penobscot District 1829-1830; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1830, to March 3, 1837; in 1835 he challenged F. O. J. Smith (a Democratic colleague from the Portland district), who refused to accept; was navy agent of the port of Boston 1838-1841; removed to Surry, Maine, and died there September 18, 1854.

Jay, John, was born at New York December 1 (old style), 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1764; studied law under Mr. Kissam; was admitted to the bar in 1768; entered into partnership with R. R. Livingston, and soon attained a large practice; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1774-1777 and 1778-1779, but was recalled for some months in 1776 to aid in forming the State Constitution of New York, and was consequently absent when the Declaration of Independence was adopted; was appointed chief justice of the State of New York in May, 1777, and resigned when elected president of Congress December 10, 1778; was appointed minister plenipotentiary to Spain September 27, 1779; was appointed one of the ministers to negotiate peace with Great Britain June 14, 1781, and signed the treaty at Paris September 3, 1783; was appointed one of the ministers to negotiate commercial treaties with European powers May 1, 1783; returned to New York in July, 1784; was appointed secretary of foreign affairs December, 1784; was appointed chief justice of the United States September 24, 1789; was the Federal candidate for governor of the State of New York in 1792, but was defeated by George Clinton, Democrat; was appointed envoy extraordinary to Great Britain April 19, 1794, and served until April 8, 1795; was governor of the State of New York 1795-1801; declined re-election, and also re-appointment as chief justice of the United States; retired to his farm at Bedford, near New-York City, where he died May 17, 1829. He wrote several numbers of "The Federalist," and many able state papers.

Jayne, William, was born at Springfield, Illinois, October 8, 1826; received a thorough English education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and practised for eleven years; was elected mayor of Springfield in 1859 and 1861; was appointed by President Lincoln governor of Dakota Territory, serving in 1861 and 1862; was elected a delegate from Dakota Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to June 13, 1864, when he vacated his seat, which had been successfully contested by John B. S. Todd.

Jefferson, Thomas, was born at Shadwell, Virginia, April 2, 1743; received a classical education, which he completed at the college of William and Mary; studied law with George Wythe; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in 1767; was a member of the Colonial House of Burgesses 1769-1774; was prominent in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress, serving 1775-1778; was governor of Virginia 1779-1781; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1782; was again a delegate to the Continental Congress 1782-1783; was appointed minister plenipotentiary to Europe, and afterwards to France alone, serving 1784-1789; was secretary of state of the United States March, 1790-December 3, 1793; was elected Vice-President of the United States, receiving 68 of the 140 votes cast, serving March 4, 1797-March 3, 1801; received 73 of the 128 electoral votes cast for President of the United States in 1801, and, Aaron Burr having received the same number, the election was carried into the House of Representatives, where Jefferson was elected on the thirty-sixth ballot; was re-elected President in 1805, receiving 162 of the 176 electoral votes cast; was President of the United States, serving March 4, 1801-March 3, 1809; retired to his estate called Monticello; took an active part in founding the present University of Virginia; and died at Monticello July 4, 1826. He published "Notes on Virginia," a "Manual of Parliamentary Practice," a "Life of Captain Lewis," and a number of papers on legislative, philosophical, and agricultural topics. Portions of his manuscripts have been edited by H. A. Washington, T. J. Randolph, G. Tucker, and H. S. Randall.

Jenckes, Thomas A., was born at Cumberland, Rhode Island, November 2, 1818; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1838; was afterwards a tutor there, studying law at the same time with Samuel Y. Atwell; was admitted to the bar in September, 1840, and commenced practice at Providence; was a clerk of the State House of Representatives 1840-1844; was one of the secretaries of the Landholders' Convention of 1841; was secretary of the State Constitutional Convention of 1842; was adjutant-general of Rhode Island 1845-1855; served in one or the other House of the State legislature 1854-1859; was one of the commissioners to revise the laws of the State in 1855; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,532 votes against 4,616 votes for Bradley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 5,683 votes without opposition; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress without opposition; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 7,995 votes against 4,080 votes for Arnold, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as a Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 1,965 votes against 4,962 votes for B. T. Eames, Republican, 1,040 votes for T. Davis, Republican, 1,380 votes for N. Van Slyck, Democrat, and 370 scattering; died on the estate where he was born, at Cumberland, Rhode Island, November 4, 1875. He was a contributor to "The Providence Journal," and, while in Congress, wrote able reports on "The Bankrupt Law," "Civil Service," "The Ventilation of the Capitol," and other subjects.

Jenifer, Daniel, of St. Thomas (father of Daniel Jenifer), was born in Maryland 1723; took an active part in the pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1778-1782; was a delegate from Maryland to the National Constitutional Convention; and died November 6, 1790.

Jenifer, Daniel (son of Daniel Jenifer), was born in Maryland; received a liberal education; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a local magistrate; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-third Congress by John T. Stoddert, Democrat; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating Stoddert, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress without opposition, and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 521 majority, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1841; was minister to Austria August 27, 1841-July 7, 1845; died December 18, 1855, near Port Tobacco, Maryland.

Jenkins, Albert G., was born in Cabell County, Virginia, November 10, 1830; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania; studied law at the Cambridge Law School, and was admitted to the bar, but never practised; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Cincinnati in 1856; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,758 votes against 6,653 votes for Carlisle, American; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,038 votes against 7,228 votes for Laidley, Opposition, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate from Virginia to the Provisional Confederate Congress in 1861; entered the Confederate service; was appointed brigadier-general August 5, 1862, and placed in command of a cavalry brigade in the army of Northern Virginia; was killed in action at Dublin, Virginia, May 7, 1864.

Jenkins, Lemuel, was born at Bloomingburg, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Jenkins, Robert, was born in Pennsylvania, and was elected a representative from that State in the Tenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811.

Jenkins, Timothy, was born at Barre, Massachusetts, January 29, 1799; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1824, and commenced practice at Oneida Castle, New York; was district-attorney for Oneida County 1839-1845; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,617 votes against 7,094 votes for White, Whig, and 1,086 votes for Allen, American; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-first Congress by O. B. Matteson, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,828 votes against 7,711 votes for Matteson, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-third Congress by O. B. Matteson, Whig; died at Martinsburg, New York, December 24, 1859.

Jenks, George A., was born in Jefferson County, Pennsylvania, March 26, 1836; learned the carpenter and joiner's trade; taught school eighteen months; graduated at Jefferson College in August, 1858; studied law; was admitted to the bar February 16, 1859, and commenced practice at Brookville; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,627 votes against 11,109 votes for Harry White, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Jenks, Michael Hutchinson, was born at Bridgetown Mills, near Middletown, Pennsylvania, May 21, 1795; received an academical education; engaged in agricultural pursuits, but afterwards became a surveyor, conveyancer, and real-estate agent; was a commissioner of Bucks County 1830-1833; was treasurer of Bucks County 1833-1835; removed to Newtown, Bucks County, in 1837; was associate judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County 1838-1843; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,750 votes against 5,110 votes for John Davis, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress by Jacob Erdman; resumed his business as conveyancer and real-estate agent; was elected chief burgess of Newtown, which office he held for many years; and died at Newtown, Pennsylvania, October 16, 1867.

Jenness, Benning W., was born at Strafford, New Hampshire; received an academic education; was judge of probate for Strafford County 1841-1845; was appointed a United-States senator from New Hampshire (in place of Levi Woodbury, resigned), serving from December 1, 1845, to June 22, 1846, when his successor took his seat.

Jennings, David, was born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey; received a public-school education; removed to St. Clairsville, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to May 25, 1826, when he resigned.

Jennings, Jonathan, was born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey; received an academical education; emigrated to the North-west Territory, and, when the Territory of Indiana was organized, was its first delegate, taking his seat in the Eleventh Congress after some opposition; was re-elected to the Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from November 27, 1809, to April 30, 1816; on the admission of Indiana as a State in December, 1816, he was elected governor, serving until 1822; was appointed Indian commissioner by President Monroe in 1818; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of William Hendricks, resigned), and was successively re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 2, 1822, to March 3, 1831; was grand master of Free-Masons in Indiana in 1824; died near Charlestown, Indiana, July 26, 1834.

Jewett, Freeborn G., was born at Skaneateles, New York, in 1790; received an academic education; studied law with Colonel Samuel Young; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Skaneateles in partnership with Honorable James Porter; was surrogate of Onondaga County 1824-1831; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was appointed a puisne justice of the Supreme Court March 5, 1845; was elected judge of the Court of Appeals in 1849, and re-elected in 1853, but resigned in 1853 on account of ill health; died at Skaneateles, New York, February 23, 1858.

Jewett, Hugh J., was born at Deer Creek, Maryland; received a thorough English education; studied law in Cecil County, Maryland, and was admitted to the bar; removed to Ohio, and commenced practice at Columbus; held no public position until elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,613 votes against 10,936 votes for J. Taylor, Republican; served from December 1, 1873, until the close of the first session, June 23, 1874; resigned to accept the position of president of the Erie Railroad Company.

Jewett, Joshua H., was born at Deer Creek, Harford County, Maryland, September 13, 1812; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Elizabethtown, Kentucky; was county prosecuting-attorney; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,377 votes against 4,996 votes for Young, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Jewett, Luther, was born at Canterbury, Connecticut, December 24, 1772; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1795; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Putney, Vermont; was for fifteen years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 17,665 votes against 16,957 votes for William Strong, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; removed to St. Johnsbury; studied divinity; was pastor of a church at Newbury, Vermont, 1821-1828; returned to St. Johnsbury; published "The Farmer's Herald" 1828-1832, and "The Freemason's Friend" 1830-1832; died at St. Johnsbury, Vermont, March 8, 1860.

Johns, Kensey (father of Kensey Johns, jun.), was born at New Castle, Delaware; received a classical education from a tutor; studied law, and practised; was chancellor of the State of Delaware; was appointed by the governor of Delaware a senator for that State (to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of George Read), and presented his credentials March 24, 1798; the committee on elections, to whom the credentials were referred, reported on the 28th of March that he was not entitled to a seat in the Senate, a session of the legislature of Delaware having intervened between the resignation of Senator Read and his appointment; the Senate sustained the report by a vote of 20 yeas against 7 nays.

Johns, Kensey, jun. (son of Kensey Johns), was born at New Castle, Delaware, December 10, 1791; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1810; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1813, and commenced practice at New Castle, Delaware; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 744 votes against 325 votes for Bayard, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; was appointed chancellor of the State of Delaware in 1832, and served until his death at New Castle, Delaware, March 28, 1857.

Johnson, Andrew, was born at Raleigh, North Carolina, December 29, 1808; extreme poverty prevented him from receiving any schooling, and, at the age of ten, he was apprenticed to a tailor, learning the trade; in September, 1826, he removed to Tennessee, and settled at Greenville, where, under his wife's instruction, he learned to read, write, and cipher; he organized in 1828 a working-men's party, which elected him alderman, and re-elected him the two following years; was mayor of Greenville 1830-1833; was a member of the Tennessee House of Representatives in 1835 and 1839; was defeated as a candidate for presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1840; was a member of the State Senate in 1841; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,495 votes against 4,952 votes for Aiken, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, defeating Taylor, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,068 votes against 5,060 votes for Taylor, Whig, and 404 votes for Campbell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,538 votes against 4,844 votes for Hayns, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1853; was governor of Tennessee 1853-1857; was a United-States senator from Tennessee, serving from December 7, 1857, until he was appointed by President Lincoln to be military governor of Tennessee March 4, 1862; was elected Vice-President of the United States (on the Republican ticket with Abraham Lincoln), receiving 212 electoral votes against 21 electoral votes for G. H. Pendleton, and was inaugurated March 4, 1865; became President after the assassination of President Lincoln April 15, 1865; was impeached, and acquitted May 26, 1868, by a vote of 35 guilty against 19 not guilty, and served until March 3, 1869; was defeated as a candidate for the United-States Senate before the legislature of Tennessee in 1870; was defeated as an independent candidate for congressman-at-large in the Forty-third Congress, receiving 37,900 votes against 80,825 votes for Horace Maynard, Republican, and 65,188 votes for B. F. Cheatham, Democrat; was again elected a United-States senator from Tennessee in 1875, serving at the special session from March 4, 1875, to March 24, 1875; and died of heart-disease, after a brief illness, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. R. Brown, in Carter County, Tennessee, July 31, 1875. His speeches, with a memoir of him by Frank Moore, were published in 1865.

Johnson, Cave, was born in Robertson County,

Tennessee, January 11, 1793; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Clarksville, Tennessee; was appointed circuit-judge; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, defeating John H. Marable; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, defeating Richard Cheatham, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, defeating Richard Cheatham and John H. Marable; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating Richard Cheatham, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fourth Congress by Richard Cheatham, who received 123 majority; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,704 votes against 3,309 votes for Richard Cheatham, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, defeating Richard Cheatham; and was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 4,904 votes against 4,676 votes for Henry, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845; was appointed postmaster-general by President Polk, serving March 5, 1845–March 7, 1849; was president of the State Bank of Tennessee 1850–1859; was elected to the State Senate during the war as a Unionist, but was prevented by feeble health from taking his seat; died at Clarksville, Tennessee, November 13, 1866.

Johnson, Charles, was born in Chowan County, North Carolina; received an academic education; was a member of the State Senate in 1781–1784, 1788, 1790–1792; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, until his death in 1802.

Johnson, Francis, was born in Caroline County, Virginia; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives; removed to Kentucky, and practised at Bowling Green; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Sixteenth Congress (in place of David Walker, deceased) as an Adams Republican; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from November 13, 1820, to March 3, 1827; removed to Louisville, where he died December 14, 1851.

Johnson, Harvey H., was born in Vermont; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and settled at Ashland; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,591 votes against 4,763 votes for Lockwood, Whig, and 3,030 votes for N. S. Townshend, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,041 votes against 8,788 votes for Philemon Bliss, Republican.

Johnson, Henry, was born in Tennessee September 14, 1783; received an academical education; removed to Louisiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bringiers; was clerk of the Territorial Court in 1809; was judge of the Parish Court in 1811; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1812; was defeated as a candidate for the National House of Representatives by Thomas B. Robertson in 1812; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana (in place of William C. C. Claiborne, deceased, who never took his seat), and was re-elected, serving from February 26, 1818, to May 27, 1824, when he resigned; was defeated as a candidate for the United-States Senate by Edward Livingston in 1829; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Edward D. White, resigned) as a Whig, receiving 375 majority over Gayarre and Nicholls, Democrats; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 516 majority over White, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress without opposition, serving from December 1, 1834, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for governor in 1842 by A. Mouton, Democrat; was again elected a senator (in place of Alexander Porter, deceased), serving from March 4, 1844, to March 3, 1849; died at Point Coupée, Louisiana, September 4, 1864.

Johnson, Herschel V., was born in Burke County, Georgia, September 18, 1812; received a classical education, graduating at Franklin College in 1834; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Augusta, removing to Jefferson County in 1839, and from there to Milledgeville in 1844; was appointed a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of Walter T. Colquitt, resigned), serving from February 14, 1848, to March 3, 1849; was judge of the Superior Court November, 1849–August, 1853; was governor of Georgia 1853–1857; was defeated as candidate for Vice-President on the Douglas Democratic ticket, receiving 12 electoral votes against 180 electoral votes for Hamlin, 72 electoral votes for Lane, and 39 electoral votes for Everett; was a senator from Georgia in the Second Confederate Congress.

Johnson, James, was born in Virginia; received an English education; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 15, 1813, to February 1, 1820, when he resigned to accept the position of collector of customs of the port of Norfolk; died at Norfolk, Virginia, December 7, 1825.

Johnson, James (brother of Richard M. Johnson), was born in Orange County, Virginia, January 1, 1774; was taken by his parents to Kentucky when he was five years of age, and grew up inured to the dangers and hardships of frontier life on "the dark and bloody ground;" served as second in command to his brother (Colonel R. M. Johnson) during the war of 1812, and commanded the right wing of the United-States forces in the battle of the Thames October 5, 1813; was a large contractor for supplying the troops on the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers in 1819–1820; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, and served from December 5, 1825, until his death, of fever, at Great Crossings, Kentucky, August 14, 1826.

Johnson, James, was born in Robinson County, North Carolina, in 1811; received a classical education, graduating at the State University in 1832; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbus, Georgia; was prosecuting-attorney; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-second Congress as a Unionist, receiving 8,107 votes against 6,985 votes for Benning, Calhoun Democrat; serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was appointed provisional governor of Georgia by President Johnson in 1865; was collector of customs at Savannah 1866–1869; was appointed judge of the Circuit Court of Georgia in 1870.

Johnson, James A., was born at Spartanburg, South Carolina, May 16, 1829; received a common-school education; studied medicine and law; removed to California, where he practised law at Downieville; was a member of the legislature of California in 1859–1860; was elected a representative from California in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,767 votes against 14,394 votes for Hartshorn, Union Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,778 votes against 15,496 votes for Harrison, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871.

Johnson, James H., was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; resided at Bath; was a member of the State Senate in 1839; was a member of the State Council in 1842 and in 1845; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress by about 1,300 majority, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849.

Johnson, James L., was born in Kentucky; resided at Owensborough; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,035 votes against 3,878 votes for Peyton, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; committed suicide while suffering under mental depression caused by ill health, at Owensborough, February 12, 1877.

Johnson, J. M., was elected a representative from the Third District of Arkansas in the Twenty-eighth Congress in March, 1864, as a Unionist, receiving over 4,000 votes; the House Committee on Elections reported in favor of giving him the seat February 17, 1865, but the House refused to take action on the resolution, voting him, on the 3d of March, 1865, $2,000 for compensation, expenses and mileage.

Johnson, Jeromus, was born in King's County, New York; received a public-school education; removed to New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; removed to Goshen, Orange County, and died there September 7, 1846.

Johnson, John, was born in Tyrone County, Ireland, in 1808; received a public-school education; immigrated to the United States in 1824, and settled at Coshocton, Ohio, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State Senate; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-second Congress as an Independent, receiving 5,458 votes against 5,156 votes for Hoagland, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Johnson, John T., was born in Scott County, Kentucky; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Georgetown; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Seventeenth Congress, defeating Thomas A. Grimes; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; was appointed a judge in the new Court of Appeals April 20, 1826; was for thirty years a preacher of the gospel without pay; died at Lexington, Missouri, December 18, 1857.

Johnson, Joseph, was born in Orange County, New York, December 19, 1785, and, when fifteen years of age, removed with his mother and a younger brother to Bridgeport, Virginia (now West Virginia), where he resided for more than seventy years; worked on a farm, and educated himself; served in the war of 1812 as captain of a volunteer company of riflemen; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving a majority of 651 votes over P. Doddridge, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twentieth Congress, receiving 378 votes against 792 votes for Isaac Leffler, and 118 votes for Haymond; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress (in place of Philip Doddridge, deceased), serving from January 21, 1833, to March 2, 1833; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating J. J. Allen, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 2,687 votes against 1,574 votes for John S. Jackson, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, defeating Shinn, Democrat, and Camden, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1841; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1844; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 300 majority over G. W. Summers, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was governor of Virginia 1852-1856; was a supporter of the Southern Confederacy 1861-1865; died at Bridgeport, West Virginia, February 27, 1877. He had shaken hands with every President from Washington to Johnson inclusive.

Johnson, Noadiah, was born in the State of New York; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Delhi; was district-attorney; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was a member of the State Senate 1837-1839; died while a State senator at Albany, New York, April 4, 1839.

Johnson, Perley B., was born in Ohio; resided at McConnellsville; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,658 votes against 4,410 votes for Barker, Democrat, and 69 votes for Buckingham, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Johnson, Philip, was born in Warren County, New Jersey, January 17, 1818; removed with his father to Pennsylvania in 1839; received a classical education at Lafayette College; taught school at the South for two years; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice at Easton, Pennsylvania; was clerk of the county courts; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853 and 1854; was revenue commissioner of the Third Judicial District in 1860; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,208 votes against 9,096 votes for Shoemaker, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,676 votes against 2,592 votes for Rouch, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,007 votes against 6,384 votes for Selfridge, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to January 29, 1867, when he died at Washington City.

Johnson, Reverdy, was born at Annapolis, Maryland, May 21, 1796; received a classical education, graduating at St. John's College; studied law with his father, Chief Justice Johnson; was admitted to the bar in 1815, and commenced practice at Annapolis, where he was appointed State's attorney; removed to Baltimore in 1817; was chief commissioner of insolvent debtors 1820-1821; was a member of the State Senate of Maryland 1821-1827; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland as a Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 7, 1849; was appointed by President Taylor attorney-general, serving March 7, 1849-July 20, 1850; was a delegate to the Peace Convention in February, 1861; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1861; was again elected United-States senator, serving from March 4, 1863, to July 10, 1868; was minister to England 1868-1869; died from injuries received by a fall at Annapolis, Maryland, February 10, 1876. He partially edited seven volumes of the Reports of the Maryland Court of Appeals 1820-1827.

Johnson, Richard Mentor (brother of James Johnson), was born at Bryant's Station, Kentucky, October 17, 1781; received a classical education at Transylvania University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Great Crossings; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1805; served in the war of 1812 as colonel of volunteer cavalry, distinguishing himself in a skirmish at Chatham, Canada, October 4, 1813, and in the battle of the Thames October 5, 1813; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Tenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, and was re-elected to the Eleventh and Twelfth Congresses, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1813; was again elected to the Thirteenth Congress, and re-elected to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from March 7, 1814, to March 3, 1819; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of John J. Crittenden, resigned), and was re-elected, serving from January 3, 1820, to March 3, 1829; was again elected a representative in the Twenty-first Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1837; was chosen Vice-President of the United States by the Senate, no candidate having received a majority of the electoral vote, serving from March 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for Vice-President on the Van Buren ticket in 1840, receiving 48 electoral votes against 234 electoral votes for John Tyler, Whig, 11 electoral votes for L. W. Tazewell, and 1 electoral vote for James K. Polk; was a member of the State House of Representatives; died at Frankfort, Kentucky, of paralysis, November 19, 1850.

Johnson, Robert W., was born in Kentucky in 1814; received an English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Pine Bluffs, Arkansas; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat without opposition, receiving 16,425 votes against 101 scattering votes; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 14,456 votes against 9,224 votes for Thomas W. Newton, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 11,975 votes against 8,876 votes for Preston, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was elected a United-States senator from Arkansas (in place of Solon Borland, resigned), serving from December 5, 1853, until he withdrew in 1861; was a member of the Confederate Senate from Arkansas, serving from February 22, 1862, to the final adjournment; practised law at Washington City in partnership with General Albert Pike.

Johnson, Thomas, was born in Calvert County, Maryland, November 4, 1732; received an academic education; studied law at Annapolis; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a brigadier-general of Maryland troops January 6, 1776-June, 1776; was elected a delegate from Maryland to the First Continental Congress, serving 1774-1777; nominated George Washington to be commander-in-chief; was present when the Declaration of Independence was adopted, July 4, 1776, but was necessarily absent, on account of illness in his family, when it was signed, August 2, 1776; was a delegate to the First Constitutional Convention of Maryland; served in the Revolutionary war as brigadier-general commanding the Maryland line, and distinguished himself under General Washington in the Jersey campaign; was elected while in the field the first governor of the State of Maryland, serving 1777-1779; removed after his gubernatorial term to Fredericktown, Maryland, which was thenceforth his home; was several times elected a member of the Maryland House of Delegates; was appointed chief judge of the General Court of Maryland, and held the office until he was persuaded by President Washington to accept a seat upon the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, serving 1791-1793; he had declined the position of secretary of state in Washington's cabinet, but accepted the appointment of commissioner of the District of Columbia, and aided in laying out the city of Washington; he then retired to "Rose Hill," near Fredericktown, where he died October 16, 1819.

Johnson, T. M., was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, and presented his credentials; a majority of the Committee on Elections, to whom they were referred, reported that he was entitled to a seat; but such was the opposition, that no vote was taken on the resolution, although, on the last day of the session, he was voted $2,000 for compensation, mileage and expenses.

Johnson, Waldo P., was elected a United-States senator from Missouri as a Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to January 10, 1862, when he was expelled by the Senate.

Johnson, William, was born in Ireland in 1819; immigrated to the United States in early life, and settled in Ohio; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Mansfield, Ohio; held a number of local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,012 votes against 8,642 votes for Godman, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 8,383 votes against 10,903 votes for James R. Hubbell, Republican; died at Mansfield, Ohio, May 3, 1866.

Johnson, William Cost, was born in Frederick County, Maryland, in 1806; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1831, and commenced practice at Jefferson, Maryland; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of Maryland; was president of the Young Men's National Whig Convention which met at Baltimore on the first Monday in May, 1832, to nominate Henry Clay for President; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 600 majority over Dorsey, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was again elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 65 majority over Kimmell, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 347 majority over G. W. Duvall, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 1,439 majority, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; resumed practice at Washington City, and died there April 16, 1860.

Johnson, William Samuel, was born at Stratford, Connecticut, October 7, 1727; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1744; studied law at Cambridge; was admitted to the bar in, and commenced practice at, Stratford; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Convention of the Colonies at New York in 1765; was agent of the Colony of Connecticut at London 1766-1771; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Connecticut 1772-1774; was a delegate from Connecticut in the Continental Congress 1784-1787; was a delegate from Connecticut to the National Constitutional Convention; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1889, to 1791, when he resigned; was president of Columbia College at New-York City 1792-1800; returned to Stratford, Connecticut, where he died November 14, 1819. A sketch of his life was published by John T. Irving in 1830.

Johnston, Charles, was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Poughkeepsie, New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,262 votes against 4,045 votes for Obadiah Titus, Democrat, and serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress by Richard D. Davis, Democrat.

Johnston, Charles C., was born at Abingdon, Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Abingdon; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to June 17, 1832, when he went to Alexandria to visit a friend, and, on his return at night, fell from the wharf into the Potomac, and was drowned.

Johnston, John W., was born at Panicello, near Abingdon, September 9, 1818; was educated at the Abingdon Academy, and the South-Carolina College, at Columbia, South Carolina; studied law at the University of Virginia; was licensed in 1839, and practised at Abingdon; was Commonwealth's attorney for Tazewell County two years; was a member of the Senate of the State of Virginia in 1846-1847 and 1847-1848; was judge of the Circuit Court of Virginia for a year; was elected United-States senator from Virginia as a Conservative, and took his seat January 24, 1870; was re-elected in 1871, and again re-elected in 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Johnston, Josiah Stoddard, was born at Salisbury, Connecticut, November 25, 1784; was taken by his father to Kentucky in 1790; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University in 1805; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Alexandria, Louisiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives; marched to the defence of New Orleans at the head of a regiment, but did not arrive until the battle had been fought; was a State district-judge; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Seventeenth Congress as a Clay Democrat, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana (in place of James Brown, resigned), and was twice re-elected, serving from March 12, 1824, to May 19, 1833, when he died from the effect of an explosion of gunpowder on the steam-packet "Lioness" on the Red River.

Johnston, Samuel, was born in Scotland in 1733, and immigrated early in life to Chowan County, North Carolina; was a delegate to the general meeting at New Berne in 1775, and, as its moderator, was the chief magistrate of North Carolina between the abdication of the last of the royal governors and the accession of the first State governor; was elected a delegate to the Continental Congress 1780-1782; was president of the convention of 1788 to consider the Federal Constitution, which was then rejected, and of the convention of 1789 which ratified that instrument; was elected to the United-States Senate in the First Congress as a Federalist, serving from January 29, 1790, until March 2, 1793; was appointed judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina in February, 1800, which position he resigned in November, 1803, declining all further public service; he died at "Sherwarkey," near Edenton, North Carolina, August 18, 1816.

Jones, Alexander H., was born in Buncombe County, North Carolina, July 21, 1822; received an academic education; was raised a farmer; was a merchant at Asheville; had a limited experience as an editor at the beginning of the Rebellion; took an uncompromising stand for the Union; in the early summer of 1863 he fled into the Union lines; was commissioned by General Burnside to raise a regiment of loyal North-Carolinians, and, while engaged in recruiting white men, was captured in East Tennessee by the Confederates; was imprisoned and ironed at Asheville; imprisoned at Camp Vance, Camp Holmes, and in the Libby at Richmond, Virginia; was conscripted; made his escape November, 1864, without performing any service; succeeded in reaching the Union lines about the 7th December, 1864, at Cumberland, Maryland; was cared for at Cincinnati, and Knoxville, Tennessee, in a bad state of health, until the surrender of General Lee; he returned home, and was elected to the State Convention in 1835; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, but, for the lack of an established civil government in the State, failed to be received; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, and obtained a seat July 20, 1868; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, serving from July 20, 1868, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,231 votes against 12,130 votes for James C. Harper, Conservative.

Jones, Allen (brother of Willie Jones), was born in Halifax County, North Carolina; was a delegate to the State Conventions at New Berne August 25, 1775, and Halifax April 4, 1776, and to the Constitutional Convention at Halifax November, 1776; was brigadier-general of the Revolutionary forces in the Halifax district in 1776; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1779-1780; was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina in 1784-1787; was a member of the State Convention which met in 1788 to ratify the Federal Constitution.

Jones, Benjamin, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and settled at Wooster; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Jones, Charles W., was born in Ireland in 1834; immigrated to the United States in 1844, and, after residing temporarily in different parts of the South while working at his trade, settled at Pensacola in 1854; was self-educated; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1857, and practised at Pensacola; was a member of the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the State at large to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,811 votes against 17,537 votes for William J. Purman, Republican; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Florida in 1874; was elected a United-States senator from Florida as a Conservative Democrat (to succeed Abijah Gilbert, Republican), and took his seat March 5, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Jones, Daniel T., was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to the State of New York, and located at Baldwinsville; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,186 votes against 5,419 votes for Smith, Whig, and 273 votes for Pyrne, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 6,605 votes against 6,120 votes for Gott, Whig, and 1,456 votes for Ray, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Jones, Francis, resided at Winchester, Tennessee; was elected a representative from that State in the Fifteenth Congress, was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, and was unanimously re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1823.

Jones, Frank, was born at Barrington, New Hampshire, September 15, 1832; removed to Portsmouth in 1849, and has since been engaged in mercantile pursuits and in brewing; was elected mayor of Portsmouth in 1868, and re-elected in 1869; and was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,967 votes against 13,631 votes for Charles S. Whitehouse, Republican, and 336 scattering; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,925 votes against 13,885 votes for Gilman Marston, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Jones, George, was appointed a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of Abraham Baldwin, deceased), serving from October 26, 1807, to December 9, 1807, when his successor took his seat.

Jones, George W., was born at Vincennes, Indiana; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University, Kentucky, in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar, but was prevented by feeble health from practising; was clerk of the United-States courts in Missouri in 1826; served as an aide-de-camp to General Henry Dodge in the Black Hawk war; removed to Wisconsin Territory, and settled at Sinsinawa Mound; was judge of the County Court; was colonel and subsequently major-general of militia; was elected a delegate from Wisconsin Territory in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to 1837, when his seat was successfully contested by James Duane Doty, Whig; was appointed surveyor-general of the North-west Territory by President Van Buren; was removed by President Harrison, and was re-appointed by President Polk; was elected a United-States senator from Iowa, and re-elected, serving from December 26, 1848, to March 3, 1859; was minister resident to the United States of Colombia March 8, 1859–November 4, 1861; on his return to the United States he was charged with disloyalty, and was imprisoned in Fort Warren; resided at Dubuque; became interested in agriculture, and purchased a farm.

Jones, George W., was born in King and Queen County, Virginia, March 15, 1806; was taken by his parents to Tennessee, and was apprenticed to learn the saddler's trade at Fayetteville, where he afterwards resided; received a public-school and an academical education; was a justice of the peace 1832–1835; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835–1839, and of the State Senate 1839–1840; was defeated as a candidate for presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1840; served as clerk of the County Court by appointment, and afterwards by election; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,111 votes against 2,941 votes for M. A. Long, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, Thirty-second, and Thirty-third Congresses without any opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,665 votes against 4,245 votes for P. Gordon, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress without opposition, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1850; was a delegate from Tennessee to the Peace Congress of 1860, but did not attend; was a representative from Tennessee in the First Confederate Congress, serving from February 18, 1862, to February 18, 1864; was not a candidate for re-election; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1870; was appointed a member of the Board of Trustees for the Tennessee Hospital for the Insane in 1871, and was re-appointed in 1877.

Jones, Isaac D., was born in Maryland; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised in Princess Anne County; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 3 majority over Cottman, Whig, and serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was elected attorney-general of Maryland in 1863.

Jones, James, was born in Maryland, and accompanied his parents to Georgia when a lad; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Savannah; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to January 13, 1801, when he died at Washington City.

Jones, James, was born in Amelia County, Virginia; resided at Hendersonville; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress, defeating John Pegram; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1823.

Jones, James C., was born in Wilson County, Tennessee, June 8, 1809; received a public-school education; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1839; was defeated as a candidate for presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1840; was governor of Tennessee 1841–1845; was a presidential elector on the Taylor electoral ticket in 1848; was elected a United-States senator from Tennessee as a Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1857; resided at Memphis, Tennessee, where he died October 29, 1859.

Jones, James Taylor, was born at Richmond, Virginia, in 1832; was taken in 1834 to Marengo County, Alabama, where he subsequently resided; received a classical education at Princeton College; studied law, and graduated in the law-school of the University of Virginia; enlisted in April, 1861, in the Confederate service as a private in the Fourth Alabama Regiment, and was promoted to be captain of his company in 1862; was a delegate in 1865 to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,582 votes against 8,771 votes for F. C. Bromberg, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Jones, John Glancy, was born on Conestoga River, Pennsylvania, October 7, 1811; received a liberal education; studied theology, and then law; was admitted to the bar; and practised at Reading, Pennsylvania; was deputy-attorney-general of Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,277 votes against 4,847 votes for Keim, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress (in place of Henry W. Muhlenberg, deceased); was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,152 votes against 5,486 votes for Myers, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,951 votes against 3,947 votes for Yoder, Republican, serving from February 13, 1854, to October 30, 1858, when he resigned; was minister resident November 1, 1858, and envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Austria December 15, 1858, serving to November 14, 1861; died at Reading, Pennsylvania, March 24, 1877.

Jones, John J., was born in Burke County, Georgia, November 13, 1824; received a classical education, graduating at Emory College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,012 votes against 4,507 votes for Wright, Opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to January 23, 1861, when he retired from the House.

Jones, John P., was born at Hay, in Wales, in 1830, and came with his parents to this country when he was less than a year old, settling in the northern part of Ohio, where he attended public school in Cleveland for a few years; in the early part of the California excitement he went to that State, and engaged in farming and mining in one of the inland counties, which he subsequently represented in both Houses of the State Assembly; went to Nevada in 1860, and became engaged in the development of the mineral resources of that State; was elected United-States senator from Nevada as a Republican (to succeed J. W. Nye, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1873. His term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Jones, John S., was born in Champaign County, Ohio, February 12, 1835; graduated in the scientific course at the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1855, and received the degree of M.A. pro honore from that institution in 1875; studied law with Powell and Vandermann, and was admitted to the bar June 15, 1857; was elected prosecuting-attorney for Delaware County in 1860; resigned, and enlisted as a private in Company C, Fourth Ohio Infantry, April 16, 1861; was soon after elected first lieutenant; was re-commissioned first lieutenant in the three-years' service June 4, 1861; was promoted captain September 5, 1862; was mustered out at the expiration of the term of service of his regiment June 21, 1864; was nominated by acclamation for the State legislature in 1864, but resigned to accept the command of the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth Ohio Infantry September 21, 1864; was commissioned brigadier-general by brevet June 27, 1865, for "gallant and meritorious conduct during the war," and was mustered out with his command July 7, 1865; resumed the practice of law; was elected mayor of Delaware by unanimous vote in April, 1866; was elected prosecuting-attorney of Delaware County for three successive terms, serving 1866–1872, when he declined a re-election; was a member of the board of managers of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home 1870–1874; was a trustee of the Wesleyan Female College at Delaware 1865–1875; was a presidential elector on the Grant and Wilson ticket in 1872; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,968 votes against 15,175 votes for Early F. Poppleton, Democrat, and 303 votes for Levi S. Benson, Prohibitionist, serving from October 15, 1877.

Jones, John W., was born at Chesterfield, Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1803; resided at Petersburg; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, defeating W. S. Archer, anti-Jackson, by 254 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, and Twenty-eighth Congresses, receiving at the last election 30 majority over J. M. Botts, Whig (who unsuccessfully contested the seat), serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1845, when he declined a re-election; was speaker of the House in the Twenty-eighth Congress; died January 29, 1848.

Jones, John W., was born in Montgomery County, Maryland, April 14, 1806; was taken when a lad by his parents to Kentucky; received an academic education; studied medicine at the Pennsylvania Academy, and received the degree of doctor of medicine from Jefferson College; practised at Griffin, Georgia; was a zealous Free-Mason; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,033 votes against 3,904 votes for Towns, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; removed to Alabama, where he engaged in planting, but returned to Georgia, where he was appointed a medical professor in the State Medical College.

Jones, Joseph, was born in Virginia, and represented that State in the Continental Congress 1777-1778, and was again elected 1780-1783.

Jones, Morgan, was born at New York February 26, 1832; was educated at the St. James Church school; was apprenticed to a machinist, and subsequently became a plumber; was a member of the city council 1858-1862; was a member of the board of aldermen 1863-1864; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,605 votes against 5,512 votes for William Walsh, Democrat, and C. O'B. Bryant, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Jones, Nathaniel, was born in Orange County, New York; received a common-school education; studied surveying and civil engineering; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1827 and 1828; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,184 votes against 3,973 votes for Thomas McKissock, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was a State canal commissioner November 4, 1844-December 31, 1847; was a State senator 1852-1853; died of asthma at Newburg, New York, July 21, 1866.

Jones, Noble Wimberly, was born near London, England, in 1724; immigrated to Savannah, Georgia, with his father, with whom he studied medicine and was associated in practice 1748-1756; was active in civil and military pre-Revolutionary movements; was a member of the Colonial Assembly, and of the subsequent State House of Representatives; was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1775-1786; lost a son at the capture of Savannah in 1778; was himself made prisoner at the fall of Charleston in 1780, and carried to St. Augustine, where he was imprisoned; was exchanged in July, 1781; was again a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1781-1783; practised in Charleston, December, 1783-December, 1788; returned to Savannah; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1795, and its president; died at Savannah, Georgia, January 9, 1805.

Jones, Owen, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,674 votes against 7,961 votes for Mulrany, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,209 votes against 9,701 votes for John Wood, Unionist.

Jones, Roland, was born in North Carolina; removed to Louisiana, and settled at Shreveport; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,494 votes against 5,695 votes for Smith, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Jones, Seaborn, was born at Augusta, Georgia, in 1788; received a classical education, which was completed at Princeton College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1808 by special act of the legislature, he being under age; commenced practice at Columbus; was made solicitor-general of Georgia in 1823; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 21,686 votes against 15,830 votes for Lamar, State-rights, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; died at Columbus, Georgia, in 1874.

Jones, Thomas Laurens, was born in Rutherford County, North Carolina, January 22, 1819; graduated in the Preparatory School at Columbia, South Carolina, and at Princeton College, New Jersey; received the degree of bachelor of laws in the law-school of Harvard University; passed ten years in European travel, and on his return in 1846 was admitted to the bar at Charleston, South Carolina; commenced practice at New-York City in 1847; removed to Newport, Kentucky, and has since practised there; was a member of the General Assembly of Kentucky in 1853 and 1854; was a representative from Kentucky in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,488 votes against 3,839 votes for W. S. Rankin, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 14,082 votes against 6,120 votes for Root, Republican, serving from December 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,268 votes against 4,141 votes for Hogan, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Jones, Walter (father of Walter Jones), was born in Virginia in 1745; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1760; studied medicine at Edinburgh, Scotland, where he received the degree of doctor in medicine; returned to Virginia, and commenced practice in Northumberland County; was appointed by the Continental Congress physician-general of the Middle Military Department; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; was again elected to the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1811; died in Westmoreland County, Virginia, December 31, 1815.

Jones, Willie (brother of Allen Jones), was born in Halifax County, North Carolina; was president of the State Committee of Safety in 1775; was a member of the First Constitutional Convention in 1776; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1776, 1777, and 1778; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1780-1781; was elected to the United-States Constitutional Convention in 1787, but declined; was a member of the State Convention called to ratify the Constitution of the United States July 21, 1788; removed to the vicinity of Raleigh, where he died.

Jones, William, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1760; received a classical education; joined a volunteer company when sixteen years of age, and participated in the battles of Trenton and Princeton; entered the Continental naval service under Commodore Truxton, and served gallantly; removed to Charleston, South Carolina, where he resided 1790-1793; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; was secretary of the navy January 12, 1813-December 7, 1814; was president of the United-States Bank; was collector of customs at the port of Philadelphia; died at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, September 5, 1831. He published "Winter Navigation of the Delaware" 1822.

Jones, William T., was born at Corydon, Indiana, February 20, 1842; received an academic education, and afterward studied at the Miami University, Oxford, Ohio; studied law; served in the Union army as lieutenant, captain, and major of the Seventeenth Indiana Volunteers; was presidential elector for the Second District of Indiana in 1868; was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court of Wyoming April 6, 1869; and was elected a delegate from Wyoming to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving a majority of 227 votes over Colonel Wanless, Democrat.

Jorgenson, Joseph, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, February 11, 1844; graduated at the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania; was assistant surgeon United-States army 1865-1868; was elected to the legislature of Virginia from Prince Edward County in November, 1871; was appointed postmaster of Petersburg; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,896 votes against 12,492 votes for W. E. Hinton, jun., Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Joyce, Charles H., was born near Andover, England, January 30, 1830; was educated at Waitsfield Academy and Newbury Seminary; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Rutland, Vermont; was two years State librarian, and two years district-attorney for Washington County; served in the Union army as major and lieutenant-colonel of the Second Vermont Volunteers; was a member of the House of Representatives in 1869, 1870, and 1871, and was speaker of the House in 1870 and 1871; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,638 votes against 2,597 votes for Heaton, Democrat, and 1,635 votes for Charles W. Willard, Independent Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,496 votes against 7,057 votes for Childs, Democrat, and 18 votes scattering, serving from December 6, 1875.

Judd, Norman B., was born at Rome, New York, January 10, 1815; studied law there, and was admitted to the bar; removed to Chicago in 1836, and commenced the practice of his profession; held several municipal offices; was a member of the State Senate of Illinois for sixteen consecutive years, his first term commencing in 1844, and last ending in 1860; was minister plenipotentiary to Prussia from 1861 until 1865; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,247 votes against 5,667 votes for Wallace, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 27,414 votes against 19,233 votes for Wallace, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was appointed collector of customs at the port of Chicago by President Grant.

Judson, Andrew T., was born at Eastford, Connecticut, November 29, 1784; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1806, and commenced practice at Montpelier, Vermont; returned to Connecticut, and in 1809 settled at Canterbury; was State's attorney for Windham County 1810-1833; was several times respectively a member of the State Senate and House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to July 1, 1837, when he resigned to accept the position of United-States district-judge for the district of Connecticut (succeeding William Bristol, deceased), and occupied the position until his death at Canterbury, Connecticut, March 17, 1853.

Julian, George W., was born near Centreville, Indiana, May 5, 1817; received a common-school education, and was a teacher more than three years; studied law, and practised nearly twenty years; was a member of the State legislature of Indiana in 1845; was a candidate for Vice-President on the Free-soil ticket with John P. Hale in 1852; was a delegate to the First National Republican Convention, held at Pittsburg in February, 1856, where he served as a vice-president and as chairman of the committee on organization; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 4,737 votes against 4,583 votes for Parker, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 12,237 votes against 7,501 votes for Bickle, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 9,272 votes against 7,414 votes for Johnson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,529 votes against 6,161 votes for James Brown, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,416 votes against 7,188 votes for Bundy, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress from his new district, given above, as a Republican, receiving 13,413 votes against 13,297 votes for Reid, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1871.

Junkin, Benjamin F., was born in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, November 12, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at Fayette College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice at Bloomfield; was district-attorney from Perry County 1850-1853; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,646 votes against 8,600 votes for Fisher, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,712 votes against 12,069 votes for Joseph Bailey, War Democrat.

Kalbfeisch, Martin, was born at Flushing, Netherlands, February 6, 1804; received a public-school education; studied chemistry; immigrated to the United States, and located at New-York City; was health-warden in 1832, and school-trustee in 1836; removed to Bushwick, where he was supervisor 1852-1854; was president of a commission for consolidating Bushwick and Williamsburg with Brooklyn in 1854; was an alderman of Brooklyn 1855-1861; was mayor of Brooklyn 1861-1862; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,586 votes against 5,381 votes for Wall, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Union Convention of 1866; was again mayor of Brooklyn 1867-1868; died at Brooklyn February 12, 1873.

Kane, Elias K., was born in New York June 7, 1790; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar; commenced practice at Nashville, Tennessee, and subsequently located at Kaskaskia, Illinois Territory, in 1815; was a delegate to the convention that framed a State Constitution for Illinois; was the first State secretary of state; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois as a Jackson Democrat, and was re-elected, serving from December 5, 1825, to December 11, 1835, when he died at Washington City.

Kasson, John A., was born near Burlington, Vermont, January 11, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Vermont in 1842; studied law in Massachusetts; removed to St. Louis, Missouri, where he practised until 1857, when he removed to Des Moines, Iowa; was State director in the organization for the State Bank of Iowa in 1858; was State commissioner to investigate and report on the condition of the executive department of Iowa in 1859; was chairman of the Republican State Committee in 1858-1860; was a delegate to the Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was first assistant postmaster-general in President Lincoln's administration in 1861, and resigned in the fall of 1862 to accept a candidacy for Congress; was United-States commissioner to the International Postal Congress at Paris in 1863; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,306 votes against 7,346 votes for Finch, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,640 votes against 7,108 votes for M. D. McHenry, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; was commissioner in 1867 from the United States to negotiate postal conventions with Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy; signed conventions with all except France; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1868-1873; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,909 votes against 7,702 votes for O. L. Palmer, Liberal and Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 12,274 votes against 9,973 votes for Whitman, anti-Monopolist, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; was appointed by President Hayes in 1877 minister to Austria.

Kaufman, David S., was born at Boiling Springs, Pennsylvania, December 18, 1813; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1833; studied law at Natchez, Mississippi, with General Quitman; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Natchitoches, Louisiana; removed in 1837 to Nacogdoches, Texas; distinguished himself in the campaigns of Texas volunteers against the Indians; was a representative in the Texas House of Representatives 1839-1843; was a member of the Texan Senate 1843-1845; was appointed chargé d'affaires of Texas in the United States, but the annexation of Texas vacated his office; was elected a representative from Texas in the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 940 majority over his six competitors; was re-elected to the Thirtieth and Thirty-first Congresses without opposition, serving from June 1, 1846, to January 31, 1851, when he died very suddenly at Washington City.

Kavanagh, Edward, was born April 27, 1795; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Damariscotta, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826 and 1828; was secretary of the State Senate in 1830; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fourth Congress by Jeremiah Bailey, Whig; was chargé d'affaires to Portugal March 3, 1835-June 28, 1841; was a member of the joint commission for establishing the North-eastern boundary in 1842; was acting governor of Maine after the election of Governor Fairfield to the United States Senate 1843-1844; died at New Castle, Maine, January 20, 1844.

Kean, John, was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1785-1787.

Kearney, Dyre, was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1786-1788.

Keese, Richard, was born at Peru, New York, November 23, 1794; received a public-school education; founded the town of Keeseville; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; removed to Pennsylvania.

Kehr, Edward C., was born of German parentage in the county of St. Louis, Missouri, November 5, 1837; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar February 18, 1858, in St. Louis, and practised there; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,871 votes against 5,693 votes for Edwin O. Stanard, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,824 votes against 7,043 votes for Anthony Ittner, Republican.

Keifer, Joseph Warren, was born in Clark County, Ohio, January 30, 1836; was reared on a farm, and educated in common schools and at Antioch College; commenced the study of law at Springfield in 1856; was admitted to the bar January 12, 1858, and commenced practice at Springfield, continuing it until April 19, 1861, when he enlisted in the Union army; was commissioned major of the Third Ohio Volunteer Infantry April 27, 1861; was promoted lieutenant-colonel of the same regiment February 12, 1862; was appointed colonel of the One Hundred and Tenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry September 30, 1862; was appointed brigadier-general by brevet November 30, 1864; was appointed, July 1, 1865, major-general of volunteers by brevet; was mustered out of service June 27, 1865 (having been in the army four years and two months, and four times wounded); resumed practice at Springfield in July, 1865; was appointed lieutenant-colonel of the Twenty-sixth United-States Infantry November 30, 1866, but declined; was a member of the State Senate 1868-1869; was commander of the Department of the Ohio, Grand Army of the Republic, 1868-1870; and was elected vice-commander-in-chief of that organization May 8, 1872; was appointed trustee of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home April 16, 1870; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention 1876; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,728 votes against 14,012 votes for George Arthur, Democrat, and 183 votes for William Pollard, Prohibitionist, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Keightley, Edwin William, was born in Van Buren Township, La Grange County, Indiana, August 7, 1843; received a common-school education, and for one year was a student at the Valparaiso Collegiate Institute; entered the law-department of the University of Michigan; graduated in March, 1865, and commenced practice in St. Joseph's County, Michigan; was elected in 1872 prosecuting-attorney of the county for two years, commencing January 1, 1873; was appointed judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit of Michigan to fill a vacancy; in April, 1875, was nominated by both parties, and elected circuit-judge of the Fifteenth Judicial District for the term of six years, beginning May 1, 1876; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,716 votes against 16,330 votes for Henry Chamberlain, Democrat and Greenback, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Keim, George May, was born at Reading, Pennsylvania, March 23, 1805; received a classical education, which was finished at Princeton College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1826, and commenced practice at Reading; became prominently connected with the Free-Masons, and major-general in the militia; was for many years cashier of the Farmers' Bank at Reading; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1837; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Henry A. Muhlenberg, resigned to accept the Austrian mission) as a Democrat without opposition; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from March 17, 1838, to March 3, 1843; was appointed by President Taylor in 1843 United-States marshal for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, and was re-appointed by President Polk; was defeated as a candidate for presidential elector on the Democratic ticket in 1860; was active in raising men for the Union army after hostilities were commenced in 1861; was stricken with paralysis while drilling a company of home guards, of which he was captain, and died five days afterwards, June 10, 1861, at Reading, Pennsylvania.

Keim, William High, was born near Reading, Pennsylvania, June 13, 1813; received an academical education at the Mount-Airy Military School; was prominently connected with the State militia, attaining the rank of major-general; was mayor of Reading in 1848; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress (in place of J. Glancy Jones, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1858, to March 3, 1859; was surveyor-general of the State of Pennsylvania; entered the Union army in 1861, and was placed in command of a division on the Upper Potomac; was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers; served in the advance upon Richmond on the peninsula; contracted a typhoid-fever; died at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, May 18, 1862.

Keitt, Lawrence M., was born in Orangeburg District, South Carolina, October 4, 1824; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice at Orangeburg Court House; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirty-third Congress as a State-rights Democrat, receiving 456 majority over W. A. Owens, State-rights Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth, Thirty-fifth, and Thirty-sixth Congresses without opposition, serving from December 5, 1853, until he withdrew in December, 1860, having been elected a delegate to the Secession Convention of South Carolina; was a deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which assembled at Montgomery in February, 1861, and at Richmond in July, 1861; raised the Twentieth South-Carolina Volunteers, and was commissioned its colonel January 11, 1862; was wounded in the Confederate attack at Cold Harbor, and died the next day, June 2, 1864, at Richmond, Virginia.

Kelley, William D., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, April 12, 1814; received a thorough English education; was reader in a printing-office, and afterwards an apprentice in a jewelry establishment; removed to Boston, where he worked five years as a journeyman jeweller; returned to Philadelphia, where he studied and practised law, devoting himself also to literary pursuits; was twice prosecuting-attorney for the city and county of Philadelphia, and for ten years judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,568 votes against 10,195 votes for Morgan, Democrat, and 1,715 votes for Robinson, Unionist; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,946 votes against 8,118 votes for Nicholson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,088 votes against 9,344 votes for Northrup, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,551 votes against 12,126 votes for McGrath, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 17,107 votes against 15,248 votes for Nicholson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,324 votes against 11,622 votes for W. B. Thomas, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 20,955 votes against 13,301 votes for W. B. Mitchell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 12,436 votes against 9,049 votes for McGrath, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,820 votes against 12,432 votes for John T. School, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861.

Kellogg, Charles, was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts; received a public-school education; removed to Cayuga County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1808-1810 and 1820-1822; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

Kellogg, Francis W., was born at Worthington, Massachusetts, May 30, 1810; received a public-school education; removed to Michigan, and settled at Grand Rapids, where he engaged in lumbering; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856 and 1857; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 21,950 votes against 17,438 votes for Church, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 29,042 votes against 19,970 votes for Church, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,013 votes against 7,308 votes for Church, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; was appointed by President Johnson collector of internal revenue for the Southern District of Alabama; resided at Mobile; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, serving from July 22, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Kellogg, Orlando, was born at Elizabethtown, New York, June 18, 1809; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1838, and commenced practice at Elizabethtown; was surrogate of Essex County 1840-1844; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Republican, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 7,654 votes against 6,987 votes for Burhans, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, but died, before taking his seat, at Elizabethtown, August 24, 1865.

Kellogg, Stephen W., was born at Shelburne, Massachusetts, April 5, 1822; graduated at Yale College in 1846; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and has since practised at Waterbury; was clerk of the State Senate of Connecticut in 1851; was a member of the State Senate in 1853, and of the State House of Representatives in 1856; was judge of the New-Haven County Court in 1854; was elected judge of probate in 1854, and held the office six years; was a delegate to the National Republican Conventions of 1860 and 1868, and was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,012 votes against 12,678 votes for Babcock, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 19,306 votes against 13,757 votes for Kendrick, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,777 votes against 12,180 votes for English, Democrat, and 510 votes for Caffey, Prohibitionist, serving from April 9, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,844 votes against 15,440 votes for James Phelps, Democrat, and 559 votes for Harrington, Prohibitionist; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 16,777 votes against 19,500 votes for James Phelps, Democrat, and 268 votes for Cummings, Prohibitionist.

Kellogg, William, was born in Ashtabula County, Ohio, July 8, 1814; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Canton; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849 and 1850; was judge of the State Circuit Court 1852-1855; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,175 votes against 14,474 votes for Davidson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 19,487 votes against 16,860 votes for Davidson, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 25,666 votes against 20,997 votes for Ingersoll, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was appointed by President Lincoln minister resident at Guatemala April 21, 1864, but declined serving; was appointed by President Johnson chief justice of Nebraska Territory in 1866.

Kellogg, William Pitt, was born December 8, 1839, in Vermont; was educated at Norwich University; removed to Illinois in 1848; studied law at Peoria, Illinois, and was admitted to the bar in 1853, commencing practice in Fulton County; in 1860 served as presidential elector on the Lincoln ticket; was appointed chief justice of Nebraska by Mr. Lincoln in 1861; resigned, and accepted the colonelcy of the Seventh Illinois Cavalry; served under General Pope in Missouri, and commanded General Granger's cavalry brigade until the evacuation of Corinth; was, in April, 1865, appointed collector of the port of New Orleans, his commission being signed by Mr. Lincoln on the afternoon before the evening on which he was assassinated; was elected United-States senator from Louisiana in July, 1868, as a Republican, serving from July 17, 1868, to November 1, 1872, when he resigned; was governor of Louisiana from January 5, 1873, to January 5, 1877; was again elected to the United-States Senate, and was admitted to his seat December 1, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Kelly, James, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative in Congress from the State of Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress, and was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809; died at Philadelphia February 4, 1819.

Kelly, James K., was born in Centre County, Pennsylvania, February 16, 1819; graduated at Princeton College, New Jersey, in 1839; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in Pennsylvania in 1842; went to California in 1849, and from thence to the Territory of Oregon in 1851; was elected by the Legislative Assembly of Oregon in 1852 one of three commissioners to prepare a code of laws for that Territory; was a member of the Legislative Council from 1853 to 1857; in 1855 he was chosen lieutenant-colonel of the First Regiment of Oregon Mounted Volunteers, and in that capacity was engaged in the Yakima Indian war in 1855 and 1856; was elected a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of Oregon in 1857; was a senator in the Legislative Assembly of Oregon from 1860 to 1864; was appointed by President Buchanan United-States district-attorney for Oregon in 1860, but declined to accept the appointment; he was elected United-States senator from Oregon as a Democrat (to succeed G. H. Williams, Republican), serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Kelly, John, was born at New York April 21, 1821; received a public-school education; learned the mason's trade, and worked at it; was for two years an alderman; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,068 votes against 3,047 votes for Walsh, Democrat, and 1,594 votes for Bryce, American; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,319 votes against 1,735 votes for Gould, American, and 1,497 votes for Ryckman, Republican, serving from December 3, 1855, to December 25, 1858, when he resigned, having been elected high sheriff of the city and county of New York; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions in 1864, 1868, 1872, and 1876.

Kelly, William, was born in Tennessee; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Huntsville, Alabama; was elected a United-States senator from Alabama as a Jackson Democrat (in place of John W. Walker, resigned), serving from January 21, 1823, to March 3, 1825; removed to Louisiana, where he died.

Kelsey, William H., was born at Smyrna, New York, October 2, 1812; studied and practised law; was appointed surrogate of Livingston County in February, 1840; was elected district-attorney of Livingston County in 1850; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 11,061 votes against 4,450 votes for Hastings, Democrat, and 119 votes for Gibbs, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 10,509 votes against 4,266 votes for Angell, Democrat, and 4,895 votes for Hallet, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; was again elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,637 votes against 8,334 votes for Chesebro, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 17,234 votes against 12,743 votes for Ross, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871.

Kelso, John R., was born in Franklin County, Ohio, March 21, 1831; received a classical education, graduating at Pleasant-Ridge College, Missouri; was the principal of an academy in Missouri; served through the war in the Union Army as lieutenant and captain; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-ninth Congress as an Independent Radical, receiving 3,841 votes against 3,548 votes for S. H. Boyd, Radical, and 400 votes for M. J. Hubble, Democrat, and serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Kemble, Gouverneur, was born at New York in 1780; received an English education, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was appointed by President Monroe consul at Cadiz, and while there studied the process of casting cannon; on his return he established a cannon-foundry at Cold Springs, opposite West Point, where cannon were for the first time cast in this country with any degree of perfection; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,966 votes against 4,203 votes for Joshua W. Bowron, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1846; died at Cold Springs, New York, September 2, 1875.

Kempshall, Thomas, was born in England; received a public-school education; immigrated to the United States, and was one of the first settlers at Rochester, New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,476 votes against 4,441 votes for Henry R. Selden, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; died at Rochester, New York, January 14, 1865.

Kenan, Thomas, was born in Duplin County, North Carolina, in 1771; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1799, and of the State Senate in 1804; was elected a representative in the Ninth Congress without opposition; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, until March 3, 1811; removed to the vicinity of Selma, Alabama, where he was several times elected to the State legislature, and died October 22, 1843.

Kendall, Charles West, was born at Sears-mount, Maine, April 22, 1828; was educated at Phillips Academy, Massachusetts, and attended a partial course of studies at Yale College; removed to the Pacific coast; studied law in Sacramento, California, and commenced practice; was a member of the legislature of the State of California in 1861 and 1862; removed to Hamilton, Nevada; was elected a representative from Nevada in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,821 votes against 6,491 votes for T. Fitch, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 7,847 votes against 7,146 votes for C. C. Goodwin, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Kendall, Jonas, was born at Worcester, Massachusetts, June 6, 1757; received an academical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives for several years from the town of Leominster; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; died at Leominster, Massachusetts, October 29, 1844.

Kendall, Joseph G., was born at Leominster, Massachusetts, in 1788; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1810; was a tutor there 1812-1819; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-first Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was clerk of the courts of Worcester County; died at Worcester, Massachusetts, October 2, 1847.

Kenna, John E., was born at Valcoulon, Virginia (now West Virginia), April 10, 1848; lived and worked on a farm; entered the Confederate army as a private soldier; was wounded in that service in 1864, and was surrendered at Shreveport, Louisiana, in 1865; afterwards attended St. Vincent's College, Wheeling; studied law with Miller and Quarrier at Charleston; was admitted to the bar June 20, 1870, and commenced practice; was elected prosecuting-attorney for Kanawha County on the Democratic ticket in 1872, and served until January 1, 1877; in 1875 was elected by the bar in the respective counties, under statutory provision, to hold the circuit courts of Lincoln and Wayne; and was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,192 votes against 12,719 votes for B. J. Redmond, serving from October 15, 1877.

Kennedy, Andrew, was born in Ohio in 1810; was apprenticed to a blacksmith; educated himself after he became of age; removed to Muncietown, Indiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Congresses, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1847; died at Muncietown, Indiana, December 31, 1847.

Kennedy, Anthony, was born at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1811; removed with his parents to Virginia in 1821; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson Academy, Charlestown, Virginia; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but did not practise; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1839-1843; was defeated as the Whig candidate to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 2,746 votes against 3,053 votes for Henry Bedinger, Democrat; returned to Baltimore in 1850; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland as a Unionist, serving from March 4, 1857, to March 3, 1863.

Kennedy, John P., was born at Baltimore, Maryland, October 25, 1795; received a classical education, graduating at Baltimore College in 1812; studied law with William Wirt; was admitted to the bar in 1816, and commenced practice at Baltimore; served in the war with Great Britain, and was at the battles of Bladensburg and North Point; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820 and 1822; was commissioned secretary of legation to Chili January 27, 1823, but resigned without going there; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by Isaac McKim, Democrat, who received 232 majority; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Isaac McKim, deceased) as a Whig, receiving 7,153 votes against 6,952 votes for W. H. Mariott, Democrat, serving from April 30, 1833, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,632 votes against 8,018 votes for James Carroll, Democrat; was a presidential elector on the Harrison ticket in 1840; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 7,733 votes against 7,654 votes for Gallagher, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; was appointed secretary of the navy by President Fillmore, serving July 22, 1852-March 3, 1853; died at Newport, Rhode Island, August 18, 1870. He published "The Red Book" 1818-1819, "A Review of the Cambridge Free-Trade Report" 1830, "Report on United-States Commerce and Navigation" 1842, "Report on the Warehouse System" 1843, "Defence of the Whigs" 1844, "Swallow Barn" 1832, "Horse-Shoe Robinson" 1835, "Rob of the Bowl" 1838, "Quod Libet" 1840, "Memoirs of William Wirt" 1849, and many other political essays, historical sketches, and reviews. His life was published by H. T. Tuckerman in 1871.

Kennedy, William, was born in North Carolina; studied and practised law; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was again elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was defeated as the Federal candidate for the Twelfth Congress by Thomas Blount, Democrat; was again elected to the Twelfth Congress (in place of Thomas Blount, deceased); was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from January 30, 1813, to March 2, 1815.

Kennett, Luther M., was born at Falmouth, Kentucky, March 15, 1807; received an academical education; was deputy-clerk of the Pendleton-county Court; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; removed to Missouri in 1825, and engaged in mercantile pursuits, finally locating at St. Louis; was a member of the city council in 1842; was chairman of the Pacific Railroad Convention held at St. Louis in 1850, and a vice-president of the Pacific Railroad Company subsequently formed; was mayor of St. Louis 1850-1853; was president of the St. Louis and Iron-Mountain Railroad 1853; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,259 votes against 5,298 votes for Benton, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,549 votes against 6,035 votes for F. P. Blair, Free-Soiler, and 2,181 votes for Reynolds, Democrat.

Kennon, William, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; removed to St. Clairsville, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Kent, Joseph, was born in Calvert County, Maryland, in 1779; received an academical education; studied medicine, and was admitted to practice; also carried on a landed estate near Bladensburg; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist, defeating C. F. Mercer, Federalist; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress, and re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to January 6, 1826, when he resigned, having been elected governor of Maryland, serving 1826-1829; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland as a Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to November 24, 1837, when he died at his home, near Bladensburg, Maryland.

Kent, Moss, was born in Rensselaer County, New York; studied law with his brother, Chancellor James Kent, and commenced practice at Le Raysville, Jefferson County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1807 and in 1810; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; was register of the State Court of Chancery.

Kenyon, William S., was born at Kingston, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,106 votes against 8,067 votes for Strong, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Kernan, Francis, was born at Tyrone, New York, January 14, 1816; finished his education at Georgetown College, District of Columbia; studied law at Utica with Joshua H. Spencer; was admitted to the bar, and became Mr. Spencer's partner; was reporter of the Court of Appeals; was elected a member of the General Assembly of the State legislature in 1861; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,943 votes against 9,845 votes for Roscoe Conkling, Republican; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,816 votes against 11,906 votes for Roscoe Conkling, Republican; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1867-1868; was the Democratic and Liberal candidate for governor of New York in 1862; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Democrat (to succeed R. E. Fenton, Liberal), and took his seat March 4, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Kerr, John, was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817.

Kerr, John, was born in North Carolina; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Yanceyville; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,037 votes against 963 votes for Rancher, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Conservative candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 3,447 votes against 6,752 votes for Edward G. Reade, American.

Kerr, John Bozman, was born at Easton, Maryland, March 5, 1809; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Easton; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1836-1838; was deputy-attorney-general for Talbot County 1847-1849; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,457 votes, without opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, but resigned, having been commissioned chargé d'affaires to Nicaragua, serving March 12, 1851-June 1, 1853; returning home, he resumed practice at Baltimore, and subsequently at St. Michael's, Maryland; was appointed a United-States solicitor before the Court of Claims; was a clerk in the office of the sixth auditor of the treasury; and died at Washington City of heart-disease, after a few hours' illness, January 28, 1878.

Kerr, John L., was born at Greenbury Point, near Annapolis, Maryland, January 15, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at St. John's College in 1799; studied law with John Leeds Bozman; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Easton; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Nineteenth Congress as a Whig, receiving 27 majority over Thomas Emory; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 218 majority, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-first Congress by Richard Spencer, and was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1840; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of John S. Spence, deceased), serving from January 13, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died near Easton, Maryland, February 21, 1844.

Kerr, Joseph, was elected a United-States senator from Ohio in place of Thomas Worthington, resigned, serving from December 30, 1814, to March 2, 1815.

Kerr, Michael C., was born at Titusville, Pennsylvania, March 15, 1827; received an academic education; graduated with the degree of bachelor of laws at the Louisville University in 1851; commenced the practice of law in 1852 in New Albany; was elected city-attorney in 1854, and prosecuting-attorney of Floyd County in 1855; was a member of the State legislature in 1856 and 1857; was elected reporter of the Supreme Court of Indiana in 1862, and edited five volumes of reports; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,407 votes against 9,614 votes for W. W. Curry, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,421 votes against 11,678 votes for Gresham, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 18,779 votes against 12,343 votes for Gresham, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 16,950 votes against 11,116 votes for Carr, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as a Democratic candidate at large for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 188,502 votes against 188,664 votes for Godlove S. Orth, Republican; was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,891 votes against 12,582 votes for James A. Cravens, Independent Granger and Inflation Democrat; was elected speaker; but consumption had marked him as a victim, and, retiring to Rock-Alum Springs, Virginia, he died there August 19, 1876.

Kerrigan, James E., was born in Ireland; received a public-school education; immigrated to the United States, and located at New-York City; was clerk of the Police Court; was a member of the City Council; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,145 votes against 3,989 votes for Thomy, Fusion, and 3,324 votes for Commerford, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; commanded a regiment of New-York volunteer infantry in the Union army while holding his seat in Congress.

Kershaw, John, was born in South Carolina; received a thorough English education; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was appointed by President Madison a member of the commission to establish the boundaries of the Creek Nation.

Ketcham, John H., was born at Dover, New York, December 21, 1832; received an academic education; became interested in agricultural pursuits; was town-supervisor in 1854 and 1855; was a member of the State Assembly of New York in 1856 and 1857; was a member of the State Senate of New York in 1860 and 1861; entered the Union army as colonel of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Volunteers in 1862, and was appointed brigadier-general, serving until he resigned in March, 1865, to take the seat in Congress to which he had been elected; he was afterwards appointed major-general by brevet; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,229 votes against 11,559 votes for Homer A. Nelson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,535 votes against 10,840 votes for C. P. Collier, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,569 votes against 13,141 votes for Wheaton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,432 votes against 11,748 votes for Philip, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,932 votes against 14,860 votes for John O.

Whitehouse, Liberal Democrat; was a commissioner of the District of Columbia July 3, 1874-June 30, 1877; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,225 votes against 16,113 votes for Davies, Democrat, and 223 votes for Peter Denny, Prohibitionist.

Ketchum, Winthrop W., was born at Wilkesbarre June 29, 1820; received an academic education; was teacher of languages and mathematics in the Wyoming Seminary for four years; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1850; was prothonotary of Luzerne County three years; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858, and of the State Senate in 1859; was solicitor of the United-States Court of Claims in 1864-1866; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,932 votes against 7,165 votes for Hendrick B. Wright, Democrat, and 619 votes for Smith, Prohibitionist, serving from March 4, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was appointed judge of the United-States courts for the Western District of Pennsylvania.

Key, David McKendree, was born in Greene County, Tennessee, January 27, 1824; his family moved in 1826 into Monroe County, where he was raised on a farm, studying at the winter schools; entered Hiawasse College in 1845, and graduated in 1850; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and entered into practice at Chattanooga in 1853; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket in 1856, and on the Breckinridge and Blair ticket in 1860; entered the Confederate army in 1861, and served through the entire war as lieutenant-colonel of the Forty-third Tennessee Infantry; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Tennessee in 1870; was chancellor of the Third Chancery District 1870-1875; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 8,960 votes against 10,041 votes for William Crutchfield, Republican; was appointed by Governor Porter United-States senator from Tennessee as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Andrew Johnson), serving from December 6, 1875, to January 29, 1877; was defeated as a candidate for election to the United-States Senate (receiving all the Republican votes) by James E. Bailey, Democrat; was appointed by President Hayes postmaster-general, serving from March 12, 1877.

Key, Philip, was born in St. Mary's County, Maryland, in 1750; received an academical education; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a local magistrate; served in the State House of Representatives, and was one year its speaker; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 2, 1793; died on his estate, in St. Mary's County, January 4, 1820.

Key, Philip Barton, was born in Cecil County, Maryland, in 1765; received an academical education; joined the British army after the declaration of independence, and received in 1778 a commission in the Maryland Loyalists' Regiment; served in Florida, was made prisoner there, and, when released on parole, went to England; after peace was declared he retired on half-pay, which he resigned in 1807; returned to Maryland in 1785, and settled at Annapolis in 1790; was elected a member of the State House of Representatives in 1794, and was re-elected several times; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Tenth Congress as a Federalist, defeating Wampler, and, after much opposition, was admitted to his seat; was re-elected to the Eleventh and Twelfth Congresses, serving from October 20, 1807, to March 3, 1813; died at Georgetown, District of Columbia, July 28, 1815.

Keyes, Elias, was born at Ashford, Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Stockbridge, Vermont; was a State councillor 1803-1818, and a member of the State House of Representatives for eighteen years; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Kidder, David, was born at Dresden, Maine, December 8, 1787; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in, and commenced practice at, Norridgewock; was county-attorney of Somerset County 1811-1823; was an editorial contributor to "The Somerset-county Journal;" was elected a representative from Maine in the Eighteenth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1829; died at Norridgewock, Maine, November 1, 1860.

Kidder, Jefferson P., was born at Braintree, Vermont; received a common-school education; was trained to agricultural pursuits; taught school; received a classical education, graduating at the Norwich University, and was a tutor therein; received in 1848 the degree of master of arts from the University of Vermont; studied and practised law; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Vermont in 1843; was State's attorney in 1842-1847; was a member of the State Senate of Vermont in 1847-1848; was lieutenant-governor of Vermont in 1853-1854; removed to St. Paul, Minnesota, in 1857; was elected a provisional delegate from Dakota Territory while visiting there in 1859; was a member of the Minnesota House of Representatives in 1861, 1863, and 1864; was appointed in 1865 an associate justice of the Supreme Court for Dakota Territory, and removed there; was re-appointed in 1869, and again in 1873, and resigned after having discharged the duties of that office for ten years; and was elected a delegate from Dakota in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving a majority of 2,408 votes over Moses K. Armstrong, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,199 votes against 2,413 votes for S. L. Spink, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1876.

Kidwell, Zedekiah, was born in Fairfax County, Virginia, January 4, 1814; received a thorough English education; studied medicine, graduating at Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia in 1839; after practising medicine for several years, he turned his attention to the law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and practised at Fairmont, Virginia; served in the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1849; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,452 votes against 6,249 votes for Pendleton, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was elected a member of the State Board of Public Works in 1857; died at Fairmont, Virginia, April 27, 1872.

Kilbourn, James, was born at New Britain, Connecticut, October 19, 1770; received a classical education; studied theology, and took orders in the Episcopal Church; was the founder of the town of Worthington, Ohio, under the auspices of the Scioto Land Company; was one of the founders of New-England Lodge of Freemasons at Worthington; was appointed United-States surveyor of public lands in 1805; was appointed one of the commissioners to fix the boundary of the Virginia reservation; was president of the trustees of Worthington College; was elected to the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, until March 3, 1817; was a member of the House of Representatives in the Ohio legislature in 1823, and again in 1828; and died at Worthington, Ohio, April 24, 1850.

Kilgensmith, John, jun., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Stewartsville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Kilgore, Daniel, was born in Virginia; received a good English education; removed to Ohio, and located at Cadiz; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Humphrey H. Leavitt, resigned) as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1834, to 1838, when he resigned; died at New York December 12, 1851.

Kilgore, David, was born in Harrison County, Kentucky, April 3, 1804; removed with his father to Franklin County, Indiana, in 1819; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Yorktown, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1838; was elected by the legislature president-judge of his judicial circuit, serving 1839-1844; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was again a member of the State House of Representatives and its speaker 1854; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,132 votes against 7,183 votes for Johnson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,383 votes against 5,921 votes for Develin, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866.

Kille, Joseph, was born in New Jersey; received an academical education; resided at Salem; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, defeating W. Halsted on a general ticket, serving from March 10, 1840, to March 3, 1841; the election of Mr. Kille and four other representatives was unsuccessfully contested, and they were finally admitted to their seats.

Killinger, John W., was born September 18, 1825; graduated from Marshall College, Pennsylvania, in 1843; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in January, 1846; was prosecuting-attorney for Lebanon County until 1849; was elected to the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania for the sessions of 1850 and 1851; was elected to the State Senate in 1854, serving three years; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,897 votes against 5,589 votes for Weidle, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 12,246 votes against 7,488 votes for Worrell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,326 votes against 10,696 votes for C. D. Gloninger, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,419 votes against 11,049 votes for B. Reilly, Democrat.

Kimball, Alanson M., was born at Buxton, Maine, March 12, 1827; received an academic and business education; removed to Wisconsin in 1852, and engaged in farming and mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State Senate of Wisconsin in 1863-1864, and was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,733 votes against 14,641 votes for Gabriel Bouck, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Republican candidate for representative to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 17,847 votes against 20,623 votes for Gabriel Bouck, Democrat.

Kimmell, William, was born at Baltimore, Maryland; received a classical education, which was completed at St. Mary's and Baltimore Colleges; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Baltimore; devoted much time to agricultural pursuits, and to the study of the commercial and manufacturing interests of the country; was a State director in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and a director in the Canton Company of Baltimore, in the Union Railroad Company, and in the Western Maryland Extension; was a member of the State Democratic Committee from 1862 to 1866; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention which nominated George B. McClellan for President in 1864; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 950 votes against 4,677 votes for John L. Thomas, jun., Republican; served in the Maryland State Senate from 1866 to 1871; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,251 votes against 8,592 votes for Goldsborough, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Kincaid, John, was born in Kentucky; received a public-school education; resided at Stanford; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

King, Adam, was born at York, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; studied medicine, and practised at York; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Jackson Democratic candidate for the Twenty-third Congress by Charles A. Barnitz, Clay Democrat; died at York, Pennsylvania, May 6, 1835.

King, Andrew, was born in Greenbrier County, Virginia, March 20, 1812; received a common-school education; studied law, and practised at St. Charles, Missouri; was elected to the State Senate of Missouri in 1846; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1858; was judge of the Circuit Court of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit of Missouri from 1859 to 1864; and was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,390 votes against 3,227 votes for E. Draper, Administration Republican, and 3,803 votes for D. P. Dyer, Liberal Republican.

King, Austin A., was born in Sullivan County, Tennessee, September 20, 1801; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1822; removed to Missouri in 1830, and practised at Richmond; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1834 and in 1836; was circuit-judge for Ray County 1837-1848; was governor of Missouri 1848-1853; was again circuit-judge for Ray County 1862-1863; resigned, having been elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,243 votes against 2,857 votes for Birch, Secession, and 644 votes for Bouton, Secession, and serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as a Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 695 votes against 3,498 votes for Burt Van Horn, Radical, and 3,226 votes for Elijah H. Norton, Democrat; died at St. Louis April 22, 1870.

King, Cyrus (half-brother of Rufus King), was born at Scarborough, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), September 16, 1772; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1794; was private secretary to Rufus King; studied law; was admitted to the bar in, and commenced practice at, Saco; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died at Saco April 25, 1817.

King, Daniel Putnam, was born at Danvers, Massachusetts, in 1800; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1823; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but abandoned the profession, and devoted himself to the cultivation of a farm inherited by his wife at Danvers; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1836-1837; was a member of the State Senate 1838-1841, serving the last term as its president; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1843-1844, and speaker of that body; was a trustee of the State Lunatic Hospital; several unsuccessful attempts having been made to elect a representative from his district, he was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 83 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 1,300 majority over all other candidates; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress on the second trial, receiving 3,735 votes against 1,621 votes for Dike, Democrat, and 608 scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to July 25, 1850, when he died (having returned from Washington suffering from dysentery) at South Danvers, Massachusetts.

King, George C., was born in Rhode Island; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Newport; was a member of the House of Representatives, and one year its speaker; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1849; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,005 votes against 1,250 votes for Brown, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 3,492 votes against 3,276 votes for Sayles, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; died at Newport July 17, 1870.

King, Henry, was born at Hampden, Massachusetts, in 1790; received a classical education; studied law at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania; was admitted to the bar in 1815, and commenced practice at Allentown; was a member of the State Senate in 1830; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; resumed his legal practice; died at Allentown July 13, 1861.

King, James Gore (son of Rufus King), was born at New-York City May 8, 1791; his father took him to England, where he received a classical education, and on his return graduated at Harvard College in 1810; he studied law at the Litchfield (Connecticut) School, but engaged in mercantile pursuits in the successive firms of King & Gracie, Prince, Ward, & King, and James G. King & Sons; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,670 votes against 6,716 votes for Hollingworth, Democrat, and 677 votes for Opdyke, Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was for several years a leading member of the New-York Chamber of Commerce, and its president when he died at Hightwood, New Jersey, opposite New-York City, October 3, 1853.

King, John, was born in 1775; resided at New Lebanon; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; died at New Lebanon, New York, September 1, 1838.

King, John Alsop (eldest son of Rufus King), was born at New-York City January 3, 1788; was educated at Harrow School, England, and at Paris; served throughout the war of 1812 as lieutenant of cavalry; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1819-1821; was State senator in 1823; was commissioned secretary of the legation at London, his father being minister, May 5, 1825; was charge d'affaires from June 15 to August 8, 1826; resigned August 12, 1826; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832 and in 1840; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,397 votes against 2,457 votes for Jones, Democrat, and 2,332 votes for Brown, Cass Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was governor of the State of New York 1856-1858; was a presidential elector on the Lincoln and Hamlin ticket in 1860; was a delegate from New York to the Peace Congress of 1861; was devoted to agricultural pursuits, and was for years prominently connected with the Queen's-county Agricultural Society, the New-York State Agricultural Society, and the United-States Agricultural Society; died at Jamaica, Long Island, July 7, 1867.

King, John P., resided at Augusta, Georgia; held several local offices; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of George M. Troup, resigned) as a State-rights Democrat; and was re-elected in 1834, serving from December 2, 1833, to November 1, 1837, when he resigned.

King, Perkins, was born at New Marlborough, Massachusetts, January 12, 1784; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Greenville, New York, in 1802; was county-judge of Greene County 1823-1850; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; died at Freehold, Greene County, November 29, 1875.

King, Preston, was born at Ogdensburg, New York, October 14, 1806; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1827; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Ogdensburg; established and edited "The St. Lawrence Republican" as an advocate of General Jackson; was postmaster at Ogdensburg; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1834-1837; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,573 votes against 4,785 votes for Sherman, Whig, and 335 votes for Northrup, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 8,145 votes against 6,295 votes for Hopkins, Whig, and 612 votes for Mitchell, American, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Free-soil Democrat, receiving 7,309 votes against 5,133 votes for Squire, Whig, and 1,325 votes for Dodge, Cass Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,101 votes against 4,898 votes for Grant, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Republican, serving from March 4, 1857, to March 3, 1863; resumed the practice of law at New-York City; was a presidential elector on the Lincoln and Johnson ticket in 1864; was appointed collector of the port of New York by President Johnson August 15, 1865; committed suicide by jumping, heavily weighted, from a ferry-boat into the Hudson River, November 13, 1865.

King, Rufus (half-brother of Cyrus King, and father of John A. King and James G. King), was born at Scarborough, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), March 24, 1755; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1777; studied law with Theophilus Parsons at Newburyport; was aide-de-camp to General Glover in the expedition against the British occupants of Rhode Island in 1778; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Newburyport in 1780; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1782; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1784-1786; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1787; was a delegate to the National Constitutional Convention; removed to New-York City in 1788; was a member of the New-York State legislature in 1789; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Federalist, serving from March 4, 1790, to May 18, 1796, when he resigned, having received a diplomatic appointment; was appointed by President Washington minister to Great Britain, serving May 20, 1796-May 18, 1803; was again elected a senator from New York, and re-elected, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1825; was again appointed minister to Great Britain by President John Quincy Adams, serving May 5, 1825-June 16, 1826; on his return he retired to his country-seat at Jamaica, Long Island, and died there April 29, 1827.

King, Rufus H., was born in New York; resided at Catskill, Greene County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,576 votes against 5,042 votes for Strong, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; removed to Albany, where he became president of the State National Bank and of the Albany Insurance Company.

King, T. Butler, was born at Hampden, Massachusetts, August 27, 1804; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in, and commenced practice at, Waynesville, Georgia; was a member of the State Senate in 1832, 1834, 1835, and 1837; became interested in agricultural pursuits; was defeated as a State-rights Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress on a general ticket; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a State-rights Whig, receiving 32,090 votes against 30,912 votes for Patterson, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 39,257 votes against 35,357 votes for Junius Hillyer, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Whig candidate to the Thirty-eighth Congress; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 3,808 votes against 3,074 votes for Spalding, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 3,324 votes against 2,227 votes for Cohen, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Whig candidate for election to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 3,549 votes against 4,379 votes for Joseph W. Jackson, State-rights Democrat; was appointed by President Taylor collector of the port of San Francisco, serving 1850-1851; returned to Georgia; was sent by the Confederate Government in 1862 a commissioner to Europe; and died at Waynesborough, Georgia, May 10, 1864.

King, William Rufus, was born in Sampson County, North Carolina, April 7, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1803; studied law under William Duffy of Fayetteville; was admitted to the bar in 1806, and commenced practice at Clinton; was a member of the House of Commons of Alabama in 1808 and 1809; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses as a War Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, until he resigned to accompany William Pinckney of Maryland to Russia as secretary of legation April 23, 1816; returned from Europe in 1818, and settled at Cahawba, Alabama, as a cotton-planter; was a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of Alabama; was elected United-States senator, serving from March 4, 1819, until he resigned to accept from President Tyler the appointment of minister to France April 9, 1844, having presided the six last years as president pro tempore; was minister to France from April 9, 1844, until September 15, 1846; was again appointed to the United-States Senate (in the place of A. P. Bagby, resigned), and was then re-elected, serving from December 7, 1846, to March 4, 1853, and again presiding as president pro tempore; was elected Vice-President on the Pierce ticket in 1852 as a Democrat, receiving 254 electoral votes against 42 electoral votes for W. R. Graham, Whig; having gone to Cuba for his health, he took his oath of office at Havana, March 4, 1853; returning to his home at Cahawba, Alabama, he died there the next day, April 18, 1853.

King, William S., was born at Malone, New York, December 16, 1828; received a common-school education; is by occupation a farmer and stock-raiser; was postmaster of the House of Representatives in the Thirty-seventh, Thirty-eighth, Fortieth, Forty-first, and Forty-second Congresses; and was elected a representative from Minnesota in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,179 votes against 15,860 votes for Eugene M. Wilson, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Kingsbury, William W., was born at Towanda, Pennsylvania, June 4, 1828; received a public-school education, and was reared on a farm; removed to Minnesota, and located at Endion; was a member of the Territorial legislature in 1855, and again in 1856; was a delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution; was elected a delegate from Minnesota Territory in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Kinloch, Francis, was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1780-1781.

Kinnard, George L., was born in 1803; removed to Indiana, and located at Indianapolis; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, defeating J. Crawford, National Republican; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, until he died at Cincinnati, Ohio, November 25, 1836, from injuries received near there on the 16th of that month by the explosion of the boiler of the steamer "Flora." He was on his way to Philadelphia to be married, and his bride was to have accompanied him to Washington.

Kinney, John Fitch, was born at New Haven, New York, April 2, 1816; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1837, and commenced practice at Marysville, Ohio; removed in 1839 to Mount Vernon, Ohio, and again in 1844 to Lee County, Iowa; was secretary of the Territorial Legislative Council of Iowa; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Iowa 1846-1853; was appointed by President Pierce chief justice of the Supreme Court of Utah, serving 1854-1857; removed to Nebraska in 1857, and practised law there; was appointed by President Buchanan chief justice of the Supreme Court of Utah, serving 1860-1863; was elected a delegate from Utah Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving no opposition, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Kinsella, Thomas, was born in Ireland in 1832; received a common-school education; studied the art of printing at the compositor's case, and the profession of editing at the reporter's desk, graduating as the editor of "The Brooklyn Eagle," a position which he has occupied for many years; he has held various local offices at Brooklyn, among them those of water commissioner and member of the board of education; was nominated as postmaster of that city in 1866, and again in 1867 by President Johnson, but was each time rejected by the Senate; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,704 votes against 12,482 votes for S. B. Dutcher, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Kinsey, Charles, was born at Paterson, New Jersey; received an academic education; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, defeating John Condict, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Kinsey, James, was born at Burlington, New Jersey, in 1733; took a leading part in colonial affairs, and was prominently identified with pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1774-1775; was appointed chief justice of New Jersey in 1789; died at Burlington, New Jersey, January 4, 1802.

Kinsley, Martin, was born at Bridgewater, Massachusetts, June 2, 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1778; studied medicine, and practised at Bridgewater; served in the Revolutionary war as purveyor of medical supplies; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was for thirty years a member of the State House of Representatives; was a judge of probate, and a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was defeated as a candidate for the Seventeenth Congress; died at Bridgewater, June 20, 1835.

Kirkland, Joseph, was born at Old Norwich, Connecticut, January 18, 1770; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1790; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Hartford, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804-1805; removed to Utica in 1813, and was appointed State district-attorney; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1818, 1820, 1821, and 1825; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was mayor of Utica 1832, 1834, and 1835; died at Utica January 26, 1844.

Kirkpatrick, Littleton, was born at New Brunswick, New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Brunswick; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was surrogate of Middlesex County; died at New Brunswick August 15, 1859.

Kirkpatrick, William, was born at Amwell, New Jersey, November, 1768; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1788; studied medicine; was admitted to practice in 1795, and practised at Amwell; removed to Salina, New York, in 1806, and became superintendent of the Salt Springs; was elected a representative from New York in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; died of cholera at Salina, New York, September 2, 1832.

Kirkwood, Samuel J., was born in Hartford County, Maryland, December 20, 1813; received a limited education at the academy of John McLeod, in Washington City; removed to Richland County, Ohio, in 1835, and studied law there; was admitted to the bar in 1843; was elected prosecuting-attorney in 1845, and again in 1847; was in 1850-1851 a member of the convention that framed the present Constitution of the State of Ohio; removed to Johnson County, Iowa, in 1855; was elected to the State Senate in 1856; was elected governor in 1859, and again in 1861; was in 1863 nominated by President Lincoln and confirmed as minister to Denmark, but declined the appointment; was elected a United-States senator from Iowa as a Republican (in place of James Harlan, resigned), serving from January 24, 1866, to March 3, 1867; was again elected governor of Iowa in 1875; was again elected a senator from Iowa, serving from March 4, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Kirtland, Dorrance, was born at Coxsackie, New York; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1789; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Kitchell, Aaron, was born at Hanover, New Jersey, July 10, 1844; received a public-school education; learned the blacksmith's trade, and worked at it; was actively engaged in pre-Revolutionary movements; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Second Congress as an anti-Federalist; was re-elected to the Third and Fourth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1797; was again elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey, serving from December 2, 1805, to 1809, when he resigned; was a presidential elector on the Monroe and Tompkins ticket in 1817; died at Hanover, New Jersey, June 25, 1820.

Kitchen, Bethuel M., was born in Berkeley County, West Virginia, March 21, 1812; received a common-school education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State legislature of Virginia in 1861 and 1862; was a member of the State Senate of West Virginia in 1864 and 1865; was elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, but not admitted; and was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,296 votes against 5,190 votes for Andrews, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Kittera, John W., was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1776; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Second Congress as a Federalist; and was re-elected to the Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1801.

Kittera, Thomas, was born in Pennsylvania; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of Joseph Hemphill, resigned), serving from December 4, 1826, to March 3, 1827; died at Philadelphia June 16, 1839.

Kittredge, George W., was born at Epping, New Hampshire; received an academical education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and located at Newmarket; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847, 1851, and 1852, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-third Congress as an anti-Nebraska Democrat, receiving 10,168 votes against 8,902 votes for Tucker, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,750 votes against 12,611 votes for James Pike, American; died of apoplexy at Newmarket, New Hampshire, January 25, 1878.

Knapp, Anthony L., was born at Middletown, New York, June 14, 1828; removed with his father to Illinois in 1839; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice at Jerseyville; was a member of the State Senate 1859-1861; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-seventh Congress (in place of John A. McClelland, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 14,259 votes against 7,712 votes for Moulton, Republican, serving from December 12, 1861, to March 3, 1865.

Knapp, Charles, was born at Colchester, Delaware County, New York, October 8, 1797; was bred a farmer; was chiefly educated at home, but taught school for a time; entered upon mercantile pursuits in 1825; was a member of the legislature of the State of New York in 1841; settled in the village of Deposit, Delaware County, in 1848; organized the Deposit Bank in 1854, which became a national bank in 1864, and of which he was president; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,949 votes against 14,584 votes for Gilbert, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Knapp, Chauncey L., was born at Berlin, Vermont, February 26, 1809; received a public-school education; served an apprenticeship to the art of printing at Montpelier; was elected official legislative reporter in 1833; was for several years the editor and proprietor of "The State Journal;" was secretary of state of Vermont 1836-1840; removed to Lowell, Massachusetts; was secretary of the Massachusetts Senate in 1851; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 7,215 votes against 3,792 votes for Wentworth, Whig, 708 votes for Needham, Democrat, and 14 scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,616 votes against 3,686 votes for B. F. Butler, Democrat, and 864 votes for A. S. Lewis, Abolitionist, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; resumed the editorship of "The Lowell News."

Knapp, Robert M., was born at Jerseyville, Illinois; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Jerseyville; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat and Liberal, receiving 13,818 votes against 10,939 votes for A. C. Matthews, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,949 votes against 12,622 votes for Robbins, Republican, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Knickerbocker, Herman, was born at Albany, New York, July 27, 1782; received a classical education; studied law with John V. Henry; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Albany; inherited a large property, and removed to Scaghticoke, nineteen miles north of Albany, where he dispensed such generous hospitality that he became known as "the Prince of Scaghticoke;" was elected a representative from New York in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816; was a county-judge; became peculiarly involved in the later years of his life; died at Williamsburg, New York, January 30, 1855. He is alluded to by Washington Irving, in "Knickerbocker's History of New York," as "my cousin the congressman;" and, when Mr. Irving visited Washington, he introduced him to President Madison as "my cousin Diedrich Knickerbocker, the great historian of New York."

Knight, Jonathan, was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, November 22, 1787; received a public-school education; removed with his parents in 1801 to East Bethlehem, Washington County; became a land-surveyor and civil engineer; served three years as county commissioner; was appointed a commissioner to construct the National Road, and served three years; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1822-1828; visited England to examine the railroads there, and, on his return, was appointed chief engineer on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,912 votes against 7,552 votes for Montgomery, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; engaged in agricultural pursuits; and died at East Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, November 22, 1858.

Knight, Nehemiah (father of Nehemiah R. Knight), was born in Rhode Island; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to 1808, when he died.

Knight, Nehemiah R. (son of Nehemiah Knight), was born at Cranston, Rhode Island, December 31, 1780; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1802; was elected clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in 1805, and removed to Providence; was clerk of the Circuit Court 1812-1817; was for many years president of the Roger Williams Bank; was governor of Rhode Island 1817-1821; was appointed by President Madison collector of customs at Providence; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Whig (in place of James Burrill, jun., deceased), and was three times re-elected, serving from January 20, 1820, to March 3, 1841; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1843; died at Providence, Rhode Island, April 19, 1854.

Knott, J. Proctor, was born near Lebanon, Kentucky, August 29, 1830; studied law; removed to Missouri in May, 1850, and was admitted to the bar in 1851; was elected to the State House of Representatives of Missouri in 1857, and resigned in August, 1859; was appointed attorney-general of Missouri in the same month; was unanimously nominated for the same position by the Democratic Convention, and elected in August, 1862; returned to Kentucky, and commenced the practice of law in Lebanon in 1863; and was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,199 votes against 2,277 votes for Taylor, Republican, and 508 votes for W. I. Heady; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,166 votes against 1,811 votes for Hays, Republican, serving from December 3, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,182 votes against 4,601 votes for C. S. Hill, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,735 votes against 6,982 votes for Lewis, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Knowlton, Ebenezer, was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; studied theology; resided at South Montville, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1844-1850, serving as speaker in 1844; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,995 votes against 4,072 votes for J. G. Dickerson, Democrat, and 3,587 votes for E. W. Farley, Whig, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Knox, James, was born at Canajoharie, New York, July 4, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Utica; removed to Illinois, and founded the town of Knoxville in 1836; devoted himself to agricultural and mercantile pursuits; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1847; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,866 votes against 9,684 votes for Ross, Democrat, and 1,290 votes for Curtis, Free-Soiler; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,146 votes against 7,587 votes for McMurtry, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; lost his sight, and visited Europe to consult celebrated oculists without receiving any benefit.

Knox, Samuel, received a public-school education; resided at St. Louis; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-eighth Congress (having successfully contested the seat of Francis P. Blair, jun.) as a Republican, serving from June 15, 1864, to March 3, 1865.

Koontz, William H., was born at Somerset, Pennsylvania, July 15, 1830; received a public-school education; studied and practised law; was district-attorney of Somerset County in 1854, 1855, and 1856; was clerk and prothonotary for the courts of Somerset County in 1861, 1862, and 1863; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,236 votes against 11,165 votes for Coffroth, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,589 votes against 12,964 votes for Sharpe, Democrat, serving from July 18, 1866, to March 3, 1869.

Krebs, Jacob, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; resided at Orwigsburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of Henry Wilson, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1826, to March 3, 1827.

Kremer, George, was born in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, in 1775; received a public-school education; resided at Lewisburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829.

Kuhns, Joseph H., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Greensburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,745 votes against 4,688 votes for Snodgrass, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 5,959 votes against 7,968 votes for Drum, Democrat.

Kunkel, Jacob M., was born at Frederick, Maryland, July 23, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1843; studied law with Francis Thomas; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice at Frederick; was elected to the State Senate in 1850, but the change in the State Constitution abridged his term; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,376 votes against 8,208 votes for H. W. Hoffman, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,840 votes against 8,716 votes for H. W. Hoffman, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate to the Loyalists' Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; died at Frederick, Maryland, after a protracted illness, April 9, 1870.

Kunkel, John C., was born in Pennsylvania; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Harrisburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,500 votes against 6,040 votes for Eyer, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,227 votes against 7,360 votes for Eyer, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Kurtz, William H., was born at York, Pennsylvania, where he resided; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,765 votes against 5,372 votes for Smyser, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 9,523 votes against 7,306 votes for Biddle, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Kuykendall, Andrew Z., was born in Gallatin County, Illinois, March 3, 1815; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Vienna; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1842-1846, and of the State Senate 1850-1862; entered the Union army in 1861 as major of the Thirty-first Illinois Volunteers, and served until his health forced him to resign in 1862; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,742 votes against 10,750 votes for William J. Allen, Democrat, and serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Kyle, G. H., claimed to have been elected a representative from Arkansas in the Thirty-ninth Congress; his credentials were presented on the 20th of December, 1865, and were referred to the select Joint Committee on Reconstruction; a motion inviting him to occupy a seat in the hall of the House of Representatives was lost January 30, 1866.

Labranche, Alcée, was born at New Orleans, Louisiana; was appointed by President Van Buren chargé d'affaires to Texas, serving from March 7, 1837, to April 2, 1840, when he resigned; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Lacock, Abner, was born in Virginia in 1770; received a public-school education; removed to Pennsylvania, and settled in Beaver County; was a member, for several successive years, of the State Senate and of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, defeating A. Tannerhill, also a Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was an earnest supporter of the war against Great Britain, but an opponent of General Jackson; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1819; was president of the Pennsylvania and Ohio Canal Company; died at Freedom, Pennsylvania, April 12, 1837.

La Dow, George A., was born in Cayuga County, New York, March 18, 1828; removed with his parents to McHenry County, Illinois; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1850, and commenced practice in Wisconsin in 1851; was elected district-attorney in 1860; removed to Minnesota in 1862; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Minnesota in 1867; removed to Oregon in 1869; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Oregon in 1872; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, but died May 8, 1875, having never taken his seat.

Lafin, Addison H., was born at Lee, Massachusetts, October 24, 1823; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, in 1843; went to Herkimer County, New York, in 1849, and became largely interested in the manufacture of paper; was a member of the State Senate of New York in 1858 and 1859; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,441 votes against 12,704 votes for F. W. Hubbard, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 16,498 votes against 11,734 votes for Lansing, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,856 votes against 13,508 votes for Cornwall, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871; was appointed by President Grant naval officer of the port of New York.

Lahm, Samuel, was born at Leitersburg, Maryland, April 22, 1812; was educated by his own exertions, studying at Washington College, Pennsylvania; removed in March, 1835, to Indiana, where he studied law with Oliver H. Smith; was admitted to practice in 1836, and settled at Canton, Ohio, where he entered into partnership with A. W. Loomis, ex-representative in Congress; was appointed master in chancery 1837-1839; was elected prosecuting-attorney in 1838, and re-elected in 1840; was a member of the State Senate in 1842; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1844 which nominated Polk and Dallas; was defeated as a Democratic candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress by David A. Starkweather, Whig; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirtieth Congress as an Independent Democrat, receiving a majority of 206 over David A. Starkweather, Whig, and serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; held several commissions in the militia, attaining the rank of brigadier-general.

Lake, William A., was born in Maryland; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College, Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Maryland; was a member of the State House of Representatives; removed to Vicksburg, Mississippi; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 5,907 votes against 5,729 votes for Otho R. Singleton, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,130 votes against 6,279 votes for Otho R. Singleton, Democrat.

Lamar, Henry G., was born in Georgia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Macon; was a judge of the State Superior Court; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-first Congress as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was the president of the National anti Van Buren Convention which assembled at Milledgeville in 1836 and nominated White and Tyler.

Lamar, Lucius Q. C., was born in Putnam County, Georgia, September 17, 1825; was educated at Oxford, Georgia, and graduated at Emory College, Georgia, in 1845; studied law at Macon, Georgia, under the Hon. A. H. Chappell, and was admitted to the bar in 1847; moved to Oxford, Mississippi, in 1849; was elected adjunct professor of mathematics in the University of the State, and held the position as assistant to Dr. A. T. Bledsoe (editor of "The Southern Review"), which he resigned in 1850, and returned to Covington, Georgia, where he resumed the practice of law; was elected to the legislature of Georgia in 1853; in 1854 moved to his plantation in Lafayette County, Mississippi, and was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,818 votes against 2,738 votes for Alcorn, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,391 votes without opposition, serving from December 7, 1857, to January 12, 1861, when he retired from the House to take a seat in the Secession Convention of his State; in 1861 entered the Confederate army as lieutenant-colonel of the Nineteenth Regiment, and was promoted to the colonelcy; in 1863 was intrusted by President Davis with an important diplomatic mission to Russia; in 1866 was elected professor of political economy and social science in the University of Mississippi, and in 1867 was transferred to the professorship of law; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 9,679 votes against 4,954 votes for R. W. Flournoy, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi (to succeed James Lusk Alcorn, Independent), serving from March 4, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Lamb, Alfred W., was born in New York; received a public-school education; removed to Missouri, and settled at Hannibal; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,007 votes against 6,224 votes for Porter, Whig, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Lambert, John, was born in New Jersey in 1748; received an academical education; served in the State House of Representatives; was vice-president of the council and acting-governor in 1802 and 1803; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Ninth Congress, and was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 2, 1815; died at Amwell, New Jersey, February 4, 1823.

Lamison, Charles N., was born in Columbia County, Pennsylvania, in 1826; was educated at private schools and academies; became a student at law when seventeen years of age; was admitted to practice in Wooster, Wayne County, Ohio, and has practised since, except while in the army; was prosecuting-attorney for Allen County, Ohio, one year by appointment, and four years by elections; raised a company in 1861, and entered the Union army as its captain in the Twentieth Ohio Volunteers, of which regiment he was afterwards elected major, and served under Generals McClellan, Hill, and Rosecrans in West Virginia until the expiration of term of enlistment; was afterward major of the Eighty-first Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and resigned because of ill health in 1862; elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,993 votes against 8,894 votes for Clark, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,530 votes against 10,224 votes for S. Lybrand, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Lamport, William H., was born in Pittstown, New York, May 27, 1811; received a district-school education; has been a farmer; was elected supervisor of Gorham, New York, in 1848 and 1849; was elected sheriff of Ontario County in 1851; was elected a member of the Assembly of the State of New York in 1854; was elected trustee of the village of Canandaigua in 1866 and 1867, and president of the village; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,115 votes against 9,307 votes for Comstock, Democrat, and 70 for J. C. Jackson, Independent; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,885 votes against 9,730 votes for W. M.

White, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Lancaster, Columbia, removed to St. Helena, Washington Territory, where he filled several local offices; was elected a delegate from Washington Territory in the Thirty-third Congress, serving from April 12, 1854, to March 3, 1855.

Landers, Franklin, was born in Morgan County, Indiana, March 22, 1825; received a common-school education; was raised on a farm, and has since been engaged in agricultural pursuits; has been interested in the dry-goods trade since 1850, jobbing at Indianapolis since 1865, and also engaged in the pork-packing business at Indianapolis since 1873; was elected to the State Senate of Indiana 1860-1864; was a candidate for presidential elector in 1864 on the Democratic ticket headed by George B. McClellan; and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 16,977 votes against 16,411 votes for John Coburn, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Landers, George M., was born at Lenox, Massachusetts, February 22, 1813; received a public-school education; removed to Hartford County, Connecticut, in 1829, and engaged in hardware manufacturing; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851, 1867, and 1874, and of the State Senate in 1853, 1869, and 1873; was appointed State bank commissioner in 1874 for three years, and resigned in 1875; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,432 votes against 12,444 votes for Joseph R. Hawley, Republican, and 226 votes for Lyons, Prohibitionist; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,520 votes against 15,390 votes for Joseph R. Hawley, Republican, and 165 votes scattering, and serving from December 6, 1875.

Landrum, John M., was born in Edgefield District, South Carolina, July 3, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1842; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Shreveport, Louisiana; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,823 votes against 3,220 votes for Jones, Opposition, and serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Landry, J. Aristide, was born in Louisiana; resided at Donaldsonville; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,933 votes against 4,500 votes for Van Winder, Opposition, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Landy, James, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, October 13, 1813; received a public-school education; worked as a builder; studied law, but abandoned the profession, and devoted himself to mercantile pursuits; was a school commissioner; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,933 votes against 6,753 votes for Millward, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,834 votes against 6,977 votes for Verree, Union Republican.

Lane, Amos (father of James H. Lane), was born in the State of New York; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lawrenceburg, Indiana; was a member of the State legislature, and served one year as speaker; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 619 majority over Test, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating George H. Dunn, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by George H. Dunn, who received 1,034 majority; died at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, July 18, 1850.

Lane, Henry S., was born in Montgomery County, Kentucky, February 24, 1811; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in Indiana, and commenced practice at Crawfordsville; was elected a member of the State Senate in 1835; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Tilghman A. Howard, resigned) as a Republican, receiving 1,456 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1840, to March 3, 1843; served in the Mexican war as lieutenant-colonel of Indiana volunteers; contested the seat of J. H. Bright in the United-States Senate in 1850, but it was not given to him; was elected governor of Indiana in 1861, and was inaugurated, but resigned two days afterwards; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1867; was a delegate to the Chicago National Republican Convention of 1868, and to the Cincinnati National Republican Convention of 1876.

Lane, James Henry (son of Amos Lane), was born at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, June 22, 1814; received a public-school education; was for several years a member of the City Council of Lawrenceburg; served in the Mexican war; was lieutenant-governor of Indiana in 1849; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,783 votes against 7,780 votes for Farquhar, Whig, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; removed to Kansas, and was prominent in the disturbances there; was elected a United-States senator from Kansas as a Republican; and was re-elected, serving from July 4, 1861, to July 11, 1866, when he committed suicide by shooting himself near Fort Leavenworth.

Lane, Joseph (father of Lafayette Lane), was born in Buncombe County, North Carolina, December 14, 1801; received a public-school education; removed to Indiana; was for several successive years a member of the State legislature; served in the Mexican war as colonel of the Second Indiana Volunteers; was promoted to be brigadier-general and major-general by brevet; was appointed governor of Oregon Territory in August, 1848; was elected a delegate from Oregon Territory in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,664 votes against 308 votes for Wilson, Opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,529 votes against 2,950 votes for Skinner, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,178 votes against 3,943 votes for Gaines, American, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1857; was again elected governor for a short time in 1853; was elected a United-States senator from Oregon, serving from February 14, 1859, to March 3, 1861; had been nominated for Vice-President on the Breckinridge ticket in 1860.

Lane, Lafayette (son of Joseph Lane), was elected a representative from Oregon in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of George A. La Dow), receiving 9,373 votes against 9,106 votes for Warren, Republican, 837 votes for Whitney, Independent, and 345 votes for Dimick, Temperance, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,239 votes against 15,347 votes for Richard Williams, Republican.

Langdon, Charles C., was born at the North; received an academic education; removed to Alabama, and engaged in mercantile pursuits in Perry County; removed to Mobile, where he became proprietor and editor of "The Mobile Advertiser," a Whig newspaper; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1839, 1840, 1855, and 1861; was an unsuccessful Whig candidate for Congress in 1851; was elected mayor of Mobile; established large orchards, vineyards, and nurseries at Citronville, thirty miles north of Mobile; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-ninth Congress, but was denied a seat.

Langdon, Chauncey, was born in Vermont; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1787; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and afterwards of the State Council; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist on a general ticket, receiving 17,725 votes against 16,974 votes for Richard Skinner, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Langdon, John (brother of Woodbury Langdon), was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, June 25, 1741; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was active in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress 1775-1776; was Continental navy agent, and, by large personal sacrifices, equipped the brigade with which General Stark won the battle of Bennington; was repeatedly a member of the State House of Representatives, and several times its speaker; was again delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress 1783; was president of New Hampshire in 1785; was a delegate from New Hampshire to the Convention that framed the Federal Constitution in 1787; was governor of New Hampshire in 1788; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1801; was chosen president of the Senate, in order that the electoral votes for President of the United States might be counted (so a president of the Senate had a legal existence before there was either a President or Vice-President of the United States); was again governor of New Hampshire 1805-1809 and 1810-1811; was offered the position of secretary of the navy by Jefferson in 1811, and declined it; was selected in 1812 by the Democratic representatives in Congress as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency, but declined; died at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, September 18, 1819.

Langdon, Woodbury (brother of John Langdon), was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1739; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress 1779-1780; was a member of the Executive Council 1781-1784; was a judge of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire in 1782 and 1786-1790; died at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, January 13, 1805.

Langworthy, Edward, was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress, serving 1777-1779.

Lanman, James, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, June 14, 1709; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1788; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1791, and commenced practice at Norwich; was State's attorney for New-London County 1814-1819; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1817; was a delegate to the First State Constitutional Convention in 1818; was a member of the State Senate in 1819; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was appointed by the governor of Connecticut to serve a second term, but the Senate declared that he was not entitled to a seat; was judge of the State Superior and Supreme Courts 1826-1829; was mayor of Norwich 1831-1834; was again a member of the State Senate in 1832; died at Norwich, Connecticut, August 7, 1841.

Lansing, Gerrit Y., was born at Albany, New York, in 1783; received a classical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1796-1801; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 250 majority over Ambrose Spencer; was re-elected to the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; was chancellor of the regents of the State University 1842-1849; died at Albany January 3, 1862.

Lansing, John, was born at Albany, New York; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1784-1788; was a delegate from New York to the Convention that framed the Federal Constitution; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives.

Lansing, William E., was born at Sullivan, New York, in 1822; received an academic education; studied law at Utica, and commenced practice at Chittenango in 1845; was elected district-attorney of Madison County in 1848, and served three years; was elected clerk of Madison County in 1857; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,253 votes against 8,682 votes for Chapman, Democrat; was again elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,450 votes against 9,780 votes for Shoecraft, Democrat, and 593 votes for Calkins, Temperance candidate; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,410 votes against 10,841 votes for H. A. Foster, Democrat.

Lapham, Elbridge G., was born at Farmington, New York, October 18, 1814; was brought up on a farm, attending the winter public schools, and was subsequently at the Canandaigua Academy; studied civil engineering, and was employed on the Michigan Southern Railroad Line; afterward studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice at Canandaigua; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of New York in 1867; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,814 votes against 9,770 votes for Pierpont, Democrat; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,726 votes against 11,852 votes for Harlow L. Comstock, Democrat, and 68 votes for A. J. Abbott, Prohibition, and serving from December 6, 1875.

Laporte, John, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Asylum; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Larned, Simon, was born in Massachusetts in 1751; received a public-school education; was for several years sheriff of Berkshire County; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighth Congress (in place of Thompson J. Skinner, resigned), serving from November 5, 1804, to March 3, 1805; died at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, November 9, 1817.

Larrabee, Charles H., was born at Rome, New York, November 9, 1820; when a lad, accompanied his father to Ohio, and was educated at Granville College; studied engineering, but subsequently devoted his attention to the law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Pontotoc, Mississippi; removed in 1844 to Chicago, Illinois; edited "The Democratic Advocate;" was city-attorney of Chicago from March 10, 1846, to March 12, 1847; removed to Horicon, Wisconsin, and was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in December, 1847; was judge of the Third Judicial Circuit of Wisconsin and of the Supreme Court of that State from August 7, 1848, to his resignation in August, 1858; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 23,905 votes against 23,011 votes for Billingshurst, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 28,983 votes against 34,002 votes for A. S. Sloan, Republican; entered the Union army April 17, 1861; raised Company C, First Wisconsin Volunteers; declined the captaincy, but accepted a lieutenant's commission April 25, 1861; was appointed major of the Fifth Wisconsin Volunteers May 28, 1861; served in the Army of the Potomac through the Peninsula campaign under General McClellan; was appointed colonel of the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin Volunteers August 22, 1862; served in the Army of the Tennessee and of the Cumberland under Generals Buell and Rosecrans; resigned September, 1863, and entered the invalid corps; removed to Seattle, Washington Territory.

La Sere, Emile, was born in Louisiana; received a liberal education; resided at New Orleans; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-ninth Congress (in place of John Slidell, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 2,813 votes against 1,613 votes for Montegu, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 3,295 votes against 2,569 votes for Jackson, Whig, serving from January 20, 1846, to March 3, 1851.

Lash, Israel G., was born at Bethania, North Carolina, August 18, 1810; worked on the farm until 1830, then became a merchant and manufacturer, and in 1847 a banker at Salem; he was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,525 votes against 11,123 votes for Brown, Democrat.

Latham, George R., was born in Prince William County, Virginia, March 9, 1832; received a public-school education; studied law while teaching school; was admitted to the bar in 1859, and commenced practice at Grafton, West Virginia; edited a campaign newspaper at Grafton in 1860; entered the Union army in 1861, and was made captain of the Second Virginia Infantry; was elected a representative from West Virginia to the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving a majority of the votes cast at every polling-place in the district over W. B. Zinn, Democrat; was appointed by President Johnson, in February, 1867, consul at Melbourne, Australia, and served until 1870, when he returned; was superintendent of public schools for Upshur County, West Virginia, from September 1, 1875, to August 31, 1877.

Latham, Milton S., was born at Columbus, Ohio, May 23, 1827; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in 1845; removed to Russell County, Alabama, where he taught school, and studied law with Judge Heydenfeldt; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and appointed clerk of the Circuit Court; was an unsuccessful candidate for solicitor of the ninth circuit in 1849; removed to California, where he was appointed clerk of the Recorder's Court of San Francisco in 1850, and district-attorney for the Sacramento District in 1851; was elected a representative from California to the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, receiving an average majority of 4,902, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; declined a re-election; was collector of the port of San Francisco 1855-1857; was elected governor of California in 1859 as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 30,957 over Curry, anti-Lecompton Democrat, and 52,145 over Stanford, Republican, and was inaugurated in January, 1860; three days afterwards he was elected United-States senator (in place of David C. Broderick, deceased), serving from March 5, 1860, until March 4, 1865; after the expiration of his term he returned to San Francisco, and engaged in business, and was president of the Bank of California.

Lathrop, Samuel, was born in Hampden County, Massachusetts, in 1771; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1792; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at West Springfield; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1827; was for ten successive years a member of the State Senate, and its president in 1829 and 1830; died at West Springfield July 11, 1846.

Lathrop, William, was born in Genesee County, New York, April 17, 1825; received a public-school education; removed to Illinois; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and practised at Rockford; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,241 votes against 8,149 votes for John F. Farnsworth, Democrat, and 5,991 votes for S. A. Hurlbut, Independent Republican, and serving from October 15, 1877.

Lattimer, Henry, was born at Newport, Delaware, April 24, 1752; received a classical education; studied medicine at Philadelphia and at Edinburgh; returned home, and practised; served in the Revolutionary army as surgeon of the flying hospital; resumed practice after peace was declared; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Third Congress as a Federalist, serving from February 14, 1794, to February 28, 1795, when he took his seat as a United-States senator from Delaware (having been elected in place of George Read, resigned, Kensey Johns not having been admitted), serving until March 3, 1801; died at Philadelphia December 19, 1819.

Lattimore, William, was born at Norfolk, Virginia, February 9, 1774; received a public-school education; studied medicine, and removed to Mississippi, where he commenced practice; was elected a delegate from Mississippi Territory in the Eighth Congress, and re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; was again elected a delegate to the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1813, to March 3, 1817; was a delegate to the First Constitutional Convention of Mississippi; died April 3, 1843.

Laurens, Henry, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1723; was sent to England to acquire a thorough business education, and, on his return home, engaged in mercantile pursuits; served in a campaign against the Cherokee Indians; visited Europe in 1771 to superintend the education of his sons, and returned in 1774; was president of the Charleston Committee of Safety and of the Provincial Congress; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1777-1780, serving as president thereof November 1, 1777-December 10, 1778; was elected by the Continental Congress, October 21, 1779, minister to Holland; was captured on his voyage thither by the British, carried to London, and imprisoned in the Tower for nearly fifteen months; was appointed by Congress, June 15, 1781, one of the commissioners to negotiate a treaty of peace with Great Britain, and signed the preliminary treaty at Paris November 30, 1782; his health having been affected by his imprisonment, he retired to his plantation on his return to South Carolina, and engaged in agricultural pursuits until he died, December 8, 1792, when his remains were cremated in obedience to an injunction in his will. Some of his papers on diplomatic and political questions have been published in the collections of the South-Carolina Historical Society.

Law, John (son of Lyman Law, grandson of Richard Law and of Amasa Learned), was born at New London, Connecticut, in 1796; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1814; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Vincennes, Indiana; was prosecuting-attorney for his judicial district; was a member of the State legislature in 1823; was judge of the Circuit Court for eight years; was appointed by President Van Buren receiver at the Vincennes land-office, serving 1838-1842; was appointed by President Pierce judge of the Court of Land Claims, serving 1855-1857; removed to Evansville, Indiana, and practised there; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,476 votes against 10,731 votes for De Bruler, Republican; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,963 votes against 9,583 votes for Johnson, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; declined a renomination; died at Evansville, Indiana, October 7, 1873.

Law, Lyman (son of Richard Law, and father of John Law), was born at New London, Connecticut, August 19, 1770; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1791; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1793, and commenced practice at New London; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and one year its speaker; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817; died at New London, Connecticut, February 3, 1842.

Law, Richard (father of Lyman Law, and grandfather of John Law), was born at Milford, Connecticut, March 17, 1733; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1751; studied law under Jared Ingersoll; was admitted to the bar at New Haven in 1754, and soon afterwards removed to New London, where he commenced practice; was appointed chief judge of the County Court, and in May, 1784, a judge of the Superior Court; was a member of the Council of the Assembly of Connecticut from May, 1776, until May, 1786, when an act was passed excluding judges; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Connecticut 1777-1778 and 1781-1784; was mayor of New London from the adoption of the city charter in 1784 until 1806; was a commissioner with Roger Sherman to codify the statute laws of Connecticut; was appointed chief judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut in May, 1786; was appointed by President Washington United-States district-judge for the district of Connecticut, and held the position until he died at New London January 26, 1806.

Lawler, Joab, was born in North Carolina June 12, 1796; received a public-school education; studied theology; became a licensed preacher; removed to Mardisville, Alabama; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1826-1831; was a State senator 1831-1832; was receiver of public moneys for the Coosa Land District 1832-1835; was treasurer of the University of Alabama 1833-1836; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to May 8, 1838, when he died at Washington City.

Lawrence, Abbott, was born at Groton, Massachusetts, December 16, 1792; was educated at Groton Academy; went to Boston, where he became a clerk in the store of his brother, Amos Lawrence, in 1808, and a partner in 1814; made repeated visits to England to purchase goods; was active in securing the enactment of a protective tariff; was a member of the Boston common council in 1831; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, until March 3, 1837; declined a re-election to the Twenty-fifth Congress; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from December 1, 1839, until 1840, when he resigned; was a member of the North-east boundary commission in 1842; visited Europe in 1843-1844; was offered by President Taylor a seat in his cabinet as secretary of the navy, and then as secretary of the interior, but, having successively declined, was appointed minister to Great Britain August 20, 1849, and served until October, 1852; advocated the election of General Scott as President; founded the Lawrence Scientific School at Cambridge; and died at Boston, after a long sickness, August 18, 1855.

Lawrence, Cornelius Van Wyck, was born at Flushing, Long Island, February 28, 1791; received a public-school education; was reared on his father's farm; went to New-York City in 1812, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to May, 1834, when he resigned, having been elected mayor of the city of New York; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren and Johnson ticket in 1836; was president of a number of banks and insurance companies; retired from business in 1856 to Flushing, where he died February 20, 1861.

Lawrence, George V., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, 1818; received a public-school education; was engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the House of Representatives in the State legislature of Pennsylvania in 1844, 1847, 1858, and 1859; was a member of the State Senate in 1849, 1850, and 1851, and again in 1861, 1862, and 1863, serving the last term as its presiding officer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,727 votes against 10,112 votes for Jesse Lazear, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,391 votes against 11,853 votes for William Montgomery, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Lawrence, John, was born in Cornwall County, England, in 1750, and immigrated to New-York City in 1767; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1772, and commenced practice at New York; served throughout the Revolutionary war in the First New-York Regiment, and as aide-de-camp and judge-advocate on the staff of General McDougall; served as judge-advocate-general on the staff of General Washington, and on the court-martial before which Major André was tried and convicted; resumed his practice after peace was declared; was a delegate from New York in the Continental Congress 1785-1787; was a State senator in 1789; was elected a representative from New York in the First Congress, and was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was appointed by President Washington judge of the United-States Circuit Court; was elected a United-States senator from New York (in place of Rufus King, resigned), serving from December 8, 1796, to August, 1800, when he resigned, having served as president pro tempore of the Senate in December, 1798; died at New-York City November 7, 1810.

Lawrence, John W., was born at Flushing, Long Island; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1841-1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,132 votes against 4,935 votes for Cogswell, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Lawrence, Joseph, was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania, in 1788; removed when a child to Washington County; received a public-school education; was raised on a farm, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives for nine successive sessions, serving the last four as speaker; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was again a member of the State House of Representatives; was State treasurer of Pennsylvania; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to April 17, 1842; he was summoned home to attend the death-beds of a son and a daughter, and, when he returned to his post, brought with him the seeds of the malady which had robbed him of his children, and died at Washington City April 17, 1842.

Lawrence, Samuel, was born in the State of New York; resided at Johnson's Settlement; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1808-1809 and 1818; was elected a representative from

New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Lawrence, Sidney, was born in Vermont; received a public-school education; removed to Moira, Franklin County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Lawrence, William, was born at Washington, Ohio, September 2, 1814; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in 1835; became a farmer and a merchant; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1843; was a presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was a member of the State Senate 1856-1857; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,085 votes against 6,805 votes for Albright, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Lawrence, William, was born at Mount Pleasant, Ohio, June 26, 1819; graduated at Franklin College, Ohio, and afterward at the Cincinnati Law School; was a reporter for "The Columbus State Journal," and subsequently edited "The Logan Gazette" and "The Western Law Monthly;" was bankrupt commissioner for Logan County in 1842; was prosecuting-attorney for Logan County in 1845; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Ohio in 1846 and 1847; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1848 and 1853; was elected reporter of the Supreme Court of Ohio in 1851; was elected judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1850 for five years, re-elected in 1861, and resigned in 1864; was in the Union army in 1862 as colonel of the Eighty-fourth Ohio Volunteers; was appointed United-States judge in Florida in 1863; elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,242 votes against 9,578 votes for James F. McKinney, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,303 votes against 11,059 votes for McKinney, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,656 votes against 13,027 votes for Leedom, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,748 votes against 10,705 votes for J. J. Masson, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,756 votes against 10,378 votes for Pearson, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Lawrence, William T., was born at New York May 7, 1788; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; served in the war of 1812 as captain of volunteer artillery; removed to Cayutaville, New York, in 1823, and became a farmer; was county-judge of Cayuga County in 1838; was a delegate to several political conventions; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Lawson, John D., was born at Montgomery, New York, February 18, 1816; was educated at the high school of his native village; was a merchant in the city of New York, importing English and Continental goods for over twenty-five years, and retired from business in 1868; was a delegate to the National Republican Conventions of 1868 and 1872; declined public office until elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,305 votes against 9,395 votes for Charles P. Shaw, Liberal Republican and Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Lawyer, Thomas, was born at Cobleskill, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Lay, George W., was born in New York; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Batavia as a member of the firm of Merrill, Lay, & Soper; was a leader in the political movements based on the alleged abduction of William Morgan from Batavia by the Freemasons; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1840; was appointed by President Tyler chargé d'affaires to Sweden, serving May 12, 1842–October 29, 1845; was confined to his house from the effects of a paralytic stroke and other distressing maladies during the later years of his life, and died at Batavia, New York, October 28, 1860.

Lazear, Jesse, was born in Greene County, Pennsylvania, December 12, 1804; was reared on a farm, receiving a home education; was clerk in the office of the county recorder and register, and, when he became of age, was elected to that office; was cashier of the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank at Waynesburg 1832–1864; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,607 votes against 9,443 votes for Stewart, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 9,984 votes against 9,547 votes for Wallace, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; died in Baltimore County, Maryland, September 2, 1877.

Lea, Luke, was born in Surry County, North Carolina, January 26, 1782; received a public-school education; removed in 1790 with his father to Tennessee; was clerk of the State House of Representatives; served as an officer of volunteers under General Jackson in the Creek and the Seminole wars; was for many years cashier of the State Bank of Tennessee, and register of the State land-office; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, defeating Williams and Gillespie; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving 4,213 votes against 4,038 votes for Clowney, Nullifier, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was appointed by President Taylor Indian agent at Fort Leavenworth; and, while returning from a visit to the tribes connected with his agency, he was thrown from his horse and killed June 17, 1851.

Lea, Pryor, was born in Knox County, Tennessee, in 1794; received a classical education, graduating at Greenville College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Knoxville; served under General Jackson as an officer of volunteers in the Creek war in 1813; was clerk to the State legislature in 1816; was United-States attorney for the district of Tennessee in 1824; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, defeating Thomas D. Arnold, anti-Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 4,713 votes against 4,496 votes for Thomas D. Arnold, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-second Congress by Thomas D. Arnold, Whig; removed to Jackson, Mississippi, in 1837, and thence to Goliad, Texas, in 1847.

Leach, DeWitt C., was born at Clarence, New York, November 23, 1822; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849 and 1850; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was State librarian in 1855 and 1856; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,248 votes against 14,524 votes for Peck, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 16,135 votes against 14,916 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Leach, James M., was born in Randolph County, North Carolina; received a classical education; studied law, and practised the profession; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina, by re-elections, for ten years; was a presidential elector on the Fillmore ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,566 votes against 7,664 votes for Scales, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was a member of the Confederate Congress of 1864–1865; was elected to the State Senate of North Carolina twice after the war; was again elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Conservative, receiving 12,541 votes against 11,302 votes for W. L. Scott, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress by a majority of 258 votes over Judge Thomas Settle, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Leadbetter, Daniel P., was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Millersburg, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841.

Leake, Shelton F., was born in Albemarle County, Virginia, November 30, 1812; received a public-school education; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Charlottesville; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1842; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was a presidential elector in 1848 on the Cass and Butler ticket; was elected lieutenant-governor of Virginia in 1851; was defeated as a candidate for governor in 1854; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as an Independent Democrat, receiving 5,003 votes against 3,453 votes for P. Powell, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Leake, Walter, was born in Virginia; removed to Hind's County, Mississippi; was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi, serving from December 11, 1817, to 1820, when he resigned; was governor of Mississippi 1821–1825; died at Mount Salus, Mississippi, November 17, 1825.

Learned, Amasa, was born at Killingly, Connecticut, November 15, 1750; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1772; studied theology, and was licensed to preach, but soon turned his attention to politics; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Second Congress; was re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1795; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1818; was several years a member of the State House of Representatives; died at New London, Connecticut, May 4, 1825.

Leary, Cornelius L. L., was born at Baltimore, Maryland, October 22, 1813; was educated at St. Mary's College; removed to Louisville, Kentucky, in 1835, and returned to Baltimore in 1837; was a member of the Maryland House of Representatives in 1847; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and practised at Baltimore; was a presidential elector on the Fillmore and Donelson ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, receiving 6,702 votes against 6,200 votes for Preston, Peace candidate, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Leavenworth, Elias Warren, was born at Canaan, New York, December 26, 1803, and was raised at Great Barrington, Massachusetts; was prepared for college at the Hudson Academy; graduated at Yale College in 1824; commenced the study of law the same year with William Cullen Bryant at Great Barrington, and completed it at the Litchfield Law School in 1825–1826; removed to Syracuse in 1827, and practised law there until 1850; was president of the village of Syracuse in 1838–1840, 1846, and 1847; was supervisor of the town of Salina in 1839–1840, and mayor of the city in 1849 and 1859; was a member of the State legislature in 1850 and 1857; was secretary of state of New York in 1854-1855; was president of the Board of Quarantine Commissioners and also of the State Republican Convention in 1860; was elected a regent of the University, and appointed a commissioner under the convention with New Granada in 1861; was appointed president of the Board of Commissioners to locate the State Asylum for the Blind, and a trustee of the State Asylum for Idiots in 1865; was elected a trustee of Hamilton College in 1867; was appointed a constitutional commissioner in 1872; was president of the Syracuse Savings Bank, of the Gas-Light Company of Syracuse, of the Syracuse Water-Works Company, and of Oakwood Cemetery; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,949 votes against 11,153 votes for George F. Comstock, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Leavitt, Humphrey H., was born at Suffield, Connecticut, June, 1796; removed when a lad with his father to Ohio; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1816, and commenced practice at Steubenville; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1825 and 1826, and of the State Senate in 1827; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-first Congress (in place of John M. Goodenow, resigned) as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 6, 1830, to June 18, 1834, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Jackson judge of the United-States District Court for the District of Ohio.

Le Blond, Francis C., was born in Ohio; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Celina, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1851-1855, serving the last two years as speaker; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,561 votes against 6,202 votes for Gatch, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,048 votes against 8,957 votes for Moses B. Walker, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Lecompte, Joseph, was born in Woodford County, Kentucky; resided at New Castle; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Nineteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 2, 1833.

Lee, Arthur (brother of Francis Lightfoot Lee), was born at Stratford, Virginia, December 20, 1740; received a classical education at Eton, in England; studied medicine at the University of Edinburgh, graduating in 1765; travelled in Europe, and, returning to Virginia, commenced practice at Williamsburg; preferring the law, he went to London to study that profession in 1766, and was admitted to the bar in 1770; acted as agent for Massachusetts in England and France; was appointed the correspondent of Congress at London in November, 1775; was appointed a commissioner from Congress to France in September, 1776, and also a commissioner to Spain in May, 1777; returned to the United States in August, 1780; was a member of the Virginia House of Representatives in 1781; was a delegate from Virginia in the Continental Congress 1782-1785; was a member of the Treasury Board 1785-1789; retired to a farm on the banks of the Rappahannock River, Virginia, where he died December 14, 1792. His "Life and Correspondence" was published by his grand-nephew, R. H. Lee, in 1829.

Lee, Francis Lightfoot (brother of Richard Henry Lee), was born at Stratford, Virginia, October 14, 1734; received a classical education under the direction of Rev. Mr. Craig; was a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses 1765-1772; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1775-1779; was a member of the State Senate; died at Richmond, Virginia, April 3, 1797.

Lee, Gideon, was born at Amherst, Massachusetts, in 1777; received a public-school education; learned the shoemaker's trade at Northampton; removed to New York, where he entered into business as a tanner, and dealer in leather; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822; was an alderman of the city of New York in 1828; was mayor of the city of New York in 1833; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 10,087 votes against 8,920 votes for James Monroe, and 3,577 votes for C. G. Ferris, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; removed in 1838 to Geneva, New York, and died there August 21, 1841.

Lee, Henry, was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, January 29, 1756; received a classical education; graduated at Princeton College 1754; entered the Revolutionary army in 1776 as a captain of light horse, and served until after the surrender at Yorktown in 1781; was chosen a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1786; was a member of the Virginia Convention of 1798 on the adoption of the Federal Constitution, which he advocated; was governor of Virginia 1792-1795; was appointed by General Washington to command the Virginia forces called out to suppress the Whiskey Insurrection; was elected to the Sixth Congress as a Federalist, and served from December 2, 1799, until March 3, 1801, when he retired to private life; becoming involved, he was imprisoned for debt in 1809, and, while in jail, wrote "Memoirs of the Southern Campaign;" while aiding in the defence of the Baltimore "Federal Republican" against the attack of a political mob in 1812, he was so severely injured that he never recovered; a visit to the West Indies failed to restore his health, and, after his return, he died at Cumberland Island March 25, 1818.

Lee, Henry B., was born at New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, but died before taking his seat, at New York, February 18, 1817.

Lee, John, was born in Maryland; resided at Petersburg; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eighteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 52 majority over the Democratic candidate, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Lee, Joshua, was born in New York; resided at Pen Yan; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837.

Lee, M. Lindley, was born at Minisink, New York, May 29, 1805; was reared on a farm; by his own industry received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1827; studied medicine, graduating from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Western New York in 1830; practised medicine at Fulton, Orange County; was postmaster at Fulton 1840-1844; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846 and 1847; was State commissioner of loans 1847-1850; was elected State senator in 1865; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,450 votes against 7,425 votes for Tyler, Democrat, and 1,065 for Perry, American, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Lee, Richard Bland, was born in Virginia in 1762; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second and Third Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1795; died March 12, 1827.

Lee, Richard Henry, was born at Stratford, Virginia, January 20, 1732; was sent to England to receive his education at Wakefield Academy, Yorkshire, and returned in 1751; tendered his services to General Braddock as captain of rangers in 1755, but they were declined; was chosen a delegate to the House of Burgesses in 1757, and took an active part in Revolutionary movements; was a member of the First Congress in 1774, and drew up the most important documents adopted; introduced a motion June 7, 1776, to declare independence, and, when it was adopted, would have been the chairman of the committee appointed to draw up the declaration had not illness in his family called him home, when Mr. Jefferson was substituted; was re-elected to Congress in 1778, but retired in 1780, and declined being again elected until 1784, serving meanwhile in the State legislature, and, as colonel of the militia of his county, repelled the invading Britons; was unanimously chosen president of Congress in 1784, but retired at the end of the year, and in 1796 was again elected a member of the General Assembly; was a member of the Virginia Convention of 1788 on the adoption of the Federal Constitution; was appointed one of the senators from Virginia in the First Congress; took his seat April 6, 1789; was chosen president pro tempore, and resigned on account of ill health in the fall of 1792; died at Chantilly, Virginia, June 19, 1794.

Lee, Silas, was born in Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1793, 1797, and 1798; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixth and Seventh Congresses as a Federalist, serving from December 2, 1799, to 1802, when he resigned; was judge of probate 1805-1814; was chief judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was United-States district-attorney; died in 1814.

Lee, Thomas, was born in New Jersey; resided at Port Elizabeth; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Lee, Thomas Sim, was born in Frederick County, Virginia, in 1744; received a thorough education from private tutors; removed to Maryland; held several local offices; was governor of Maryland 1779-1783; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1783-1784; was a delegate to the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution; was again governor of Maryland 1792-1794; was elected United-States senator from Maryland in 1794, but declined; died at Needwood, Frederick County, Virginia, November 9, 1819.

Leet, Isaac, was born at Washington, Pennsylvania, in 1802; received an academic education; was a member of the State Senate for four years; held at different periods of his life the offices of deputy State's attorney and county treasurer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,500 votes against 3,483 votes for Joseph Lawrence, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress by Joseph Lawrence, Whig, who did not live to take his seat; died at Washington, Pennsylvania, June 10, 1844.

Lefever, Joseph, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813.

Lefferts, John, was born at Brooklyn, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1821; was a member of the State Senate 1822-1825; died at Brooklyn May 7, 1841.

Leffler, Isaac, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, November, 1788; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wheeling, Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1817-1825; was a member of the State Board of Public Works 1827; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twentieth Congress, receiving 792 votes against 378 votes for Johnson, and 118 votes for Haymond, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; was again a member of the Virginia House of Representatives in 1832; removed to Wisconsin in 1835; was a member of the Wisconsin House of Representatives in 1837 and 1838, serving the last year as speaker; removed to Iowa in 1839; was a member of the Iowa House of Representatives; was marshal of Iowa in 1843; was appointed register of the land-office at Stillwater in 1849, but declined; was appointed receiver at the land-office at Stillwater in 1852, and served until 1857.

Leffler, Shepherd, was born in Pennsylvania; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, but removed to Burlington, Iowa, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,159 votes against 4,873 votes for McKnight, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,789 votes against 5,398 votes for Davis, Whig, serving from December 29, 1846, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor of Iowa in 1875.

Leftwich, Jabez, was born in Bedford County, Virginia; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 681 majority over Caloway; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 216 majority over N. H. Claiborne, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; was defeated as a candidate for the Nineteenth Congress by N. H. Claiborne.

Leftwich, John W., was born in Bedford County, Virginia, September 7, 1826; received a public-school education; studied medicine at the Philadelphia Medical College, graduating in 1850; removed to Memphis, Tennessee, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Conservative, receiving 1,368 votes against 525 votes for Saunders, and serving from July 25, 1866, to March 3, 1867; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at New York in 1868; died at Lynchburg, Virginia, in June, 1870.

Legare, Hugh Swinton, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, January 2, 1797; received a liberal education, graduating at the College of South Carolina in 1814; studied law; went abroad, when he attended lectures on jurisprudence at Paris and Edinburgh; was admitted to the bar at Charleston in 1822, and practised there; was an anti-nullification member of the Lower House of the legislature of South Carolina in 1820-1822, 1824-1830; was attorney-general of South Carolina in 1830-1832; was the principal contributor to "The Southern Review" 1827-1832; was chargé d'affaires at Brussels 1832-1836; returned home, and was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving a small majority over Henry L. Pinckney, Nullifier; was an unsuccessful Union candidate against S. E. Holmes for re-election to the Thirty-sixth Congress; resumed practice; contributed to "The New-York Review;" was appointed attorney-general of the United States September 13, 1841; and died suddenly at Boston, where he had gone with the President to attend a celebration of the battle of Bunker Hill, June 20, 1843.

Lehman, William E., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 21, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Philadelphia; visited Europe; was appointed by President Polk an examiner of post-offices in Pennsylvania and New York; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, defeating Butler, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was a United-States provost-marshal 1863-1865.

Leib, Michael, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1759; received a public-school education; studied medicine, and practised at Philadelphia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,111 votes against 847 votes for Anthony Morris, Federalist; was re-elected to the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1799, to 1806, when he resigned; was a presidential elector on the Madison and Clinton ticket in 1808; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania (in place of Samuel Maclay, resigned), serving from January 19, 1809, to 1814, when he resigned, having been appointed postmaster of Philadelphia; was again a member of the State House of Representatives; died at Philadelphia December 28, 1822.

Leib, Owen D., was born at Schuylkill, Pennsylvania; received a classical education; studied medicine, and practised at Catawissa, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirtieth Congress by Chester Butler, Whig; died at Catawissa, Pennsylvania, June 17, 1848.

Leidy, Paul, was born at Hemlock, Pennsylvania, November 21, 1813; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; was apprenticed to the tailor's trade; taught school, studying law at the same time; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Danville, Pennsylvania; was district-attorney for his judicial district for five years; was county superintendent of schools; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving a large majority over Smith B. Thompson, Whig, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Leigh, Benjamin Watkins, was born in Chesterfield County, Virginia, June 18, 1781; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1802; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1802; commenced practice at Petersburg, and removed in 1813 to Richmond, Virginia; was a member of the State legislature, and a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1830-1831; was for twelve years official reporter of the State Court of Appeals; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia in 1834 as a Whig (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of William C. Rives, Democrat, who had declined to obey the instructions of the legislature), and was re-elected at the next session of the legislature for six years, defeating Mr. Rives by four votes; in 1836 the political complexion of the legislature of Virginia had changed; Mr. Leigh resigned because he could not obey the instructions given him, and Mr. Rives was again elected to fill the vacancy thus created; Mr. Leigh served from March 5, 1834, to July 4, 1836, and retired to private life, dying at Richmond, Virginia, February 2, 1849. He published twelve volumes of Virginia Reports 1829-1841.

Leiper, George C., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1786; received a public-school education; engaged in quarrying stone; built in 1809 the first railroad on the American continent from his quarries in Delaware County to Ridley Creek, a distance of one mile; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; died at Leipidia, Pennsylvania, November 17, 1868.

Leiter, Benjamin F., was born at Leitersburg, Maryland, October 13, 1813; received a home education; taught school 1830-1834; removed to Ohio, where he taught school and studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Canton; was a member of the State legislature of Ohio in 1848 and 1849, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,738 votes against 5,023 votes for Spalding, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,394 votes against 6,799 votes for Lahm, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Le Moyne, J. V., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1828; received a classical education, graduating from Washington College in 1847; studied law at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and was admitted to the bar there in 1852; removed immediately to Chicago, and has practised law there ever since, never holding any public office; was nominated for Congress in 1872 by the Liberals, and was defeated by C. B. Farwell, Republican, by a 240 majority; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 106 majority over Charles B. Farwell, Republican, serving from May 6, 1876, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,435 votes against 11,843 votes for L. Bretans, Republican.

Lent, James, was born at Newtown, New York; engaged in mercantile pursuits at New-York City, and visited India and China; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to February 20, 1833, when he died, after a short but exceedingly severe illness, at Washington City.

Leonard, George, was born at Norton, Massachusetts, July 4, 1729; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1748; was appointed by Governor Shirley register of probate in 1748; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in his native town, rather as an amusement than an occupation, so large was his estate; was a member of the Provincial House of Representatives, a Provincial councillor, and judge of probate; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, until March 3, 1791; and was again elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, until March 3, 1797; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was again a member of the State House of Representatives; was a State senator; died at Raynham, Massachusetts, July 26, 1819.

Leonard, Moses G., was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,282 votes against 4,389 votes for Scales, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,009 votes against 6,214 votes for Thomas M. Woodruff, Native American; was for several years commissioner of emigration at New-York City.

Leonard, Stephen B., was born in New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by Abraham P. Grant; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,152 votes against 8,725 votes for John Miller, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Leonards, John Edward, was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, September 22, 1845; was educated in early youth at Phillips Exeter Academy,

New Hampshire; graduated at Harvard College in 1867; studied the civil law in Germany, and received the degree of doctor of laws from the University at Heidelberg; settled in Louisiana upon the completion of his studies, and began the practice of the law in the Thirteenth Judicial District; was for some time district attorney; was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Louisiana; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,881 votes against 9,212 votes for W. W. Farmer, Democrat, according to the certificate of Governor Kellogg, and 14,423 votes against 13,016 votes for W. W. Farmer, according to the certificate of Governor Nicholls; visited Cuba to see a young lady to whom he had become attached, and was seized by the yellow-fever, of which he died at Havana March 15, 1878. His remains were brought to the United States, and interred in Chester County, Pennsylvania.

Letcher, John, was born at Lexington, Rockbridge County, Virginia, March 28, 1813; received a classical education, graduating at Randolph Macon College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Lexington, Virginia; established and edited "The Valley Star;" was a presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving no opposition; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1859; was governor of Virginia 1860-1864.

Letcher, Robert P., was born in Goochland County, Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lancaster, Kentucky; was for several successive years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving one year as speaker; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighteenth Congress as a Clay Democrat, receiving 288 majority; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, defeating John Speed Smith; was re-elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,055 votes against 3,044 votes for Thomas P. Moore, Democrat, who, however, claimed to have received 55 more votes, and obtained a certificate of election, but the House, after prolonged discussion, gave the seat to Mr. Letcher, who served from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1835; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Granger ticket in 1836; was governor of Kentucky 1840-1844; was appointed by President Fillmore minister plenipotentiary to Mexico, serving from August 9, 1849, until August 3, 1852; died at Frankfort, Kentucky, January 24, 1861.

Levin, Lewis C., was born at Charleston, South Carolina, November 10, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, South Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised successively in Maryland, Louisiana, Kentucky, and Pennsylvania, finally locating at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Native American; was re-elected to the Thirtieth and Thirty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851.

Levy, David, was born at St. Thomas in 1811, but was taken by his father to Virginia early in life, and received a classical education; removed to Florida in 1824; studied law, and engaged in planting; was elected a delegate from Florida Territory in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; changed his name to David Levy Yulee; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was a United-States senator from Florida from December 1, 1845, until he withdrew in 1860 to follow the fortunes of the Southern Confederacy; was confined in Fort Pulaski as a prisoner of state in 1865.

Levy, William M., was born in Isle of Wight County, Virginia, October 30, 1827; received a classical and collegiate education; studied law in Virginia, and was admitted to the bar; served in the First Virginia Volunteers in the Mexican war; removed to Louisiana in 1852, and engaged in the practice of law; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Louisiana in 1859-1861; was a presidential elector on the Breckinridge and Lane ticket in 1860; served in the Confederate army, participating in the engagements on the Peninsula in 1861 and 1862, and thereafter, until the close of the war, in the adjutant and inspector general's department on the staff of General Dick Taylor; and was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,785 votes against 7,593 votes for George L. Smith, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Lewis, Abner, was born in Chautauqua County, New York; received a public-school education; resided at Panama; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1838 and 1839; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,299 votes against 3,446 votes for Campbell, Democrat, and 2,114 votes for Allen, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Lewis, Barbour, was born at Alburg, Vermont, in 1824; received his early education in common schools in Canada, Vermont, and New York; graduated at Illinois College, at Jacksonville, Illinois, in 1846; was a teacher for some years at Mobile, Alabama, and then studied law at the law-schools at Albany, New York, and at Cambridge, Massachusetts, and is a lawyer by profession; entered the Union army as a captain of volunteers August 1, 1861, and served until November, 1864; in March, 1863, was appointed judge for the district of Memphis by the military authorities, and served as such during 1863 and 1864; in March, 1867, was appointed by Governor Brownlow president of the Board of County Commissioners of Shelby County, and held the office until November, 1869; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,784 votes against 10,541 votes for L. C. Haines, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Lewis, Burwell Boykin, was born at Montgomery, Alabama, July 7, 1838; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Alabama in 1857; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1859, and commenced practice at Montevallo; was a presidential elector in 1868 on the Seymour and Blair ticket; served in the Confederate army as an officer in the Second Alabama Cavalry; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Alabama in 1870-1872; removed to Tuscaloosa in 1872; was largely interested in developing the mineral resources of Alabama, and is the principal owner of the Central Iron Works at Helena; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 106,023 votes against 90,938 votes for A. White, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Lewis, Charles S., was born at Clarksburg, Virginia; received a thorough English education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-third Congress (in place of John F. Snodgrass, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1854, to March 3, 1855.

Lewis, Dixon Hall, was born in Dinwiddie County, Virginia, August 10, 1802; his family removed when he was young to Hancock County, Georgia; he received a classical education at Mount-Zion Academy, and graduated at the University of South Carolina; removing to Antauga County, Alabama, in 1822. he studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; when twenty-one years of age he weighed three hundred and thirty pounds, and subsequently weighed four hundred and thirty pounds, which made it necessary for him to pay for two seats in the stage-coaches, and to have bedsteads and chairs made for his especial use; he was a member of the State House of Representatives of Alabama in 1825-1827; he was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-first Congress as a State-rights Democrat; was successively re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, and Twenty-eighth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, until he was appointed United-States senator in 1844 (to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of W. R. King, appointed minister to France); and was elected senator in 1847, defeating W. R. King, Democrat, and A. F. Hopkins, Whig, serving from May 7, 1844, until his death, while on a visit to the city of New York, October 25, 1848.

Lewis, Francis, was born at Llandaff, Wales, March, 1713; received an education at Westminster School, London; immigrated to North America in 1735, and established himself in mercantile pursuits at the city of New York; was an agent for supplying the British troops in the expedition against Canada in 1756; was taken prisoner at Fort Oswego, and was sent to Quebec, and thence to France, as a prisoner of war; on his release he returned to New York, where he took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1776-1779; after a successful business career, his property was sacrificed to his patriotism; he died in comparative poverty at New York December 30, 1803.

Lewis, John F., was born near Port Republic, Virginia, March 1, 1818; was raised as a farmer, which occupation he followed; was elected in 1861 to the convention called for the purpose of determining whether Virginia should remain in the Union or cast her lot with the Gulf States, and was the only member of that body who refused to sign the ordinance of secession; was the Union candidate for Congress in the Sixth District in 1865, and was defeated by A. H. H. Stuart; was nominated by the "true Republican party" in 1869 as a candidate for lieutenant-governor on the ticket with Gilbert C. Walker, and was elected by about 20,000 majority, leading his ticket several thousand votes; was elected United-States senator from Virginia as a Republican in November, 1869; took his seat January 24, 1870, and served until March 3, 1875.

Lewis, Joseph, jun., was born in Virginia in 1772; resided at Clifton; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1817; died at Clifton, Virginia, March 30, 1834.

Lewis, Joseph H., was born in Barren County, Kentucky, October 29, 1824; graduated in 1843 at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky; studied and practised law; was a member of the House of Representatives of Kentucky in 1850-1851, 1851-1852, 1852-1853, and 1869-1870; and was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-first Congress (in place of J. S. Golladay, resigned) in April, 1870, as a Democrat, defeating Lowry, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 7,314 votes against 5,657 votes for D. R. Carr, Republican, serving from May 10, 1870, to March 3, 1873.

Lewis, Thomas, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 5, 1804, when (his election having been successfully contested by Andrew Moore) he was superseded.

Lewis, William J., was born near Lynchburg, Virginia; received a public-school education; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat without opposition, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was a zealous friend of internal improvement; and died near Lynchburg, Virginia, November 1, 1828.

L'Hommedieu, Ezra, was born at Southold, Long Island, New York, August 30, 1724; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1744; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at New-York City; was a delegate to the Provincial Congress 1775-1778; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1777-1783; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1779, 1781, 1783, 1787, and 1788; was a State senator 1784-1792 and 1794-1809; was a regent of the University of the State of New York 1787-1811; died at Southold, Long Island, September 28, 1811.

Ligon, Robert F., was born in Clarke County, Georgia; received an academic education; removed to Alabama before his majority; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and is now a practising lawyer and planter; was engaged in the war with Mexico as captain of a volunteer company; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849-1850, and of the State Senate in 1860, and re-elected in 1863; served in the Confederate army as captain; was lieutenant-governor of Alabama in 1874; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,107 votes against 6,821 votes for D. B. Booth, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Ligon, Thomas Watkins, was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia; studied law at the Yale Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Baltimore; removed to Ellicott's Mills, and thence to Elkton; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was governor of Maryland 1854-1858.

Lilly, Samuel, was born in New York; received a classical education; studied medicine, and practised at Lambertville; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,193 votes against 8,315 votes for Brown, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Lincoln, Abraham, was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, February 12, 1809; his parents removed in 1816 to Pigeon Creek, Indiana; worked on his father's farm, receiving some education at the village school; when nineteen years of age made a trip to New Orleans as a boatman; removed to Macon County, Illinois, in 1830; was a private in the thirty-days' service in the Black Hawk war, and was elected captain when the call for sixty days' service was made; in 1832 was appointed postmaster at New Salem; was a land-surveyor, and began to study law; was a member of the State legislature 1834-1841; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and commenced practice at Springfield in 1837; canvassed the State of Illinois for Henry Clay in 1844; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,340 votes against 4,829 votes for Cartwright, Democrat, and 249 votes for Walcott, Abolitionist, and serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; applied for appointment as commissioner of the General Land Office; canvassed Illinois in 1858 as candidate for United-States senator in opposition to Stephen A. Douglas, who was elected by the legislature, although the popular vote gave Lincoln a majority of over 4,000; was elected President of the United States in 1860 as a Republican, receiving 180 electoral votes against 72 electoral votes for John C. Breckinridge, 39 electoral votes for John Bell, and 12 electoral votes for S. A. Douglas; was inaugurated March 4, 1861; issued the first call for troops April 15, 1861, and the proclamation of emancipation January 1, 1863; was re-elected President in 1864, receiving 212 electoral votes against 21 electoral votes for George B. McClellan; was assassinated by J. Wilkes Booth April 14, and died April 15, 1865.

Lincoln, Enoch (son of Levi Lincoln, and brother of Levi Lincoln), was born at Worcester, Massachusetts, December 28, 1788; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1807; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Salem; he soon removed to Worcester, thence to Fryeburg (now Maine), and thence to Paris (now Maine), where he located permanently; was elected a representative from a district in Massachusetts (now in Maine) in the Fifteenth Congress (in place of Albion K. Parris, resigned), and was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from November 16, 1818, to March 3, 1821; Maine became a State; was elected a representative from Maine in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to 1826, when he resigned, having been elected governor of Maine; served as governor until his death, which took place at Augusta, Maine (whether he had gone to attend the examination of a female academy), after three days' illness, October 8, 1826.

Lincoln, Levi (father of Enoch Lincoln and of Levi Lincoln), was born at Hingham, Massachusetts, May 15, 1749; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1772; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1774, and commenced practice at Worcester; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixth Congress (in place of Dwight Foster, elected senator) as a Whig, serving from February 6, 1801, to March 3, 1801.

Lincoln, Levi (son of Levi Lincoln, and brother of Enoch Lincoln), was born in Massachusetts October 25, 1782; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1802; studied law with his father; was admitted to the bar in 1805, and commenced practice; was a Democratic member of the State Senate in 1812, and of the State House of Representatives 1814-1822; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1820; was elected lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts in 1823; was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court in 1824; was elected governor of Massachusetts 1825-1834; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of John Davis, resigned) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,634 votes against 2,530 votes for other candidates; and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from March 5, 1834, to March 3, 1841; was collector of the port of Boston 1841; was again elected a member of the State Senate, and its president; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket; was the first mayor of Worcester in 1848; was a member of several antiquarian, historical, and agricultural societies; and died at Worcester, Massachusetts, May 29, 1863.

Lincoln, William S., was born in Newark Valley, New York, August 13, 1813; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits, and subsequently in the manufacture of leather; was postmaster of Newark Valley from 1838 to 1860; was elected a representative from New York in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,264 votes against 10,849 votes for McCormick, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Lindley, James J., was born at Mansfield, Ohio, January 1, 1822; was reared at Cynthia, Kentucky; received a classical education at Woodville College, Ohio; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Monticello, Missouri, in 1846; was elected circuit-attorney in 1848, and re-elected in 1852; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,828 votes against 6,674 votes for Jackson, anti-Benton Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,150 votes against 7,386 votes for Fournoy, anti-Benton Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; removed to Davenport, Iowa, and practised there.

Lindsey, Stephen D., was born at Norridge-wock, Maine, March 3, 1828; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in 1853; was clerk of the judicial courts in Somerset County 1857-1860; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856, and of the Senate in 1868-1870, and president of the Senate in 1869; was a delegate to the National Republican Conventions of 1860 and 1868; was a member of the Executive Council of Maine in 1874; was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,741 votes against 12,788 votes for Edward K. O'Brien, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Lindsley, William D., was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Sandusky, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,739 votes against 6,035 votes for Saddler, Whig, and 2,390 votes for Brinkerhoff, Free-Soiler, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,794 votes against 8,617 votes for John Sherman, Republican.

Linn, Archibald L., was born in New York in 1802; received a classical education, graduating at Union College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Schenectady; was elected mayor of Schenectady, and was re-elected; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,074 votes against 5,579 votes for John Cramer, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844; died at Grassfield, New York, October 10, 1857.

Linn, John, was born in New Jersey in 1764; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to January 5, 1821, when he died.

Linn, Lewis Fields (half-brother of Henry Dodge), was born near Louisville, Kentucky, November 5, 1776; was left an orphan when eleven years of age; received an academic education; studied medicine with Dr. Gault at Louisville; served in the war against Great Britain as surgeon in Colonel Henry Dodge's Mounted Rifle Volunteers; completed his medical studies at Philadelphia; was admitted to practice, and located at St. Genevieve, Missouri; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827; was appointed by President Jackson in 1832 a member of a commission to settle the old French land-claims in Missouri; was appointed United-States senator as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Colonel Alexander Buchner); was elected by the State legislature when it met, and was twice re-elected, serving from December 16, 1833, until his death at St. Genevieve, Missouri, October 3, 1843.

Litchfield, Elisha, was born at Canterbury, Connecticut, in 1795; received a public-school education; learned the trade of carpenter and joiner; removed to Pompey (now Delhi), New York; was appointed postmaster there, and justice of the peace; abandoned his trade, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State Assembly in 1819; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1825; was again elected to the State Assembly in 1832, 1833, 1834, and 1844, serving the last year as speaker; removed in 1838 to Cazenovia, New York, where he died August 4, 1859.

Little, Edward P., was born in Massachusetts in 1788; received a public-school education; served as a midshipman in the war of 1812 on board of a man-of-war commanded by his father, Captain George Little, U.S.N.; resided at Marshfield; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1829-1834 and 1835-1838; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-second Congress (in place of Orin Fowler, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from December 30, 1852, to March 3, 1853; was appointed by President Pierce collector of customs at Plymouth, Massachusetts, serving 1853-1857.

Little, Peter, was born at Petersburg, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was a mechanic; removed to Maryland, locating at Freedom; was elected from his workshop a representative from Maryland in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Moore, Federalist, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of William Pinkney, resigned); was re-elected to the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1816, to March 3, 1829; retired to rural life; died in Baltimore County, Maryland, February 5, 1830.

Littlefield, Nathaniel S., was born at Wells, Maine, September 20, 1804; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bridgeton; was a member of the State Senate in 1837-1839; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, defeating Zadoc Long, Whig, and Parris, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Cass Democrat, receiving 5,160 votes against 4,407 votes for Lincoln, Whig, and 1,438 votes for Fessenden, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1854.

Littlejohn, DeWitt C., was born at Bridge-water, New York, February 7, 1818; received an academical education; became engaged in the commerce of the lakes and canals, and in the manufacture of flour; was president of the village of Oswego, and, when it became a city, became a member of its board of aldermen, and was twice its mayor; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1853-1857, 1859-1861, serving the first five years as speaker; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,667 votes against 8,453 votes for Titus, Democrat, and serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1866, 1867, 1870, and 1871.

Livermore, Arthur (son of Samuel Livermore), was born at Londonderry, New Hampshire, July 26, 1776; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Concord and Chester; was a member of the State House of Representatives and of the State Senate; was a justice of the Superior Court 1799-1816, presiding as chief justice 1809-1813; was a presidential elector on the John Adams ticket in 1801; was elected a representative from New Hampshire to the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, and re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1821; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, until March 3, 1825; was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas 1825-1833; and died at Campton, New Hampshire, July 1, 1853.

Livermore, Edward St. Loe (son of Samuel Livermore), was born at Londonderry, New Hampshire, in 1752; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised succesively at Concord, Portsmouth, Newburyport, and Boston; was State solicitor for Rockingham County 1791-1793; was justice of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire 1797-1799; removed to Boston, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts to the Tenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, until March 3, 1811; and died at Concord, New Hampshire, September 22, 1832.

Livermore, Samuel (father of Arthur Livermore and Edgar St. Loe Livermore), was born at Waltham, Massachusetts, May 14, 1732 (old style); received a classical education, graduating at Nassau Hall, Princeton, in 1752; studied law with Hon. Edmund Trowbridge; was admitted to the bar in 1757, and the next year commenced practice at Portsmouth, New Hampshire; was a member of the General Court of that Province in 1768, 1769, and 1770; removed in 1775 to the town of Holderness, of which he was one of the original grantees, and the principal proprietor; was appointed king's attorney in 1769, and, after the change of government, was State's attorney for three years; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from February 7, 1780, until he resigned, June 21, 1782; was chief justice of the State Supreme Court 1782-1789; was again elected to the Continental Congress in November, 1784, and attended the session of that body in 1785, but did not resign his seat on the bench; he was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the First Congress, and re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was elected a United-States senator in 1793, serving as president of the Senate pro tempore during two sessions, and resigning on account of ill health in 1801; he died at Holderness May 18, 1803.

Livingston, Edward, was born at Claremont, Livingston Manor, New York, in 1764; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1781; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1785, and commenced practice at New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, receiving 1,734 votes against 1,559 votes for P. Livingston; was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1801; was United-States district-attorney March 27, 1801-July 25, 1803; was mayor of the city of New York 1801-1803; became a public defaulter in consequence of the dishonesty of a clerk, and removed to New Orleans in February, 1804; prepared a civil and criminal code for Louisiana; served as aide-de-camp to General Jackson at the battle of New Orleans January 8, 1815; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Eighteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat without opposition; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 290 majority over Foucher; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 316 majority, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-first Congress by Edward D. White; was installed in 1830 as general grand high priest of the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Freemasons; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana, serving from December 7, 1829, to May 24, 1831, when he resigned; was appointed by President Jackson secretary of state, serving from May 24, 1831, until May 29, 1833; was appointed minister plenipotentiary to France May 29, 1833, and asked for his passports that he might withdraw, under instructions from the President, April 28, 1835; he died at Rhinebeck, New York, May 23, 1836. He published "Judicial Opinions delivered in the Mayor's Court, New York," 1802, "Report to the Assembly of Louisiana of the Plan of the Penal Code" 1822, "System of Penal Law for Louisiana" 1826, and "System of Penal Law for the United States" 1828. "Reminiscences of Livingston," by A. Davezac, appeared in "The Democratic Review;" and C. H. Hunt published "Life of Livingston" in 1864.

Livingston, Henry Walter, was born in 1764; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New-York City; went to France in 1792 as secretary to Gouverneur Morris, minister plenipotentiary, and returned with him in 1794; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Columbia County; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, and re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; died at Linlithgow, New York, December 22, 1810.

Livingston, Philip, was born at Albany, New York, January 15, 1716; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1737; became a merchant at New-York City; was an alderman 1754-1758; was a member of the Provincial House of Representatives 1759-1769; was actively engaged in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1774-1778; was chosen president of the New-York Provincial Congress April 29, 1775, and was unanimously elected a member of the First State House of Representatives February 1, 1776; was a member of the State Senate; founded the professorship of divinity at Yale College; rendered great service to Columbia College, to the New-York Society Library, and to the New-York Chamber of Commerce; died while attending a session of the Continental Congress at York, Pennsylvania, June 12, 1778.

Livingston, Robert Le Roy, was born in New York; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1784; was elected a representative from New York in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, and was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress by 342 majority, serving from May 22, 1809, to May 6, 1812, when he resigned to accept a lieutenant-colonel's commission in the army of the United States given him by President Madison.

Livingston, Robert R., was born at New York November 27, 1747; received a classical education, graduating at King's College in 1765; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York; was appointed city recorder, and served 1773-1775; was a member of the Colonial Assembly 1775; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress, serving 1775-1777 and 1779-1781; was secretary of foreign affairs from August, 1781, to August, 1783; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in April, 1777; was chancellor of the State of New York 1777-1801, and, as such, administered the oath of office to Washington upon his inauguration as President; was minister plenipotentiary to France 1801-1804, and procured the cession of Louisiana; was president of the New-York State Agricultural Society and of the New-York Academy of Finance; died February 26, 1813. He published "Oration before the Cincinnati," "Address to the Society for Promoting the Arts," "Essays on Agriculture," "Essay on Sheep."

Livingston, Walter, was born in New York; was a delegate from New York in the Continental Congress 1784-1785.

Livingston, William, was born at Albany, New York, November 30, 1723; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1741; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised in New York and New Jersey; established and edited "The Independent Reflector" in 1752; removed to Elizabethtown, New Jersey, in 1773; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1774-1776; was made brigadier-general commanding the New-Jersey State troops in 1775; was governor of New Jersey 1776-1790; was a delegate to the convention which framed the Federal Constitution in 1787; declined the appointment of commissioner to superintend the erection of public buildings at the Federal capital, and that of minister to the Netherlands in 1787; died at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, July 25, 1790. He published "Digest of the Colony Laws"

1752, "Review of the Military Operations in North America," a defence of Governor Shirley 1757, and a number of poems and political pamphlets. A "Memoir of William Livingston," by Theodore Sedgewick, was published in 1832.

Lloyd, Edward, of Maryland, was a delegate to the Continental Congress from that State 1783-1784.

Lloyd, Edward, was born in Maryland in 1779; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Ninth Congress (in place of Joseph H. Nicholson, resigned); was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1806, to March 3, 1809; was governor of Maryland 1809-1811; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland, serving from December 6, 1819, to January, 1826, when he resigned on account of continued indisposition; was elected State senator, and president of the Senate, 1826-1831; died at Annapolis, Maryland, June 2, 1834.

Lloyd, James, was born in Maryland; received a classical education; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of John Henry, resigned), serving from January 11, 1798, to May 15, 1800, when he resigned.

Lloyd, James, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, in 1769; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1787; engaged in mercantile pursuits; visited Europe, residing a year at St. Petersburg; returning to Boston, was elected in 1800 a member of the State House of Representatives, and, after having been re-elected, he was elected to the State Senate; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts as a Federalist (in place of John Quincy Adams, resigned), serving from November 7, 1808, to 1813, when he resigned; was again elected a senator from Massachusetts (in place of Harrison Gray Otis, resigned), serving from December 2, 1822, to May 23, 1826, when he resigned; resided in Philadelphia the last years of his life; died at New York April 5, 1831.

Loan, Benjamin F., was born at Hardinsburg, Kentucky, October 4, 1819; received an academic education; studied and practised law; went to Missouri in 1838; served as brigadier-general in the Union army in the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-eighth Congress as an Emancipationist, receiving 5,572 votes against 4,554 votes for Bruce, Democrat, and 2,675 votes for Branch, Independent; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,346 votes against 1,774 votes for H. B. Branch, Independent, and 35 scattering; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Radical, receiving 10,942 votes against 3,980 votes for a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Locke, Francis (nephew of Matthew Locke), was born in Rowan County, North Carolina, October 31, 1766; studied and practised law; was elected a judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina in 1803, and resigned in 1814, when he was elected United-States senator; he never took his seat in the Senate, and resigned in 1815; died January 8, 1823.

Locke, John, was born at Hopkinton, Massachusetts, in 1764; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge in 1792; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1796, and commenced practice at Ashby; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1804, 1805, 1813, and 1823; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1820; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was a member of the State Senate in 1830; was a member of the Executive Council in 1831; removed to Lowell in 1837, and thence to Boston in 1849; died at Boston March 29, 1855.

Locke, Matthew (uncle of Francis Locke), was born in Rowan County, North Carolina, in 1730; was an early and devoted friend to the Revolution, and had at one time four sons in the Continental army, one of whom was killed by the British; was one of a commission selected by the people of North Carolina in 1771 to receive the fees of sheriffs and other Colonial officers; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1775; was a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of North Carolina in 1776; was elected a representative in the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, until March 3, 1797; was defeated as a candidate for the Sixth Congress by Archibald Henderson; died at Salisbury, North Carolina, September 7, 1801.

Lockhart, James, was born at Auburn, New York, February 13, 1806; removed to Indiana in 1832; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Evansville, Indiana; was elected prosecuting-attorney in 1841 and 1842; was judge of the Fourth Judicial District 1845-1851, when he resigned; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,173 votes against 7,847 votes for De Bruler, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; died at Evansville, Indiana, September 7, 1857.

Lockwood, Daniel N., was born at Hamburg, Erie County, New York, June 1, 1844; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1865; studied law; was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court in May, 1866, and has practised since at Buffalo; was elected district-attorney for Erie County in 1874 for the term of three years; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,125 votes against 19,716 votes for Elbridge G. Spaulding, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Lofland, James R., was born at Milford, Delaware, November 2, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at Delaware College in 1845; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and practised at Milford; was secretary of the Senate of the State of Delaware in 1849; was a member of the convention to revise the State Constitution in 1853; was secretary of state for the State of Delaware in 1855-1859; was appointed a paymaster in the army by President Lincoln in 1863, and resigned that position in 1867; and was elected a representative from Delaware in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,337 votes against 11,015 votes for A. W. Wright, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Logan, George, was born at Stanton, Pennsylvania, September 9, 1753; received a classical education; studied medicine abroad, graduating at the Edinburgh Medical School; travelled on the continent of Europe, and returned home in 1779; devoted himself to scientific agriculture; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; visited France as a self-constituted peace negotiator, and was successful, but Congress enacted a law making it a high misdemeanor for citizens of the United States to take part as individuals in diplomatic negotiations; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania (in place of Peter Muhlenberg, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1807; went to England in 1810 to again avert threatened hostilities, but was unsuccessful; died at Stanton, Pennsylvania, April 9, 1821. He published "Experiments on Gypsum," "The Rotation of Crops," and several pamphlets on agricultural subjects.

Logan, Henry, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Dillsburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 603 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Logan, John Alexander, was born in Jackson County, Illinois, February 9, 1826; received a public-school education; served in the Mexican war as adjutant of the First Illinois Infantry; studied law with his uncle, A. M. Jenkins, and at the University of Louisville; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice; was elected prosecuting-attorney for the Third Judicial District of Illinois in 1852; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1852-1856; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Douglas Democrat, receiving 15,878 votes against 2,796 votes for Phillips, Republican, and 144 votes scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 21,381 votes against 5,439 votes for Linegar, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to 1861, when he resigned to enter the Union army; was commissioned, in September, 1861, colonel of the Thirty-first Illinois Volunteers; was promoted to be brigadier-general in 1862, and as major-general in 1863, especially distinguishing himself at Belmont, Fort Donelson, Pittsburg Landing, Vicksburg, Chattanooga, Atlanta, and as commander of the Army of the Tennessee; was appointed by President Johnson to be minister to Mexico in 1865, but declined; was a delegate to the Soldiers' National Convention at Pittsburg in 1866; was elected congressman at large from Illinois in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 203,045 votes against 147,058 votes for Dickey, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Logan, William, the first white native of Kentucky, was born at Harrodsburg December 8, 1776; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1799; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and twice its speaker; was twice chosen judge of the State Court of Appeals; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky, serving from December 6, 1819, to 1820, when he resigned; died at Harrodsburg, Kentucky, August 8, 1822.

Long, Alexander, was born at Greenville, Pennsylvania, December 24, 1816; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Cincinnati, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848 and 1849; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,212 votes against 7,081 votes for J. A. Gurley, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864.

Long, Edward H., was born in Maryland in 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Princess Anne County; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,735 votes against 3,577 votes for Martin, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; died in Somerset County, Maryland, October 12, 1865.

Long, John, was born in Loudon County, Virginia; removed to Randolph County, North Carolina, where he was a farmer; was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina in 1815; was elected a representative in the Seventeenth Congress, and was successively re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1829.

Long, Pierce, was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1739; received a good English education; entered the counting-room of his father, and became his partner in the shipping business; was a delegate to the Provincial Congress of New Hampshire in 1775; served in the Revolutionary army as colonel of the First New-Hampshire Regiment, distinguishing himself at Ticonderoga; was a volunteer at the battle of Saratoga; was a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress 1784-1786; was a State councillor 1786-1789; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention 1788; was appointed by President Washington collector of customs at Portsmouth in January, 1789; and died at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, April 3, 1789.

Longfellow, Stephen, was born at Gorham, Massachusetts (now Maine), June 23, 1775; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1798; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1801, and commenced practice at Portland; was a delegate to the Hartford Convention in 1814; was elected a representative from Maine in the Eighteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was president of the Maine Historical Society in 1834; died at Portland, Maine, August 2, 1849. He compiled sixteen volumes of Massachusetts Reports and twelve volumes of Maine Reports.

Longnecker, Henry C., was born at Allen Township, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, April 17, 1825; received a classical education, graduating at the Norwich Military University of Vermont, and Lafayette College, Pennsylvania; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; served in the Mexican war as first lieutenant and adjutant of voltigeurs February 16, 1847-August 29, 1848, and was wounded at Chepultepec; was elected district-attorney of Lehigh County in 1848; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,324 votes against 8,076 votes for Roberts, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; entered the Union army in 1861 as colonel of the Ninth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry; commanded a brigade in Western Virginia, and subsequently commanded a brigade of militia at Antietam; was appointed in 1867 an associate judge of Lehigh County; died at Lehigh, Pennsylvania, September 18, 1871.

Longyear, John W., was born at Shandaken, New York, October 22, 1820; received a classical education; removed to Michigan in 1844; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice at Lansing; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,317 votes against 11,467 votes for Granger, Union; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 15,432 votes against 12,758 votes for David Johnson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; was a judge of the District Court of Michigan in 1870.

Loomis, Andrew W., resided at New Lisbon, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to October 20, 1837, when he resigned.

Loomis, Arphaxad, was born in Herkimer County, New York; received a public-school education; resided at Little Falls; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841, 1842, and 1853.

Loomis, Dwight, was born at Columbia, Connecticut, July 27, 1821; was reared on a farm; received a public-school education; studied law, completing his studies at the New-Haven Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and commenced practice at Rockville, Connecticut; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,766 votes against 9,701 votes for Hyde, Democrat, and 220 votes for Ezra Clark, jun.; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,701 votes against 10,563 votes for Hyde, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was appointed a judge of the State Supreme Court.

Lord, Frederick William, was born at Lyme, Connecticut, December 11, 1800; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1821; was professor of mathematics at Washington College for two years; was principal of an academy at Baltimore for three years; studied medicine at Baltimore, and received a diploma of doctor of medicine from Yale College in 1829; practised medicine for fifteen years at Sag Harbor, New York, and then retired; removed to Greenport, Long Island; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; died at New-York City May 24, 1860.

Lord, Scott, was born at Nelson, Madison County, New York, December 11, 1820; was educated at common schools, and at Morrisville and Geneseo Academies; studied law, and practised at Utica; was judge of Livingston County from July 1, 1847, until January 1, 1854; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,922 votes against 10,496 votes for Ellis H. Roberts, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,069 votes against 13,779 votes for W. J. Bacon, Republican.

Loring, George Bailey, was born at North Andover, Massachusetts, November 8, 1817; was fitted for college at Franklin Academy in that town; was graduated at Harvard University in 1838; received the degree of M.D. at the Harvard Medical College in 1842; was appointed surgeon of the Marine Hospital at Chelsea, Massachusetts, in 1843; was surgeon of the Seventh Regiment, M. V. M., in 1842-1844; was appointed commissioner to revise the United-States Marine-Hospital system in 1849; was appointed postmaster of Salem, Massachusetts, in 1853; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1866-1867; was president of the Massachusetts Senate in 1873-1876; was a delegate to the Republican National Conventions of 1863, 1872, and 1876; was appointed United-States centennial commissioner for Massachusetts in 1872; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,319 votes against 11,171 votes for Charles P. Thompson, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Loughridge, William, was born at Youngstown, Ohio, July 11, 1827; received a common-school education; studied law, and commenced practice at Mansfield, Ohio; removed to Iowa in 1852; was a member of the State Senate of Iowa in 1857, 1858, 1859, and 1860; was elected judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Iowa in 1861, which position he held until January, 1867; and was elected a representative from Iowa in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,475 votes against 12,395 votes for Mackey, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 24,057 votes against 16,531 votes for Irish, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,638 votes against 11,703 votes for H. H. Trimble, Democrat and Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Love, James, received a public-school education; resided at Barboursville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-third Congress, defeating John White, and serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835.

Love, John, was born in Virginia; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811; died August 17, 1822.

Love, Peter E., was born near Dublin, Georgia, July 7, 1818; received a classical education, graduating at Franklin College; attended medical lectures at Philadelphia; abandoned medicine, and studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Thomsville, Georgia; was solicitor-general for the Southern District of Georgia in 1843; was a member of the State Senate in 1849; was appointed a judge for the Southern District of Georgia in 1853; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,247 votes against 3,881 votes for McIntyre, Opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to January 23, 1861, when he retired from the House on the secession of Georgia from the Union.

Love, Thomas C., was a practising lawyer at Buffalo, New York; was a judge of Erie County in 1828; was district-attorney of Erie County in 1829-1835; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was surrogate for Erie County 1841-1845; died at Buffalo, New York, September 17, 1853.

Love, William C., was born in Virginia, and reared at the University of that State, at which his father was steward in 1799; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Salisbury, North Carolina; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, until March 3, 1817.

Lovejoy, Owen, was born at Albion, Maine, January 6, 1811; received a classical education, which he completed at Bowdoin College; studied theology; removed to Illinois in 1836, and was ordained as pastor of the Congregational church at Princeton, serving 1839-1856; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1854; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,068 votes against 13,007 votes for Osgood, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 22,313 votes against 14,988 votes for Armstrong, Douglas Democrat, and 1,328 votes for Le Roy, anti-Lecompton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 29,601 votes against 19,744 votes for Murray, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,683 votes against 11,020 votes for Henderson, Democrat, and 613 votes for Graham, Independent, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 25, 1864, when he died at Brooklyn, New York, having left Washington to visit a more genial climate.

Lovell, James, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, October 31, 1737; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1756; taught school; was imprisoned by General Gage immediately after the battle of Bunker Hill; he was conveyed to Halifax as a prisoner of war, and kept in close confinement until exchanged for Governor Skene in 1776; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1776-1782; was receiver of taxes 1784-1788; was collector of customs at the port of Boston 1788-1789; was naval officer 1790-1814.

Lovett, John, was born at Norwich, Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College; removed to Albany, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1800 and 1801; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist on the Peace and Commerce ticket; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died in Ohio in 1818.

Low, Frederick F., was born in Maine in 1828; received a business education in Boston; removed to California in 1849, and engaged in mercantile pursuits at San Francisco; removed to Marysville in 1854, and established a banking-house; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican; was appointed by President Lincoln in 1863 collector of the port of San Francisco, and, in September of that year, was appointed governor, serving until 1867; was appointed by President Grant in 1869 minister to China, serving until 1874.

Low, Isaac, was born in New York; trained as a business-man; was active in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1774-1775; was a member of the New-York Provincial Congress in 1775; was arrested in 1776 on suspicion of holding correspondence with the enemy; was president of the New-York Chamber of Commerce 1782; was attainted of treason, his property was confiscated, and he was exiled, and went to England; died in England in 1791.

Lowe, David P., was born in Oneida County, New York, August 22, 1823; graduated at the law-department of the Cincinnati College in 1851; practised law at Cincinnati until 1861, when he removed to Kansas, and resumed practice there; was a member of the State Senate of Kansas in 1863-1864; was judge of the Sixth Judicial District of Kansas from March, 1867, until March, 1871; and was elected a representative from Kansas in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 40,017 votes against 20,841 votes for R. C. Foster, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress from the State at large, receiving 67,400 votes against 34,450 votes for S. A. Riggs, Liberal Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875; was appointed by President Grant commissioner of pensions March 17, 1875, but declined; was chief justice of the Territory of Utah; resumed practice at Fort Scott, Kansas.

Lowell, John, was born at Newburyport, Massachusetts, in 1744; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1760; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1762, and commenced practice at Newburyport; was an officer of militia, and a member of the State House of Representatives in 1776, removing to Boston in 1777; he was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1778; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1780; was a delegate from Massachusetts in the Continental Congress 1782-1783; was a commissioner to establish the boundary-line between New York and Massachusetts in 1784; was a judge of the State Court of Appeals 1784-1789; was a judge of the United-States District Court for the District of Massachusetts 1789-1801; was justice of the United-States Circuit Court for Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, 1801-1802; was one of the founders of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; and died at Roxbury, Massachusetts, May 6, 1802.

Lowell, Joshua A., was born at Thomaston, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), March 20, 1801; received a public-school education; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1826, and practised at East Machias; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832, 1833, 1835, and 1837; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,033 votes against 4,666 votes for Joseph C. Noyes, Whig, and 11 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, his election being unsuccessfully contested, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844; died at East Machias, Maine, March 13, 1874.

Lower, Christian, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress, as his name appears on a list of those whose credentials entitle them to seats in the House, reported from the Committee of Elections December 26, 1805; but there is no other mention of his name on the journals.

Lowndes, Lloyd, jun., was born at Clarksburg, West Virginia, February 21, 1845; graduated at Alleghany College, Meadville, Pennsylvania, in 1865; attended law-lectures at the University of Pennsylvania; graduated, and was admitted to practice in 1867; removed the same year to Cumberland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,258 votes against 12,545 votes for J. Ritchie, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Lowndes, Thomas, was born at Charleston,

South Carolina, in 1765; received an academical education; engaged in business pursuits; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1805; died at Charleston July 8, 1843.

Lowndes, William, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, February 7, 1782; was taken to England when a lad, and studied three years at an English grammar-school, and, on his return, received a classical education from Rev. Dr. Gallagher, a Catholic priest; studied law with Chancellor De Saussure; was admitted to the bar in March, 1804, and commenced practice at Charleston, but, in consequence of the injury done to his plantation by the equinoctial storm of that year, he abandoned the law, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was the first captain of the Washington Light Infantry of Charleston when it was organized in 1807; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat without opposition, and was successively elected without opposition to the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, until he resigned, on account of ill health, May 8, 1822; he had found his health improved by a visit to England in 1819, and he determined to repeat the trip, embarking with his family from Philadelphia for London; but he died at sea October 27, 1822.

Lowrie, Walter, was born at Edinburgh, Scotland, December 10, 1784; immigrated to the United States with his parents in 1791, and located in Butler County, Pennsylvania; received a classical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives for several years; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was secretary of the United-States Senate 1825-1836; was secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions 1836-1868; and died at New-York City January 14, 1868.

Loyall, George, was born at Norfolk, Virginia, May 29, 1789; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1808; visited England in 1815; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1817-1827; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1829; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-first Congress (having successfully contested the election of Thomas Newton) as a Democrat, serving from March 9, 1830, to March 3, 1831; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was appointed navy agent at Norfolk in 1837, and held the position (with the exception of two years) until the secession of Virginia in 1861.

Lucas, Edward, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; was an officer in the war of 1812; was for several successive years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 762 majority over Smith; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was appointed military storekeeper and paymaster at the Harper's-Ferry Armory May 12, 1847, and held the position until he died at Harper's Ferry March 4, 1858.

Lucas, John B. C., was born in Normandy, France, in 1762; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Caen as doctor of civil and common law in 1782; practised in France until 1784, when he immigrated to the United States, and located on a farm near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; acquiring the English language, he was a member of the State House of Representatives 1792-1798, and a judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1794; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, but resigned before taking his seat; was appointed by President Jefferson judge of the United-States Court in the Northern District of the Territory of Louisiana, and removed to St. Louis; was also a member of the Commission for the Adjustment of Land-Titles 1805-1812; continued to act as United-States district-judge until 1820; retired to a farm near St. Louis, where he died September 8, 1842.

Lucas, William, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; resided at Charlestown; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, defeating R. W. Barton, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress by Richard W. Barton, Whig; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 3,280 votes against 2,960 votes for C. J. Faulkner, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Lumpkin, John Henry (nephew of Wilson Lumpkin), was born in Oglethorpe County, Georgia, June 13, 1812; received a classical education, partially at Franklin and Yale Colleges; studied law with his uncle, Wilson Lumpkin; was admitted to the bar in March, 1834, and commenced practice at Rome, Georgia; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835; was solicitor-general of the Cherokee Circuit in 1838; was defeated as a Democratic candidate on a general ticket for the Twenty-seventh Congress; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 35,161 votes against 32,822 votes for Thomas B. King, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,720 votes against 4,889 votes for Miller, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,033 votes against 1,243 votes for Crook, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 4,496 votes against 2,900 votes, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was for several years a judge of the State Supreme Court; was a prominent Freemason; died at Rome, Georgia, June 6, 1860.

Lumpkin, Wilson (uncle of John Henry Lumpkin), was born in Pittsylvania County, Virginia, January 14, 1783; removed to Oglethorpe County, Georgia, with his father, in 1784; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Athens, Georgia; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was appointed by President Monroe a member of the commission to establish the boundary-line between Georgia and Florida; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; was governor of Georgia 1831-1835; was appointed by President Jackson a commissioner under the treaty with the Cherokees in 1835; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of John P. King, resigned), serving from December 13, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was a member of the State Board of Public Works; died at Athens, Georgia, in 1871.

Luttrell, John K., was born near Knoxville, Knox County, Tennessee, June 27, 1831, but has resided in California twenty-two years; was self-educated; studied and practised law, and is a farmer; was elected to the legislature of California in 1863, and served in the sessions of 1865-1866, 1871-1872; was elected a representative from California in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,033 votes against 13,105 votes for J. M. Coghlan, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,113 votes against 3,814 votes for C. B. Denio, Republican, and 1,918 votes for James Reed, Independent; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,846 votes against 18,990 votes for McKenna, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Lyle, Aaron, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1817; died September 24, 1825.

Lyman, Joseph S., was born at Hampden, Massachusetts; received a public-school education; removed to Otsego County, New York; held several offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; died at Cooperstown, New York.

Lyman, Samuel, was born in Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1770; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1786-1788; was a member of the State Senate 1790-1793; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifth and Sixth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1795, to 1801, when he resigned on account of ill health; and died in 1802.

Lyman, William, was born at Northampton, Massachusetts, in 1753; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1776; was a member of the State Senate in 1789; was elected brigadier-general of militia; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Third Congress, and re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; was appointed by President Jefferson consul at London in 1805, and held the office until his death in October, 1811.

Lynch, John, was born at Portland, Maine, February 18, 1825; received a public-school education, and graduated at the Latin High School of that city in 1842; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State legislature of Maine in 1862 and 1864; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,096 votes against 12,578 votes for L. D. M. Sweat, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,611 votes against 11,653 votes for L. D. M. Sweat, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,718 votes against 14,579 votes for Shaw, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,571 votes against 11,075 votes for W. P. Haines, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1873; engaged in the manufacture of terra-cotta near Washington City; was editor of "The Washington Union" 1876-1877.

Lynch, John R., was born in Concordia Parish, Louisiana, September 10, 1847, a slave; and he remained in slavery until emancipated by the results of the Rebellion, receiving no early education; a purchaser of his mother carried her with her children to Natchez, where, when the Union troops took possession, he attended evening school for a few months, and he has since, by private study, acquired a good English education; he engaged in the business of photography at Natchez until 1869, when Governor Ames appointed him a justice of the peace; he was elected a member of the State legislature from Adams County, and re-elected in 1871, serving the last term as speaker of the House; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,391 votes against 8,430 votes for H. Cassidy, sen., Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican (defeating Roderick Seals, Democrat), serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Lynch, Thomas (father of Thomas Lynch, jun.), was born in South Carolina; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Colonial Congress in 1765; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1774-1776, when he resigned on account of ill health, and soon afterwards died.

Lynch, Thomas, jun. (son of Thomas Lynch), was born on the North Santee River, Prince George Parish, South Carolina, August 5, 1749; was educated at Eton and Cambridge, England; studied law at the Temple, but, before completing his course, returned to America in 1772; relinquishing the law, he became a planter on the North Santee River; was chosen in 1775 a captain in the First South-Carolina Continental Regiment, but resigned in a few months, having been elected as the successor of his father (who had been taken ill) in the Continental Congress, where he served 1776-1777; his health failing, he embarked for St. Eustatius with the intention of visiting Europe, and by some unknown accident perished, with all the ship's company, at sea; in the latter part of 1779.

Lynde, William P., was born at Sherburne, Chenango County, New York, December 16, 1817; graduated at Yale College in 1838; studied law; was admitted to the bar in New York in 1841, and removed the same year to Wisconsin, where he has practised since; was appointed attorney-general of Wisconsin in 1844; was appointed United-States district-attorney for the district of Wisconsin in 1845; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, serving from June 5, 1848, to March 3, 1849; was elected mayor of Milwaukee in 1860; was a member of the Legislative Assembly of Wisconsin in 1866, and a member of the State Senate in 1868 and 1869; was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 12,046 votes against 9,545 votes for Harrison Ludington, Liberal Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,653 votes against 11,952 votes for W. E. Smith, Republican, and serving from December 6, 1875.

Lynn, James, was born at Trenton, New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1769; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; was appointed by President Jefferson supervisor of the revenue; was for many years secretary of state of the State of New Jersey; died at Trenton, New Jersey, December 29, 1820.

Lyon, Asa, was born at Pomfret, Connecticut, December 31, 1763; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1791; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at South Hero, Vermont; was chief judge of Grand-Island County 1805-1814; was a member of the State House of Representatives from South Hero in 1800, 1802, 1804, 1805, 1806, and 1808, and from Grand Isle in 1810, 1811, 1812, 1813, and 1814; was a member of the Executive Council in 1808; was a member of the corporation of the University of Vermont 1814-1821; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist on a general ticket, receiving 17,718 votes against 16,874 votes for his Democratic opponent, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; although never licensed, he was, during the last years of his life, a Calvinistic preacher; died at South Hero April 4, 1841.

Lyon, Caleb, "of Lyondale," was born at Greig, New York, December 7, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at the Norwich University of Vermont in 1841; was appointed by President Polk consul at Shanghai, serving 1845-1849; stopped at California on his return voyage, and was secretary of the Constitutional Convention; visited Europe and Egypt; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851; resigned, and was the same year elected to the State Senate; was elected a rep-representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as an Independent, receiving 8,937 votes against 7,891 votes for Mundy, Democrat, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; removed from "Lyonsdale," after the mansion had been burned, to Staten Island; was appointed by President Lincoln governor of Idaho Territory, serving 1864-1866; on his return to Washington, he was robbed of $47,000 of public money in a sleeping-car between New York and Washington; died near Rossville, Staten Island, September 8, 1875.

Lyon, Chittenden (son of Matthew Lyon), was born in Vermont in 1786; received a public-school education; removed to Kentucky with his father in 1801; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and subsequently of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as a candidate for presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1836; died in Caldwell County, Kentucky, November 8, 1842.

Lyon, Francis S., was born in North Carolina; received a public-school education; removed to Alabama, and located at Demopolis; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 3,651 votes against 3,604 votes for Baylor, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was elected a representative from Alabama to the Second Confederate Congress in 1863.

Lyon, Lucius, was born in Vermont; received a public-school education; removed when a young man to Bronson, Michigan Territory; was a land-surveyor; was elected a delegate from Michigan Territory in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was elected a United-States senator from Michigan, serving from January 26, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected a representative to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was surveyor-general of public lands in the North-West; died at Detroit, Michigan, September 25, 1851.

Lyon, Matthew (father of Chittenden Lyon), was born in Wicklow County, Ireland, in 1746; immigrated to America in 1759; took an active part in the pre-Revolutionary movements; was a deputy-paymaster in the Revolutionary army in 1778; was clerk of the Court of Confiscation in 1786; founded the town of Fairfield, Vermont, in 1783; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1784-1794; edited "The Freeman's Library" newspaper; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fifth Congress, and was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1801; in January, 1798, a motion was made to have him expelled for having spat in the face of Roger Griswold, a representative from Connecticut, but it failed; in October, 1798, he was indicted in Vermont for writing for publication a letter calculated "to stir up sedition, and to bring the President and Government of the United States into contempt;" he was found guilty, and sentenced to be imprisoned four months, and to pay costs and a fine of $1,000; he was accordingly imprisoned four months in the depths of winter in a comfortless cell, and he paid the fine, which Congress refunded to his heirs with interest; Mr. Lyon is said to have revenged his wrongs by giving the vote that made Jefferson President; he afterwards removed to Kentucky, from which State he was elected a representative in the Eighth Congress, and re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1811; he became bankrupt after having contracted to build a fleet of gun-boats for service in the war of 1812; was appointed United-States factor among the Cherokee Indians in Arkansas, and removed to that Territory; was the first delegate elected to Congress, but died before taking his seat, at Spadra Bluff, Arkansas, August 1, 1822.

Lytle, Robert T., resided at Cincinnati; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 10, 1834; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fourth Congress by Bellamy Storer, Whig, who received 105 majority; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress (to supply the vacancy caused by his own resignation), receiving 2,602 votes against 2,555 votes for Mason, Whig, serving from December 27, 1834, to March 3, 1835; was appointed surveyor-general of public lands in Ohio, serving 1835-1838; died at New Orleans, while on his way to Texas, December 21, 1831.

McAllister, Archibald, was born in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, in 1814; received a public-school education; engaged in the manufacture of iron at the Springfield furnace; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,328 votes against 7,556 votes for Blair, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

McArthur, Duncan, was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1772; removed with his father to Western Pennsylvania in 1780; became a pioneer land-surveyor in Ohio, locating at Chillicothe; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1805; was elected colonel of militia in 1806, and brigadier-general in 1808; served in the war of 1812 as colonel of the First Ohio Volunteers from May 7, 1812; was promoted brigadier-general March 12, 1813, and was mustered out June 15, 1815; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirteenth Congress, but declined leaving the army; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1815; was a commissioner to negotiate treaties with the Indians in 1816; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1817-1819; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress as a Clay Democrat, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was governor of Ohio 1830-1832; was defeated as a Clay Democratic candidate for the Twenty-third Congress by one majority, which elected William Allen, Jackson Democrat; died at his residence near Chillicothe, after an excruciating illness of four years, preceded by paralytic affliction, April 28, 1839.

McBride, Archibald, was born in Moore County, North Carolina; was elected a representative from that State in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, defeating J. Culpepper, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1813; was a member of the State Senate for two years.

McBride, John R., was born in Franklin County, Missouri, August 22, 1832; received a public-school education; removed to Oregon in 1846; was chosen superintendent of schools in 1854; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1855, and practised at Lafayette; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was a member of the State Senate for four years; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,809 votes against 3,632 votes for Wait, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was appointed by President Grant United-States judge for the district of Idaho.

McCarthy, Dennis, was born at Salina, New York, March 19, 1814; received an academic education; engaged in mercantile pursuits and the manufacture of salt; was a member of the General Assembly of New York in 1840; was mayor of Syracuse in 1853; was elected a representative from New York in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,260 votes against 9,966 votes for Ruger, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,470 votes against 11,455 votes for Porter, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Independent Democratic candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,374 votes against 10,788 votes for R. Holland Duell, Republican.

McCarty, Andrew Z., was born in New York; resided at Pulaski; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,535 votes against 4,728 votes for Babcock, Democrat, and 3,652 votes for Case, Free-Soiler, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

McCarty, Jonathan, was born in Tennessee; received a public-school education; removed with his parents to Indiana, and located in Franklin County; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was instrumental in forming the new county of Fayette; was elected clerk of its courts, and removed to Connorsville, its county-seat; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating James Rariden, Whig, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 3,959 votes against 6,235 votes for James Rariden, Whig; removed to Keokuk, Iowa, where he died in 1855.

McCarty, Richard, was born at Albany, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

McCarty, William M., was born in Loudon County, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Charles F. Mercer, resigned) as a Whig, receiving 1,219 votes against 368 votes for James W. Pegram, Democrat, serving from January 25, 1840, to March 3, 1841.

McClausen, William C., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; located at Steubenville; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,741 votes against 5,883 votes for Hanna, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

McClellan, Moses, was born at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, in 1804; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1825, and commenced practice at Gettysburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1855; was for many years president of the Board of Trustees of Pennsylvania College; died at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, October 1, 1870.

McCleary, James, was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican (receiving 11,786 votes against 7,171 votes for M. Ryan, Democrat); visited Cuba in the hope of finding relief from a pulmonary complaint; was not well enough to return at the commencement of the session, and died November 5, 1871. He served in the Union army, where he lost an arm; was subsequently connected with the Freedmen's Bureau in North Carolina and in Louisiana, and entered into the practice of law in the last-named State.

McClellan, Abraham, was born in Tennessee; resided at Blountsville; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,612 votes against 2,351 votes for Samuel Bunch, Whig, and 865 votes for Eliot, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 1,961 majority over John A. McKinney, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843.

McClellan, Robert, was born in Schoharie County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,194 votes against 10,139 votes for Justus McKinstry, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died at Middlebury June 7, 1860.

McClelland, Robert, was born at Greencastle, Pennsylvania, August 1, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Dickinson College in 1829; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1831, and commenced practice at Pittsburg; removed to Monroe, Michigan, in 1833; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1835; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1838-1843, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 7,877 votes against 6,442 votes for Lawrence, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions in 1848, 1852, and 1868; was governor of Michigan 1852-1853; was appointed by President Pierce secretary of the interior 1853-1857; removed to Detroit, Michigan, and resumed practice.

McClelland, William, was born at Mount Jackson, Pennsylvania, March 2, 1842; received a common-school education, and, for a time, attended Westminster College at New Wilmington, Pennsylvania; at the outbreak of the late war, enlisted as a private in Battery B, First Artillery, P. R. V. C., and, at the close of the war, was mustered out as its commander, having served over four years, and participated in all the battles fought by the Army of the Potomac, except Chancellorsville and Gettysburg; subsequently attended Alleghany College at Meadville, Pennsylvania, but did not graduate; studied law, and was admitted to practice in June, 1870; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,277 votes against 11,505 votes for J. B. Donley, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,169 votes against 14,195 votes for William S. Moore, Republican.

McClenachan, Blair, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799.

McClene, James, was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1778-1780.

McClernand, John Alexander, was born in Breckenridge County, Kentucky, May 30, 1812; removed with his parents to Illinois; received a public-school education; studied law with Henry Eddy; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Shawneetown; served in the Black Hawk war as a private; established and edited "The Shawneetown Democrat"; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836, 1840, 1842, and 1843; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren and Johnson ticket in 1839; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Zadoc Casey, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, and Thirty-first Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 5, 1859, until the commencement of hostilities in 1861, when he resigned, and returned to Illinois, where he recruited a brigade for the Union army, serving through the war.

McCloud, John B., of Mobile, claimed to have been elected a representative from the Second District of Virginia in the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 645 votes against 641 votes for Wing, 116 for Cowper, and 20 scattering. The House Committee on Elections reported in February, 1863, that this was in no sense an election, as the district usually polled over 10,000 votes, and only four precincts were opened.

McClure, Charles, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Pittsburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of William S. Ramsay, deceased), serving from December 7, 1840, to March 3, 1841; was State secretary of state; died in consequence of a fall, which broke his neck, at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, February 8, 1846.

McClurg, Joseph W., was born in St. Louis County, Missouri, February 22, 1818; was educated at Xenia Academy and Oxford College, Ohio; was a teacher in Louisiana and Mississippi in 1835 and 1836; went to Texas, where he was admitted to the bar, and made clerk of the Circuit Court in 1840; afterwards returned to Missouri, and in 1844 engaged in mercantile pursuits; served as colonel of home guards early in 1861, and afterwards as colonel of cavalry in the Union army for the suppression of the Rebellion; was a member of the State Convention of Missouri of 1861, 1862, and 1863; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-eighth Congress as an Emancipation candidate, receiving 4,930 votes against 4,333 votes for Price, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Radical candidate, receiving 6,976 votes against 2,555 votes for Orr, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress in 1866 as a Radical, receiving 7,617 votes against 4,084 votes for Thomas L. Price, Conservative, serving from December 7, 1863, to 1868, when he resigned.

McComas, William, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, defeating William Smith by 400 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating D. Smith by 206 majority, and serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

McComb, Eleazer, was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Delaware 1782-1784.

McConnell, Felix G., was born in Lincoln County, Tennessee, but removed in 1824 to Talladega, Alabama; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, defeating William P. Chilton, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to September 10, 1846; he committed suicide in a fit of delirium at the St. Charles Hotel, Washington, by stabbing himself in the abdomen, and then cutting his throat.

McCook, Anson G., was born at Steubenville, Ohio, October 10, 1835; received a common-school education; in the spring of 1854 crossed the plains to California; returned in the autumn of 1859, and, at the outbreak of the Rebellion, was engaged in the study of the law; entered the Union army as captain in the Second Regiment of Ohio Infantry, and was at the first battle of Bull Run; on the re-organization of the regiment, was commissioned major, and afterward promoted to be lieutenant-colonel and colonel, serving with the regiment in the Army of the Cumberland; at the muster-out of the regiment, was commissioned colonel of the One Hundred and Ninety-fourth Ohio Infantry, and, at the close of the war, was brevetted brigadier-general; was appointed assessor of internal revenue in the Seventeenth Ohio District in November, 1865; removed to New York in May, 1873, and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,221 votes against 12,408 votes for Elijah Ward, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

McCord, Andrew, was born in Ulster County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1800, 1801, 1802, and 1807; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805.

McCorkle, Joseph W., was born in Ohio; removed to Marysville, California; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 23,493 votes against 19,071 votes for Moore, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

McCormick, James R., was born in Washington County, Missouri, August 1, 1824; received a public-school education; studied medicine; was licensed to practise in 1849; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1861; was a State senator in 1862; served as a brigadier-general of militia in 1863; was appointed by President Lincoln a surgeon in the army, which he declined; was again elected United-States senator in 1866; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Fortieth Congress (in place of Thomas E. Noell, deceased) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 5,153 votes against 4,226 votes for Bush, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 7,572 votes against 2,331 votes for G. I. Van Allen, Republican, and 2,015 votes for W. Nalle, Independent Democrat, serving from December 17, 1867, to March 3, 1873.

McCormick, Richard C., was born at New York in 1832; received a classical education; entered into business in Wall Street in 1850; visited Europe during the Crimean war; edited "The Young Men's Magazine" in 1859; was a war-correspondent for several leading journals in 1861; was chief clerk of the Department of Agriculture in 1862; was appointed secretary of Arizona Territory in 1863, and governor of the Territory in 1866; was elected a delegate from Arizona Territory in the Forty-first Congress as an Independent Union candidate, receiving 1,263 votes against 644 votes for Rush, and 186 votes for Adams; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 970 majority over P. R. Brady, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was a commissioner to the Centennial Exhibition 1875-1876; was assistant secretary of the treasury 1877-1878; was chief commissioner to the Paris Exposition 1878.

McCoy, Robert, was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was State canal commissioner; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; died at Wheeling, Virginia, June 7, 1849.

McCoy, William, was born in Augusta County, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twelfth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 2, 1833.

McCrary, George W., was born near Evansville, Indiana, August 29, 1835; removed with his parents to the Territory which now forms the State of Iowa in 1836; was educated in the public school and academy; studied law, and was admitted to the bar at Keokuk, Iowa, in 1856; in 1857 he was elected to the State legislature; in 1861 he was elected to the State Senate for four years; and, after devoting all his time to the practice of his profession until 1868, he was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,718 votes against 12,705 votes for Claggett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,327 votes against 9,961 votes for Edmund Jager, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,149 votes against 10,961 votes for Shelley, Liberal Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,384 votes against 9,521 votes for Leroy G. Palmer, Liberal and Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1877; was appointed by President Hayes secretary of war March 12, 1877.

McCrate, John D., was born at Wiscasset, Maine, May 1, 1800; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1819; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wiscasset; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1831-1836; was collector of customs at Wiscasset 1836-1841; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

McCreary, John, was born in Chester District, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821.

McCreedy, William, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

McCreery, Thomas C., was born in Kentucky in 1817; studied law, but, instead of practising the profession, turned his attention to agricultural pursuits; was a presidential elector in 1852; was a member of the board of visitors to the Military Academy at West Point in 1858; was elected in 1868 United-States senator from Kentucky (in the place of James Guthrie, resigned); took his seat February 27, 1868, and served until March 3, 1871; and was re-elected as a Democrat (in the place of W. B. Machen, appointed in the place of Garrett Davis, deceased), and took his seat March 4, 1873. His term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

McCreery, William, was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1809.

McCulloch, George, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Centre Line; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of William W. Potter, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

McCulloch, John, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,847 votes against 6,112 votes for Shaffer, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

McCullough, Hiram, was born in Cecil County, Maryland, September 20, 1818; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was a member of the State Senate of Maryland in 1845-1851; was appointed one of the codifiers of the laws of Maryland in 1852; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,677 votes against 6,307 votes for J. A. J. Creswell, Republican; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,729 votes against 4,052 votes for Russum, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

McCullough, Thomas G., was born in Franklin County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixteenth Congress (in place of David Fullerton, resigned), serving from November 13, 1820, to March 3, 1821.

McDaniel, William, was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-ninth Congress (in place of Sterling Price, resigned) as a Democrat, defeating Kincaid, Whig, serving from December 7, 1846, to March 3, 1847.

McDill, Alexander S., was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, March 18, 1822; after a partial course of studies at Alleghany College, studied and graduated in medicine at the Cleveland Medical College; was engaged in the general practice of his profession in his native State from 1848 until 1856, when he removed to his present place of residence in Portage County, Wisconsin; was elected to the House of Representatives of the Wisconsin legislature in 1861, and to the State Senate of Wisconsin in 1862; was chosen a presidential elector in 1864; was one of the board of managers of the Wisconsin State Hospital for the Insane from 1862 to 1868, when he was elected medical superintendent, which position he resigned to take his seat in the Forty-third Congress, to which he was elected a representative from Wisconsin as a Republican, receiving 10,711 votes against 7,238 votes for W. Carson, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 4, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,444 votes against 9,446 votes for George M. Cate, Independent Reformer; resumed his position as medical superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane, near Madison, Wisconsin; and died there November 12, 1875.

McDill, James Wilson, was born at Monroe, Ohio, March 4, 1834; received an early education at the South-Salem Academy, and graduated at the Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, in 1853; studied law at Columbus, Ohio, with Sam. Galloway; was admitted to the bar in 1856, and removed to Iowa in that year; was elected county-judge of Union County, Iowa, in 1859; was appointed in 1861 clerk of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia, of which Hon. J. W. Grimes was chairman, and subsequently a clerk in the office of the third auditor of the treasury, in which he served until the spring of 1865, when he resigned, and returned to Iowa; was elected circuit-judge of the Second District, Third Judicial Circuit of Iowa, in 1868; was appointed in 1870, and then elected, district-judge of the Third Judicial Circuit of Iowa, which position he held when he was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,675 votes against 10,204 votes for W. W. Merritt, Democrat and Liberal; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,156 votes against 10,776 votes for Anson Rood, anti-Monopolist and Granger, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

McDonald, Alexander, was born in Clinton County, Pennsylvania, April 10, 1832; was educated at the Lewisburg University; removed to Kansas in 1857; engaged in mercantile pursuits; took a leading part in raising and equipping Union troops during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; established himself in Arkansas as a merchant in 1863; was the founder and first president of the National Bank at Fort Smith, and afterwards of the Merchants' National Bank at Little Rock; was the first signer of the call for the State Convention under the reconstruction acts, and was elected a member of that convention; was elected United-States senator from Arkansas as a Republican, serving from June 23, 1868, to March 3, 1871.

McDonald, Joseph E., was born in Butler County, Ohio, August 29, 1819; was taken to Indiana in 1826; was apprenticed to the saddler's trade at Lafayette; was two years in college, but did not graduate; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice; was prosecuting-attorney in 1843-1847; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,432 votes against 7,098 votes for Lane, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was elected attorney-general of Indiana in 1856, and re-elected in 1858; removed to Indianapolis in 1859; was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana in 1864; was elected United-States senator from Indiana as a Democrat (to succeed Daniel D. Pratt, Republican), and took his seat March 5, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

MacDonald, Moses, was born at Limerick, Maine, April 8, 1815; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1837, and commenced practice at Limerick, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841, 1842, and 1845, serving the last year as speaker of the House; was State senator 1847; was State treasurer of Maine 1847-1849; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,173 votes against 4,683 votes for N. D. Appleton, Whig, and 530 votes for M. Sweat, Free-Soiler; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 9,218 votes against 5,333 votes for N. D. Appleton, Whig, and 1,358 votes for Fessenden, Free-Soiler, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was appointed by President Buchanan collector of customs at Portland, serving 1857-1861; died at Saco, Maine, October 18, 1869.

McDougall, Alexander, was born in Scotland in 1731; immigrated to New York in 1755; learned the art of printing, and was imprisoned as the author and printer of Revolutionary documents; served in the Revolutionary army as colonel of the First New-York Regiment; was commissioned brigadier-general August 9, 1776, and major-general October 20, 1777; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress in 1781 and in 1784-1785; was elected a member of the State Senate 1783-1786; died at New York June 8, 1786.

MacDougall, Clinton Dugald, was born in Scotland June 14, 1839; came to America with his parents in 1842; received an academic education; studied law; was engaged in the banking business 1856-1869; raised a company for the Seventy-fifth New-York Volunteers in 1861; went to Florida with his regiment; was made lieutenant-colonel of the One Hundred and Eleventh New-York Volunteers in August, 1862, and colonel in January, 1863; commanded the post at Centreville, Virginia, to June, 1863; joined the Army of the Potomac, in which he commanded the Third Brigade, Third Division, Second Corps, at Gettysburg, and afterward the Third Brigade, First Division, Second Corps, until the close of the war; was brevetted brigadier-general in 1864; returned home at the close of the war to pursue his banking business; was appointed postmaster of the city of Auburn in March, 1869; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,486 votes for W. T. Graves, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,433 votes against 11,857 votes for Wilson, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; declined the position of treasurer of the United States, offered him in June, 1876, and also that of commissioner of internal revenue, offered him in July, 1876; was appointed by President Grant marshal for the Western Judicial District of New York in 1877.

McDougall, James A., was born at Bethlehem, Albany County, New York, November 19, 1817; was educated at the Albany Grammar School; was a surveyor's assistant on the Albany and Schenectady Railroad; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Pike County, Illinois, in 1837; was attorney-general of Illinois 1842-1846; organized and accompanied an expedition to explore the Rio del Norte, the Gila, and the Colorado Rivers; removed to California, and practised at San Francisco; was elected attorney-general of California in 1850; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; declined a renomination to the Thirty-fourth Congress; was elected a United-States senator from California as a Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1867; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864; died at Albany, New York, September 3, 1867.

McDowell, James, was born in Rockbridge County, Virginia, in 1790; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1817; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-ninth Congress (in place of William Taylor, deceased) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 2,995 votes against 2,138 votes for Gray, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,154 votes without opposition, serving from March 6, 1846, to March 3, 1851; died near Lexington, Virginia, August 24, 1851.

McDowell, James Foster, was born in Mifflin County, Pennsylvania, December 3, 1825; went with his parents to Ohio in 1835; received a public-school education; worked in a printing-office; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice; removed to Indiana, and established "The Marion Journal;" was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,142 votes against 12,219 votes for Shanks, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,363 votes against 15,623 votes for Thomas F. Stillwell, Union.

McDowell, Joseph (father of Joseph J. McDowell), was born at Winchester, Virginia; and his father soon afterwards removed to Burke County, North Carolina; was active in the Revolutionary movements, commanding a portion of the right wing under his brother Joseph at the battle of King's Mountain October 7, 1780; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina 1782-1788; was a member of the convention of 1788 to consider the adoption of the Federal Constitution, which he opposed; was elected to the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, until March 3, 1795; was again elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799.

McDowell, Joseph J. (son of Joseph McDowell), was born in North Carolina; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,376 votes against 5,052 votes for Thompson, Whig, and 341 votes for Keys, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

McDuffie, George, was born in Columbia County, Georgia, in 1738; attended public schools; was a clerk at Augusta, Georgia; was sent by William Calhoun to Dr. Waddell's school at Wilmington, and graduated at the South-Carolina College in 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1814, and commenced practice at Pendleton, South Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1818-1820; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to 1834, when he resigned; was elected governor of South Carolina; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina (in place of William C. Preston, resigned), serving from January, 1843, to January 17, 1846, when he resigned; died in Sumter District, North Carolina, March 11, 1851.

McFadden, Obadiah B., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in the year 1817; is by profession a lawyer; was elected to the legislature of Pennsylvania in the year 1843; was elected prothonotary for the Court of Common Pleas of Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1845; in 1853 he was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court for the Territory of Oregon; in 1854 he was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court for Washington Territory; in 1858 he was appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court for Washington Territory, and discharged the duties of that position until the fall of 1861; has represented his district in the Legislative Council; and was elected a delegate from Washington Territory in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat by a majority of 708 over S. Garfield, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; died at Olympia, Washington Territory, June 25, 1875.

McFarlan, Duncan, was born in North Carolina; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was for three years a member of the State Senate; died September 7, 1816.

McFarland, William, was born at Dandridge, Tennessee, September 15, 1821; received a common-school education; studied law in early life, but abandoned it; was a clerk in a store, and afterward in a tanning and mercantile business on his own account until the commencement of the war in 1861; after the war he resumed the practice of law, in which he is yet engaged; was for many years a magistrate; was chairman of the County Court; was appointed judge of the Circuit Court in 1870; and was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Conservative and Democrat, receiving 8,797 votes against 6,984 votes for R. R. Butler, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,215 votes against 12,349 votes for James Henry Randolph, Republican.

McGaughey, Edward W., was born in Indiana; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,183 votes against 6,012 votes for Wright, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,782 votes against 4,909 votes for Cookerly, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,814 votes against 6,076 votes for Davis, Democrat; died at Greencastle, Indiana, August 18, 1852.

McGowan, J. H., was born at Smithtown, Ohio, April 2, 1837; in 1854 removed with his parents to Orland, Indiana; in 1857 he entered the University of Michigan, and graduated in June, 1861; taught in the city schools of Coldwater, Michigan, for one year, and then enlisted as a private in the Fifth Michigan Cavalry Volunteers; was afterward promoted to a captaincy; raised a company for the Ninth Michigan Cavalry, and went into active service with that regiment in the spring of 1863; by reason of injuries received in a cavalry charge, he was disabled, and resigned his commission in February, 1864, returning to Coldwater, where he studied law with the Hon. C. D. Randall, and was admitted to the bar in 1867; from 1868 to 1872 he was prosecuting-attorney; served one term as State senator, and seven years as regent of the University of Michigan, resigning to take his seat in the Forty-fifth Congress, to which he was elected as a Republican, receiving 19,873 votes against 17,223 votes for Fidus Livermore, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

McGrew, James C., was born in what is now Preston County, West Virginia (then a part of Monongalia County, Virginia), September 14, 1813; received a substantial, practical English education; when not in school, worked on his father's farm; at the age of twenty, engaged in mercantile pursuits, which he followed steadily and with fair success for thirty years, when he engaged in banking, which is his present business; was a delegate to the Virginia State Convention in 1861; was a member of the legislature of West Virginia in 1863, 1864, and 1865; has been a managing director of the West-Virginia Hospital for the Insane since 1863; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-first Congress as a Union Republican, receiving 9,149 votes against 6,518 votes for Brown, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,011 votes against 8,098 votes for O. D. Downey, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

M Hatton, Robert, was born in Virginia; removed to Kentucky, and located at Georgetown; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of James Johnson, deceased) as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 1,470 votes against 1,167 votes for Sanford, and 987 for Coleman; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, defeating Sanford, and serving from December 7, 1826, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as a Democratic candidate to the Twenty-first Congress by Ex-Senator Richard M. Johnson, Democrat; died at Georgetown, Kentucky.

McHenry, Henry D., was born at Hartford, Kentucky, February 27, 1826; graduated at the Transylvania Law School in 1845; was a member of the House of Representatives in the State legislature in 1851-1852 and 1852-1853, of the State Senate in 1861-1862, 1862-1863, 1863-1864, and 1864-1865, and again of the State House of Representatives in 1865-1866 and 1866-1867; and was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,214 votes against 5,490 votes for M. J. Roark, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

McHenry, James, was born in Maryland in 1753; served in the Revolution as aide-de-camp to General Lafayette; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1783-1786; was a member of the Federal Constitutional Convention in 1787; was secretary of war January 27, 1796, to May 13, 1800; died at Baltimore May 8, 1810.

McHenry, John H., was born in Kentucky; resided at Hartford; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 685 majority, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

McIlvaine, Abraham Robinson, was born at Crum Creek, Pennsylvania, August 14, 1804; received a practical English education; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits, and settled on a farm in the northern part of Chester County, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836 and 1837; declined a nomination to the State Senate in 1838; was chosen a presidential elector in 1840 on the Harrison and Tyler ticket; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,391 votes against 4,106 votes for Allison, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; died in Chester County, Pennsylvania, August 14, 1863.

McIlvaine, Joseph, was born at Bristol, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, in 1768; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1791, and commenced practice at Burlington, New Jersey; was clerk of the courts in Burlington County 1800-1823; was United-States attorney for the district of New Jersey 1801-1820; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat (in place of Samuel L. Southard, resigned), serving from December 1, 1823, to August 19, 1826, when he died at Burlington.

McIndoe, Walter D., was born in Scotland, March 30, 1819; immigrated to the United States in his fifteenth year; engaged in mercantile pursuits at New York, Charleston, and St. Louis; located in Wisconsin, where he engaged in the lumber business; was a member of the Wisconsin House of Representatives in 1850, 1854, and 1855; was a presidential elector on the Fremont ticket in 1855, and the Lincoln ticket in 1860; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-seventh Congress (in place of Luther Hanchett, deceased) as a Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 13,692 votes against 6,879 votes for Henry Reed, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, serving from January 26, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

McIntire, Rufus, was born at York, Maine, December 19, 1774; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1809; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1812, and commenced practice at Parsonsfield, Maine; served in the war of 1812 as captain of Maine volunteers; resumed practice at York; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was county-attorney; was a member of the boundary commission in 1826; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twentieth Congress (in place of Albion K. Parris, resigned) as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 350 majority over John Holmes; was re-elected to the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from 1829 to March 3, 1835; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was State land-agent in 1839-1840; was United-States marshal for the district of Maine; was surveyor of the port of Portland; died at Parsonsfield, Maine, April 28, 1866.

McIntyre, Archibald Thompson, of Thomasville, was born in Twiggs County, Georgia, October 27, 1822; was educated at the Thomasville Academy; studied law at Monticello, Florida, and Macon, Georgia; was a member of the State legislature of Georgia in 1849; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Georgia in 1865; and was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving (after the exclusion of the votes of Bullock and Wayne Counties) 15,003 votes against 9,662 votes for V. Hillyer, Radical, 2,140 votes for A. A. Bradley, Radical, and 13 votes for R. W. White, Radical, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

McJunkin, Ebenezer, was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, March 28, 1819; graduated at Jefferson College, Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1841; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in September, 1843; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was on the Republican electoral ticket in Pennsylvania in 1864; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,591 votes against 8,891 votes for W. Sirwell, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,431 votes for W. J. Kountz, Independent Democrat, and 3,325 votes for W. F. Johnston, Liberal, serving from March 4, 1871, to January 1, 1875, when he resigned.

McKay, James J., was born in Bladen County, North Carolina, in 1793; received a classical education; studied law, and enjoyed an extensive practice; was United-States attorney for the district of North Carolina for several years; was elected to the State Senate of North Carolina in 1815-1819, 1822, 1826, and 1830; was elected as a Democrat to the Twenty-second Congress, and successively re-elected to the Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth (defeating Hawkins), Twenty-sixth (defeating Hilliard), Twenty-seventh (defeating Leach), Twenty-eighth (defeating Meares), Twenty-ninth (defeating Holcomb), and Thirtieth Congresses (defeating Hall), serving from December 2, 1833, until March 3, 1849; was voted for by the North-Carolina delegation as their candidate for Vice-President in the National Democratic Convention of 1848 at Baltimore, which nominated Cass and Butler; died at Goldsborough, North Carolina, suddenly, of bilious colic, September 14, 1853.

McKean, James Bedell, was born at Hoosick, New York, August 5, 1821; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice at Saratoga Springs; was county-judge for Saratoga County 1854-1858; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,428 votes against 9,808 votes for Odell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 14,924 votes against 10,474 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; recruited the Sixty-seventh Regiment of New-York Infantry while he was a representative in Congress, and commanded it in the Army of the Potomac; was appointed chief justice of Utah by President Lincoln, and was superseded in 1875.

McKean, Samuel, was born in Huntington County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839; died in McKean County, Pennsylvania, June 23, 1840.

McKean, Thomas, was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, March 19, 1734; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Castle, Delaware; was a member of the Delaware House of Representatives 1762-1769; was a delegate to the General Congress at New York in 1765; was elected a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress in 1774, and was annually re-elected until 1783, being the delegate who was a continuous member; served in the Revolutionary army as captain of volunteers; removed to Pennsylvania; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was governor of Pennsylvania 1799-1803; died at Philadelphia June 24, 1817.

McKee, George C., was born at Joliet, Illinois, October 2, 1837; was educated in the academic department of Knox College, and received a partial collegiate education at Lombard University; was admitted to the bar at twenty-one years of age; was elected city-attorney of Centralia, Illinois, and practised law until the outbreak of the Rebellion, when he enlisted (in April, 1861) as a private in the Eleventh Illinois Infantry, three-months' troops; upon the re-organization for three years' service, he was elected captain of his company; he served throughout the war in various capacities and ranks, and was wounded at Fort Donelson, Shiloh, and Vicksburg, commanding a picked corps during the siege of the last-named place; when in command of his own regiment and other detachments, on the second Yazoo expedition, he defeated the rebel assault at Yazoo City March 5, 1864, after which he was ordered, as brigadier-general, to enroll and equip four regiments of colored militia; at the close of the war, after having been continuously in Mississippi since 1862, he settled at Vicksburg, where he assumed the practice of his profession, and also engaged in planting in Madison County; was appointed register in bankruptcy in 1867; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Mississippi; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Fortieth Congress, but the State was refused admission; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 25,082 votes against 9,811 votes for Fisk, Conservative; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 25,082 votes against 9,811 votes for Fisk, Conservative and Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,819 votes against 8,073 votes for W. B. Shelby, Democrat, serving from February 23, 1870, to March 3, 1875.

McKee, John, was born in Rockbridge County, Virginia; received an academical education; went to Alabama as agent to the Choctaw Indians; located at Tuscaloosa; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 176 majority over Baylor; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; died at Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

McKee, Samuel, was born in Virginia; removed to Kentucky; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1817.

McKee, Samuel, was born in Montgomery County, Kentucky, November 6, 1833; was reared upon his father's farm, working there in the summers, and attending public schools in the winters, until he was nineteen years of age; graduated at Miami University, Ohio, in 1857; graduated at the Cincinnati Law School in 1858, and commenced practice at Mount Sterling, Kentucky; entered the Union army in July, 1862, as captain of the Fourteenth Kentucky Cavalry, and served until March 22, 1863, when he was captured, and carried to Richmond, where he remained in Libby Prison until April 30, 1864, when he was released, and honorably mustered out of service; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,163 votes against 6,241 votes for J. Smith Hurtt, Union Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869; was appointed by President Grant agent for paying pensions at Louisville, Kentucky, serving from 1869 to 1871; resumed the practice of law at Louisville, Kentucky.

McKenna, Thomas M. T., was born in Pennsylvania; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Washington; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, defeating Thomas Kingland, Van Buren Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, defeating Thomas Kingland, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1839; declined being a candidate for re-election; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was secretary of the interior from August 15, 1850, to September 12, 1850; died at Reading, Pennsylvania, July 9, 1852.

McKensie, James A., was born in Christian County, Kentucky, August 1, 1840; was educated in the common schools of Christian County, and at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky; read law, and received license to practise; is by occupation a farmer; was a member of the Kentucky legislature 1857-1871; was Democratic elector for the State at large in 1872; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,557 votes against 9,374 votes for James Z. Moore, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

McKenty, Jacob K., was born at Douglasville, Pennsylvania, in 1827; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1848; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and commenced practice at Reading; was elected district-attorney for Berks County in 1856; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress (in place of John Schwartz, deceased), serving from December 3, 1860, to March 3, 1861; died at Douglasville, Pennsylvania, January 3, 1866.

McKenzie, Lewis, was born at Alexandria, Virginia, October 7, 1810; received an academic education; was placed in a counting-room when he was thirteen years of age, and engaged in mercantile pursuits and the shipping business; was for twenty years a member of the city council of Alexandria; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1850-1861; was mayor of Alexandria in 1861; was elected a representative from Virginia in the third session of the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, receiving 227 votes against 215 votes for Andrew Wylie, 71 votes for Charles H. Upton, and 41 scattering votes, and was admitted to his seat February 16, 1863, serving until March 3, 1863; was for many years president of the Alexandria, Loudon, and Hampshire Railroad, and of the First National Bank of Alexandria; was again elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Union Conservative, receiving 15,878 votes against 11,073 votes for Whittlesey, Radical, serving from January 31, 1870, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,194 votes against 12,719 votes for Elliot M. Braxton, Democrat; was president of the Washington and Ohio Railroad; was appointed by President Hayes postmaster at Alexandria in June, 1878.

McKeon, John, was born in New York; received a classical education at Columbia College; studied law with John L. Mason; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835-1837 and 1841-1843; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by the Native American candidate; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 21,748 votes against 20,862 votes for Robert Smith, Whig, and serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,699 votes against 5,904 votes for Fish, Whig; was prosecuting-attorney at New York by appointment, and then by election; visited Europe in 1851; was appointed by President Pierce in 1853 district-attorney of the United States at New York.

McKibbin, Joseph C., was born in Pennsylvania; received an academical education; removed to California; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-fifth Congress as an anti-Lecompton Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the anti-Lecompton Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 43,474 votes against 56,998 votes for Scott, Democrat, and 301 votes for Sibley, Republican.

McKim, Alexander, was born at Baltimore in 1748; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, defeating Joshua Barney, Federalist; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 2, 1815.

McKim, Isaac, was born at Baltimore, Maryland; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Samuel Smith, resigned) as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 2,655 votes against 2,625 votes for William H. Winder, and 1,810 votes for John Barney; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 2,651 votes against 2,634 votes for William H. Winder, and 1,812 votes for John Barney, serving from January 8, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was defeated as a candidate for the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 3,443 votes against 3,505 votes for John Barney; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 371 majority over William Stewart, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,144 votes against 6,871 votes for Ridgely, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to April 1, 1838, when he died at Gadsby's Hotel, Washington City.

McKinley, John, was born in Culpepper County, Virginia; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Louisville, Kentucky; removed to Huntsville, Alabama; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Alabama (in place of Henry Chambers, deceased) as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 21, 1826, to March 3, 1831; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was appointed by President Van Buren a justice of the Supreme Court April 22, 1837; died at Louisville, Kentucky, July 19, 1852.

McKinley, William, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eleventh Congress (in place of John G. Jackson, resigned) as a Democrat, receiving 95 majority over T. Wilson, Federalist, serving from December 21, 1810, to March 3, 1811.

McKinley, William, was born at Niles, Ohio,

February 26, 1844; enlisted in the United-States army in May, 1861, as a private soldier in the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered out as captain of the same regiment and brevet major; was prosecuting-attorney of Stark County, Ohio, 1869-1871; and was elected a representative from Ohio to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,489 votes against 13,185 votes for L. L. Sanborn, Democrat, and 2,441 votes for John R. Powell, Greenback candidate, serving from October 15, 1877.

McKinney, John F., was born near Piqua, Ohio, April 12, 1827; was raised a farmer; received a common-school education; attended an academy for four years, and a college one year; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and has since practised his profession at Piqua; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,218 votes against 9,435 votes for West, Republican, and serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,578 votes against 12,242 votes for William Lawrence, Union; never was a candidate for, or held, any other public office; and was again elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,936 votes against 11,741 votes for W. B. McClung, Republican, and 117 votes for Calahan, Prohibitionist, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

McKissock, Thomas, was born in Ulster County, New York, in 1798; received an academical education; was first a student of medicine, and then of law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Newburg; was appointed a puisne justice of the Supreme Court July 1, 1847; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,876 votes against 4,667 votes for Woodward, Democrat, and 1,874 votes for Curtis, Van Buren Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,563 votes against 5,810 votes for Murray, Democrat.

McKnight, Robert, was born at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1820; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1839; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; was a member of the city council of that city 1847-1849; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,438 votes against 502 votes for Birmingham, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 7,978 votes against 2,979 votes for Mitchell, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863.

McLane, Lewis (father of Robert M. McLane), was born at Smyrna, Delaware, May 28, 1776; entered the United-States navy as midshipman in 1798, and cruised one year in "The Philadelphia," Commodore Decatur; commenced the study of law with James A. Bayard in 1804; was admitted to the bar in 1807, and commenced practice at Smyrna; served in the war of 1812 as a private, and marched to the relief of Baltimore when that city was attacked by the British; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1827; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware, serving from December 3, 1827, to April 10, 1829, when he resigned; was appointed by President Jackson minister to England, serving April 18, 1829-July 6, 1831; was appointed by President Jackson secretary of the treasury, serving August 8, 1831-May 20, 1833; was transferred by General Jackson to the State Department, where he remained until he retired from political life in June, 1834; was president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company 1837-1847; was appointed by President Polk minister to England, serving June 16, 1845-August 18, 1846; retired in 1847 to his estate in Cecil County, Maryland; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; died at Baltimore, Maryland, October 7, 1857.

McLane, Robert Milligan (son of Lewis McLane), was born at Smyrna, Delaware, June 23, 1815; received a classical education at Washington College, District of Columbia, and St. Mary's College, Baltimore; was a cadet at the Military Academy at West Point 1833-1837; served in the artillery and topographical engineers, resigning November 1, 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Baltimore in 1844; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1845-1847; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,640 votes against 7,108 votes for Kennedy, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,277 votes against 6,326 votes for John R. Kenly, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was appointed by President Pierce commissioner to China, serving October 18, 1853-December 12, 1854; resumed practice at Baltimore on his return; was appointed by President Buchanan minister to Mexico, serving March 7, 1859-December 22, 1860.

McLean, Alney, was born in Burke County, North Carolina, September 5, 1779; studied and practised law; was a member of the State House of Representatives; served in the war of 1812 as a captain of volunteer riflemen, and distinguished himself at the battle of New Orleans; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was a circuit-judge from 1821 until his death of bilious pneumonia.

McLean, Finis E., was born in Kentucky; resided at Elkton; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig without opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

McLean, John, was born in Morris County, New Jersey, March 11, 1785; his father moved with his family to Morgantown, Virginia, in 1789, thence to Nicholasville, Kentucky, in 1790, thence to May-slide, Kentucky, in 1793, and thence to the vicinity of Lebanon, Ohio, in 1797; he received a public-school education while at these different places; studied law under A. St. Clair at Cincinnati, supporting himself by copying in the office of the county-clerk for three years; was admitted to the bar in 1807, and commenced practice at Lebanon, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirteenth Congress as a War Democrat by a large majority over all his competitors; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress without opposition, serving from May 24, 1813, until he resigned in the summer of 1816; was elected judge of the Ohio Supreme Court in 1817; was appointed by President Monroe commissioner of the General Land Office September 11, 1822; was appointed by President Monroe postmaster-general December 9, 1823; was continued in office by President J. Q. Adams; was asked to remain by President Jackson, and, on his declining, was successively tendered the War and the Navy Departments, neither of which he was willing to accept; was appointed justice of the Supreme Court of the United States March 7, 1829; and died at Cincinnati, Ohio, April 4, 1861.

McLean, John, received an academic education; removed to Illinois at an early age; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Shawneetown; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and its presiding officer; was elected the first representative from Illinois in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1818, until March 3, 1819; was a member of the United-States Senate (in place of Ninian Edwards, resigned) from December 20, 1824, until March 3, 1825; was again elected to the United-States Senate for six years unanimously, serving from December 7, 1829, until May 31, 1830; and died at Shawneetown, Illinois, after a short illness, October 14, 1830.

McLean, Samuel, was elected a delegate from Montana Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,234 majority over Sanders, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 3,808 votes against 2,422 votes for Upson, Republican, serving from January 6, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

McLean, William (brother of John McLean), was born in Morris County, New Jersey; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio; was appointed receiver of public moneys at Piqua, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 179 majority over Crane; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; entered into business at Cincinnati under the firm of Reeves & McLean; died at Cincinnati October 12, 1830.

McLean, William P., was born in Hinds County, Mississippi, August 9, 1836; removed with his parents to Texas in 1839; received his early education mainly in Marshall, Texas, and graduated at the University of North Carolina (Chapel Hill) in 1857; studied law there with Judge Battle, associate judge of the Supreme Court of North Carolina; was elected to the legislature of Texas in 1861, and resigned his seat in the winter of that year to enter the Confederate army, in which he served until the close of the war; was again a member of the legislature of Texas in 1869; and was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving about 12,000 majority, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

McLene, Jeremiah, was born in 1767; received a public-school education; removed to Columbus, Ohio; was for more than twenty-one years secretary of state of Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, defeating E. B. Olds; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 2,540 votes against 1,529 votes for White, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; he died at Washington City March 19, 1837, of influenza, probably contracted at the inauguration.

McMahon, John A., was born in Frederick County, Maryland, February 19, 1833; was educated at St. Xavier's College, Cincinnati, graduating in 1849; began the study of law in January, 1851, at Dayton, with Hon. Clement L. Vallandigham; was admitted to the bar in June, 1854, and has practised at Dayton ever since; was a delegate at large to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872, and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,411 votes against 14,312 votes for L. B. Gunckel, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,557 votes against 18,461 votes for Howard, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

McManus, William, was born in Rensselaer County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; died at Troy, New York.

McMillan, Garrett, was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,885 votes against 2,318 votes for O'Neill, Republican; he died before the meeting of Congress, and the House voted three months' pay to his widow.

McMillan, Samuel J. R., was born at Brownsville, Pennsylvania, February 22, 1826; received a classical education, graduating at Duquesne College, Pittsburgh, in 1843; studied law with Edwin M. Stanton; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice at Stillwater, Minnesota, in 1852; was elected judge of the First Judicial Circuit in 1857; was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court in 1864 (to fill a vacancy); was elected and re-elected, and resigned in 1874; was appointed in 1874, and afterward re-elected, chief justice of the Supreme Court, and resigned when he was elected United-States senator from Minnesota as a Republican (to succeed Alexander Ramsey, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

McMillan, William, was born in Virginia 1760; received a classical education; graduated at William and Mary College, Virginia; studied law; removed to Fort Washington (now Cincinnati) in 1787; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected magistrate in 1790, and soon afterwards judge; was initiated into Freemasonry in Nova Cesarea Lodge, No. 10, at Cincinnati, April 8, 1795; was elected to the Territorial legislature in 1799; was elected delegate from the North-west Territory to the Sixth Congress (in the place of William Henry Harrison, resigned), and served from November 24, 1800, to March 3, 1801; declined a re-election; was appointed United-States district-attorney for Ohio, but soon afterwards resigned his office and his practice, and retired to his farm near Cincinnati, where he received a fatal injury while ploughing, and died in June, 1804.

McMullen, Fayette, was born in Virginia; received an academic education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,421 votes against 2,155 votes for George, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second and Thirty-third Congresses, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,383 votes against 3,982 votes for Trigg, American, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by President Buchanan governor of Washington Territory, serving 1857-1861; was elected a representative in the Second Confederate Congress from Virginia, serving from February 22, 1864, to the overthrow of the Confederacy.

McNair, John, was born in Pennsylvania in 1800; resided at Norristown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,925 votes against 5,199 votes for Freedley, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,168 votes against 6,336 votes for Hittner, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; died at Evansport, Virginia, August 7, 1861.

McNeely, Thompson W., was born at Jacksonville October 5, 1835; graduated at the Lombard University, Galesburg, in 1856; studied law, and came to the bar in 1857; graduated at the Law University of Louisville, Kentucky, in 1859; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Illinois in 1862; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,877 votes against 15,279 votes for Ross, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 12,691 votes against 10,297 votes for B. F. Westlake, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

McNeill, Archibald, was born in Cumberland County, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1808 and 1809, and of the State Senate in 1811 and 1815; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 345 majority over John Culpepper, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

McNulta, John, was born at New-York City November 9, 1837; received an academical education; visited the West-India islands and Europe; removed to Attica, Indiana, in 1853, and learned the trade of cigar-making; removed to Bloomington, Illinois, in 1859, and entered into the cigar-making business, devoting his leisure to the study of law; entered the Union army as private in the Ninety-fourth Illinois Infantry in April, 1861, and was successively promoted until he became its colonel, receiving the brevet of brigadier-general when mustered out at the close of the war; was admitted to the bar in October, 1865, and commenced practice at Bloomington; was a member of the State Senate 1869-1873; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,490 votes against 10,850 votes for C. H. Moore, Democrat; was defeated as the Republican candidate to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,903 votes against 11,135 votes for A. E. Stevenson, Independent Reformer.

McPherson, Edward, was born at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, July 31, 1830; received a classical education, graduating at Pennsylvania College in 1848; edited a newspaper at Harrisburg, but ill health forced him to turn his attention to agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,348 votes against 9,081 votes for Reilly, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,945 votes against 11,372 votes for Schell, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,426 votes against 10,963 votes for Coffroth, Democrat; was appointed deputy-commissioner of internal revenue in 1863; was elected clerk of the House of Representatives in the Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth, Fortieth, Forty-first, and Forty-second Congresses, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1873; was appointed by President Hayes chief of the treasury bureau of engraving and printing. He published "The Political History of the United States of America during the Great Rebellion" and a series of "Political Manuals," besides numerous essays, orations, and pamphlets.

McQueen, John, was born in Robinson County, North Carolina, in 1808; received a good education; studied law at home and in South Carolina; was admitted to the bar in 1828, and practised at Bennettsville, South Carolina; held several militia commissions during the nullification excitement of 1833-1837; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirtieth Congress (in place of Alexander D. Sims, deceased) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,155 votes against 2,488 votes for Wilson; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from February 12, 1849, to December 21, 1860, when he retired from the House; was a representative from South Carolina in the First Confederate Congress, serving from February 22, 1862, to February 21, 1864; died at Society Hill, South Carolina, August 30, 1867.

McRae, John J., was born in Wayne County, Mississippi; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected for several successive years a member of the State House of Representatives, and of the State Senate; was appointed a United-States senator from Mississippi (in place of Jefferson Davis, resigned) as a State-rights Democrat, serving from December 19, 1851, to March 17, 1852, when his successor took his seat; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-fifth Congress (in place of John A. Quitman, deceased) as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,668 votes against no opposition, serving from December 7, 1858, to January 12, 1861, when he retired from the House; was a representative from Mississippi in the First Confederate Congress, serving from February 22, 1862, to February 21, 1864; died at Balize, British Honduras, May 30, 1868.

McRoberts, Samuel, was born in Illinois; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Danville; was United-States attorney for the Illinois District; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 27, 1843; he contracted a cold in crossing the mountains on his return from a session of Congress, and died at Cincinnati March 27, 1843.

McRuer, Donald C., was born in Maine in 1826; received an academical education; removed to California; was harbor commissioner at San Francisco; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,677 votes against 14,821 votes for James B. Crockett, Democrat, and serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

McSherry, James, was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania; was for twenty successive years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; died at Littlestown, Pennsylvania, February 3, 1849.

McVean, Charles, was born at Johnstown, New York, in 1802; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Canajoharie, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; removed to the city of New York; was appointed surrogate January 24, 1844; was United-States attorney for the Southern District of New York; died at New York December 20, 1848.

McWillie, William, was born in Kershaw District, South Carolina, November 17, 1795; served in the war of 1812 as adjutant of the regiment of volunteers commanded by his father; graduated at South-Carolina College in 1817; studied law with Chapman Levy; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Camden, South Carolina, continuing until October 1, 1836, when he was elected president of the Bank of Camden; was a member of the State Senate 1836-1840; removed to Mississippi in September, 1845; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,406 votes against 6,829 votes for Gray, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,241 votes against 7,774 votes for Freeman, Union; was governor of the State of Mississippi 1858-1860; was an active supporter of the Confederacy; died at Kirkwood, Mississippi, March 3, 1869.

Mace, Daniel, was born in Pickaway County, Ohio, September 5, 1811; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lafayette, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was clerk of the State House of Representatives in 1837; was United-States attorney for the district of Indiana 1849-1853; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,552 votes against 7,294 votes for Brier, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,740 votes against 7,337 votes for Gregory, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,357 votes against 7,838 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by President Lincoln postmaster at Lafayette, Indiana; died by suicide at Lafayette, Indiana, July 26, 1857.

Machen, Willis B., was born in Caldwell County, Kentucky, April 10, 1810; received a public-school education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1849; was a member of the State Senate in 1854; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856 and 1860; was a representative from Kentucky in the First Congress of the Confederate States, and was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from February 22, 1862, to April, 1864; was appointed a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of Garrett Davis, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1872, to March 3, 1873.

Machir, James, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from that State in the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; died June 25, 1827.

Mackey, Edmund W. M., was born at Charleston, South Carolina, March 8, 1846; received a classical education, but was prevented by the war from entering college; studied law, and was admitted to the bar November 22, 1865; was appointed assistant assessor of internal revenue in the Second District of South Carolina September 8, 1865; was elected a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected sheriff of Charleston County June 2 and 3, 1868, for the term of four years; was elected an alderman of the city of Charleston in November, 1868, and re-elected in October, 1873; was appointed by the governor, January 24, 1872, colonel of the Fifteenth Regiment National Guards of South Carolina; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia June, 1872; was a delegate to every Republican State Convention held in South Carolina since the organization of the party in that State; was elected, in November, 1873, a member of the State House of Representatives; was editor and proprietor of "The Charleston Republican" during 1871-1872; and was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Forty-fourth Congress as an Independent Republican, receiving 16,742 votes against 14,204 votes for Charles W. Buttz, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to July 19, 1876, when his seat was declared vacant by the House.

Mackey, L. A., was born in White-Deer Township, Pennsylvania, November 25, 1819; when ten years of age he removed with his parents to Milton, Pennsylvania; received an academic education under Rev. David Kirkpatrick, and graduated from Union College, Schenectady, in 1837, with the highest honors of a class of one hundred and eight, of which he was the youngest member; studied law with Ex-Governor James Pollock, and then at the law-school of Dickinson College at Carlisle, where he was admitted to the bar in 1849; commenced practice at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, in 1841, and continued it with success until 1855, when, upon the organization of the Lock-Haven Bank, he was elected its first president; was a delegate to the Whig National Convention at Baltimore which nominated General Scott in 1852; was the Democratic candidate for Congress in 1868, but was defeated by W. H. Armstrong; was the first mayor of Lock Haven on its organization as a city in 1870; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was president of the Bald-Eagle-Valley Railroad Company, and of several other corporations; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,140 votes against 8,637 votes for Cyrus J. Alexander, Independent Democrat and Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,229 votes against 11,193 votes for J. S. Lincoln, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Maclanahan, James X., was born at Antrim,

Pennsylvania, in 1809; received a classical education, graduating at Dickinson College in 1826; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Chambersburg; was a member of the State Senate in 1841; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,182 votes against 8,015 votes for J. E. Brady, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,276 votes against 6,705 votes for Bard, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; died at Chambersburg in 1864.

Maclay, Samuel, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania, serving from October 17, 1803, to 1808, when he resigned.

Maclay, William, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was a presidential elector on the Jefferson ticket; died in April, 1804.

Maclay, William, was born August 4, 1766; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was associate judge; was county-commissioner; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; died January 4, 1825.

Maclay, William Brown, was born at New York in 1815; received a classical education, graduating at the University of New York, where he was afterwards professor of Latin; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York; was associate editor of "The New-York Quarterly Review" in 1836; was defeated as a candidate for the State House of Representatives in 1838, but was elected in 1839, 1841, and 1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,549 votes against 4,777 votes for Williams, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,783 votes against 6,428 votes for Lawrence, American; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 4,749 votes against 4,057 votes for Williams, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,863 votes against 3,274 votes for Andrews, Republican, and 3,798 votes for Northrup, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,789 votes against 4,982 votes for Hamilton, Republican, and 821 votes for Dean, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Maclay, William P., was born in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of Thomas Burnside, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1816, to March 3, 1821.

Macon, Nathaniel, was born in Warren County, North Carolina, in 1757; received a classical education, and was at Princeton College, but left before graduating, when the exercises were suspended at the commencement of the Revolutionary war; was tendered a lieutenant's commission in a company commanded by his brother, but declined it, and served as a private; was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina in 1783, 1781, 1782, 1784, and 1785; was elected a representative in the Second Congress as a Democrat, and was successively re-elected eleven times, generally without opposition, ending with the Thirteenth Congress; was elected United-States senator in 1815, and re-elected until he declined in 1828, serving from October 24, 1791, until March 3, 1815, — thirty-seven years' continuous service; was speaker of the House of Representatives from 1801 until 1806, and president pro tempore of the Senate in 1825, 1826, and 1827; received the twenty-four electoral votes of Virginia for Vice-President in 1824; was president of the Constitutional Convention of North Carolina in 1835; was chosen a presidential elector on the Van Buren and Johnson ticket in 1837; was, through his political career of fifty-seven years, a "strict, severe, and stringent" Democrat; and died suddenly at his farm in Warren County, North Carolina, June 29, 1837.

Macy, John B., received a public-school education; removed to Wisconsin, and resided at Fond du Lac; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,597 votes against 9,513 votes for Shafter, Whig, and 2,168 votes for McKee, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,596 votes against 13,359 votes for Charles Billingshurst, Republican; was lost by the burning of the steamer "Niagara" on Lake Michigan September 24, 1856.

Madison, James, was born at Port Conway, on the Rappahannock River, in Virginia, March 16, 1751; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1771; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was a member of the Virginia House of Representatives in 1776; was a member of the Executive Council of Virginia in 1778; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1780-1783 and 1786-1788; was a delegate to the Convention which framed the Federal Constitution in 1787; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Congress as a Democrat, and re-elected to the Second, Third, and Fourth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1797; was secretary of state of the United States 1801-1809; was President of the United States March 4, 1809-March 3, 1817; retired to his farm at Montpelier, Virginia, where he died June 28, 1833. His works have been published by Congress in six volumes. His "Reports of the Debates in the Convention of 1787" was published under the editorial direction of H. D. Gilpin. A "Life of Madison" by John Quincy Adams was published in 1850, and a "Life and Times of Madison" was published by William C. Rives in 1859-1868.

Magee, John, was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Bath; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; died at Watkins, New York, April 5, 1838.

Magee, John A., was born at Landisburg, Pennsylvania, October 14, 1827; learned the art of printing; worked in the city of Washington as a journeyman in 1853; was for twenty years the editor and proprietor of "The Perry-County Democrat;" was a member of the legislature of Pennsylvania in 1863, a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at New York in 1868, and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,353 votes against 13,532 votes for W. A. Sponsler, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Maginnis, Martin, was born in Wayne County, New York, October 27, 1849; removed with his parents to Minnesota at an early age; received an academic education, and was a student of Hamline University, but left to take charge of a Democratic newspaper; enlisted as a private in the First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry on the 18th of April, 1861; was made second lieutenant after the first battle of Bull Run, promoted to first lieutenant in September, 1862, and to captain in July, 1863; served in the line of his regiment in all the campaigns and nearly all the battles of the Army of the Potomac until September, 1864, when he was appointed major of the Eleventh Minnesota Volunteers, and ordered to join the Army of the Cumberland, where he served, under command of General Thomas, until mustered out with his regiment in July, 1865; he removed to Montana the next year; engaged in mining, and subsequently in publishing and editing "The Helena Daily Gazette," in which he was occupied when elected a delegate from Montana in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,515 votes against 4,196 votes for W. H. Clagett, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 4,544 votes against 3,925 votes for Hodges, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 3,827 votes against 2,980 votes for E. D. Leavitt, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Magoon, Henry S., was born at Monticello, Wisconsin, January 31, 1832; was educated at the Rock-river Seminary at Mount Morris, Illinois, and at the Western Military College at Drennon, Kentucky, graduating from the last-named institution with the highest honors of his class June 23, 1853; attended the Montrose Law School at Frankfort, Kentucky; was appointed in 1855 professor of ancient languages in the Nashville University, Tennessee, where he remained until 1857, when, resigning, he returned to Wisconsin, and began the practice of law; was elected district-attorney in 1858; was a member of the State Senate of Wisconsin in 1871 and 1872; he was the first native of Wisconsin elected either to the State Senate or to Congress; and he was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,535 votes against 10,343 votes for Charles F. Thompson, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Magruder, Allan B., was born in Kentucky; received an academical education; studied law at Lexington; was admitted to the bar, and practised; removed to Louisiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana as a Democrat, serving from November 18, 1812, to March 3, 1813; died at Opelousas, Louisiana, April 16, 1822. He published "Reflections on the Cession of Louisiana" and "A Character of Mr. Jefferson;" and, at the time of his death, he had collected materials for a "History of the North-American Indians."

Magruder, Patrick, was born in Montgomery County, Maryland, in 1768; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was clerk of the United-States House of Representatives, and ex-officio librarian of Congress, 1807-1815; died at Petersburg, Virginia, December 24, 1819.

Maish, Levi, was born in Conewago Township, Pennsylvania, November 22, 1837; was educated at common schools, and subsequently at the York-county Academy, working on a farm when not at his studies; was apprenticed in 1854 to a machinist, and remained with him two years; recruited a company for the Union army in 1862, and with it joined the One Hundred and Thirtieth Pennsylvania Infantry, of which he was soon promoted to be lieutenant-colonel; he was wounded at the battle of Antietam; was promoted colonel after the battle of Fredericksburg, and was again wounded while leading his regiment at the battle of Chancellorsville; after having been mustered out with his regiment at the expiration of its term of service, he attended lectures in the law-department of the University of Pennsylvania, and was admitted to the bar in 1864; he was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1867 and 1868; was appointed by the legislature in 1872 one of the commission to re-examine and re-audit the accounts of certain public officers of York County; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,534 votes against 7,252 votes for Hiram S. McNair, Republican, and 2,988 votes for W. McConkey, Independent Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,932 votes against 13,898 votes for C. H. Bressler, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Malbone, Francis, was born in Rhode Island; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Third Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1800, to June 4, 1809, when he died at Washington City.

Mallary, Rollin C., was born at New Haven, Connecticut, in 1784; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1805; resided at Poultney, Vermont; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Sixteenth Congress (having successfully contested the election of Orasmus C. Merrill); was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth (receiving 3,132 majority), Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from January 14, 1820, to March 3, 1831; died at Baltimore, Maryland, April 16, 1831.

Mallory, Francis, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; resided at Hampton; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses without opposition, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was appointed navy agent at Norfolk November 1, 1850; died at Norfolk, Virginia, March 26, 1860.

Mallory, Meredith, was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Hammondsport, New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,438 votes against 5,182 votes for Thomas A. Johnson, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Mallory, Robert, was born in Madison County, Virginia, November 15, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1827; removed to the vicinity of La Grange, Kentucky, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving 6,416 votes against 5,675 votes for Bell, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,035 votes against 2,862 votes for Bruce, Secession; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 6,257 votes against 2,477 votes for Wolfe, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Conservative candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 4,704 votes against 5,751 votes for Lovell H. Rousseau, Union, and 173 votes for Munday, Conservative; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; was a vice-president of the Centennial Exhibition in 1876-1876.

Mallory, Rufus, was born at Coventry, New York, January 10, 1831; received an academic education; removed in 1855 to Iowa, and in 1858 to Oregon; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1860, and practised at Salem; was district-attorney of the First Judicial District in 1860, and of the Third Judicial District from 1862 until 1866; was a member of the State legislature of Oregon in 1862; and was elected a representative from Oregon in the Fortieth Congress as a Union Republican by a majority of 600 over Fay, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Mallory, Stephen R., was born at Trinidad in 1810 on the vessel of his father, a sea-captain from Bridgeport, Connecticut; his father died at Key West in 1821, and his mother opened a hotel there; he was educated in Connecticut and New York; studied law at Key West; was admitted to the bar there in 1833, and practised; was appointed by President Jackson inspector of customs at Key West; was made county and probate judge for Monroe County; was appointed by President Polk collector at Key West in 1845; was elected a United-States senator from Florida as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to January 21, 1861, when he retired from the Senate on the secession of Florida; was appointed by President Davis secretary of the navy of the Confederate States; was arrested after the surrender at Appomattox, and imprisoned in Fort Lafayette on a charge of treason, but was soon released; resumed practice at Pensacola; died at Pensacola of gout November 9, 1873.

Mangum, Willie Person, was born in Orange County, North Carolina, in 1792; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Red Mountain; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1818; was elected a judge of the Superior Court; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Eighteenth Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,523 votes against 1,720 votes for Barringer; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 56 majority over Crudup, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 18, 1826, when he resigned; was again elected a judge of the Superior Court; was elected a United-States senator from North Carolina as a Whig, serving from December 5, 1831, to 1836, when he resigned; declined being a candidate for the House of Representatives July 6, 1837; was again elected a senator (in place of Bedford Brown, resigned), serving from December 9, 1840, to March 3, 1853; he retired to his rural home; the loss of his only son, who was mortally wounded in the Confederate ranks at the first battle of Bull Run, caused a mental depression, and he died at Red Mountain, North Carolina, September 14, 1861.

Mann, Abijah, jun., was born at Fairfield, Herkimer County, New York, September 24, 1793; received a public-school education; taught school; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was justice of the peace, and postmaster; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1827-1830; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was again elected to the State House of Representatives in 1837; removed to New-York City; died at Auburn, New York, September 6, 1868.

Mann, Horace, was born at Franklin, Massachusetts, May 4, 1796; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1819, and remaining there two years as tutor of Greek and Latin; studied law at Litchfield, Connecticut; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Dedham, Massachusetts, in 1826; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1828, 1829, 1830, and 1831; was a commissioner for revising the Statutes of Massachusetts in 1835; removed to Boston in 1836; was a State senator in 1836-1838, and president of the Senate; was secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Education 1837-1848, publishing twelve successive annual reports, which gave him a high position among teachers; was elected a representative from Massachusetts (to fill the vacancy in the Thirtieth Congress occasioned by the death of John Quincy Adams) as a Whig, receiving 4,254 votes against 1,839 votes for Whittaker, Democrat, and 1,065 scattering votes; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Free-Soiler, receiving 6,902 votes against 4,374 votes for S. H. Walley, Whig, 2,362 votes for E. K. Whittaker, Democrat, and 50 scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress as a Free-Soiler, receiving 6,679 of the 13,310 votes cast, serving from April 13, 1848, until March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Free-soil candidate for governor in 1852, receiving 35,880 votes against 61,222 votes for Clifford, Whig, and 38,626 votes for Bishop, Democrat; was elected president of Antioch College, Ohio, in 1853, and occupied the position until he died at Yellow Springs, Ohio, August 2, 1859.

Mann, James, was born at Gorham, Maine, in 1822; was a member of the State Senate; was treasurer of Cumberland County; was an officer in the Custom House at Portland; entered the Union army as captain of volunteer infantry, and became paymaster; was stationed at New Orleans; was appointed by President Lincoln treasury agent for Louisiana; took an active part in 1867 in re-organizing the Democratic party in Louisiana; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Fortieth Congress, serving from July 18, 1868, to his death at New Orleans August 26, 1868.

Mann, Job, was born in Bethel Township, Pennsylvania, March 31, 1795; received a public-school education; was appointed clerk to the county commissioners in 1816; was register, recorder, and clerk of the courts of Bedford County 1818-1835; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,156 votes against 5,105 votes for Charles Ogle, Whig; was admitted to the bar in 1839; was State treasurer 1842-1848; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 9,143 votes against 6,330 votes for Livergood, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851.

Mann, Joel K., was born in Pennsylvania in 1780; received a public-school education; resided at Jenkintown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; died in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, September 5, 1857.

Mann, W. D., was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican; a majority of the Committee on Elections reported that he was entitled to a seat, but such was the opposition that no vote was taken on the resolution, although on the last day of the session he was voted $2,000 for compensation, mileage, and expenses.

Manning, James, was born at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, October 22, 1738; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1762; studied theology, and became famous as a Baptist preacher; removed to Warren, Rhode Island, in 1764, to take charge of the college established there by the Baptists, which in 1770 was removed to Providence, and was named Brown University in 1804; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress in 1786; resigned the presidency of Brown University in 1791, and the pastorate of the First Baptist Church in Providence (which he had held since 1770) in April, 1791; died at Providence, Rhode Island, July 29, 1791. The "Life of James Manning" was published by R. A. Guild in 1864.

Manning, John, jun., was born at Edenton, North Carolina, July 3, 1830; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1853, and commenced practice at Pittsborough, North Carolina; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1861; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-first Congress (in place of John T. Deweese, resigned) as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 323 votes over Holden, Republican, and serving from December 7, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Manning, Richard Irvine, was born in Sumter District, South Carolina, May 1, 1789; received a classical education, graduating at the State College at Columbia in 1811; served in the war of 1812 as captain of a volunteer company raised for the defence of Charleston; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822; was governor of South Carolina 1824-1826; was defeated as the Union candidate for Congress; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of James Blair, deceased) as a Union Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 8, 1834, to May 1, 1836, when he died at Philadelphia, where he had gone for medical advice.

Manning, Van H., was born in Martin County, North Carolina, July 26, 1839; removed to Mississippi in 1841; received a classical education at Horn-Lake Male Academy, De Soto County, Mississippi, and at the University of Nashville; removed to Arkansas in 1860; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; served in the Confederate army as captain and subsequently as colonel of the Third Arkansas Infantry and Second Arkansas Battalion in General Lee's army; was captured in the second battle of the Wilderness, and remained a prisoner until the close of the war; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,329 votes against 12,598 votes for Thomas Walton, Republican.

Manson, Mahlon D., was born at Piqua, Ohio, February 20, 1820; received a common-school education; studied the profession of druggist, and settled at Crawfordsville, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851-1852; was captain in the Fifth Indiana Volunteers during the Mexican war; enlisted as a private on the breaking out of the Rebellion, and became colonel of the Tenth Indiana Infantry, which he commanded at the battle of Rich Mountain in July, 1861; commanded the Second Brigade, First Division, Army of the Ohio, at the battle of Mill Springs, Kentucky, in January, 1862; was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers in March, 1862, and was engaged in skirmishes in front of Corinth, Mississippi; commanded the United-States forces at the battle of Richmond, Kentucky, August, 1862; was wounded and taken prisoner, and exchanged in December, 1862; commanded in a skirmish with Pegram in March, 1863, and during the Morgan raid in Indiana and Ohio in July, 1863; was with Burnside in East Tennessee; was assigned, in September, 1863, to the command of the Twenty-third Army Corps; was in the siege of Knoxville, Tennessee, and various battles in that State; was severely wounded at the battle of Resaca, and was forced to resign by reason of disabilities resulting from wounds contracted in the service; was candidate for lieutenant-governor on the Democratic ticket in 1864, and for secretary of state; and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,539 votes against 15,146 votes for L. Wallace, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,730 votes against 17,929 votes for Thomas J. Cason, Republican.

Marable, John H., was born in Brunswick County, Virginia; received an academical education; removed to Tennessee, and settled at Yellow Creek; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Nineteenth Congress, defeating Reynolds; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-first Congress by Cave Johnson.

Marchand, Albert G., was born at Greensburg, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,801 votes against 3,786 votes for Joseph Markle, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 2,208 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; died at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, February 5, 1848.

Marchand, David, was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821.

Marchant, Henry, was born at Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts, April 9, 1741; received a classical education, graduating at Philadelphia College in 1762; studied law under Judge Trowbridge at Cambridge; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Newport, Rhode Island; was attorney-general of Rhode Island 1770-1777; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress, serving 1777-1780 and 1783-1784; was a member of the State Convention to adopt the Federal Constitution; was judge of the United-States Court for the district of Rhode Island 1790-1796; died at Newport, Rhode Island, August 30, 1796.

Marcy, Daniel, was born in New Hampshire November 7, 1809; received a public-school education; went to sea before the mast when twelve years of age, and became master of a ship when he was twenty; was a member of the New-Hampshire House of Representatives 1853-1854; was a member of the State Senate 1856-1857; engaged in mercantile pursuits and ship-building; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,059 votes against 11,979 votes for Eastman, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,190 votes against 12,906 votes for Gilman Marston, Republican; was a member of the State Senate and House of Representatives; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor in 1776 and 1777.

Marcy, William Learned, was born at Sturbridge, Massachusetts, December 12, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1808; taught school at Newport, Rhode Island; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice at Troy, New York; commanded a volunteer company in the war of 1812, and distinguished himself at the battle of St. Regis; was recorder of Troy in 1816; edited "The Troy Budget;" was adjutant-general of New York in 1821; was state comptroller in 1823; was associate justice of the State Supreme Court in 1829; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to July, 1832, when he resigned; was governor of the State of New York 1833-1839; was a commissioner on Mexican claims 1839-1842; was secretary of war under President Polk March 5, 1845-March 3, 1849; was secretary of state under President Pierce March 7, 1853-March 4, 1857; died at Ballston Spa, New York, July 4, 1857.

Mardis, Samuel W., was born in Alabama in 1801; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 889 majority over J. W. Garth, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, defeating Baylor, Nullifier, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; died at Talladega, Alabama, December 2, 1836.

Marion, Robert, was born in South Carolina; received an academical education; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Tenth and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to December 4, 1811, when he resigned.

Markell, Henry, was born in Montgomery County, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as an Adams Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; died at Palatine, New York.

Markell, Jacob, was born in Schenectady County, New York, May 8, 1770; received a public-school education; located at Manheim, New York, and devoted his life to agricultural pursuits; was for twenty years a supervisor, and for many years a county-judge; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820; died at Manheim, New York, November 26, 1852.

Markley, Philip S., was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; resided at Norristown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twentieth Congress by John B. Sterigere; was appointed by President Jackson naval officer for the port of Philadelphia.

Marks, William, was born in 1780, and taken when a child to Beaver, Pennsylvania, by his father, who was a pioneer; received scanty education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1810-1819, and of the State Senate 1820-1827, serving the last six years as presiding officer; was elected to the United-States Senate as a Democrat, and served from December 3, 1827, until March 3, 1833; was a warm personal friend of Colonel Benton (they were about the same age, died on the same day, and within a few hours of each other); he died at Beaver, Pennsylvania, April 10, 1858.

Marquette, Turner M., was born in Ohio; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Plattsmouth, Nebraska, in 1856; was elected for several successive years a member of the Territorial House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Nebraska in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 4,280 votes against 4,072 votes for J. M. Brooke, Democrat, and took his seat after the admission of the State, serving from March 2, 1867, to March 3, 1867, — one day.

Marr, Alan, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1807; resided at Danville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

Marr, George W. L., received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Marsh, Benjamin F., resided at Warsaw, Illinois; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,252 votes against 13,496 votes for John H. Hunsate, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Marsh, Charles, was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, July 10, 1765, but removed with his father's family to Vermont before the Revolution; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Woodstock, Vermont; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 17,719 votes against 16,969 votes for James Fisk, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was one of the founders of the American Colonization Society; died at Woodstock, Vermont, January 11, 1840.

Marsh, George Perkins, was born at Woodstock, Vermont, March 15, 1801; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Burlington, Vermont; was a member of the State legislature and Executive Council in 1835; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,254 votes against 4,595 votes for Smith, Democrat, 718 votes for French, Abolitionist, and 133 votes scattered; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 916 majority; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,644 votes against 3,207 votes for Hubbell, Democrat, and 1,614 Abolition and scattering, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,372 votes against 4,252 votes for Peck, Van Buren Democrat, and 1,176 votes for Keyes, Cass Democrat; resigned in 1849, having never taken his seat; was appointed minister resident to Turkey 1842-1853, and the last year was charged with a special mission to Greece; was fish commissioner of Vermont in 1857; was railroad commissioner of Vermont 1857-1859; was appointed in 1861 minister resident to Italy, and has since held the position. Has published "The Goths in New England," "Lectures on the English Language," "Man and Nature," and numerous essays and magazine articles.

Marshall, Alexander K., was born in Kentucky; resided at Nicholasville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 7,039 votes against 5,536 votes for Harrison, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Marshall, Alfred, resided at China, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1827, 1828, 1834, and 1835; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, receiving 2,100 majority over Sanford A. Kingsbury, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was collector of the port of Belfast 1846-1849.

Marshall, Edward C., was born in Kentucky; removed to California, and settled at Sonora; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 23,624 votes against 20,437 votes for Kewen, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Marshall, Humphrey, was born in Virginia in 1730; received a public-school education; removed to Kentucky; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1801; died at Lexington, Kentucky, July 1, 1841. He published a "History of Kentucky" 1812, which was enlarged and reprinted in 1824.

Marshall, Humphrey, was born at Frankfort, Kentucky, January 13, 1812; received a military education at West Point, graduating in 1828; was commissioned as lieutenant in the Mounted Rangers, and subsequently in the First Dragoons, but resigned April 30, 1833; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Louisville, Kentucky; was an active officer of the State militia; served in the Mexican war; was a colonel of the First Kentucky Cavalry, distinguishing himself at Buena Vista; returned home, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,281 votes against 6,197 votes for Lane, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,333 votes against 6,216 votes for Meriwether, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to August 4, 1852, when he resigned, having been appointed minister to China, where he remained until January 27, 1854; was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a National American, receiving 6,932 votes against 4,378 votes for Preston, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,055 votes against 4,979 votes for Holt, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; was a brigadier-general in the Confederate service; died at Louisville, Kentucky, 1871.

Marshall, John (uncle of John Marshall), was born at Germantown, Virginia, September 24, 1755; served in the Revolutionary war as lieutenant and captain; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1781, and commenced practice at Richmond; was a delegate to the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was minister to France June 5, 1797-April 3, 1798; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to 1800, when he resigned; was appointed by President Adams secretary of state May 13, 1800; was appointed chief justice of the United States January 31, 1801, and served until his death at Philadelphia July 6, 1835. He published "The Life of Washington" 1805, "History of the Colonies Planted by the English in North America" 1824. His legal decisions on the Virginia and North-Carolina circuits were published in 1837.

Marshall, Samuel S., was born in Gallatin County, Illinois, in 1824; studied and practised law; was a member of the legislature of the State of Illinois in 1847; was State's attorney in 1847 and 1848; was a judge of the Circuit Court from 1851 to 1854, and again from 1861 to 1864; was a delegate for the State at large to the Charleston and Baltimore Conventions of 1860, the Chicago Convention of 1864, and the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; received the vote of the Democratic party for United-States senator in Illinois in 1861, and for speaker of the Fortieth Congress in 1867; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,498 votes against 2,911 votes for Turney, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,968 votes against 3,419 votes for Wiley, Republican, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 16,703 votes against 10,696 votes for E. Callahan, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 16,608 votes against 14,378 votes for Kitchell, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 20,475 votes against 16,642 votes for Martin, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 15,571 votes against 14,444 votes for W. H. Robinson, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,297 votes against 11,282 votes for G. B. Raum, Republican; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,556 votes against 8,293 votes for W. B. Anderson, Independent Reformer, and 5,482 votes for G. B. Raum, Republican.

Marshall, Thomas Alexander (son of Humphrey Marshall), was born near Versailles, Kentucky, January 15, 1794; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1816; commenced practice at Frankfort, and removed in 1819 to Paris, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 381 majority, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress by Richard French, Democrat; was nominated and confirmed as judge of the Court of Appeals in April, 1835, and held the position until 1856, acting a part of the time as chief justice; was a professor in the Transylvania Law School 1836-1849; removed to Chicago in 1856, and practised there for nearly a year, when he returned to Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1863; was chief justice of the Court of Appeals 1866-1867; resided at Versailles; became a drunkard, dependent upon charity for his food; and died suddenly at Louisville, Kentucky, April 17, 1871. His speeches were edited and published by W. L. Barre 1858.

Marshall, Thomas Francis (nephew of John Marshall), was born at Frankfort, Kentucky, June 7, 1801; received a classical education, completing his studies in Virginia, but lost his health; commenced the study of law, when twenty-five years of age, with John J. Crittenden; was admitted to the bar in 1828, and commenced practice at Versailles; attended the debates of the Virginia Convention in 1829; was a member of the State legislature in 1832-1836; removed to Louisville in 1833; was defeated as an Independent candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by W. J. Graves, Whig, by over 2,000 majority; returned to Versailles in 1837; was elected to the State legislature, but refused a seat, as being ineligible for want of a year's residence; was a member of the State legislature in 1838 and 1839, refusing to be a candidate in 1840; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig without opposition; declined a re-election, but ran in 1845 as an Independent Whig, and was defeated by Garrett Davis, Whig, by 716 votes; served in the war against Mexico as captain in Colonel Humphrey Marshall's regiment of Kentucky volunteer cavalry 1846, 1847; was defeated as a candidate for the Kentucky Constitutional Convention; was again elected to the State legislature in 1854; removed to Chicago in 1856; and died near Versailles, Kentucky, September 22, 1864.

Marston, Gilman, was born at Oxford, New Hampshire, August 20, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1837; studied law at the Dane Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Exeter; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1845-1849; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,839 votes against 12,082 votes for Marcy, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 13,055 votes against 11,642 votes for Marcy, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; served in the Union army as colonel of the Second New-Hampshire, and as brigadier-general after November 29, 1862, distinguishing himself in numerous engagements, in one of which he was severely wounded; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,906 votes against 10,190 votes for Marcy, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was appointed governor of Idaho in 1870, but declined; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,881 votes against 13,924 votes for Frank Jones, Democrat.

Martin, Alexander, was born in New Jersey in 1740; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1756; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in North Carolina in 1772; was a member of the Colonial Assembly; served in the Revolutionary war as colonel of a North-Carolina regiment of the line, and was in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown; was a member of the State Senate 1779-1782, 1785-1787, and 1788; was governor of North Carolina 1782-1785 and 1789-1792; was a delegate to the convention to adopt the Federal Constitution; was elected a United-States senator from North Carolina, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1799; died at Danbury, North Carolina, November, 1807.

Martin, Barclay, was born in South Carolina; received an academical education; removed to Tennessee, and settled at Columbia; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Martin, Benjamin F., was born in Marion County, Virginia, October 2, 1828; lived and worked upon a farm until he was twenty-one years of age; was educated at Alleghany College, Meadville, Pennsylvania, where he graduated in June, 1854; taught school at Fairmount, Marion County, for eighteen months; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in March, 1856, removing in the following November to Pruntytown, where he has since resided; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of West Virginia in 1872; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872, and voted against the nomination of Mr. Greeley, but yielded him active and earnest support in the campaign; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 18,153 votes against 14,283 votes for Ward H. Lamon, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Martin, Charles D., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,723 votes against 9,446 votes for Van Voorhees, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,275 votes against 11,965 votes for V. B. Horton, Republican.

Martin, Elbert S., was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-sixth Congress as an Independent Democrat, receiving 6,382 votes against 5,579 votes for Floyd, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Martin, Frederick S., was born in Rutland County, Vermont, April 25, 1794; received a public-school education; was a sailor on Lake Champlain, and afterwards on the seas; settled at Olean, New York, as a trader and hotel-keeper; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1850; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,210 votes against 6,549 votes for Waite, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Martin, James S., was born in Scott County, Virginia, August 19, 1826; received a common-school education; removed to Salem, Illinois, with his parents, in 1846; served as a non-commissioned officer in the war with Mexico; was elected clerk of the Marion-county Court in 1849, and held the position for twelve years; studied and practised law; was a member of the Republican State Central Committee for a number of years; entered the Union army as colonel in 1862, and was brevetted brigadier-general; was elected county-judge of Marion County at the close of the war; was appointed pension-agent in 1868, but resigned the same on being elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,266 votes against 12,016 votes for S. L. Bryant, Democrat and Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Martin, John P., was born in Lee County, Virginia, October 11, 1811; received an academical education; removed to Kentucky in 1828, and settled at Prestonburg; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841 and 1842; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,074 votes against 3,658 votes for Adams, Whig, and 3,240 votes for McKee, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was a member of the State Senate of Kentucky in 1857.

Martin, Joshua L., received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in North Alabama; was judge of the Circuit Court; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was chancellor of Middle Alabama; was governor of Alabama 1845-1847, during which time the seat of the State Government was transferred to Montgomery; and died at Tuscaloosa November 2, 1856.

Martin, Luther, was born at New Brunswick, New Jersey, in 1741; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1766; taught school for several years at Queenstown, Maryland; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1771, and commenced practice in Accomack and adjacent counties of Virginia; was a member of the Annapolis Convention; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1784-1785; was appointed attorney-general of Maryland February 11, 1778; was a defender of Judge Chase when impeached in 1804, and of Aaron Burr when tried for treason in 1807; was appointed chief justice of the Court of Oyer and Terminer in 1814; was again appointed attorney-general of Maryland in 1818; died at New York July 10, 1826. He published a "Defence of Captain Cresup from the Charge of Murder, made in Jefferson's 'Notes on Virginia,'" and several political pamphlets.

Martin, Morgan L., was born in New York; removed to Green Bay, Wisconsin Territory; was elected a delegate from Wisconsin Territory in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 959 majority over Collins, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Martin, Robert N., was born in Dorchester County, Maryland; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 234 majority over John S. Spence, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

Martin, William D., was born at Martintown, South Carolina, October 20, 1789; received an academical education; studied law; attended a course of lectures at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar in November, 1811, and commenced practice at Edgefield Court House, removing in 1813 to Coosawhatchie; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816, 1817, and 1818; was clerk of the State Senate 1818-1826; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twentieth Congress as a State-rights Democrat, receiving 307 majority over Andrew R. Govan; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress without opposition, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; was elected a judge of the Circuit Court of Law; removed to Columbia; and died suddenly at night in Jones's Hotel, Charleston, South Carolina, November 17, 1833.

Martindale, Henry C., was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts, May 6, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College in 1800; removed to New York, and settled at Sandy Hill; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1831; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; died at Sandy Hill, New York, April 22, 1860.

Marvin, Dudley, was born at Lyme, Connecticut, May 6, 1786; received an academic education at the Colchester Seminary; removed to Canandaigua, New York, where he studied law with John Gregg; was admitted to the bar in 1807, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress as an Adams Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, and again to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; removed to the city of New York in 1835, and again to Ripley in 1845; was again elected a representative in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; resumed practice, and died at Ripley June 25, 1856.

Marvin, James M., was born at Ballston, New York, February 27, 1809; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846; was a county-supervisor for three terms; became the proprietor of a large hotel at Saratoga Springs; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,096 votes against 12,582 votes for Blood, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 14,453 votes against 13,572 votes for Alonzo C. Paige, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,496 votes against 12,342 votes for Horton, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Marvin, Richard Pratt, was born in New York; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Jamestown; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,053 votes against 5,198 votes for Charles H. S. Williams, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was elected a judge of the State Supreme Court for eight years June 7, 1847; was re-elected November 6, 1855; and was again re-elected November 3, 1863.

Mason, Armistead Thomson, was born in Loudon County, Virginia, in 1785; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; engaged in agricultural pursuits; served in the war of 1812 as a colonel of Virginia volunteers; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of William B. Giles, resigned), serving from January 22, 1816, to March 3, 1817; was defeated as a candidate for the Fifteenth Congress by Charles F. Mercer, and contested the seat without success; challenged his brother-in-law, John M. McCarty, and they fought near Washington City with muskets; he received a ball through his breast on the first fire, and died February 6, 1819.

Mason, George, was born at Doeg's Neck, Fairfax County, Virginia, in 1726; received an academical education; took a leading part in pre-Revolutionary measures; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress in 1777; was a member of the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution in 1787; was elected United-States senator from Virginia, but declined, and devoted the rest of his life to study and to hunting and fishing; died at Gunston Hall October 7, 1792.

Mason, James B., was born in Rhode Island in 1774; received a classical education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and practised at Charleston, South Carolina; after remaining there three years, he returned to Rhode Island, and entered into business at Providence with his father-in-law, John Brown; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and, during the latter part of the time, its speaker; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; died at Providence, Rhode Island, September 6, 1819.

Mason, James M., was born on Anolatan Island, Virginia (near Washington), November 3, 1798; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania in 1818; studied law at William and Mary College; was admitted to the bar in 1820, and commenced practice at Winchester; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1820-1832; was a presidential elector on the Jackson ticket in 1833; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Isaac S. Pennybacker, deceased), serving from January 25, 1847, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate from Virginia to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States; was appointed by President Davis commissioner from the Confederate States to Great Britain; was captured on the voyage there, brought to Boston, imprisoned in Fort Warren, and released; when he returned home he found that his residence at Winchester had been burned, and he located near Alexandria, where he died April 28, 1871.

Mason, Jeremiah, was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, April 27, 1768; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1788; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1791; commenced practice at Westmoreland; removed to Walpole in 1794, and to Portsmouth in 1797; was appointed attorney-general of New Hampshire in 1802; was a member of the State House of Representatives several sessions; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire (in place of Charles Cutts, appointed pro tempore), serving from June 21, 1813, to 1817, when he resigned; was again a member of the State House of Representatives; removed to Boston in 1832, and practised there until he became seventy years of age; died at Boston October 14, 1848.

Mason, John C., was born in Kentucky; resided at Owensville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 6,882 votes against 6,164 votes for John B. Houston, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,495 votes against 2,251 votes for Montgomery, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,148 votes against 7,534 votes for Cox, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; declined being a candidate for re-election.

Mason, John Thomson, was born at Montpelier, Maryland, May 9, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1836; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1838, and commenced practice at Hagerstown, Maryland; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1838-1839; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was a judge of the Court of Appeals 1851-1857, when he resigned; was appointed by President Buchanan collector of customs at Baltimore, serving 1857-1861; removed to Annapolis, and died there March 28, 1873.

Mason, John Y., was born at Greensville, Virginia, April 13, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1816; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hicksford; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1819-1829; was a judge of the United-States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to January 11, 1837, when he resigned; was elected by the legislature judge of the General Court (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. F. May); was a delegate to the State Constitutional Conventions of 1828 and 1849; was appointed by President Tyler secretary of the navy March 14, 1844-March 3, 1845; was appointed by President Polk attorney-general March 5, 1845, and transferred to the Navy Department, serving September 9, 1846-March 3, 1849; was appointed by President Pierce minister to England January 22, 1854, and held the position until he died, very suddenly, at Paris, October 3, 1859.

Mason, Jonathan, was born at Boston August 30, 1752; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1774; studied law under John Adams; was admitted to the bar in 1777, and commenced practice at Boston; was one of the witnesses of the Boston massacre, and delivered the annual oration thereon March 5, 1780; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a member of the Executive Council in 1798; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts (in place of Benjamin Goodhue, resigned), serving from December 19, 1800, to March 3, 1803; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to May 15, 1820, when he resigned; died at Boston November 1, 1831.

Mason, Moses, was born in Oxford County, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), in 1791; was a county commissioner 1831-1834; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 637 majority, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was a member of the State Executive Council; died at Bethel June 25, 1866.

Mason, Samson, was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1843.

Mason, Stevens Thomson, was born at Chapawansic, Virginia, in 1760; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; served in the Revolutionary war, attaining the rank of brigadier-general; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1788; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1803; died at Philadelphia May 10, 1803.

Mason, William, was born in Connecticut; removed to Preston, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1821-1822; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837.

Masters, Josiah, was born at Woodbury, Connecticut, October 22, 1763; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Schaghticoke, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1792, 1800, and 1801; was associate judge of Rensselaer County 1801-1805; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809; was first judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Rensselaer County from 1808 until his death at Schaghticoke June 30, 1832.

Mathews, James, was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; resided at Coshocton; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 4,427 votes against 3,524 votes for Douglass, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845.

Mathews, Vincent, was born in Orange County, New York, June 29, 1766; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1790, and commenced practice at Elmira, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1793, and a State senator in 1796; was a commissioner to adjust bounty-land claims in 1798; was elected a representative from New York in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was State district-attorney 1812-1815; removed from Elmira to Bath, and from Bath to Rochester, continuing his practice; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826; died at Rochester, New York, August 23, 1846.

Mathewson, Elisha, was born in Rhode Island in 1767; received an academical education; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving one year as speaker; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Democrat (in place of James Fenner, resigned), serving from November 20, 1807, to March 3, 1811; died at Scituate, Rhode Island, October 14, 1853.

Mathiot, Joshua, was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died at Newark, Ohio, July 30, 1849.

Matlack, James, was born in Gloucester County, New Jersey; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; died at Woodbury, New Jersey, January 15, 1840.

Matlack, Timothy, was born at Haddenfield, New Jersey, in 1730; received an academical education; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements as one of the "Fighting Quakers;" commanded a battalion of Pennsylvania volunteers in the Revolutionary army, which did good service; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1780-1781; was for many years master of the rolls, residing at Lancaster; removed to Philadelphia, where he was prothonotary of one of the courts; died near Holmesburg, Pennsylvania, in the full possession of his faculties, April 15, 1829.

Matson, Aaron, was born at Plymouth, Massachusetts, in 1770; removed to Cheshire County, New Hampshire; was judge of probate; was a member of the Executive Council 1819-1821; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; died at Newport, Vermont, July 18, 1855.

Matteson, Orsamus B., was born in New York; resided at Utica; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,094 votes against 5,069 votes for Mann, Democrat, and 3,214 votes for Williams, Cass Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,711 votes against 7,828 votes for Timothy Jenkins, Democrat; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,530 votes against 6,000 votes for Moulton, Democrat, and 1,542 votes for Spencer, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,492 votes against 5,172 votes for Johnson, Democrat, and 4,759 votes for Huntington, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to February 27, 1857, when he resigned; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 10,618 votes against 8,275 votes for Johnson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Matthews, George, was born in Augusta County, Virginia, in 1739; distinguished himself in the Indian and the Revolutionary wars; removed in 1755 to Oglethorpe County, Georgia, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits; was governor of Georgia 1780, 1793-1796; was elected a representative from Georgia in the First Congress, serving from June 17, 1789, to March 3, 1791; served as brigadier-general in the expedition which captured West Florida in 1811; died at Augusta, Georgia, August 30, 1812.

Matthews, John, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1744; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was an associate judge of the State Supreme Court in 1776; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1778-1782; was appointed on a committee of Congress to visit the mutinied troops; was governor of South Carolina 1782-1783; was appointed a judge of the Court of Equity 1784; died at Charleston, South Carolina, November 17, 1802.

Matthews, Stanley, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, July 21, 1824; received an academic education at Woodward High School, and graduated at Kenyon College in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Cincinnati; was elected judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Hamilton County in 1851, and resigned January 1, 1853; was elected to the State Senate in 1853; was appointed United-States attorney for the Southern District of Ohio in 1858, and resigned in March, 1861; was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteer Infantry in June, 1861, and colonel of the Fifty-first Ohio Volunteer Infantry in November, 1861; was elected judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati in April, 1863, and resigned in July, 1864; was a presidential elector on the Lincoln and Johnson ticket in 1864, and the Grant and Colfax ticket in 1868; was the Republican candidate for Congress in October, 1876, in the Second District of Ohio, against H. B. Banning, who was returned elected by 75 votes; and was elected to the United-States Senate as a Republican March 20, 1877 (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of John Sherman), serving from October 15, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Matthews, William, was born in Maryland; was elected a representative from that State in the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799.

Mattocks, John, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, June 16, 1776; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Peacham, Vermont; served for a number of years in the State militia, attaining the rank of brigadier-general; was judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont for two years; was a representative from Vermont in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1823; was defeated as the Whig candidate to the Eighteenth Congress; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,187 votes against 4,924 votes for Isaac Fletcher, Democrat, and 84 scattering, and serving from May 1, 1841, until March 3, 1843; declined a re-election to Congress; was elected governor of Vermont, and served 1843-1844, but declined a re-election; died at Peacham, Vermont, August 14, 1847.

Mattoon, Ebenezer, was born at Amherst, Massachusetts, August 19, 1755; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1776; was a presidential elector in 1797; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixth Congress (in place of Samuel Lyman, resigned); was re-elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from February 2, 1801, to March 3, 1803; served in the war of 1812 as major of volunteers; was high sheriff of Hampshire County; was State adjutant-general; died at Amherst, Massachusetts, September 11, 1843.

Maurice, James, was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Maspeth; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,801 votes against 6,136 votes for King, Whig, and 585 votes for Ralph, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Maury, Abraham P., received an academical education; resided at Franklin, Tennessee; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 2,864 votes against 2162 votes for John William Crockett, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; died at Franklin, Tennessee, July 22, 1848.

Maxey, Sam Bell, was born in Monroe County, Kentucky, March 30, 1825; received his primary education there; entered the West-Point Military Academy in 1842, and graduated in 1846; joined the Seventh Infantry, United-States army, at Monterey, Mexico, as brevet second lieutenant; was brevetted first lieutenant for gallant services at Contreras and Churubusco; served through the Mexican war; resigned in 1849; returned to Kentucky; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1850; removed to Texas in 1857, and practised law; was elected State senator for four years in 1861, but declined, and raised the Ninth Texas Infantry for the Confederate-States army, of which he was colonel; was promoted brigadier-general in 1862, and major-general in 1864; commanded the Indian-Territory military district 1863-1865, and was also superintendent of Indian affairs; remained in the service until the surrender of the trans-Mississippi Department May 26, 1865; resumed the practice of law; was commissioned as judge of the Eighth District of Texas April 18, 1873, but declined; was elected United-States senator from Texas as a Democrat (to succeed James W. Flanagan, Republican), and took his seat March 5, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Maxwell, Augustus E., was born at Elberton, Georgia, September 21, 1820; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1841; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Tallahassee, Florida; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847; was secretary of state of Florida in 1848; was a State senator in 1849; was elected a representative from Florida in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,627 votes against 4,587 votes for Cabel, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by President Buchanan navy agent at Pensacola, Florida, serving 1857-1861; was a Confederate-States senator from February 22, 1862, to the overthrow of the Confederacy; was elected president of the Pensacola and Montgomery Railroad 1866.

Maxwell, George C., was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1792; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twelfth Congress as a Whig, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813.

Maxwell, J. P. B., was born in New Jersey in 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1823; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Belvidere; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig on a general ticket, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, although the governor gave him and his colleagues certificates of election, bearing the "broad seal of the State," which the House refused to recognize; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died at Belvidere, New Jersey, November 14, 1845.

Maxwell, Lewis, was born in Virginia; resided at Weston; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twentieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 1,759 votes against 1,646 votes for Joseph Lovell; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 1,578 votes against 1,571 votes for Joseph Lovell, and 799 votes for W. Smith; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, receiving 222 majority over Daniel Smith, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833.

Maxwell, Thomas, resided at Elmira; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

May, Henry, was born in the District of Columbia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was sent by President Pierce to Mexico to investigate the "Gardiner claim;" was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,792 votes against 6,440 votes for Walsh, Independent, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,493 votes against 7,988 votes for H. Winter Davis, Know-Nothing; was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 8,424 votes against 6,214 votes for Davis, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; died at Baltimore, Maryland, September 25, 1863.

May, William L., was born in Kentucky; received a public-school education; removed to Illinois, and settled at Springfield; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Joseph Duncan, resigned) as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 600 majority over G. W. P. Maxwell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 1,500 majority over John F. Stuart, Whig, serving from December 1, 1834, to March 3, 1839.

Mayall, Samuel, was born in Maine; received a public-school education; resided at Gray; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845, 1847, and 1848; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,917 votes against 7,932 votes for Charles J. Gilman, Whig, 833 votes for Pease, Free-Soiler, and 220 votes scattering, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Mayham, Stephen L., was born at Blenheim, New York, October 8, 1825; received an academic education; studied law at Ithaca, New York; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and has since continued to practise; was superintendent of public schools at Schoharie 1852-1857, and supervisor 1857-1860; was elected district-attorney of his county in 1859, and held that office until 1863, when he was elected a member of the New-York State Assembly from Schoharie County; was elected in 1867 a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 18,478 votes against 15,734 votes for Ramsay, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 20,498 votes against 16,267 votes for Thomas H. Tremper, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Maynard, Horace, was born at Westborough, Massachusetts, August 30, 1814; received his early education at the high school taught by Rev. Dr. Dana of Charleston, South Carolina, and was subsequently at the Millbury Academy; graduated in August, 1838, at Amherst College, Massachusetts; removed to Tennessee, and studied law at Knoxville; from October, 1838, until March, 1844, was tutor and afterward professor in the University of East Tennessee; after that time he entered upon the practice of the law; from 1863 to 1865 he was attorney-general of Tennessee; in 1852 and in 1864 he was presidential elector; in January, 1865, he was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Tennessee, and he has also held several unimportant and local offices; he was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-fifth Congress as an American, receiving 5,565 votes against 5,360 votes for Wallace, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,476 votes against 4,930 votes for Ramsay, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1863; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,156 votes against 2,323 votes for J. A. Cooper, Democrat, 1,859 votes for Honk, Independent, and 1,210 votes for Boyd, Secession; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,994 votes against 3,040 votes for John Williams, Conservative; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 10,403 votes against 2,681 votes for Honk, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,351 votes against 7,869 votes for A. Blizard, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress by the State at large, receiving 80,825 votes against 65,188 votes for B. F. Cheatham, Democrat, and 37,900 votes for A. Johnson, Democrat, serving from July 24, 1866, to March 3, 1875; was appointed by President Grant minister resident at Constantinople.

Maynard, John, was born in New York; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1810; studied law; was admitted to the bar; commenced practice at Seneca Falls, and removed to Auburn; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; was a member of the State Senate 1838-1840; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 6,749 votes against 6,551 votes for John De Mott, Democrat, and serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was a judge of the Seventh-District Supreme Court June 7, 1847, until his death at Auburn, New York, March 24, 1850.

Mayrant, William, was born in South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fourteenth Congress (defeating John Kershaw), serving from December 4, 1815, to October 21, 1816, when he resigned, fault having been found with his vote on the compensation bill; was defeated as a candidate for the Fifteenth Congress by Stephen D. Miller.

Meacham, James, was born at Rutland, Vermont, in 1810; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1832; studied theology while a tutor at Middlebury College; was ordained, and settled as pastor of a church at New Haven, Vermont; was chosen professor of elocution and English literature at Middlebury College; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-first Congress (in place of George P. Marsh, resigned) as a Whig, receiving 6,645 votes against 4,716 votes for Peck, Coalition, and 835 votes for Harrington and scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,945 votes against 2,969 votes for Beardsley, Democrat, and 1,521 for Harrington; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,138 votes against 2,801 votes for Pierpont, Free-Soiler, and 2,704 votes for Tucker, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,626 votes against 3,464 votes for S. W. Jewett, Democrat, and 174 scattering, serving from December 3, 1849, to August 22, 1856, when he died.

Mead, Cowles, was born in Georgia; studied and practised law; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1805, to December 23, 1805, when, his election having been successfully contested, his successor took his seat; was appointed by President Jefferson secretary of Mississippi Territory in 1806.

Meade, Edwin Ruthven, was born at Norwich, New York, July 6, 1836; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1858, and practised at New York; had never held any public office of importance, when he was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,199 votes against 9,024 votes for Edward Hogan, Independent Democrat and Republican, and serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Meade, Richard K., was born in Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Petersburg; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was appointed by President Pierce minister to Sardinia May 24, 1853, but declined; was appointed by President Buchanan minister to Brazil, serving July 27, 1857–July 9, 1861; returned to Virginia, and died there April 20, 1862.

Mebane, Alexander, was born at Hawfields, North Carolina, November 26, 1767; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of North Carolina in 1776; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina 1787–1792; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, until March 3, 1795; and died at his home in Orange County, North Carolina, July 5, 1795.

Medill, William, was born in New-Castle County, Delaware; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Lancaster, Ohio; was for several years a member of the State legislature; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was appointed by President Polk first assistant postmaster-general, serving a few months; was appointed commissioner of Indian affairs, serving October 28, 1845–May 29, 1850; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of Ohio in 1850; was lieutenant-governor of Ohio in 1851 and 1852; was appointed by President Buchanan first comptroller of the treasury, serving March 20, 1857–April 10, 1861; died at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, September 2, 1865.

Meech, Ezra, was born at New London, Connecticut, July 26, 1773; received a public-school education; went to the North-West, and engaged in the fur-trade; contracted with the British Government for the supply of masts, spars, and ship-timber from Canada; removed to Shelburne, Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1805 and 1807; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Conventions of 1822 and 1826; was chief justice of Crittenden County; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a presidential elector on the Harrison ticket in 1841; died at Shelburne, Vermont, September 23, 1856.

Meigs, Henry, was born at New Haven, Connecticut, October 23, 1782; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1798; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was for many years recording secretary of the American Institute at New York, and a manager of its annual fairs; died at New York May 20, 1861.

Meigs, Return Jonathan, was born at Middletown, Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1785; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Marietta, Ohio; participated in the Indian war on the frontier; was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio (in place of John Smith, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from January 6, 1809, to May 1, 1810, when he resigned; was governor of Ohio 1810–1814; was appointed postmaster-general by President Madison, serving March 17, 1814–June 26, 1823; died at Marietta, Ohio, March 29, 1825.

Mellen, Prentiss, was born at Sterling, Massachusetts, October 11, 1764; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1786, and commenced practice at Bridgewater, Massachusetts; removed in 1792 to Biddeford, and in 1806 to Portland, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine); was a member of the Executive Council of Massachusetts 1808–1809 and 1817; was a trustee of Bowdoin College 1817–1836; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts (in place of Eli P. Ashmun, resigned), serving from November 16, 1818, to May 15, 1820, when he resigned on account of the separation of Maine; was elected the first chief justice of Maine, serving 1820–1834, when he was disqualified by age; resumed the practice of law at Portland, Maine, and died there December 31, 1840. His decisions are published in the first eleven volumes of the Maine Reports.

Mellish, David B., was born at Oxford, Massachusetts, January 2, 1831; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing in the office of "The Worcester (Massachusetts) Spy;" taught school in Massachusetts, Maryland, and Pennsylvania; was proof-reader in New-York City two years; acquired Pitman's phonographic system of verbatim reporting; for two years, 1860 and 1861, was general news and short-hand reporter for "The New-York Tribune;" was stenographer to the Metropolitan and subsequently to the Municipal Board of Police of New-York City nearly ten years, meanwhile contributing articles to the press; was appointed assistant appraiser of the port of New York in 1871; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,841 votes against 7,038 votes for J. Hardy, Apollo-Hall Democrat, and 5,847 votes for M. Connolly, Tammany-Hall Democrat, and serving from December 1, 1873, to May 27, 1874, when he died at the Government Hospital for the Insane, having lost his reason.

Menifee, Richard H., was born in Kentucky; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lexington; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig (defeating Richard French, Democrat), serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; declined a re-election; removed to Lexington, and devoted himself to professional pursuits; died at Frankfort February 21, 1841.

Menzies, John W., was born in Fayette County, Kentucky, April 12, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1849; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Covington, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848 and 1855; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, receiving 8,373 votes against 3,774 votes for Hogan, Secessionist, and 698 votes for Jones, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 2,283 votes against 6,936 votes for Smith, Union, and 1,970 votes for Leathers, Democrat; was a delegate to the Chicago National Convention of 1864, which nominated McClellan.

Mercer, Charles Fenton, was born at Fredericksburg, Virginia, June 6, 1778; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1797; served in the United-States army as lieutenant and captain 1798-1800; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; visited Europe; returned in 1803, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1810-1817; served in the war of 1812 as brigadier-general; was defeated as a Federal candidate for the Twelfth Congress by Joseph Kent, Democrat; was the first president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was successively re-elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to December 26, 1839; visited Europe in 1853 to confer with the great powers on the abolition of the slave-trade; died at Howard, near Alexandria, Virginia, May 4, 1858.

Mercer, James, was born in Hampshire County, Virginia, in 1707; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1767; was earnestly engaged in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate to the several Constitutional Conventions; was one of the Committee of Public Safety; was a delegate from Virginia in the Continental Congress, serving 1779-1780; was appointed a judge of admiralty and of the First Court of Appeals in 1779 and 1780; died in Virginia in July, 1793.

Mercer, John Francis, was born in 1758; received a classical education, graduating from William and Mary College in 1775; was a delegate from Virginia 1782-1785; removed to Maryland; was a delegate from Maryland to the Convention which framed the Federal Constitution; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress (in place of William Pinkney, resigned); was re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from February 6, 1792, to April 13, 1794, when he resigned; was a member of the State House of Representatives; died at Philadelphia August 30, 1821.

Mercur, Ulysses, was born at Towanda, Pennsylvania, August 12, 1818; graduated at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania; studied and practised law; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention which nominated Fremont; was a Republican presidential elector in 1860; was appointed president-judge of the Thirteenth Judicial District of Pennsylvania in March, 1861, and in the October following was elected to the same office for a term of ten years from December, 1861; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,724 votes against 8,723 votes for V. E. Piolet, Democrat, and resigned his judgeship March 4, 1865; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,940 votes against 10,653 votes for Elwell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 12,723 votes against 12,412 votes for Piolet, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,117 votes against 10,993 votes for C. B. Brockway, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to December 2, 1872, when he resigned.

Meredith, Samuel, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1750; received a mercantile education; was a member of the Colonial legislature; served in the Revolutionary army as major of the Third Pennsylvania Battalion; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1787-1788; was treasurer of the United States September 11, 1789-December 1, 1801; died at Belmont, Pennsylvania, March 10, 1817.

Meriwether, David, was born in Virginia in 1755; received an English education; entered the Revolutionary army before he was of age as lieutenant, and served in New Jersey and in Georgia; was taken prisoner at the battle of Savannah by the British, and held as a hostage; settled, after the war, in Wilkes County, Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Seventh Congress (in place of Benjamin Taliaferro, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighth and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1802, to March 3, 1807; was appointed by President Jefferson in 1804 a commissioner to treat with the Creek Indians; died near Athens, Georgia, November 16, 1822.

Meriwether, David, was born and reared in Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was appointed a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of Henry Clay, resigned), serving from July 15, 1852, to December 20, 1852, when his successor took his seat; was appointed by President Pierce governor of New Mexico, serving from May 6, 1853, to January 5, 1855.

Meriwether, James, was born in Wilkes County, Georgia; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

Meriwether, James A., was born in Georgia; resided at Edenton; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 39,141 votes against 35,291 votes for Josiah S. Patterson, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Merriam, Clinton L., was born at Leyden, New York, March 25, 1824; received an academic education; engaged at an early age in banking and mercantile pursuits in Northern New York; removed to New-York City in 1847, where, for several years, he conducted an importing and jobbing business, and in 1860 established a banking and stock-commission house, from which he retired in 1864 to his native town; and was elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,863 votes against 12,899 votes for Cornwall, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,337 votes against 13,220 votes for B. Brockway, Liberal, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Merrick, William D. (father of William M. Merrick), was born in Maryland; received an academic education; held several local positions; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Joseph Kent, deceased) as a Whig, serving from January 5, 1838, to March 3, 1845; died at Washington City February 5, 1857.

Merrick, William M. (son of William D. Merrick), was born in Charles County, Maryland, September 1, 1818; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Frederick, Maryland, in 1844; was deputy attorney-general for Frederick County 1845-1850; removed to Washington City in 1854; was appointed associate judge of the United-States Circuit Court for the District of Columbia, serving 1854-1863; was senior professor of law in Columbian College 1866 and 1867; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention 1867; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1870; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,231 votes against 13,340 votes for James A. Gary, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 10,300 votes against 11,405 votes for William F. Albert, Republican.

Merrill, Orsamus C., was born in Vermont in 1776; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was county-attorney, register of probate, and judge of probate; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fifteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress on a general ticket, receiving 6,955 votes against 6,879 votes for Rollin C. Mallory, and obtained the certificate of election, serving from December 1, 1817, to January 14, 1820, when, his election having been successfully contested, Mr. Mallory took his seat; held several local offices; died at Bennington April 11, 1865.

Merrimon, Augustus Summerfield, was born in Buncombe (now Transylvania) County, in North Carolina, September 15, 1830; received a common-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and is a practising lawyer; was often elected county-attorney in several counties; was a member of the legislature of North Carolina in 1860-1861; was solicitor of the Eighth Judicial District of North Carolina from 1861 to 1865; was elected by the legislature a judge of the Superior Courts in 1866, and continued to hold that office until August, 1867, when he resigned his office rather than obey a military order, sitting as a civil judge; he was elected a United-States senator from North Carolina as a Democrat (to succeed John Pool, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1873; his term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Merritt, Samuel A., was born at Staunton, Virginia, August 15, 1828; received his early education at the Staunton Academy, and graduated from Washington College, Lexington, Virginia, June 18, 1848; studied law, and practises the profession; was county-clerk in California in 1850; was a member of the State Assembly of California in 1851 and 1852; was a member of the State Senate of California in 1857, 1858, 1859, 1860, 1861, and 1862; and was elected a delegate from Idaho in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat by about 1,000 majority over T. J. Butler, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Mervin, Orange, was born at Litchfield, Connecticut; received an academical education; resided at New Milford; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829.

Messervy, William S., was born at Salem, Massachusetts; removed to New Mexico; was elected a delegate from New Mexico before the Territory was admitted; his credentials were presented December 10, 1850, and reported on adversely February 6, 1851; returning to Salem, he was elected mayor.

Metcalf, Arunah, was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Otsego; was elected a representative from New York in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 877 majority, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814-1816 and in 1828.

Metcalfe, Henry B., was born at Albany, New York, January 20, 1805; removed with his parents in 1811 to the city of New York, and in 1816 to Richmond County; studied law with his father, George Metcalfe, and was admitted to the bar in the city of New York in 1826; succeeded his father in the latter part of that year as district-attorney of Richmond County, which office he held six years; was appointed first judge of Richmond County in 1840, but resigned the following year to accept a position in the Revenue Department, which he held until 1843; was elected county-judge and surrogate of Richmond County in 1847, and was annually re-elected until 1875; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,684 votes against 11,062 votes for S. B. French, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Metcalfe, Lyne S., was born in Madisonville, Kentucky, April 21, 1822; received a common-school education, followed by a partial course at Shurtleff and Illinois Colleges; left Kentucky for Illinois in 1838; and in 1844, at Alton, Illinois, engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the board of aldermen for several years, and afterward mayor of that city; entered the United-States service at the commencement of the civil war as assistant quartermaster, with rank as captain, and was promoted to a colonelcy; removed to St. Louis in 1863; was engaged in manufacturing there after 1866, and served as a member of the city council of that city; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,091 votes against 8,072 votes for R. M. Frost, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Metcalfe, Thomas, was born in Fauquier County, Virginia, March 20, 1780; received a public-school education in Fayette County, Kentucky, where his father had removed; learned the mason's trade; served in the war of 1812, and distinguished himself at the battle of Fort Meigs; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Sixteenth Congress as a Clay Democrat, defeating Mr. Desha; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to June 1, 1828, when he resigned; was governor of Kentucky 1829-1833; was a member of the State Senate 1834; was president of the Board of Internal Improvement in 1840; was appointed a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of John J. Crittenden, resigned), serving from July 3, 1848, to March 3, 1849; retired to his farm, and died in Nicholas County, Kentucky, August 18, 1855.

Meyers, Benjamin F., was born near New Centreville, Pennsylvania, July 6, 1833; received an academic education at Somerset and Jefferson College, Pennsylvania; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1855; was a member of the State legislature of Pennsylvania in 1864; was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1864; became editor and proprietor of "The Bedford Gazette" in 1857, and one of the proprietors and editor-in-chief of "The Harrisburg Daily Patriot" in 1868, with which journals he is still connected; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,859 votes against 12,844 votes for John Cessna, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,067 votes against 14,333 votes for John Cessna, Republican.

Middleswarth, Ner, was born in New Jersey; received an academical education; removed to Pennsylvania, and settled at Beavertown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,921 votes against 6,278 votes for Seiner, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; died at Beavertown June 2, 1865.

Middleton, Arthur (son of Henry Middleton, and father of Henry Middleton), was born at the family-seat on Ashley River, South Carolina, in 1743; received a classical education in England, graduating at Cambridge University in 1764; after travelling at home and abroad, he settled down as a South-Carolina planter in 1773; was one of the Council of Safety in 1775; was one of the committee to frame a State Constitution in 1776; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1776-1778; declined the governorship of South Carolina in 1778; entered the Revolutionary army as a South-Carolina volunteer in 1779; was made prisoner by the British on the fall of Charleston in 1780, and exchanged in July, 1781; was again a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1781-1783; having acquired the art of stenography, he took notes of many of the debates in which he participated; died in South Carolina January 1, 1788. He published some effective political essays over the signature of Andrew Marvel.

Middleton, George, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, October 14, 1811; removed with his father to Burlington, New Jersey; learned the tanner's trade; received a public-school education; removed to Allentown; held several local offices; was for two successive years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,182 votes against 10,834 votes for Brown, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,091 votes against 13,453 votes for William A. Newell, Union.

Middleton, Henry (father of Arthur Middleton, and grandfather of Henry Middleton), was born in South Carolina; was a delegate from South Carolina in the Continental Congress 1774-1776; died at Charleston, South Carolina.

Middleton, Henry (son of Arthur Middleton, and grandson of Henry Middleton), was born in South Carolina in 1770; received a classical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1801-1810; was governor of South Carolina 1810-1812; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was minister to Russia April 6, 1820-August 3, 1830; died at Charleston, South Carolina, June 14, 1846.

Mifflin, Thomas, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1744; was educated in Philadelphia College; visited Europe in 1765, and, after his return, entered into partnership with an elder brother; was a member of the Colonial legislature in 1772 and 1773; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the First Congress in 1774; entered the Revolutionary army as major of a Philadelphia regiment; accompanied Washington to Cambridge as aide-de-camp, with the rank of colonel; was made quartermaster-general in August; was made adjutant-general in September; was commissioned brigadier-general May 16, 1773, and major-general February 19, 1777; he served with distinction on Long Island and in New Jersey, but became dissatisfied with General Washington, and was one of those who conspired to remove him; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1782-1783; was a member of the State House of Representatives and its speaker in 1785; was a delegate to the convention to frame the Federal Constitution 1787; was president of the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania October, 1788-October, 1790; was president of the convention which framed the State Constitution 1790; was governor of Pennsylvania 1791-1800; died at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, January 21, 1800.

Miles, Nathaniel, was elected a representative from Vermont in the Second Congress; was re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1795.

Miles, W. Porcher, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, July, 1828; received a classical education, graduating at the Charleston College; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was mayor of Charleston 1856-1857; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 7, 1857, to his withdrawal on the secession of South Carolina; was a deputy from South Carolina to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States, which assembled at Montgomery in February, 1861; was a representative from South Carolina in the First and Second Confederate Congresses, serving from February 22, 1862, to March, 1864.

Milledge, John, was born at Savannah, Georgia, in 1757; took up arms early in the Revolutionary struggle, and distinguished himself in the local engagements; was attorney-general of Georgia in 1780; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Second Congress (in place of Anthony Wayne, whose seat had been declared vacant by the House), serving from November 22, 1792, to March 2, 1793; was again elected to the Fourth Congress, and re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1799; was again elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to May, 1802, when he resigned; was governor of Georgia 1802-1806; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of James Jackson, deceased), serving from December 11, 1806, to 1809, when he resigned; died at the Sand Hills February 9, 1810.

Millen, John, was born at Savannah, Georgia, in 1804; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Savannah; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 35,026 votes against 32,544 votes for Henry P. Smead, Whig; died October 15, 1843 (having never taken his seat), at his residence, near Savannah.

Miller, Daniel F., was born in Alleghany County, Maryland, October 4, 1814; received an academical education; studied law at Pittsburg; was admitted to the bar in 1838, and commenced practice in Iowa in 1839; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,091 votes against 6,477 votes for William Thompson, the Mormon vote having been thrown out; Mr. Thompson received the certificate of election, and Mr. Miller contested the seat, the House deciding, June 29, 1850, that the seat was vacant; at the new election Miller received 5,463 votes against 4,804 votes for Thompson, and 365 votes for Smith, Free-Soiler, serving from December 20, 1850, to March 3, 1851; was a presidential elector on the Frémont ticket in 1856.

Miller, Daniel H., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1831; died at Philadelphia in 1846.

Miller, George F., was born at Chillisquaque, Pennsylvania, September 5, 1809; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was secretary of the Lewisburg University, in the State of Pennsylvania, 1848-1864; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,619 votes against 11,092 votes for W. H. Miller, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,190 votes against 12,675 votes for Bowers, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Miller, Jacob W., was born in Morris County, New Jersey, in 1802; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Norristown: was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1853; died at Norristown, New Jersey, September 20, 1862.

Miller, Jesse (father of William H. Miller), was born at Landisburg, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 840 majority over Thomas Whitesides, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to October 30, 1836, when he resigned; was appointed by President Jackson first auditor of the treasury, serving November 1, 1836-June 17, 1842; was canal commissioner of Pennsylvania 1845 and 1846; was State secretary of state 1846-1848; died at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, August 20, 1850.

Miller, John, was born at Amenia, New York, November 10, 1774; received a private education; studied medicine; attended lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, and practised at Truxton, New York; was postmaster at Truxton 1805-1825; was a justice of the peace 1812-1821; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1817 and 1820; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1846; died at Truxton, New York, March 5, 1862.

Miller, John, was born at Steubenville, Ohio; received a public-school education; served in the war of 1812, entering the army March 12, 1812, as lieutenant-colonel of the Seventeenth Infantry; distinguished himself in several engagements, and resigned February 10, 1818; removed to Missouri; was governor of Missouri 1820-1832; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, defeating Samuel C. Owens, White Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 23,187 votes against 17,193 votes for Allen, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; died near Florissant, Missouri, March 18, 1846.

Miller, John G., was born in Kentucky, October 4, 1812; received a public-school education; removed to Boonville, Missouri, in 1835; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1840; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,578 votes against 6,554 votes for Green, anti-Benton Democrat, and 2,411 votes for J. Miller, Benton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,297 votes against 7,869 votes for Green, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,372 votes against 4,904 votes for Price, Benton Democrat, and 2,540 votes for Hough, anti-Benton Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to May 11, 1856, when he died in Saline County, Missouri.

Miller, John K., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; located at Mount Vernon, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851.

Miller, Joseph, was born in Ohio; was educated at Chillicothe; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,403 votes against 5,633 votes for Hoffman, Republican, and 4,328 votes for Moore, American, and serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,643 votes against 10,582 votes for Trimble, Republican; was appointed United-States judge of the District Courts for the Territory of Nebraska.

Miller, Killian, was born at Claverack, New York, July 30, 1785; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1806, and commenced practice at Livingston, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1825 and 1828; removed to Hudson City in 1833; was county-clerk 1837-1840; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,376 votes against 5,540 votes for McClellan, American, and 2,486 votes for Miller, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Miller, Morris S., was born in 1770; resided at Utica; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was a State commissioner to negotiate a treaty with the Seneca Indians 1819; was judge of the Oneida-county Court; died at Utica November 15, 1824.

Miller, Nathan, was born in Rhode Island; was a brigadier-general of militia; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress in 1785 and 1786.

Miller, Pleasant M., was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811.

Miller, Rutger B., was born in New York; resided at Utica; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress (in place of Samuel Beardsley, resigned), serving from December 5, 1836, to March 3, 1837; died at Utica, New York, November 13, 1877.

Miller, Samuel F., was born at Franklin, New York, May 27, 1827; pursued his academic studies at the Delaware Literary Institute; graduated at Hamilton College in 1852; studied law at the Hamilton-college Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1853; did not practise, but engaged in business as a farmer and lumberman; was a member of the State legislature of New York in 1854; was supervisor of the town of Franklin in 1855 and 1856; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,918 votes against 13,523 votes for Parker, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of New York in 1867; was appointed a commissioner on the State Board of Charities in 1867, and was re-appointed in 1873; was appointed collector of internal revenue May 20, 1869, and resigned May 23, 1873; and was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 15,574 votes against 14,431 votes for O. M. Allaben, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Miller, Smith, was born in North Carolina; removed when a lad to Indiana with his parents, and settled at Patoka; was reared on a farm, and received a scanty public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,007 votes against 6,252 votes for Keal, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,864 votes against 9,051 votes for Hall, Republican, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Miller, Stephen Decatur, was born in the Waxhaw Settlement of Lancaster District, South Carolina, May 8, 1787; received a classical education, graduating at the College of South Carolina in 1808; studied law under John S. Richardson; was admitted to the bar in 1811, and commenced practice at Sumterville; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fourteenth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of William Maytrant) as an anti-Calhoun Democrat, and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from January 2, 1817, until March 3, 1819; declined a re-election, and resumed practice; was a State senator 1822-

1828; was governor of South Carolina 1828-1830; was elected United-States senator from South Carolina as a Nullifier, defeating Judge William Smith, and serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833, when he resigned on account of ill health; was a member of the Nullification Conventions of 1830 and 1832; removed to Mississippi in 1835, and engaged largely in the cultivation of cotton; and died at Raymond, Mississippi, March 8, 1838.

Miller, William H. (son of Jesse Miller), was born in Perry County, Pennsylvania, January 29, 1828; received a classical education, graduating at Marshall College, Franklin, Pennsylvania; was clerk of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania 1854-1863; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,630 votes against 10,109 votes for Patterson, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,092 votes against 11,619 votes for George F. Miller, Republican; died at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, September 12, 1870.

Miller, William S., was born at New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; died at New-York City November 9, 1854.

Milligan, John J., was born in Cecil County, Maryland, December 10, 1795; received a classical education, studying three years at Princeton College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice in New-Castle County, Delaware; retired in 1828 to his country-seat near Wilmington; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1831, to March 3, 1839; was appointed in 1839 judge of the State Superior Court.

Millikin, Charles W., was born in Graves County, Kentucky, August 15, 1827, and was taken to Simpson County, Kentucky, when he was two years of age; graduated in June, 1849; studied law, and followed it as a profession; was county-attorney of Simpson County five years; was appointed, in January, 1867, Commonwealth attorney for the Fourth Judicial District of Kentucky (to fill a vacancy); was elected the following August to serve out the unexpired term; was re-elected in August, 1868, for a full term of six years, and resigned on the 24th of February, 1872; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,796 votes against 4,853 votes for J. S. Golladay, Independent Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,875 votes against 2,085 votes for Goren, Republican, and 471 votes for W. H. Butler, Independent Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Mills, Elijah Hunt, was born in 1778; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Northampton, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts (in place of Prentiss Mellen, resigned); and was re-elected, serving from December 1, 1820, to March 3, 1827; died at Northampton, Massachusetts, May 5, 1820.

Mills, Roger Q., of Corsicana, Texas, studied and practised law; was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, defeating Pleasant M. Yell, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 20,731 votes against 8,839 votes for J. P. Osterhout, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Millson, John S., was born at Norfolk, Virginia, October 1, 1808; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Norfolk; was a presidential elector in 1844 and 1848; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,736 votes against 2,558 votes for Watson, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 2,271 votes against 1,541 votes for Cowper, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 3,206 votes against 2,071 votes for Chambliss, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 4,769 votes against 4,224 votes for Watts, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1861; he took no part in the Rebellion, but remained quietly at his home at Norfolk; died at Norfolk, Virginia, February 26, 1873.

Millward, William, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,888 votes against 5,525 votes for Landy, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the Union candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,753 votes against 7,933 votes for Landy, Democrat; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,749 votes against 6,451 votes for Phillips, Democrat, and 253 votes for Broom, American, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Milnes, William, jun., was born in Yorkshire, England, December 8, 1827; in the second year of his age his father emigrated to America, and settled in Pottsville, Pennsylvania, where he engaged in mining and manufacturing; after completing an academic education, he apprenticed himself to a firm engaged in the machine and blacksmithing business; at the expiration of his apprenticeship he entered into business with his father and brother in the mining and shipping of coal; in 1865 he removed to Virginia, having previously disposed of his business interests in Pennsylvania, and purchased the extensive property located in Page and Rockingham Counties known as the Shenandoah Iron Works; he was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-first Congress as a Conservative Republican, receiving 12,123 votes against 6,815 votes for Harris, the opposition candidate, serving from January 27, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Milnor, James, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, June 20, 1773; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1794, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was a leading member of the Freemasons, and grand master of Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress, receiving 4,359 votes against 3,143 votes for John Porter, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; abandoning the law for theology, he was ordained by Bishop White of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in 1814, and in 1816 became the rector of St. George's Church at New York; was for many years the grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons of New York; after spending the evening with his fellow-directors of the New-York Deaf and Dumb Institution, he died suddenly, April 8, 1845.

Milnor, William, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania to the Tenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress, receiving 885 majority, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 6,090 majority, serving from December 3, 1821, to 1822, when he resigned; was elected sheriff of Philadelphia.

Miner, Ahiman L., was born in Vermont; received an academical education; was clerk of the Vermont House of Representatives in 1836 and 1837; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835, 1839, and 1845; was a State senator in 1840; was county-attorney, register of probate, and judge of probate; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,369 votes against 4,126 votes for A. P. Lyman, Whig, 2,689 votes for D. Roberts, jun., Democrat, and 465 scattering, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Miner, Charles, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, February 17, 1778; received a public-school education; removed in 1797 with his father to Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, and thence to West Chester; published "The Village Record" at West Chester for some years; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; declined a re-election on account of deafness; died at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, October 26, 1865. Published a "History of Wyoming."

Miner, Phineas, was born in Connecticut in 1779; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Litchfield, Connecticut; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Jabez W. Huntington, resigned), receiving 16,244 votes against 15,894 votes for his opponent, serving from December 1, 1834, to March 3, 1835; died at Litchfield, Connecticut, September 16, 1839.

Mitchell, Alexander, was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, October 17, 1817; received an academic education in Scotland; immigrated to the United States; located at Milwaukee, and engaged in banking; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 16,558 votes against 12,250 votes for W. P. Lyon, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,281 votes against 7,120 votes for F. C. Winkler, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Mitchell, Anderson, was born in Caswell County, North Carolina, in 1830; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1821; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Wilkesborough; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-seventh Congress (in place of Lewis Williams, deceased), serving from April 27, 1842, to March 3, 1843.

Mitchell, Charles B., was elected United-States senator from Alabama for six years from March 4, 1861; he did not appear to take his seat at the extra session, and he was expelled July 11, 1861.

Mitchell, Charles F., was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Lockport; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,690 votes against 3,840 votes for Henry R. Curtis, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was convicted of forgery in 1842, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the State prison at Sing Sing, from which he was pardoned by Governor Bouch in November, 1843, on account of his ill health; went to the West, and engaged in the milling business, enjoying the confidence of the people among whom he resided.

Mitchell, George E., was born in Cecil County, Maryland; received a liberal education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 280 majority over Williams; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to June 28, 1832, when he died at Washington City.

Mitchell, Henry, was born at Woodbury, Connecticut, in 1784; received a classical education; studied medicine, and finally settled down in practice at Norwich, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; died at Norwich, New York, January 12, 1858.

Mitchell, James C., was born in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Nineteenth Congress, defeating James Standefer; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-first Congress by James Standefer; was judge of the Circuit Court of Tennessee; removed in 1835 to the vicinity of Jackson, Mississippi, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives; and died near Jackson, Mississippi, August 7, 1843.

Mitchell, James S., was born at Rossville, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1827.

Mitchell, John, was born in Perry County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; resided at Bellefonte; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829.

Mitchell, John H., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, June 22, 1835; received a public-school education and the instruction of a private tutor; studied and practised law; removed to California, and practised law, first in San Luis Obispo, and then in San Francisco; removed to Portland, Oregon, in 1860, and there continued his profession; was elected corporation attorney of Portland in 1861, and served one year; was elected as a Republican to the State Senate in 1862, and served four years, the last two as president of that body; was commissioned by the governor of Oregon in 1865 lieutenant-colonel in the State militia; was a candidate for United-States senator in 1866, and was defeated in the party caucus by one vote; was chosen professor of medical jurisprudence in Willamette University at Salem, Oregon, in 1867, and served in that position nearly four years; was elected United-States senator from Oregon as a Republican (to succeed Henry W. Corbett, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1873. His term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Mitchell, John I., was born in Tioga County, Pennsylvania, July 28, 1838; spent his boyhood upon his father's farm; received a common-school education and private instruction, and passed some time at the University of Lewisburg, Pennsylvania (1857-1859), but did not graduate; taught school; served in the Union army as lieutenant and captain; was admitted to the bar in 1864, and has since practised law; was elected district-attorney of his native county in 1868, serving three years; edited "The Tioga-County Agitator" during the year 1870; was a member of the State House of Representatives five years from 1827 to 1876 inclusive, and served as chairman of the Judiciary General and Ways and Means; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,595 votes against 12,097 votes for Henry White, Democrat, and 1,530 votes for J. F. Davis, Independent Greenbacker, serving from October 15, 1877.

Mitchell, Nahum, was born at East Bridgewater, Massachusetts, February 12, 1769; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1789; studied law under Hon. John Davis at Plymouth; was admitted to the bar November 24, 1792, and commenced practice at East Bridgewater; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1811-1821; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1803, 1804, 1805, 1839, and 1840, and State senator 1813 and 1814; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, until March 3, 1805; was a member of the governor's council 1814-1820; was treasurer of the Commonwealth 1822-1827; was one of the first commissioners for establishing a railroad between Boston and Albany; was librarian and treasurer of the Massachusetts Historical Society; and died suddenly, after discovering that his pocket had been picked, while attending the celebration of the embarkation of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Massachusetts, August 1, 1853. He published a "History of Bridgewater" and "The Bridgewater Collection of Sacred Music."

Mitchell, Nathaniel, was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1786-1788.

Mitchell, Robert, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; removed to Zanesville, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835.

Mitchell, Samuel Latham, was born at Hempstead, New York, August 20, 1764; received a classical education, and studied medicine with Dr. S. Latham, his maternal uncle; was in 1788 a commissioner to purchase the lands of the Iroquois Indians in Western New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1791; was appointed professor of chemistry and natural history in Columbia College in 1792; was one of the founders of the State Society for the Promotion of Agriculture in 1793; was an editor of "The Quarterly Medical Repository" 1797-1813; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1798; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 1, 1801, to his resignation November 22, 1804; was elected a United-States senator from New York (in place of John Armstrong, resigned), serving from November 23, 1804, to March 3, 1809; was again elected a representative in the Eleventh Congress (in place of William Denning, who was elected, but never qualified), and was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, receiving a majority of 580 votes, serving from December 4, 1810, to March 3, 1813; was professor of natural history in the New-York College of Physicians and Surgeons 1808-1820, and of botany and materia medica 1820-1826; was vice-president of the Rutgers Medical School 1826-1830; was one of the founders of the New-York Literary and Philosophical Society in 1815; died at New York September 7, 1831. He published "Observations on the Absorbent Tubes of Animal Bodies," "Nomenclature of the New Chemistry," "Present State of Learning in the College of New York," "Life of Tammam," "Synopsis of Chemical Nomenclature," "History of the Botanical Writers of America," "Treatise on the Fishes of New York," besides numerous addresses.

Mitchell, Stephen Mix, was born at Wethersfield, Connecticut, December 27, 1743; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1763; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1772, and commenced practice at Wethersfield; was associate judge of the Hartford-county Court 1779-1790; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1783-1785; was presiding judge of the Hartford-county Court 1790-1795; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut (in place of Roger Sherman, deceased), serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut 1795-1807; was chief justice of the Superior Court of Connecticut 1807-1814; died at Wethersfield, Connecticut, September 30, 1835.

Mitchell, Thomas R., was born at Georgetown, South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1802; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Georgetown; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventeenth Congress, receiving a majority of 517 votes over Colonel Campbell, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was defeated as a candidate for the Eighteenth Congress by Colonel Campbell; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, defeating Colonel Campbell; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving a majority of 75 votes over Colonel Campbell, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-first Congress; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, defeating Colonel Campbell, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; died at Georgetown, South Carolina, November 2, 1837.

Mitchell, William, was born in New York; received a public-school education; removed to Indiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Kendallville; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,267 votes against 11,378 votes for P. M. Henkle, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,917 votes against 12,353 votes for Edgerton, Democrat; died at Macon, Georgia, September 11, 1865.

Moffet, John, was born in County Antrim, Ireland, in 1832; was brought to the United States by his parents when he was a child; was educated at the public schools of Philadelphia, and in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania; entered into business at Philadelphia as an apothecary; claimed to have been elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to April 9, 1869, when, his election having been successfully contested, his competitor, Leonard Myers, took his seat.

Moffit, Hosea, was born in Rensselaer County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1794-1801; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; was brigadier-general of militia.

Molony, Richard S., was born at Northfield, New Hampshire; received a classical education, and was a student at Dartmouth College; studied medicine; was licensed, and commenced practice at Belvidere, Illinois; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,321 votes against 10,587 votes for Coffing, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Monell, Robert, was born in Columbia County, New York; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Greene, Chenango County; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1814-1815; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1825, 1826, and 1828; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to February 21, 1831, when he resigned; was a circuit-judge; died at Greene, New York, 1860.

Money, Hernando De Soto, was born in Holmes County, Mississippi, August 26, 1839; educated at the University of Mississippi, at Oxford; studied law; adopted the editorial profession; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,811 votes against 5,781 votes for Ridgely C. Powers, Republican, and 5,022 votes for Finis H. Little, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,953 votes against 6,320 votes for W. W. Chisholm, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Monroe, James, was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, April 28, 1758; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1776; joined the Revolutionary army as a cadet in 1776; was promoted to a captaincy, and participated in several engagements; studied law under Thomas Jefferson; was appointed military commissioner for Virginia in 1780, and visited the Southern army under General DeKalb; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1782; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1783-1786; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1786; was a United-States senator from Virginia 1790-1794; was minister plenipotentiary to France May 28, 1794-December 30, 1796; was governor of Virginia 1799-1802; was again minister plenipotentiary to France January 12, 1803-July 12, 1803; was minister plenipotentiary to England in 1803, and to Spain in 1805; returning home in 1808, he was again elected a member of the State House of Representatives; was governor of Virginia in 1811; was secretary of state of the United States November 25, 1811-March 3, 1817; was elected and re-elected President of the United States, serving March 4, 1817, to March 3, 1825; retired to his farm in Loudon County, Virginia, and resided there until 1831, when he removed to New-York City, where he died July 4, 1831.

Monroe, James, was born at Plainfield, Connecticut, July 18, 1821; received his early education at the common school and at Plainfield Academy; graduated at Oberlin College in 1846, and afterward pursued a course of theological study there; was a professor in Oberlin College from 1849 until 1862; was a member of the House of Representatives of the State of Ohio in 1856-1859, and of the Ohio Senate in 1860-1862; was chosen president pro tempore of the Ohio Senate in 1861, and again in 1862; resigned his seat in the Senate in October, 1862, to accept the position of United-States consul at Rio de Janeiro, tendered him by President Lincoln; held the office of consul at that capital from 1863 to 1869, serving for some months of 1869 as chargé d'affaires ad interim; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,271 votes against 11,545 votes for L. R. Critchfield, Democrat, and 85 votes for Whiton, Prohibitionist; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,662 votes against 10,298 votes for N. S. Townsend, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,229 votes against 10,095 votes for John K. McBride, Democrat, and 105 votes for Miller, Prohibitionist; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,906 votes against 12,772 votes for John Hall, Democrat.

Montanya, J. De la, was born in New York; resided at Haverstraw; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,495 votes against 3,756 votes for John S. Gurnee, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Montgomery, David, jun., was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809.

Montgomery, John, was born in Maryland; received a classical education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress (defeating Spencer), serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811.

Montgomery, John G., was born at Northumberland, Pennsylvania, in 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College in 1824; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Danville, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1855; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,442 votes against 7,657 votes for Smith, Unionist; contracted the disease which seized many of the guests at the National Hotel, Washington, before the inauguration of President Buchanan, and died, before taking his seat, at Danville, Pennsylvania, April 24, 1857.

Montgomery, Joseph, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1755; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1780-1784.

Montgomery, Thomas, was born in Nelson County, Virginia; received a thorough English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Stanford, Kentucky; was a county-judge; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress (in place of Tunstall Quarles, resigned); was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from November 13, 1820, to March 3, 1823; died at Stanford, Kentucky, April 2, 1828.

Montgomery, William, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795.

Montgomery, William, was born in Guilford County, North Carolina, in 1791; studied medicine, and practised in Orange County; was a member of the State Senate 1824-1827 and 1829-1834; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 191 majority over Barringer; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,916 votes against 2,553 votes for G. W. Hayward, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, until March 3, 1841, when he declined a re-election; died November 27, 1844.

Montgomery, William, was born at Canton, Pennsylvania, April 11, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College in 1839; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Washington, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,256 votes against 9,411 votes for Jonathan Knight, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,254 votes against 5,798 votes for Jonathan Knight, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; died at Washington, Pennsylvania, May 2, 1870.

Moor, Wyman B. S., was born at Waterville, Maine, November 3, 1814; received a classical education, graduating at Waterville College; studied law at Cambridge; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Bangor; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1839; was State attorney-general 1844-1848; was appointed a United-States senator from Maine (in place of John Fairfield, deceased), serving from January 17, 1848, to June 12, 1848, when his successor took his seat; was appointed by President Buchanan consul-general for British America, serving 1857-1861; died at Lynchburg, Virginia, February 16, 1869.

Moore, Andrew, was born in Rockbridge County, Virginia; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Congress, and was re-elected to the Second, Third, and Fourth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1797; successfully contested the election of Thomas Lewis in the Eighth Congress, serving from March 5, 1804, to November 6, 1804, when he was appointed a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Wilson Cary Nicholas, resigned); was subsequently elected a United-States senator (in place of Abraham B. Venable, resigned), serving from December 17, 1804, to March 3, 1809; died May 24, 1821.

Moore, Eliakim Hastings, was born in Worcester County, Massachusetts, June 19, 1812; removed to Athens County with his father's family in 1817; received a common-school education; was county-surveyor of Athens County 1836-1846; was auditor of Athens County 1846-1890; was a director and then president for many years of the Athens branch of the State Bank of Ohio, and subsequently of the First National Bank of Athens, which he organized; was appointed in 1862 a collector of internal revenue, from which office he was removed by Andrew Johnson in 1866; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,773 votes against 12,817 votes for Follett, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Moore, Ely, was born in New Jersey; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; edited a paper at New York devoted to the advancement of labor; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,673 votes against 15,920 votes for Wheeler, Whig, serving from December 29, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 18,843 votes against 20,454 votes for James Monroe, Whig; was appointed by President Polk Indian agent, and by President Pierce register of a land-office in Kansas; died January 26, 1860.

Moore, Gabriel, was born in Stokes County, North Carolina; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Huntsville, Alabama; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses without opposition; was governor of Alabama 1829-1831; was a United-States senator from Alabama, serving December 5, 1831-March 3, 1837; died at Caddo, Texas, June 9, 1844.

Moore, Heman Allen, was born at Plainfield, Vermont, in 1810; received an academical education; studied law at Rochester, New York; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbus, Ohio; was State adjutant-general; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to April 3, 1844, when he died at Columbus, Ohio.

Moore, Henry B., was born at Goshen, New York, April 13, 1817; removed with his parents to New-York City in 1828; received a public-school education; was apprenticed to a merchant tailor, and, on attaining his majority, engaged in business on his own account; removed to Philadelphia, and became interested in the marble and mahogany business with Mr. Eckstein, his father-in-law; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,862 votes against 6,097 votes for Hallowell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,604 votes against 5,333 votes for Lundy, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; was for several years State treasurer of Pennsylvania.

Moore, Jesse H., was born near Lebanon, St. Clair County, Illinois, April 22, 1817; graduated at McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois, in 1842; entered upon the profession of teaching, which he pursued for thirteen years, during which time he was at the head of three literary institutions in the West; he also studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but never practised; in 1832 he raised the One Hundred and Fifteenth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, of which he was commissioned colonel; during the last year of the war he commanded the Second Brigade, First Division, Fourth Army Corps, of the Department of the Cumberland, and in April, 1865, he received the brevet of brigadier-general; he has been an ordained minister of the Methodist-Episcopal Church since 1849; and he was presiding elder of the Decatur District, Illinois Conference, in 1868, when he was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 22,321 votes against 17,171 votes for Brewer, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,039 votes against 13,418 votes for Andrew J. Hunter, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Moore, John, was born in Berkeley County, Virginia, in 1788; received an academical education; removed to Franklin, Louisiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1825-1834; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Rice Garland, resigned) as a Whig, defeating Winn, Democrat, serving from December 17, 1840, to March 3, 1843; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,852 votes against 5,379 votes for Isaac E. Morse, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was a delegate to the State Convention which adopted the ordinance of secession in 1861; died at Franklin, Louisiana, June 17, 1867.

Moore, Laban T., was born in Cabell County, Virginia, January 13, 1829; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Louisa, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a National American, receiving 8,505 votes against 8,227 votes for J. W. Moore, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Moore, Nicholas R., was born at Baltimore, Maryland; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1811; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twelfth Congress; was again elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at Baltimore, Maryland, March 9, 1816.

Moore, Oscar F., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; resided at Portsmouth; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,865 votes against 4,706 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,326 votes against 7,403 votes for Miller, Democrat, and 5,633 votes for Hoffman, Republican.

Moore, Robert, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821.

Moore, Samuel, was born in Cumberland County, New Jersey; received an academical education; studied medicine; was licensed, and practised at Doylestown, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress (in place of Samuel D. Ingham, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from November 16, 1818, to May 20, 1822, when he resigned; died at Doylestown, Pennsylvania, February 18, 1861.

Moore, S. McDowell, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; resided at Lexington; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 1,757 votes against 1,695 votes for Robert Craig, State-rights Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-third Congress by Robert Craig, State-rights Democrat, who received 1,160 majority; served in the Confederate army.

Moore, Sydenham, was born in Rutherford

County, Tennessee; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Alabama; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Greensborough, Alabama; was judge of the Greene-county Court, and then of the Circuit Court; served in the war against Mexico as captain in Colonel Coffey's regiment of Alabama infantry June, 1846-June, 1847; was elected brigadier-general of Alabama militia; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, defeating William R. Smith; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 7, 1857, to January 21, 1861, when he retired from the House on the secession of Alabama; entered the Confederate army as colonel of the Eleventh Alabama Infantry, and served through the war.

Moore, Thomas, was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1813; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Moore, Thomas L., was born in Jefferson County, Virginia; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress (in place of George L. Strother, resigned), receiving 1,771 votes against 1,702 votes for Craig; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 373 majority over Mark A. Smith, serving from November 13, 1820, to March 3, 1823.

Moore, Thomas P., was born in Charlotte County, Virginia, in 1795; received a public-school education; was an officer in the war with Great Britain of 1812; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, until March 3, 1829; was appointed by President Jackson minister plenipotentiary to the United States of Colombia March 13, 1829, and served until April 16, 1833; returned to Kentucky, and received a certificate of election as a representative in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, having received 3,099 votes against 3,055 votes for R. P. Letcher, Whig, but the House, after much discussion, rejected some of the votes given to each candidate, and declared that Letcher had eleven majority; was appointed lieutenant-colonel of the Third United-States Dragons in the war with Mexico, serving from March 3, 1847, to July 31, 1848; was a delegate from Mercer County to the Kentucky Constitutional Convention of 1849-1850; and died at Harrodsburg, Kentucky, July 21, 1853.

Moore, William, was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, December 25, 1810; received a public-school education; was interested in mercantile pursuits and iron-works; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Atlantic County from 1855 to 1865; was elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,468 votes against 9,108 votes for Slake, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 15,214 votes against 11,530 votes for Bayard, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; died at May's Landing, New Jersey, April 26, 1878.

Moore, William S., was born at West Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, November 18, 1822; graduated at Washington College in 1847; studied law; was chosen prothonotary of Washington County in 1854; has been engaged in the newspaper business since 1857; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,195 votes against 13,169 votes for W. McClelland, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Moorhead, James Kennedy, was born at Halifax, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1806; received a common-school education; served an apprenticeship to the tanner's business, after which he became a canal contractor, and then superintendent and supervisor on the Juniata Canal; in 1835 he projected and established the first passenger packet-line on the Pennsylvania Canal; he was appointed adjutant-general of Pennsylvania in 1838; he constructed the Monongahela navigation, and has been president of the company for twenty-one years; he was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,539 votes against 4,879 votes for Burke, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,507 votes against 6,631 votes for Kerr, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,037 votes against 5,678 votes for Hamilton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,233 votes against 7,013 votes for James H. Hopkins, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,720 votes against 9,655 votes for Sweitzer, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1869.

Morehead, Charles S., was born in Nelson County, Kentucky, in 1802; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Frankfort, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828 and 1829; was attorney-general of Kentucky 1830-1835; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1838-1842 and 1844, serving the last three years as speaker of the House; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,348 votes against 3,148 votes for S. F. J. Trabue, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,195 votes against 4,665 votes for S. F. J. Trabue, American, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was again a member of the State legislature in 1853; was governor of Kentucky in 1855; was a delegate from Kentucky to the Peace Convention held at Washington in 1861; died at Greenville, Mississippi, December 23, 1868.

Morehead, James T., was born at Covington, Kentucky, May 24, 1797; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Covington, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1827-1830; was elected lieutenant-governor of Kentucky in 1832, and, after the death of Governor Breathitt, became governor 1834-1836; was again a member of the House of Representatives in 1837; was president of the State Board of Internal Improvements 1838-1841; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky as a Whig (in the place of Crittenden, declined), serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1847; returning to Covington, he resumed his practice, and died December 28, 1854.

Morehead, James T., was born at Greensborough, North Carolina; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving no opposition, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Morey, Frank, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, July 11, 1840; was educated in the Boston public schools; removed to Illinois in 1857, where his study of law was interrupted by entering the Union army in 1861 in the Thirty-third Illinois Infantry; served till the close of the war, principally on staff duty, with the rank of captain; settled in Louisiana in 1866, in which State he had been stationed for two years while in military service, and engaged in cotton-planting and the insurance business; was a member of the General Assembly of Louisiana in 1868 and 1869; was appointed a commissioner to revise the statutes and codes of the State; was a commissioner to the Vienna Exposition in 1873; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,521 votes against 6,713 votes for J. D. Walkins, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,060 votes against 8,507 votes for G. W. McCranie, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,279 votes against 11,033 votes for William B. Spencer, Democrat.

Morgan, Charles Henry, was born in Alleghany County, New York; was educated in Wisconsin at common schools, and at the High School at Fond du Lac; enlisted in the Union army as a private in the First Wisconsin Infantry upon the first call for troops in 1861, and was sergeant and sergeant-major of that regiment; was promoted in August, 1862, to be second lieutenant in the Twenty-first Wisconsin Infantry, and was subsequently promoted to be first lieutenant and captain, holding the last rank when the regiment was mustered out at the close of the war; studied law; graduated at the Albany (New York) Law School in 1866, and commenced practice at Lamar, Mississippi; was prosecuting-attorney; was a member of the State legislature of Missouri in 1873 and 1874; was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,869 votes against 10,640 votes for C. W. Thrasher, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,081 votes against 17,357 votes for H. E. Havens, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Morgan, Christopher (brother of Edwin B. Morgan), was born at Aurora, New York, June 4, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Auburn, New York, as the partner of William H. Seward; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,631 votes against 4,404 votes for W. H. Noble, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 5,148 votes against 4,935 votes for Peter Yawger, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 6,686 votes against 7,177 votes for Rathbun, Democrat, and 486 votes for Cuyler, Abolitionist; was secretary of state of the State of New York 1848-1852; was mayor of Auburn in 1860; was for many years a trustee of the State Lunatic Asylum at Utica; died at Auburn, New York, April 3, 1877.

Morgan, Daniel, was born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, 1733; was a farm-laborer; removed to Virginia, where he was employed as an overseer; entered the army commanded by General Braddock in 1755 as a wagoner; entered the Continental army, and served through the Revolution, attaining the rank of brigadier-general; retired, after the war, to his estate, known as "Saratoga," near Winchester; commanded the Virginia militia ordered out by President Washington in 1794 to suppress the Whiskey Insurrection in Pennsylvania; was a candidate for election to the Fourth Congress, but was defeated; was elected to the Fifth Congress as a Federalist, defeating Robert Rutherford, who unsuccessfully contested the seat, and served from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; his health failing, he declined a re-election, and died at Winchester, Virginia, July 6, 1802.

Morgan, Edwin B. (brother of Christopher Morgan), was born at Aurora, Cayuga County, New York, May 2, 1806; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,150 votes against 8,996 votes for How, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,684 votes against 6,910 votes for Middleton, American, and 1,296 votes for Aldrich, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,631 votes against 3,685 votes for Richmond, Democrat, and 3,044 votes for Fosgate, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859.

Morgan, Edwin D., was born at Washington, Massachusetts, February 8, 1811; received a public-school education; engaged in the grocery business in Hartford, Connecticut, and afterwards in the city of New York; was a member of the city council of Hartford in 1832; was an alderman of New-York City in 1849; was a member of the State Senate of New York 1850-1853; was State commissioner of emigration 1855-1858; was chairman of the Republican National Committee 1856-1864; was chairman of the Union Congressional Committee in 1864; was governor of the State of New York in 1859-1862; was major-general of volunteers from September 28, 1861, to January 1, 1863, rendering efficient service in recruiting troops at the commencement of the war for the suppression of the Rebellion, and down to the close of its second year, at which time he had raised, and to a large extent equipped, 220,000 volunteers; was elected United-States senator from New York as a Union Republican (to succeed Preston King, Republican), serving from March 4, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Morgan, George W., was born at Washington, Pennsylvania, September 20, 1820; left college in 1836; enlisted in a company commanded by his brother, and went to assist Texas in gaining her independence, in which service he rose to the rank of captain; returning to the United States, he studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in 1843 at Mt. Vernon, Ohio; in 1846 he commanded the Second Ohio Volunteers in the Mexican war until the expiration of its term of service under General Taylor; in the winter of 1846-1847 he was appointed colonel of the new Fifteenth Infantry, which he commanded, under General Scott, until the close of the war; for his services at the battles of Contreras and Churubusco he was brevetted a brigadier-general in the regular army; in 1855 he was appointed consul at Marseilles; in 1858 he was appointed minister resident at Lisbon; on the breaking out of the Rebellion, as brigadier-general of volunteers he had command of the Seventh Division of the Army of the Ohio; was with General Sherman at Vicksburg; was assigned to the Thirteenth Army Corps, and was in command at the taking of Fort Hindman in Arkansas; and, on account of his loss of health, resigned his command in 1863; in 1865 he was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio; claimed to have been elected a representative from Ohio to the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, but the House gave the seat to Columbus Delano, Whig; was elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,614 votes against 12,980 votes for Charles Cooper, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,194 votes against 12,047 votes for C. W. Patwin, Republican; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,146 votes against 13,573 votes for James W. Robinson, Republican, and 229 votes for C. W. Townsend, Prohibitionist; was a delegate at large to the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis in 1876.

Morgan, James, was born at Amboy, New Jersey, in 1756; received a public-school education; served as an officer in the New-Jersey line during the Revolutionary war; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; became a major-general of militia; died at South Amboy, New Jersey, September 14, 1822.

Morgan, John J. (father-in-law of John A. Dix), was born in Queen's County, New York, in 1769; received an academical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Cornelius W. Lawrence, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1834, to March 3, 1835; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836 and 1840; died at Port Chester, New York, July 29, 1849.

Morgan, John T., was born at Athens, Tennessee, June 20, 1824; received an academic education, chiefly in Alabama, to which State he emigrated when nine years old, and has since resided there; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and practised until his election to the Senate; was a presidential elector in 1860 for the State at large, and voted for Breckinridge and Lane; was a delegate in 1861 from Dallas County to the State Convention which passed the ordinance of secession; joined the Confederate army in May, 1861, as a private in Company I, Cahawba Rifles, and, when that company was assigned to the Fifth Alabama Regiment under Colonel Robert E. Rhodes, he was elected major, and afterward lieutenant-colonel, of that regiment; was commissioned in 1862 as colonel, and raised the Fifty-first Alabama Regiment; was appointed brigadier-general in 1863, and assigned to a brigade in Virginia, but resigned to rejoin his regiment, whose colonel had been killed in battle; later in 1863 he was again appointed brigadier-general, and assigned to an Alabama brigade, which included his regiment; after the war he resumed the practice of his profession at Selma; was chosen a presidential elector for the State at large in 1876, and voted for Tilden and Hendricks; was elected to the United-States senate as a Democrat (to succeed George Goldthwaite, Democrat), and took his seat March 5, 1877; his term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Morgan, William S., was born in Monongalia County, Virginia, September 7, 1801; received a public-school education, and was reared on a farm; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 303 majority over E. C. Wilson, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was appointed a clerk in the House of Representatives in 1840; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844; was appointed to a clerkship in the Treasury Department.

Morphis, Joseph L., was born in McNairy County, Tennessee, April 17, 1831; was brought up as a planter; was a Whig member of the State legislature of Tennessee in 1859; entered the Confederate army as captain in August, 1861, and served until the surrender; removed to Mississippi in 1863; was elected to the State Constitutional Convention of Mississippi in 1865; was a member of the State legislature of Mississippi in 1866, 1867, and 1868; and was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,071 votes against 4,840 votes for Kellogg, Conservative, and 1,405 votes for Tatum, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, serving from February 23, 1870, to March 3, 1873; was appointed marshal of the Northern District of Mississippi by President Hayes.

Morrell, Daniel J., was born at North Berwick, Maine, August 8, 1821; received a public-school education; removed to Philadelphia in 1836; entered a counting-room as clerk, and became interested in business; removed in 1855 to Johnstown, Pennsylvania, where he manufactured iron; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,298 votes against 9,979 votes for Johnston, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 12,100 votes against 11,096 votes for Linton, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 8, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,324 votes against 10,335 votes for Robert Milton Speer, Democrat.

Morrell, David Lawrence, was born at Epping, New Hampshire, June 10, 1772; received an academic education; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Epping in 1793; turned his attention to theology, and was made pastor of the Congregational Church at Goffstown 1802-1811; practised medicine 1807-1830; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1808-1817; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire as an Adams Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1823; was elected a member of the State Senate, and served 1823-1824; was a candidate for governor of New Hampshire in 1824; there was choice by the people, and he was elected by the convention, and the next two years was elected by the people to the same office; removed in 1831 to Concord, where he edited "The New-Hampshire Observer;" and died January 28, 1849.

Morrill, Anson P., was born at Belgrade, Maine, June 10, 1803; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile and manufacturing pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was governor of Maine in 1855; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,660 votes against 7,244 votes for Fuller, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Morrill, Justin S., was born at Strafford, Vermont, April 14, 1810; received an academical education; was a merchant, and afterwards engaged in agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,380 votes against 5,848 votes for Parker, Democrat, and 2,473 votes for O. L. Shafter and scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,695 votes against 4,358 votes for Chase, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 11,576 votes against 4,806 votes for Chase, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 12,555 votes against 3,295 votes for Davenport, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,358 votes against 4,785 votes for Davenport, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,469 votes against 4,793 votes for Ormsby, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1867; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont, serving from March 4, 1867; his term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Morrill, Lot M., was born at Belgrade, Maine, May 3, 1815; was a student of Waterville College, Maine; studied and practised law; was a member of the State legislature in 1854 and 1856, presiding over the Senate the last year; was governor of Maine in 1858, 1859, and 1860; was elected United-States senator from Maine as a Republican (to fill the vacancy created by the election of Hannibal Hamlin to the Vice-Presidency), and took his seat January 17, 1861; was re-elected in 1863; was appointed in December, 1869, and afterward elected by the legislature, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of William Pitt Fessenden; was re-elected as a Republican in 1871, and his term of service expired March 3, 1877; he was appointed by President Hayes collector of customs at Portland in 1877.

Morrill, Samuel P., was born at Chesterville, Franklin County, Maine, February 11, 1816; received an academic education, and adopted the profession of a clergyman; in 1857 he was elected, for five years, register of deeds for Franklin County, and was re-elected to the same office in 1867; was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,281 votes against 9,653 votes for Garcelon, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Morris, Calvary, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and located at Athens; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843.

Morris, Charles, was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1783-1784.

Morris, Daniel, was born in Seneca County,

New York, January 4, 1812; received a public-school education; studied law while teaching school; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Penn Yan; was district-attorney for Yates County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1859; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,615 votes against 8,157 votes for Lord, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,763 votes against 8,902 votes for Barzillai Slosson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Morris, Edward Joy, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, July 16, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1836; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841-1843; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,855 votes against 2,379 votes for McCully, Democrat, and 1,072 votes for Crouset, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was chargé d'affaires to Naples January 20, 1850-August 26, 1853; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856; was chosen a director of Girard College; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,411 votes against 6,013 votes for Marshall, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,653 votes against 4,030 votes for Martin, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was appointed by President Lincoln minister resident to Turkey June 8, 1861-October 25, 1870. Published "A Tour through Turkey, Greece, and Egypt;" "The Turkish Empire, Social and Political;" "Life and Love in Norway;" and "Corsica, Social and Political."

Morris, Gouverneur (brother of Lewis Morris), was born at Morrisiana, New York, January 31, 1752; graduated at King's College (now Columbia), New York, in 1768; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1771, and commenced practice at New York; was soon after elected a member of the New-York Provincial Congress; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1787-1788, but was not re-elected; was appointed assistant financier in 1781, and draughted the act incorporating the Bank of North America; was a member of the Convention which framed the Constitution of the United States in 1787; went to France in 1788; was appointed minister plenipotentiary by President Washington January 12, 1792; served until August 15, 1794, and returned home in 1796; was elected United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Federalist April 7, 1800 (in the place of James Watson, resigned), and served from May 3, 1800, to March 8, 1803; resided for seven years at Philadelphia; removed to New York, and was appointed chairman of the canal commission in 1810; died at Morrisiana, New York, November 6, 1816. He published "Eulogies on Washington, Hamilton, and Clinton," and several pamphlets on financial matters. Selections from his papers, with a sketch of his life, were edited by Jared Sparks.

Morris, Isaac N. (son of Thomas Morris, and brother of Jonathan D. Morris), was born in Ohio January 22, 1812; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Quincy, Illinois, in 1836; was appointed secretary of state for Illinois in 1840, but declined; was chosen president of the Illinois and Michigan Canal Company in 1841; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,059 votes against 10,204 votes for Grimshaw, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 13,529 votes against 11,648 votes for Grimshaw, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was appointed a commissioner for the Pacific Railroad in 1869.

Morris, James R. (son of Joseph Morris), was born in Greene County, Pennsylvania, January 10, 1820; received a public-school education; was taken by his father to Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,609 votes against 8,570 votes for Theaker, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,332 votes against 9,183 votes for Cutler, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,564 votes against 12,847 votes for T. A. Plants, Republican.

Morris, Jonathan D. (son of Thomas Morris, and brother of Isaac N. Morris), was born in Ohio; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Batavia; served for twenty years as clerk of the courts of Clermont County; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,135 votes against 3,583 votes for Joliff, Free-Soiler, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; died at Connorsville, Indiana, May 16, 1875.

Morris, Joseph (father of James R. Morris), was born in Greene County, Pennsylvania, October 16, 1795; received a public-school education; learned the wheelwright's trade, and worked at it until he was twenty-five years of age; was sheriff of Greene County in 1824; removed in 1829 to Woodsfield, Ohio, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1833 and 1834; was treasurer of Monroe County; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,321 votes against 4,617 votes for Cowen, Whig, and 535 votes for Lee, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; died at Woodsfield, Ohio, October 23, 1854.

Morris, Lewis (brother of Gouverneur Morris), was born at Morrisiana, New York, in 1726; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1746; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1775-1777; held the commission of major-general of militia; died at Morrisiana January 22, 1798.

Morris, Lewis R., was born in Vermont in 1753; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fifth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixth and Seventh Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1803.

Morris, Mathias, was born at Hilltown, Pennsylvania, in 1785; received a good English education; resided at Doylestown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, defeating Chapman Henry by 706 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, defeating Ruckman, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,138 votes against 4,446 votes for John Davis, Democrat; died at Doylestown, Pennsylvania, November 9, 1839.

Morris, Robert, was born at Liverpool, England, January 20, 1733; came in 1747 to Oxford, Maryland, where his father had preceded him; received an academic education; was placed in the counting-room of Charles Willing at Philadelphia; went on several voyages as supercargo, and, on the death of Mr. Willing in 1754, entered into partnership with his son; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress, and a signer of the Declaration of Independence; rendered important aid to the Revolutionary army by procuring funds for its use, and was superintendent of finance 1781-1784; was a member of the Pennsylvania legislature 1786; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the convention which framed the Federal Constitution 1787; was a United-States senator from Pennsylvania 1789-1795; was offered and declined the position of secretary of the treasury by President Washington; engaged in unsuccessful land speculations, which were the cause of his passing the latter years of his life in a debtor's jail; suffered much with attacks of the asthma, and died at Philadelphia May 7, 1806.

Morris, Samuel W., was born in Pennsylvania in 1788; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wellsborough; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,150 votes against 4,550 votes for William Willard, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at Wellsborough, Pennsylvania, May 25, 1847.

Morris, Thomas, resided in Canandaigua; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1794-1796; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803.

Morris, Thomas (father of Isaac N. Morris and Jonathan D. Morris), was born in Virginia January 3, 1776; received a public-school education; removed when nineteen years of age to Ohio, and finally located at Bethel; was a member of the State Senate or House of Representatives 1806-1830; was chief judge of Ohio 1830-1833; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839; died at Bethel, Ohio, December 7, 1844. His life and writings were published by his son, Rev. B. F. Morris.

Morrison, George W., was born in Vermont; received a public-school education; removed to Manchester, New Hampshire; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-first Congress (in place of James Wilson, resigned) as a Democrat, receiving 8,240 votes against 6,119 votes for Perkins, Whig, and serving from December 2, 1850, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,777 votes against 8,715 votes for Perkins, Whig and Free-Soiler; was again elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 9,050 votes against 4,353 votes for Hughes, Whig, and 2,822 votes for Preston, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,650 votes against 12,129 votes for M. W. Tappan, American.

Morrison, James L. D., was born in Illinois; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Belleville; served in the Mexican war as lieutenant-colonel of Bissell's regiment of Illinois volunteers July 1, 1846-July 1, 1847; was a member of the State Senate of Illinois in 1854; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fourth Congress (in place of Lyman Trumbull, elected senator) as an Old-Line Whig, receiving 10,756 votes against 8,239 votes for Thomas, Republican, and serving from December 1, 1856, to March 3, 1857.

Morrison, John A., was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; resided at Cochranville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,671 votes against 4,601 votes for Dickey, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Morrison, William R., was born in Monroe County, Illinois, September 14, 1825; was reared on a farm; received a common-school education, and was afterwards a student at McKendree College, Illinois; served in the Mexican war as a private in Colonel Bissell's regiment of Illinois volunteers; was clerk of the Circuit Court of Monroe County 1852-1854; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1855, and commenced practice at Waterloo; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1854-1860, serving as speaker the last two years; served in the Union army as colonel of the Forty-ninth Illinois Infantry, which he commanded at Fort Donelson, where he was severely wounded; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,999 votes against 6,854 votes for Smith, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,741 votes against 11,817 votes for Jehu Baker, Unionist; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,956 votes against 13,032 votes for Jehu Baker, Republican; was again elected a member of the State House of Representatives 1870-1871; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,215 votes against 11,316 votes for J. B. Hay, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,080 votes against 8,438 votes for John J. Rinaker, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,036 votes against 13,029 votes for Henry S. Baker, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Morrissey, John, was born in Tipperary County, Ireland, February 12, 1831; came to this country in 1833 with his parents, who settled at South Troy, New York; received a limited public-school education; worked as a moulder in an iron-foundry; went to New York in the presidential campaign of 1848 as an anti-Tammany shoulder-hitter; went to California in 1851; fought a prize-fight at Mare Island with Thompson for $2,000 a side, and won; returned to New York, and fought a prize-fight at Boston Four Corners October 12, 1853, with Yankee Sullivan, for $1,000 a side, and won after thirty-seven rounds; fought a prize-fight at Long-Point Island, Canada, October 20, 1858, with John C. Heenan, for $2,500 a side, and won on the eleventh round; retired from the prize-ring, and became the proprietor of gambling-houses at New York and at Saratoga; purchased the controlling interest in the Saratoga race-course in 1863; was elected a representative from New York in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,162 votes against 6,503 votes for Nelson Taylor, Independent Democrat, and 2,293 votes for Eneas Elliott, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,064 votes against 4,494 votes for J. M. McCartin, Independent Democrat, and 2,583 votes for George Francis Train, Republican; engaged in New-York politics as an opponent of Tammany Hall; was elected to the State Senate of New York in 1875, and was re-elected in 1877; visited Florida for his health, and returned to die at Saratoga Springs May 1, 1878.

Morrow, Jeremiah, was born in Pennsylvania in 1770; received a public-school education; removed to the North-west Territory (now the State of Ohio) in 1795; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives in 1800; was elected the first representative from the State of Ohio in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1813; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1819; was a presidential elector on the Monroe ticket in 1821; was governor of Ohio 1822-1826; was State canal commissioner; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Thomas Corwin, resigned) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1840, to March 3, 1843; died at Twenty-mile Stand, Ohio, March 22, 1852.

Morrow, John, was elected a representative from Virginia in the Ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809.

Morse, Freeman H., was born at Bath, Maine, February 18, 1807; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1840-1844; was mayor of Bath; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1853 and 1856; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,750 votes against 7,375 votes for David Bronson, Coalition; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 10,552 votes against 6,990 votes for Gile, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was a member of the Peace Congress of 1861; was appointed by President Lincoln consul at London.

Morse, Isaac Edward, was born at Attakapas, Louisiana, May 22, 1809; received a military and classical education at the academies of Captain Partridge and at Harvard College, graduating at the latter institution in 1829; studied law at New Orleans, and at Paris, France; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Iberia; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress (in place of Peter E. Bossier, deceased) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 4,138 votes against 3,604 votes for Waddell, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,996 votes against 4,521 votes for Ogden, Whig, serving from December 2, 1844, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,379 votes against 5,852 votes for John Moore, Whig; was attorney-general of Louisiana; was appointed by President Pierce minister to New Granada to demand indemnity for the murder of American citizens crossing the isthmus; followed the fortunes of Louisiana in her secession from the Union; died at New Orleans February 11, 1866.

Morse, Leopold, was born at Wachenheim, Bavaria, August 15, 1831; received a common-school education at Wachenheim; came to the United-States in early life; is a merchant; was twice elected a delegate to the National Democratic Convention; was twice a candidate for Congress in the Fourth District against Hon. Samuel Hooper; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,249 votes against 9,215 votes for Rufus S. Frost, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Morse, Oliver Andrew, was born at Cherry Valley, Otsego County, New York, March 26, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at Hamilton College, New York, in 1833; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cherry Valley; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,724 votes against 8,861 votes for Gregory, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; died at Cherry Valley, New York, April 20, 1870.

Morton, Jackson, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; removed to Pensacola, Florida, where he entered into the lumber business; was elected a United-States senator from Florida as a Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855; was a deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Southern States, which assembled at Montgomery in February, 1861.

Morton, Jeremiah, was born in Virginia; resided at Raccoon Ford; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,798 votes against 2,381 votes for John S. Pendleton, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 1,868 votes against 2,367 votes for Strother, Whig.

Morton, John, was born at Ridley, Pennsylvania, in 1724; received a public-school education; was for many years a land-surveyor; was a member of the Colonial General Assembly 1756-1775, serving the last four years as speaker; was high sheriff 1766-

1770; was judge of the Supreme Court of the province; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Pennsylvania 1774-1777, and gave the casting vote in the Pennsylvania delegation on the adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

Morton, Marcus, was born at Freetown, Massachusetts, December 19, 1784; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1804; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Taunton; was clerk of the Massachusetts Senate in 1811; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress (defeating Francis Baylies), serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; was an executive councillor in 1823; was elected lieutenant-governor in 1823; was a judge of the Supreme Court 1825-1840; was governor of Massachusetts 1840-1841, and again 1843-1844; was appointed by President Polk collector of customs at Boston, serving 1845-1849; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1853; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858; died at Taunton February 6, 1864.

Morton, Oliver P., was born in Wayne County, Indiana, August 4, 1823; was apprenticed to a hatter at the age of fifteen, and worked at the trade four years, spending his leisure in study; entered the Miami University, and graduated in 1843; studied law with John S. Newman; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and commenced practice at Centreville, Indiana; was elected circuit-judge in 1852; was defeated as the Republican nominee for governor in 1856; was elected lieutenant-governor in 1860 with the understanding that General H. S. Lane, who was placed at the head of the ticket, was to be elected to the United-States Senate in the event of Republican success, which plan was carried out, and he became governor of Indiana; was elected governor in 1864; was elected United-States senator as a Union Republican (to succeed Henry S. Lane, Union Republican), and was re-elected, serving from March 4, 1867, until his death at Indianapolis November 1, 1877. In the fall of 1865 he was stricken down by partial paralysis, from which he never recovered. He was compelled to do his work by secretaries, to be carried in and out of the Senate Chamber, and to address the Senate seated.

Moseley, Jonathan Ogden, was born at East Haddam, Connecticut, in 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1780; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Ninth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1821; removed to Saginaw, Michigan, and died there September 9, 1839.

Moseley, William Abbott, received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1816; resided at Buffalo; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835, and of the State Senate 1838-1841; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,826 votes against 4,113 votes for Vosberg, Democrat, and 367 votes for Phelps, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,810 votes against 5,081 votes for Stevens, Democrat, and 406 votes for Phelps, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; died at New York November 19, 1873.

Mott, Gorden N., was born at Zanesville, Ohio, October 21, 1812; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and commenced practice at Zanesville; emigrated to Texas during its struggle for independence, and served nine months as a volunteer; returned to Ohio, and resumed practice; raised a company, which he commanded in the Mexican war; removed to California in 1849; was elected judge of Sutter County in 1850; was appointed a district-judge in 1851; was appointed a justice of the Supreme Court of Nevada; was elected a delegate from Nevada Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, serving from January 11, 1864, to March 3, 1865.

Mott, James, was born in New Jersey; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1805; was for many years treasurer of the State of New Jersey; died at his residence near Shrewsbury, New Jersey, December 10, 1813.

Mott, Richard, was born at Mamaroneck, New York, July 21, 1804; was educated at the Quaker Seminary in Dutchess County, New York; engaged in mercantile pursuits; removed to Toledo, Ohio, in 1858, and entered into business there; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,253 votes against 5,141 votes for Commager, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 10,018 votes against 9,157 votes for Edgerton, Democrat, and 474 votes for Paige, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Motte, Isaac, was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1780-1782.

Moulton, Mace, was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; was sheriff of Hillsborough County in 1845; was a State councillor in 1848 and 1849; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Moulton, Samuel W., was born at Wenham, Massachusetts, January 21, 1822; received a public-school education; went to the South-West when twenty years of age; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and commenced practice at Shelbyville, Illinois, in 1850; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1853-1859; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan ticket in 1856; was chosen president of the State Board of Education in 1859; left the Democratic party on the commencement of hostilities in 1861; was chosen president of the Grand Council of the Union League in 1863; was elected a representative at large from Illinois in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 32,611 majority, and serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Mouton, Alexander, was born in Attakapas Parish, Louisiana, November 19, 1804; received a classical education, graduating at Georgetown College, District of Columbia; studied law with Judge Voorhies; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in his native parish (then known as Lafayette Parish); was a member of the State House of Representatives 1827-1832; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-second Congress by Henry A. Bullard, Whig; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Alexander Porter), serving from February 2, 1837, until he resigned March 1, 1842; was governor of Louisiana 1842-1846; was president of the South-western Railroad Convention which met in New Orleans in January, 1852; was president of the Vigilance Committee of Lafayette Parish in 1858; was president of the State Convention which voted Louisiana out of the Union January 23, 1861; was defeated, November 20, 1861, at an election held for two senators in the Confederate Congress.

Mowry, Daniel, jun., was born at Smithfield, Rhode Island, and resided there; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress in 1781.

Mowry, Sylvester, was born at Providence, Rhode Island, in 1830; received a military education at the United-States Military Academy, graduating in 1852; served in the First United-States Artillery as second and then first lieutenant from July 1, 1852, until he resigned July 31, 1858; engaged in mining in Arizona; was elected by the people of Arizona their delegate in the Thirty-fifth Congress, but the bill creating a Territorial organization failed to become a law, so he never took his seat; was appointed by President Buchanan in 1860 a commissioner to establish the boundary-line between California and Nevada, and was superseded by President Lincoln in 1861 on political grounds; was arrested and imprisoned at Fort Yuma on a charge of disloyalty, but established his innocence; went abroad for his health, and died at London October 17, 1871. He published "Geography and Resources of Arizona and Sonora."

Muhlenberg, Francis Samuel (brother of F. A. Muhlenberg and J. P. G. Muhlenberg), was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, April 22, 1795; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was private secretary to Governor Heister 1820-1823; removed to Pickaway County, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twentieth Congress (in place of William Creighton, jun., resigned), serving from December 19, 1828, to March 3, 1829.

Muhlenberg, Frederick Augustus (brother of F. S. Muhlenberg and J. P. G. Muhlenberg), was born at La Trappe, Pennsylvania, June 2, 1750; received a classical education; studied theology, and was ordained in Germany as a minister of the Lutheran Church; preached in Pennsylvania and New York, which city he left when the British entered; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1779 and 1780; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1780-1783; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1790; was president of the State Convention called to ratify the Federal Constitution; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1790, to March 3, 1795.

Muhlenberg, Henry Augustus (father of Henry Augustus Muhlenberg), was born at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, May 13, 1782; received a classical education; studied theology, and was ordained to the Lutheran ministry in 1802; was pastor of Trinity Church at Reading 1802-1825, resigning on account of ill health; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Congresses (defeating, at the last election, Smith, anti-Masonic Whig), serving from December 7, 1829, to February 9, 1838, when he resigned; was offered by President Van Buren the positions of secretary of the navy and of minister to Russia, both of which he declined; was minister to Austria February 8, 1838-September 18, 1840; was nominated as the Democratic candidate for governor in 1844, but, before the election, he died at Reading, very suddenly, August 12, 1844.

Muhlenberg, Henry Augustus (son of Henry Augustus Muhlenberg), was born at Reading, Pennsylvania, July, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at Dickinson College; studied law for four years; was admitted to the bar in July, 1844, and commenced practice at Reading; was a member of the State Senate three years; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,543 votes against 3,476 votes for Reiber, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to January 9, 1854, when he died of typhoid-fever at Washington City. He appeared in the House of Representatives but one day, — the day on which it was organized. He published the "Life of Major-General John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg," his uncle.

Muhlenberg, John Peter Gabriel (brother of F. A. Muhlenberg and F. S. Muhlenberg), was born at La Trappe, Pennsylvania, October 1, 1746; received a classical education; studied theology at Halle, Germany, and was ordained a priest in the Episcopal Church April 21, 1772, by the Bishop of London; returning home, he was placed in charge of a parish in Virginia; was a member of the Colonial House of Burgesses in 1774; was prominent in pre-Revolutionary movements; entered the Revolutionary army as colonel of the Eighth Virginia (German) Regiment, and rose to the rank of brigadier-general, distinguishing himself in several battles; was elected vice-president of Pennsylvania; was a presidential elector in 1797; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was again elected to the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was again elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Democrat, but did not take his seat; was appointed by President Jefferson supervisor of the revenue for the district of Pennsylvania in 1801, and collector of customs at the port of Philadelphia 1803; died near Schuylkill, Pennsylvania, October 1, 1807.

Muldrow, H. L., was born in Lowndes County, Mississippi; graduated at the University of Mississippi, and received the degree of A.B. in the year 1856, and the degree of LL.B. in 1858; was admitted to the bar as attorney and solicitor in 1859; entered the Confederate army in 1861; held various positions in the line, and, at the close of the war, surrendered at Forsyth, Georgia, as a colonel of cavalry; held the position of district-attorney for the Sixth Judicial District of Mississippi from 1869 to 1871; was elected to the State legislature in 1875; and was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,597 votes against 6,420 votes for James W. Lee, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Muller, Nicholas, was born in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg November 15, 1836; received a common-school education in the cities of Luxembourg and Metz, and afterward attended the Luxembourg Athenæum; immigrated to the city of New York, where he was engaged in business as a railroad-ticket agent for over twenty years; was one of the promoters and original directors of the Germania Bank in the Bowery, New York; was a member of the State Assembly in 1875 and 1876, and of the State Central Committee in 1875; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,259 votes against 4,755 votes for James Kerrigan, Independent, serving from October 15, 1877.

Mullin, Joseph, was born in Ireland; immigrated to the United States; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Mullins, James, was born near the Three Forks of Duck River, Bedford County, Tennessee, September 15, 1807; was reared on his father's farm, and educated at public schools; served an apprenticeship to the millwright's trade; was elected colonel of militia in 1831; was high sheriff of Bedford County 1840-1846; was compelled to flee from his home in 1862 on account of his devotion to the Union; served on the staff of General Rosecrans, and was in several skirmishes and battles between 1862 and 1864; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1865, and its speaker; attended all National and State Whig, Union, and Republican Conventions after 1840; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,448 votes against 3,221 votes for Edward Cooper, Democrat, and serving from November 21, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Mumford, George, was born in Rowan County, North Carolina; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1810 and 1811; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, until his death at Washington December 31, 1818.

Mumford, Gurdon S., was born at New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Tenth and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1811.

Mumford, Paul, was born in Rhode Island; was chief justice of the province; was elected a delegate from Rhode Island to the Continental Congress in May, 1775, but never took his seat.

Mungen, William, was born at Baltimore, Maryland, May 12, 1821; went to Ohio in 1830; received a common-school education; studied Latin and German and the physical sciences to some extent at home; studied and practised law; was editor and publisher of "The Findlay Democratic Courier;" was chosen auditor of Hancock County in 1846, and again in 1848; was elected to the State Senate of Ohio in 1851; entered the Union army in 1861 as colonel of the Fifty-seventh Ohio Volunteers, which he had raised; during the time he resided in Ohio, held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,524 votes against 10,872 votes for Walker, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 15,435 votes against 10,589 votes for Gussell, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871.

Munroe, James, was born in Virginia; received a military education, graduating at West Point in 1815; removed to New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 20,454 votes against 18,843 votes for Eli Moore, Democrat, and serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 20,862 votes against 21,974 votes for Charles G. Ferris, Democrat; removed to Onondaga County, New York; was a member of the State Senate 1852-1855; removed to New Jersey, where he died in 1870.

Murfree, William Hardee, was born in Hertford County, North Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1801; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Edenton; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina 1805 and 1812; was a presidential elector on the Madison ticket in 1813; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirteenth Congress as a War Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; removed to Tennessee in 1825, and died soon after at Nashville.

Murphy, Charles, was born in South Carolina; removed to Georgia, and resided at Decatur; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-second Congress as a Unionist, receiving 7,750 votes against 5,601 votes for Stellman, State-rights, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Murphy, Henry C., was born at Brooklyn, New York, in 1810; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Brooklyn; was county-attorney of King's County; was mayor of Brooklyn in 1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,563 votes against 4,214 votes for Silliman, Whig, and 61 votes for Whiting, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 5,686 votes against 6,164 votes for Henry J. Seaman, Whig; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was appointed by President Buchanan minister to the Netherlands, serving June 1, 1857-June 8, 1861. He published several translations and essays illustrating the early history of New York.

Murphy, John, was born at Columbia, South Carolina, in 1786; received a classical education, graduating at the South-Carolina College in 1808; was clerk of the Senate of South Carolina 1810-1817; removed to Alabama in 1818; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was governor of Alabama 1825-1829; was defeated as the Union candidate for representative in the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses by Dixon H. Lewis, State-rights Democrat; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-third Congress as a Union Democrat (defeating Dellett, Nullifier, by 600 majority), serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; retiring from public life, he died in Clark County, Alabama, September 21, 1841.

Murray, Ambrose S., was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Goshen; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,209 votes against 4,574 votes for Woodward, American, and 2,053 votes for Stratton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,156 votes against 5,581 votes for Fowler, Democrat, and 3,939 votes for Trotter, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Murray, John, was born at Lancaster, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821.

Murray, John L., was born at Wadesborough, Kentucky; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Murray, Thomas, was born in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Murray, William, was born at Goshen, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,810 votes against 5,563 votes for McKissock, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,768 votes against 6,497 votes for Farnham, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Murray, William Vans, was born in Maryland in 1762; received a classical education; studied law in the Temple at London, and, on his return home in 1785, commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Third and Fourth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1797; was appointed by President Washington minister resident to the Netherlands, serving March 2, 1797-September 2, 1801; died at Cambridge, Maryland, December 11, 1803.

Mutchler, William, was born in Northampton County, Pennsylvania, December 21, 1831; received an academic education; studied law, and has since practised; was elected prothonotary of his native county in 1860, and re-elected in 1863; was appointed assessor of internal revenue by President Johnson in March, 1867, and served until May, 1869; was chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Pennsylvania in 1869-1870; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,737 votes against 6,710 votes for Kachline, Independent Democrat, and 644 votes for W. H. Plumer, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Myers, Amos, was born in Lancaster County,

Pennsylvania, April 23, 1824; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice at Clarion; was appointed district-attorney in 1847; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,404 votes against 11,586 votes for Church, Democrat, and serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Myers, Leonard, was born at Attleborough, Pennsylvania, November 13, 1827; received a liberal education; studied and practised law; digested the ordinances for the consolidation of the city of Philadelphia; was solicitor for two of the municipal districts of Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,285 votes against 8,243 votes for Kline, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,467 votes against 9,992 votes for Charles Buckwalter, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,520 votes against 11,516 votes for Charles Buckwalter, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 8,209 votes against 7,960 votes for Moffett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,778 votes against 8,453 votes for John Moffett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,751 votes against 10,104 votes for H. A. Vogelbach, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,579 votes against 10,228 votes for John Robbins, Democrat, and 9,095 votes for Alfred C. Harner, Republican.

Nabers, Benjamin D., was born in Tennessee; received a public-school education; removed to Hickory Flat, Tennessee; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-second Congress as a Unionist, receiving 9,659 votes against 7,155 votes for Thompson, State-rights, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,414 votes against 8,984 votes for D. B. Wright, Democrat; returned to Tennessee; was a presidential elector in 1861 on the Bell and Everett ticket.

Nash, Abner, was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia; received a legal education, and practised; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1777, 1778, 1782, and 1785; was governor of North Carolina 1779-1780, but was defeated when a candidate for re-election by Thomas Burke; was a delegate from North Carolina to the Continental Congress from 1782 until he died, on his way to Philadelphia, at New York, December 2, 1786.

Nash, Charles E., was born at Opelousas, Louisiana; received a common-school education at New Orleans; was a bricklayer by trade; enlisted as private in the Eighty-third Regiment United-States Chasseurs d'Afrique April 20, 1863, and was promoted until he became acting sergeant-major of the regiment; lost a leg at the storming of Fort Blakeley, and was honorably discharged from the army May 30, 1865; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,156 votes against 12,035 votes for Joseph M. Moore, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,147 votes against 15,520 votes for Edward White Robertson, Democrat.

Naudain, Arnold, was born in Delaware; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1806; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware (in place of Louis McLane, resigned) as a Whig, serving from January 13, 1830, to June 16, 1836, when he resigned; died at Odessa, Delaware, January 4, 1872.

Naylor, Charles, was born in Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania, October 6, 1806; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1828, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Francis J. Harper, deceased) as a Whig, defeating C. J. Ingersoll by 900 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,669 votes against 5,894 votes for C. J. Ingersoll, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; served in the Mexican war as captain of a company of volunteers, and subsequently as governor of the national palace; died at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, December 24, 1872.

Neal, Henry S., was born at Gallipolis, Ohio, August 25, 1828; graduated at Marietta College in 1847; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1851; was elected to the State Senate in 1861, and re-elected in 1863; was appointed consul to Lisbon, Portugal, in 1869; by the resignation of the minister resident, became chargé d'affaires in December, 1869; in July, 1870, resigned, and returned to Ohio; was elected delegate to the Ohio Constitutional Convention in 1873; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,213 votes against 14,639 votes for John L. Vance, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Neal, Lawrence Talbott, was born at Parkersburg, Virginia (now West Virginia), September 22, 1844; was educated at the Asbury Academy at that place; removed to Chillicothe in 1834; studied law there, and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court of Ohio in 1866; was solicitor of the city of Chillicothe from April, 1867, to April, 1868, and declined a re-election; was elected to the Ohio legislature in 1867; served two years, and declined a re-election; was elected prosecuting-attorney of Ross County in 1870, and held that office until October, 1872, when he resigned; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,379 votes against 12,106 votes for J. T. Wilson, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,333 votes against 9,108 votes for Gordon, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Neale, Raphael, was born in St. Mary's County, Maryland; resided at Leonardstown; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Sixteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 207 majority over Stonestreet; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 8, 1819, to March 3, 1825; died at Leonardstown October 19, 1833.

Negley, James S., was born in Alleghany County, Pennsylvania, December 22, 1826; was educated at the Western University; served in the Mexican war in the First Pennsylvania Volunteers; entered the Union army as brigadier-general April 19, 1861; organized and equipped a brigade of troops, with a battery of artillery, and joined General Sherman with his brigade in October, 1861; received special commendation for the manner in which he defended Nashville in 1862; was promoted to major-general for defeating Breckinridge's corps at the battle of Stone River, and for gallantry on that field; participated with credit in the campaigns of Alabama, Georgia, and Florida, and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,175 votes against 10,696 votes for Burt, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,230 votes against 8,018 votes for J. H. Hopkins, Democrat, and 4,372 votes for Frew, Independent candidate; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,243 votes against 10,930 votes for J. King, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,777 votes against 10,001 votes for James H. Hopkins, Democrat, and 213 votes for Thomas Howard, Independent Republican.

Neilson, John, was born near New Brunswick, New Jersey, March 11, 1745; received an academical education at Philadelphia; engaged in mercantile pursuits at New Brunswick 1769-1775; entered the Revolutionary army as captain of a company of minute-men in 1775; was appointed colonel, August 31, 1775, of a regiment of minute-men, and was actively engaged in repelling British inroads until September, 1780, when he was made deputy quartermaster-general for New Jersey; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1778-1779; was a delegate to the State Convention to ratify the Federal Constitution; died near New Brunswick, New Jersey, March 3, 1833.

Nelson, Homer A., was born at Poughkeepsie, New York, August 31, 1829; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Poughkeepsie; was judge of Dutchess County 1859-1861; entered the Union army as colonel of the One Hundred and Fifty-ninth New-York Volunteer Infantry, which he resigned in 1863; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,712 votes against 9,512 votes for Beale, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,559 votes against 12,229 votes for John H. Ketcham, Republican; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1867; was secretary of state of the State of New York 1867-1870.

Nelson, Hugh, was born in Virginia; received an academical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and its speaker; was a judge of the General Court; was a presidential elector on the Pinckney ticket in 1809; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, to January 14, 1823, when he resigned; was minister to Spain January 15, 1823-November 23, 1824; died at his country-seat, in Albemarle County, Virginia, March 18, 1836.

Nelson, Jeremiah, was born at Rowley, Massachusetts, September 14, 1769; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1790; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Newburyport, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Ninth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was again elected to the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1825; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 6, 1832, to March 2, 1833; died at Newburyport, Massachusetts, October 2, 1838.

Nelson, John (son of Roger Nelson), was born at Frederick Town, Maryland, June 1, 1791; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1811; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1813, and commenced practice at Frederick Town, Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was appointed minister to Naples, serving October 24, 1831-October 15, 1832; was appointed attorney-general of the United States by President Tyler, serving July 1, 1843-March 3, 1845; died at Baltimore, Maryland, January 8, 1860.

Nelson, Roger (son of John Nelson), was born at Frederick Town, Maryland; served in the Revolutionary war, attaining the rank of brigadier-general, and was severely wounded at the battle of Camden; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Frederick Town; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eighth Congress (in place of Daniel Heister, deceased); was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from November 6, 1804, to May 14, 1810, when he resigned to accept the appointment of associate justice of the Fifth Judicial Circuit of Maryland (in the place of W. Clagett, deceased); died at Frederick Town, Maryland, June 7, 1815.

Nelson, Thomas, jun., was born at York, Virginia, December 26, 1738; received a classical education, graduating at Trinity College, England; while on his passage home, he was elected, although scarce of age, a member of the House of Burgesses; was a member of the First Provincial Convention at Williamsburg in August, 1774; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1775-1777; was appointed, in August, 1777, commander of the State forces, and raised a company of cavalry, with which he repaired to Philadelphia; was again a delegate in the Continental Congress 1779-1780; was governor of Virginia 1781, and participated in the siege of Yorktown; his constitution having become impaired, he passed the remainder of his days in retirement and poverty, dying near Yorktown, Virginia, January 4, 1789.

Nelson, Thomas A. R., was born in East Tennessee; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Knoxville, Tennessee; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848; was appointed by President Fillmore commissioner to China March 6, 1851, but did not go there, and resigned July 2, 1851; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Unionist, receiving 7,931 votes against 7,827 votes for Haynes, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, but prevented by the Confederates from going to Washington to take his seat; was a delegate from Tennessee to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; was one of President Johnson's counsel before the Senate sitting as a court of impeachment in 1868; was a delegate from Tennessee to the National Democratic Convention at New York July 4, 1868; died at Knoxville, Tennessee, August 8, 1873.

Nelson, Thomas M., was born in Virginia in 1782; served in the war of 1812 as captain of the Tenth Regular Infantry, and major of the Thirtieth and the Eighteenth Infantry; was reduced to the rank of captain on the re-organization of the army after the war, and resigned May 15, 1815; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of Thomas Gholson, deceased) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1816, to March 3, 1819; declined a re-election; died near Columbus, Georgia, November 10, 1853.

Nelson, William, was born at Clinton, New York, June 29, 1784; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1807, and commenced practice at Peekskill, New York; was district-attorney for the counties of Putnam, Rockland, and Westchester for thirty years; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819 and 1820, and of the State Senate in 1823; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,948 votes against 3,133 votes for N. Blauvelt, Cass Democrat, and 1,754 votes for J. C. Blauvelt, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; died at Peekskill, New York, October 2, 1869.

Nes, Henry, was born at York, Pennsylvania, in 1799; received a liberal education; studied medicine, and practised for many years; filled several local offices; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as an Independent, receiving 4,016 votes against 3,413 votes for Small, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,599 votes against 5,989 votes for J. C. Danner, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to September 10, 1850, when he died at York, Pennsylvania.

Nesbitt, William, of Spartanburg, was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress, defeating James McKidden and William Rice, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Nesmith, James W., was born in Washington County, Maine, July 23, 1820; he was taken when young to New Hampshire, then to Ohio, then to Missouri, receiving no education, and in 1843 he crossed the plains to Oregon; was the captain in 1848, and again in 1853, of expeditions against hostile Indians; was appointed United-States marshal for Oregon in 1853, but resigned in 1855 to command a regiment of volunteers; was appointed superintendent of Indian affairs for Oregon and Washington Territories in 1857; was elected to the Senate of the United States, taking his seat March 4, 1861, and serving six years; was appointed minister to Austria, but the nomination was not confirmed; settled in Oregon as a farmer and stock-raiser; was road-superintendent in Polk County in 1863, and was elected a representative from Oregon in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of J. G. Wilson), receiving 8,193 votes against 6,123 votes for H. Smith, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Neville, Joseph, was born in 1730; served in the Revolutionary army; was a commissioner to run the boundary-line between Virginia and Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; died in Hardy County, Virginia, March 4, 1819.

New, Anthony, was born in Gloucester County, Virginia, in 1747; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1805; removed to Elkton, Kentucky; was again elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,675 votes against 738 votes for Matthew Lyon, Federalist, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; died near Elkton, Todd County, Kentucky, March 2, 1833.

New, Jephth D., was born at Vernon, Indiana, November 28, 1830; was educated at Vernon Academy and Bethany College, Virginia; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised until 1864, serving two years of that time as district prosecuting-attorney; was elected in 1864 judge of the District Court of Common Pleas, and served until the expiration of his term in 1868, when he resumed practice; and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,683 votes against 12,383 votes for W. J. Robinson, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Newbold, Thomas, was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress on a general ticket, receiving 18,705 votes against 14,702 votes for his Federal opponent; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1813; died in Burlington County, New Jersey, of apoplexy, December 4, 1823.

Newcomb, Carman A., was born in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, July 1, 1830; received an academic education; studied and practised law; went to Iowa, where he was a judge for five years; went to Missouri; was a member of the legislature of the State of Missouri in 1865 and 1866; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Fortieth Congress as a Radical, receiving 9,564 votes against 6,254 votes for his opponent, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Newell, William A., was born in Ohio; received a classical education, graduating at Rutgers College in 1836; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Allentown; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 9,877 votes against 8,352 votes for Potts, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was governor of New Jersey 1856-1860; was a delegate from New Jersey to the National Republican Convention at Baltimore in 1864; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,453 votes against 13,091 votes for George Middleton, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,476 votes against 13,825 votes for Haight, Democrat; was defeated as the Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey by G. B. McClellan in 1877.

Newhard, Peter, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Allentown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,636 votes against 3,878 votes for W. C. Livingston, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 2,289 votes against 2,013 votes for King, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Newman, Daniel, was born in North Carolina; was appointed ensign of the Fourth United-States Infantry March 2, 1799; promoted to be first lieutenant November 1, 1799, and resigned January 1, 1802; commanded the Georgia volunteers in the wars with the Creek and Florida Indians 1812-1814, receiving several wounds; carried on his plantation near McDonough, Georgia; was major-general of militia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-second Congress as a State-rights Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was State inspector-general of militia; died in Walker County, Georgia, January 16, 1851.

Newsham, Joseph Parkinson, was born in Monroe County, Illinois, in 1839; educated himself; was a clerk in a store for two years; studied law, and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Courts of the States of Illinois and Missouri in 1860; practised law at the St. Louis bar; entered the Union army on the staff of General Frémont; was afterwards on that of General Smith during his entire campaign from Paducah, Kentucky, to Shiloh; was adjutant of the Thirty-second Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and resigned July 4, 1864; removed the same year to Louisiana, and took an active part in reconstruction; was appointed by Governor Hahn clerk of the Fourth District Court for Ascension Parish; was admitted to the bar of Louisiana in 1865; was a member of the Reconstruction Convention of 1867 and 1868; founded and edited "The Feliciana Republican," which was the first Republican newspaper ever published in that section of the State; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, and was a candidate for re-election to the Forty-first Congress; Michael Ryan, Democrat, obtained the seat, but it was decided that he had only obtained it by fraud and intimidation, and the House declared Mr. Newsham entitled to it by a vote of 95 to 75 on the 25th of May, 1870, when he was sworn in, serving until December 5, 1870.

Newton, Eben, was born at Goshen, Litchfield County, Connecticut, October 16, 1795; received a public-school education; removed to Portage County, Ohio, and worked on a farm; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1823, and commenced practice at Canfield, Ohio, as a partner of Elisha Whittlesey; was a member of the State Senate in 1842; was elected presiding judge of the Third Judicial Circuit; travelled in Europe; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,277 votes against 6,382 votes for Day, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,179 votes against 5,752 votes for Joshua R. Giddings, Free-Soiler, and 4,427 votes for Woods, Democrat; was president of the Ashtabula and New-Lisbon Railroad Company 1856-1859; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits.

Newton, Thomas, was born at Norfolk, Virginia, in 1769; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Norfolk; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat, and was successively re-elected (generally without opposition) to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 9, 1831, when the House, by 13 majority, gave his seat to George Loyall, who had contested it; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, defeating George Loyall by 31 majority; died at Norfolk, Virginia, August 5, 1847.

Newton, Thomas Willoughby, was born at Alexandria, Virginia, January 18, 1803; removed in 1820 to Little Rock, Arkansas, to serve as assistant secretary of the Territory; removed in 1832 to Shelby County, Kentucky, and returned in 1837 to Little Rock, where he was made cashier of the real-estate bank of Arkansas; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Twenty-ninth Congress (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Archibald Yell), serving from February 6, 1847, until March 3, 1847; was engaged in several duels during his residence in Arkansas, one of them with Ambrose H. Sevier, afterwards senator, in which Sevier was wounded; and died at New York in 1853.

Newton, Willoughby, was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia; resided at Hague Post Office; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 170 majority over Hunter, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Niblack, Silas N., was elected a representative from Florida in the Forty-second Congress, having successfully contested the election of Josiah T. Walls, serving from January 29, 1873, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate at large for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,881 votes against 17,503 votes for Josiah T. Walls, Republican.

Niblack, William E., was born at Vincennes, Indiana, May 19, 1822; was educated at the Indiana University at Bloomington; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the Indiana House of Representatives in 1849, and again in 1863, and of the Indiana Senate 1850-1852; was appointed circuit-judge in January, 1854, and elected his own successor in the October following for six years, but resigned in October, 1857, after having been elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress in place of James Lockhart, deceased; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,329 votes against 8,946 votes for Hovey, anti-Lecompton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 14,720 votes against 12,610 votes for C. M. Allen, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 17,255 votes against 15,905 votes for De Bruler, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 18,116 votes against 16,631 votes for Veatch, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 17,577 votes against 15,327 votes for H. C. Gooding, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 19,259 votes against 19,127 votes for W. Heilman, Republican; was a delegate at large from Indiana to the Democratic National Convention at Chicago in 1864, at New York in 1868, and at St. Louis in 1876; was a member of the National Democratic Committee for Indiana from 1864 to 1872.

Nicholas, John, was born in Westmoreland

County in 1763; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1801; removed to Geneva, New York, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State Senate of New York 1806-1809; was presiding judge of the Oneida-county Court; superintended the education of a large family; and, after a long illness, died at Geneva, New York, December 31, 1819.

Nicholas, Robert Carter, was born in Hanover, Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; served in the war of 1812 as captain and major of the Twelfth Infantry, and lieutenant-colonel of the Forty-fourth and Fortieth Infantry, in the army stationed on the Canadian frontier; removed to Louisiana, and engaged in sugar-planting; was secretary of state of Louisiana; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana as a Democrat (in place of Charles E. A. Gayarre, who never took his seat), serving from March 4, 1836, to March 3, 1841; was superintendent of public instruction in Louisiana; died on his plantation in Terrebonne Parish, Louisiana, December 24, 1857.

Nicholas, Wilson Cary, was born at Hanover, Virginia; received a classical education at William and Mary College; served in the Revolutionary war as commander of Washington's Life Guard; was a delegate to the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Henry Tazewell, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from January 3, 1800, to 1804, when he resigned; was collector of customs at the port of Norfolk 1804-1807; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Tenth Congress, and re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to November 27, 1809, when he resigned on account of a severe rheumatism while on his way to Washington; was governor of Virginia 1814-1817; died at Milton, Virginia, October 10, 1820.

Nichols, Matthias H., was born at Sharps-town, New Jersey, October 3, 1824; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; removed to Ohio in 1842; acquired an education while working in a printing-office; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice at Lima, Ohio; was prosecuting-attorney for Allen County; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,648 votes against 6,378 votes for Plunkett, Whig, and 189 votes for Gilman, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,307 votes against 4,377 votes for Dorsey, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,415 votes against 9,172 votes for Dorsey, Democrat, and 339 votes for Beman, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859; died at Cincinnati, Ohio, September 15, 1862.

Nicholson, Alfred Osborn Pope, was born in Williamson County, Tennessee, August 31, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Chapel-hill University, North Carolina, in 1827; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1831, and commenced practice at Columbia, Tennessee; edited "The Western Mercury" at Columbia 1832-1835; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1839; was appointed a United-States senator from Tennessee (in place of Felix Grundy, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from January 11, 1841, to March 3, 1843; edited "The Nashville Union" 1844-1846; was chancellor of the middle division of Tennessee 1845-1851; was printer of the Federal House of Representatives during the Thirty-third, and of the Senate during the Forty-fourth, Congress; was editor of "The Washington Union" 1853-1856; was again elected a United-States senator from Tennessee, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861, when he retired, but was expelled July 3, 1861; was appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of Tennessee; died at Columbia, Tennessee, March 23, 1876. He was the author of the famous "Nicholson Letter," addressed to aspirants for the presidential nomination in 1848.

Nicholson, John, was born at Herkimer, New York, in 1765; was elected a representative from New York in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; died at Herkimer, New York, January 20, 1820.

Nicholson, John A., was born in Laurel, Delaware, November 17, 1827; was appointed superintendent of free schools for Kent County in 1851; was brigadier-general of militia in Kent County in 1861; was educated at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania; studied law, and practised a few years; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,762 votes against 8,253 votes for Nathaniel B. Smithers, Republican; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 9,933 votes against 8,553 votes for McKim, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Nicholson, Joseph Hopper, was born in Maryland in 1770; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 1, 1806, when he resigned; was appointed chief judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit; was a judge of the Court of Appeals; died March 4, 1817.

Nicoll, Henry, was born at New York October 23, 1812; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1847; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,609 votes against 4,560 votes for Phoenix, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Niles, Jason, resided at Kosciusko, Mississippi; was elected a representative from that State in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,266 votes without any organized opposition, serving from December 1, 1875, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress (Otho R. Singleton, Democrat, receiving a majority of 9,652 votes).

Niles, John Milton, was born at Windsor, Connecticut, in 1787; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Hartford, Connecticut; established and edited "The Hartford Times," to which he contributed for thirty years; was judge of the Hartford-county Court 1821-1826; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826; was appointed by President Jackson postmaster at Hartford in 1829; was appointed a United-States senator from Connecticut (in place of Nathan Smith, deceased) as a Whig, and subsequently elected, serving from December 21, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was appointed postmaster-general by President Van Buren, serving May 19, 1840-March 6, 1841; was again elected a senator, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; passed his later years in horticultural pursuits; bequeathed twenty thousand dollars to be held in trust for the Hartford poor, and donated his library to the Connecticut Historical Society; died at Hartford May 31, 1856. He published "A Gazetteer of Connecticut," "The Civil Officer," "A History of South America and Mexico," "Life of Commodore Perry," and a large number of orations and addresses on a variety of subjects.

Niles, Nathaniel, was born at South Princeton, Rhode Island, in 1741; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1766; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; studied medicine; studied theology under Rev. Dr. Bellamy, receiving a license to preach; removed after the Revolution to Orange County, Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives and its speaker in 1784; was for several years judge of the State Supreme Court; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Second Congress; was re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1795; was one of the censors for revising the State Constitution; died at West Fairlee, Vermont, October 31, 1828. He published four discourses on "Silent Prayer," two discourses on "Confession of Sin and Forgiveness," two sermons on "The Perfection of God, the Fountain of Good," a sermon on "Vain Amusements," and "A Letter to a Friend" 1809; he also wrote "The American Hero," a Sapphic ode.

Nisbet, Eugenius A., was born in Hancock County, Georgia, in 1803; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar by an act of the legislature before he became of age, and commenced practice at Macon, Georgia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 31,857 votes against 30,957 votes for Junius Hillyer, Van Buren Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Georgia; was a deputy from Georgia to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States at Montgomery, Alabama, February, 1861; died at Macon, Georgia, March 18, 1871.

Niven, Archibald C., was born in New York; resided at Monticello; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,162 votes against 6,474 votes for Hasbrouck, Whig, and 56 votes for Scofield, American, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Nixon, John T., was born in Cumberland County, New Jersey, in 1820; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1841; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice at Bridgeton, New Jersey; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1848-1850, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,393 votes against 5,342 votes for Walker, Democrat, and 3,739 votes for Jones, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,843 votes against 9,737 votes for Leaming, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was appointed in 1870 United-States judge for the district of New Jersey.

Noble, David A., was born in Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Monroe, Michigan; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,024 votes against 9,367 votes for Williams, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,113 votes against 11,655 votes for Waldron, Republican.

Noble, James, was born at Battletown, Virginia; went to the frontier when a youth; located in Kentucky, and afterwards in Indiana; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Indiana, serving from December 12, 1816, to February 26, 1831, when he died at Washington City.

Noble, Warren P., was born in Pennsylvania June 14, 1821; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Tiffin, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1856-

1860; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,650 votes against 12,096 votes for Carey, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,765 votes against 10,523 votes for Worcester, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,717 votes against 13,511 votes for Ralph P. Buckland, Republican.

Noble, William H., was born in New York in 1788; resided at Cato, Cayuga County; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1823-1830; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,464 votes against 4,631 votes for Christopher Morgan, Whig; died at Rochester, New York, February 5, 1850.

Noel, Thomas E., was born at Perryville, Missouri, April 3, 1830; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1858, and commenced practice at Perryville; was appointed a military commissioner for the arrest of disloyal persons in 1861; was major of the State Loyal Militia 1861-1862; was appointed captain in the Nineteenth Infantry, United-States army, in 1862, but resigned in 1863; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Radical, receiving 4,075 votes against 1,858 votes for Tuttle, Democrat, and 659 votes for Leeper, Independent Radical; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 2,765 votes against 2,758 votes for Scott, Democrat, and 191 votes for Lawson, Independent, serving from December 4, 1865, to October 4, 1867, when he died at St. Louis, Missouri.

Noell, John W., was born in Bradford County, Virginia, February 15, 1816; received an academical education; removed with his parents to Missouri in 1832; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Perryville, Missouri; was clerk of the Circuit Court of Perry County 1841-1850; was a member of the State Senate four years; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,404 votes against 5,808 votes for Zeigler, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,191 votes against 4,007 votes for Perryman, Republican, and 548 votes scattering, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, but died at Washington City March 14, 1863.

Norcross, Amasa, was born in Rindge, New Hampshire, January 26, 1824; received an academic education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1847; has since been engaged in practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives of the Massachusetts legislature in 1858, 1859, and 1862, and of the State Senate of Massachusetts in 1874; was assessor of internal revenue for the Tenth Congressional District from August, 1862, until May, 1873, when the office was abolished; was mayor of the city of Fitchburg in 1873 and 1874; and was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,779 votes against 8,928 votes for S. O. Lamb, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Norris, Benjamin W., was born at Monmouth, Maine, in 1819; graduated at Waterville College (now Colby University) in 1843; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a delegate to the Free-soil Convention at Buffalo which nominated Van Buren and Adams in 1848; was land agent of Maine in 1860-1863; was commissioner from Maine of the Soldiers' National Cemetery at Gettysburg; was a delegate to the Republican Convention at Baltimore which nominated Lincoln and Johnson in 1864; was a paymaster in the Union army 1864-1865; after the close of the war, settled on a plantation in Alabama; was elected to the Constitutional Convention of Alabama in 1868; was elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, serving from July 21, 1868, to March 3, 1869; and died at Montgomery, Alabama, January 27, 1878.

Norris, Moses, jun., was born at Pittsfield, New Hampshire, November 8, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1828; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Barnstead; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1839-1840; was State solicitor for Merrimack County in 1843; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, until March 3, 1847; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847, and was chosen speaker; was elected to the United-States Senate, and served from March 4, 1849, until his death at Washington, January 11, 1865.

North, William, was born in New York in 1753; served in the Revolutionary army as aide-de-camp to Major-General Baron de Steuben; was appointed a United-States senator from New York (in place of John Sloss Hobart, resigned), serving from May 21, 1798, to March 3, 1799; was appointed adjutant-general of the army, with the rank of brigadier-general, serving from July 19, 1798, until the army was disbanded June 10, 1800; was again appointed adjutant-general of the army March 27, 1812, but declined; died at Duanesburg, New York, January 4, 1836.

Norton, Daniel S., was born at Mount Vernon, Ohio, April 12, 1829; was educated at Kenyon College, Ohio; served in the Ohio volunteers in the Mexican war; visited California and Nicaragua; then returned to Ohio, where he studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice; removing to Minnesota, he was a member of the Senate of that State in 1857, 1858, 1860, 1861, 1863, and 1864; was elected United-States senator from Minnesota as a Union Conservative (to succeed M. S. Wilkinson, Union Republican), serving from March 4, 1871, to his death at Washington July 14, 1870.

Norton, Ebenezer F., was born in New York; resided at Buffalo; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1823; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

Norton, Elijah H., was born in Logan County, Kentucky, November 24, 1821; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Platte City; was a judge of the Circuit Court of Missouri 1852-1860; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,797 votes against 8,350 votes for Scott, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Norton, Jesse O., was born in Vermont; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College, Massachusetts; removed to Illinois; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and commenced practice at Joliet, Illinois; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1847; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851 and 1852; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,268 votes against 8,087 votes for Reddy, Democrat, and 1,633 votes for Bryant, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,474 votes against 6,216 votes for Drake, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was elected judge of the Eleventh District of Illinois, serving 1857-1862; was again elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,604 votes against 8,419 votes for Dickey, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; died at Chicago, Illinois, August 3, 1875.

Norton, Nelson I., was born in Cattaraugus County, New York, March 30, 1820; was brought up on a farm, attending the winter schools; engaged in mercantile pursuits, but returned to agriculture; was a justice of the peace, county assessor, and county supervisor; was a member of the State Assembly of New York in 1861; was a presidential elector on the Grant and Wilson ticket in 1872; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress in 1875 as a Republican (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Augustus F. Allen), receiving 10,770 votes against 9,139 votes for Charles S. Cary, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Norvell, John, was born in Pennsylvania; learned the art of printing; edited a newspaper in Philadelphia; removed to Detroit, Michigan; was appointed by President Jackson postmaster at Detroit, and held the office until he resigned in 1836; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Michigan as a Democrat, serving from January 26, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died of apoplexy at Detroit, Michigan, April 11, 1850.

Norwood, Thomas Manson, was born in Talbot County, Georgia, April 20, 1830; received an academic education at Culloden, Monroe County, Georgia; was graduated at Emory College, Oxford, Georgia, in 1850; studied law, and was admitted to practice in February, 1852; removed to Savannah in March, 1852, where he has practised law ever since; was a member of the Georgia legislature in 1861-1862; was elected alternate Democratic elector for the State at large in 1868 on the Seymour and Blair ticket; was elected United-States senator from Georgia as a Democrat November 14, 1871; after a contest for his seat with Foster Blodgett, was admitted to the Senate December 19, 1871, and served until March 3, 1877.

Nott, Abraham, was born at Saybrook, Connecticut, in 1767; was educated for the ministry, graduating at Yale College in 1787; went to Georgia as tutor in the family of the father of Governor Troup, who was one of his pupils; removed to Camden, South Carolina, in 1789; studied law there with Daniel Brown, and was admitted to the bar at Charleston May 27, 1791; commenced practice at Union Court House, and then at his plantation on the Pacolet River; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Sixth Congress as a Federalist (after aiding in casting the vote of South Carolina in favor of Aaron Burr for thirty-five ballots, he withdrew, and on the thirty-sixth ballot, the remaining representatives from South Carolina being then equally divided, the State voted blank, and Jefferson was elected); served in Congress from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; resuming practice, he removed to Columbia in 1804; was elected a law-judge in 1810, and president of the Court of Appeals in 1824; he was attacked by consumption at Charleston in January, 1830, and died at the residence of a friend in Fairfield District, while on his way home, June 19, 1830.

Nourse, Amos, was born in 1795; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1812; studied medicine, and practised at Bath; was a medical lecturer at Bowdoin College 1846-1854, and then medical professor; was postmaster at Hallowell; was collector of customs at Bath; was appointed a United-States senator from Maine (in place of Hannibal Hamlin, resigned), serving from January 24, 1857, to March 3, 1857; was judge of probate of Sagadahoc County; died at Bath, Maine, April 17, 1877.

Noyes, John, was born in 1763; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1795; was a tutor in that institution; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 17,593 votes against 16,975 votes for Ezra Butler, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Noyes, Joseph C., was born at Portland, Maine, in 1793; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Eastport; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1833; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig on the fifth ballot (defeating Jarvis, Democrat), serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress by Joshua A. Lowell, Democrat; was collector of customs in the Passamaquoddy District 1841-1843; removed to Portland, where he became treasurer of the savings bank; died at Portland, Maine, July 21, 1868.

Nuckolls, Stephen F., was born August 16, 1825, in Grayson County, Virginia; received an academic education; removed to Missouri in 1846, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; in 1854 removed to Nebraska Territory; was one of the founders of Nebraska City, and was a member of the Nebraska legislature in 1859; in 1860 went to Colorado Territory, and for four years was engaged in mining and merchandising; from 1864 to 1867 resided in New-York City; settled in Cheyenne (then in Dakota Territory) in 1867; and, upon the organization of Wyoming Territory in 1869, was elected delegate from Wyoming in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,301 votes against 1,863 votes for Corlett, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Nuckolls, William C., was born in South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at the South-Carolina University in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Spartanburg, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833.

Nugen, Robert H., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1809; removed with his parents to Columbiana County, Ohio, in 1811, and thence to Tuscarawas County in 1828; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,281 votes against 9,439 votes for Helmick, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; declined being a candidate for re-election.

Nunn, David A., was born in Haywood County, Tennessee, in 1835; received a collegiate education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Brownsville; was a member of the Whig party until it ceased to exist; was a presidential elector in 1860 on the Bell ticket, and again presidential elector in 1864 on the Republican ticket; was a member of the legislature of the State of Tennessee in 1866 and 1867; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,057 votes against 6,189 votes for J. F. Leftwick, Democrat, serving from November 21, 1867, to March 3, 1869; was defeated as the Independent Republican candidate for the Forty-first Congress, receiving 2,439 votes against 5,393 votes for William J. Smith, Republican, and 4,082 votes for J. F. Leftwick, Democrat; and was again elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 7,580 votes against 5,967 votes for A. W. Campbell, Democrat, 4,476 votes for W. P. Caldwell, Democrat, and 1,979 votes for T. H. Bell, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 4,336 votes against 11,128 votes for William P. Caldwell, Democrat.

Nye, James W., was born in Madison County, New York, June 10, 1815; received a public-school education, and was reared on a farm; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised in Madison County; was district-attorney, and subsequently county-judge; was defeated as the Antislavery candidate for the Thirtieth Congress; removed to Syracuse; was a State police commissioner in New-York City in 1860; was appointed by President Lincoln in 1861 governor of Washoe (afterwards Nevada Territory); when Nevada became a State he was elected United-States senator as a Republican, and was re-elected, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1873; after leaving public life, his reason became impaired; and he died at White Plains, New York, December 25, 1876.

Oakley, Thomas Jackson, was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1783; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1801; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Poughkeepsie; was appointed surrogate of Dutchess County 1810, 1811; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1816, 1818-1820; was attorney-general of the State of New York; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress as a Clinton Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to 1828, when he resigned; was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of the State of New York 1828-1836; on the re-organization of the Supreme Court, was elected chief justice, serving from 1846 until his death at New-York City May 11, 1857.

O'Brien, Jeremiah, was born at Machias, Maine (then Massachusetts), in 1708; received a public-school education; engaged in agricultural and mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Maine in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-first Congress on the third trial; was a member of the State House of Representatives for six successive terms; died at Boston, Massachusetts, May 30, 1858.

O'Brien, William J., was born at Baltimore, Maryland, May 28, 1836; was educated at St. Mary's College, Baltimore; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1858; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,675 votes against 8,346 votes for R. Turner, Independent Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,287 votes against 4,834 votes for James S. Suter, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Odell, Moses F., was born at Tarrytown, New York, February 24, 1818; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was appointed an entry-clerk in the New-York Custom House in 1845 under Collector Van Ness, and served continuously under Collectors Lawrence, Maxwell, Bronson, and Redfield, receiving several promotions until he became public appraiser; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Fusion Democrat, receiving 13,322 votes against 10,870 votes for James Humphrey, Republican; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress as a War Democrat, receiving 8,915 votes against 7,506 votes for James Humphrey, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was appointed navy agent at the city of New York in 1865; and died at New York of a cancer in the mouth June 13, 1866.

Odell, N. Holmes, was born near Tarrytown, New York, October 10, 1828; received an academic education; was engaged in the steamboat business on the North River; was a member of the State General Assembly 1857-1861; established the First National Bank at Tarrytown, of which he was the cashier 1862-1864; was elected county treasurer of Westchester County in 1866, and re-elected in 1869, and again in 1872; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,082 votes against 8,301 votes for Wright, Republican, serving from March 3, 1875, to December 6, 1877.

Ogden, Aaron, was born at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, December 3, 1756; received a classical education, graduating at Nassau Hall in 1773; served in the Revolutionary army with distinction; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a presidential elector in 1809; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey (in place of James Schureman, resigned), serving from March 3, 1801, to March 3, 1803; was governor of New Jersey in 1812; was offered by President Madison a commission as major-general in the army of the United States, but declined it on the ground that he had been commander-in-chief of the armed forces of New Jersey; was president-general of the Society of the Cincinnati; died at Jersey City April 19, 1839.

Ogden, David A., was born at Morristown, New Jersey; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Madrid, St. Lawrence County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1814 and 1815; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from January 8, 1818, to March 3, 1819; died at Montreal, Canada, June 9, 1829.

Ogle, Alexander (father of Charles Ogle, and grandfather of Andrew J. Ogle), was born in Maryland, August 10, 1765; received an academical education; removed at an early age to Somerset, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State legislature of Pennsylvania 1806-1812; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was prothonotary of Somerset County; died at Somerset, Pennsylvania, October 14, 1852.

Ogle, Andrew J. (grandson of Alexander Ogle), was born at Somerset, Pennsylvania, in 1822; was prothonotary of Somerset County in 1843; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,902 votes against 6,649 votes for J. L. Dawson, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,135 votes against 6,404 votes for J. L. Dawson, Democrat; was appointed by President Fillmore chargé d'affaires to Denmark January 22, 1852, but died shortly afterwards of apoplexy at Somerset, Pennsylvania.

Ogle, Charles (son of Alexander Ogle), was born at Somerset, Pennsylvania, in 1798; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Somerset; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig and anti-Masonic candidate, defeating Job Man, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, but died before taking his seat, at Somerset, May 10, 1841.

Oglesby, Richard J., was born in Oldham County, Kentucky, July 25, 1824; settled in Illinois, at Decatur, in 1833; received less than a common-school education; was a carpenter for two years; studied law in 1844, and was admitted to the bar in 1845; served one year in the Mexican war; worked two years in the mines in California; was elected to the State Senate of Illinois in 1860, served one session, and resigned to enter the volunteer service in 1861 at the commencement of the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was chosen colonel, afterward appointed brigadier-general, and, in 1863 (to take rank from November, 1862), a major-general; resigned in 1864, and was elected that year governor of Illinois for the term which expired in January, 1869; was re-elected governor of Illinois in November, 1872; entered upon the duties of his office January 13, 1873; and on the 21st of the same month was elected United-States senator from Illinois as a Republican (to succeed Lyman Trumbull, Liberal). His term will expire March 3, 1879.

Olcott, Simeon, was born in Connecticut in 1737; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1761; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Charlestown, New Hampshire; was appointed, December 25, 1784, chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas; January 25, 1790, a judge of the Superior Court; and March 28, 1795, chief judge of the Superior Court; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire (in place of Samuel Livermore, resigned) as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1805; died at Charlestown, New Hampshire, in 1815.

Olds, Edson B., was born in Vermont; received an academical education; studied medicine, and practised the profession; was for several years a member of the State Senate and House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,984 votes against 6,906 votes for Edwards, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,263 votes against 6,110 votes for Van Trump, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,540 votes against 8,480 votes for Galloway, Whig, and 333 votes for Graham, Free-Soiler, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,390 votes against 9,698 votes for Galloway, Whig; was arrested in 1862 on a charge of disloyalty, and imprisoned in Fort Lafayette; while there, he was elected a member of the Ohio House of Representatives; died at Lancaster, Ohio, January 24, 1869.

Olin, Abram B. (son of Gideon Olin), was born at Shaftsbury, Vermont, in 1812; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College, Massachusetts, in 1835; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1838, and commenced practice at Troy, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,206 votes against 4,758 votes for Griswold, Democrat, and 4,108 votes for Fonda, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,267 votes against 5,254 votes for Seymour, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 8,650 votes against 8,268 votes for McConihe, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1867, to March 3, 1869; was appointed by President Lincoln a judge of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in 1865, which he has announced his determination to resign September 1, 1878.

Olin, Gideon (father of Abram B. Olin), was born in Rhode Island; removed to Vermont, and was one of the founders of the State; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and one term speaker of the House; was a judge of Bennington-county Court; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Eighth Congress, and was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; died at Shaftsbury, Vermont, August 6, 1822.

Olin, Henry, was born in 1767, and reared in Addison County, Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives, with the exception of four years, 1799-1825; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Conventions of 1814, 1822, and 1828; was an associate judge of the Addison-county Court 1801-1806 and 1810-1824; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Eighteenth Congress (in place of Charles Rich, deceased), serving from December 13, 1824, to March 3, 1825; died at Salisbury, Vermont, in 1837.

Oliver, Addison, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1833; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College in 1850; taught school for two years in Arkansas; returned to Pennsylvania; studied law with Hon. William Montgomery; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Western Iowa in 1857; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1863, and of the State Senate in 1865; was elected judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit in 1868, and twice re-elected to the same position, which he resigned when elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,657 votes against 6,808 votes for Whiting, anti-Monopolist; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,563 votes against 10,583 votes for Samuel Rees, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Oliver, Andrew, was born at Springfield, New York; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1835; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1838, and commenced practice at Pen Yan; was first judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1843-1847; was elected judge of the Surrogate and County Courts in 1846; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,546 votes against 8,529 votes for Woods, Whig, and 290 votes for Frisby, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,880 votes against 5,304 votes for Seely, Whig, and 2,163 votes for Howell, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,211 votes against 9,368 votes for Potte, Republican, and 3,897 votes for Ogden, Democrat.

Oliver, Mordecai, was born in Anderson County, Kentucky, October 22, 1819; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Richmond, Missouri; was elected circuit-attorney for the Fifth Judicial Circuit of Missouri in 1848; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,612 votes against 4,452 votes for Birch, anti-Benton Democrat, and 4,243 votes for King, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,129 votes against 4,998 votes for Leonard, anti-Benton Democrat, and 2,787 votes for Lowe, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857.

Oliver, William M., was born at Springfield, New York; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Pen Yan; was appointed first judge for the Court of Common Pleas for Yates County 1823, and again in 1838; was a State senator and lieutenant-governor in 1830; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,949 votes against 6,170 votes for Thomas A. Johnson, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

O'Neill, Charles, was born in Philadelphia March 21, 1821; graduated at Dickinson College in 1840; studied and practised law; was admitted to the bar in 1843; was a member of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania in 1850, 1851, 1852, and 1860; was a member of the State Senate of Pennsylvania in 1853; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,614 votes against 6,068 votes for Biddle, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,767 votes against 7,290 votes for Reilly, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,612 votes against 9,475 votes for Hulme, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 14,533 votes against 11,913 votes for Florence, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Independent candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,134 votes against 11,069 votes for John V. Creely, Republican; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,253 votes against 9,728 votes for E. Joy Morris, Liberal and Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,692 votes against 9,660 votes for Benjamin Rush, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,201 votes against 11,881 votes for Charles H. Gibson, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

O'Neill, John, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, December 17, 1821; received a classical education, graduating at St. John's College, Maryland; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice; removed in 1844 to Ohio; was elected in 1845 prosecuting-attorney for Muskingum County; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,763 votes against 9,699 votes for Wright, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Ormsby, Stephen, was born in Virginia; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar; located in Kentucky; was a judge of the Circuit Court; was a brigade-major under General Harmer in the campaign of 1790; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twelfth Congress, receiving 66 majority over Mr. Quinton; was defeated as a candidate for re-election to the Thirteenth Congress by John Simpson, who was soon afterwards killed at the battle of the River Raisin; Ormsby was then re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, taking his seat at the opening of the session; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817; died at Louisville, Kentucky, in 1840.

Orr, Alexander D., was born at Alexandria, Virginia, in 1765; was one of the pioneer settlers of Kentucky, locating in Mason County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1792; upon the admission of Kentucky into the Union, was elected one of its representatives in the Second Congress; was re-elected to the Third Congress; and was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1797; died at Paris, Kentucky, June 21, 1835.

Orr, Benjamin, was born at Bedford, New Hampshire, December 1, 1772; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1798; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1801, and commenced practice at Topsham, Maine; removed to Brunswick; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; died at Brunswick, Maine, September 1, 1828.

Orr, Jackson, was born in Fayette County, Ohio, September 21, 1832; received a common-school education, and attended a part of an irregular course at the University of Indiana; studied law, but has devoted the last eight years to mercantile pursuits; served in the Union army as captain in the Tenth Iowa Infantry; was a member of the legislature of Iowa in 1863; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,989 votes against 5,977 votes for C. C. Smeltzer, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,402 votes against 6,152 votes for J. F. Duncombe, Democrat and Liberal, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Orr, James L., was born at Claytonville, South Carolina, May 12, 1822; was a clerk in his father's store; received a classical education, which was finished at the University of Virginia in 1841; studied law with Judge Whitner; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Anderson, South Carolina; edited "The Anderson Gazette;" was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,454 votes against 3,790 votes for B. F. Perry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1859; was a delegate to the State Convention which voted that South Carolina should secede from the Union; was one of three commissioners sent to Washington to treat for a surrender of the national property; was elected in 1862 a member of the Confederate Senate, and served as such until the end of the war in 1865; was elected governor of South Carolina as a Republican, receiving 9,766 votes against 9,109 votes for Wade Hampton, Democrat, and held the position until the State was reconstructed; was grand master of Freemasons of the State of South Carolina; was appointed a United-States circuit-judge; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1864; was appointed by President Grant minister to Russia; and died at St. Petersburg May 6, 1873. He published a number of political, masonic, and literary orations.

Ort, Robert, was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1785; resided at Kittanning; served in the war of 1812; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816, 1817; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; and died at Kittanning, Pennsylvania, May 29, 1876.

Orth, Godlove S., was born near Lebanon, Pennsylvania, April 22, 1817; was educated at Gettysburg College, Pennsylvania; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice in Indiana; was a member of the State Senate of Indiana in 1843, 1844, 1845, 1846, 1847, and 1848, serving one year as president of that body; was a presidential elector in 1848; was a member of the Peace Conference in 1861; served as captain of a company of volunteers during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,032 votes against 11,181 votes for Pettit, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,536 votes against 12,349 votes for Harney, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,933 votes against 14,728 votes for Purdue, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,117 votes against 15,660 votes for Manson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1871; was elected to the Forty-third Congress for the State at large as a Republican, receiving 188,664 votes against 188,502 votes for M. C. Kerr, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Osborn, Thomas W., was born at Scotch Plains, New Jersey, March 9, 1836; removed with his parents to Wilna, New York, in 1842; graduated from Madison University in 1860; studied law in Watertown, New York, and, as soon as admitted to the bar, in 1861 he entered the Union army; first commissioned as captain in the First New-York Artillery, he afterwards served successively as chief of artillery of the Second Division, Third Army Corps, as chief of artillery to the Third, Eleventh, and Fourth Army Corps, and as chief of artillery of the Army of the Tennessee; was assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Refugees and Freedmen for Florida, with the rank of colonel, from June, 1865, to August, 1866; practised law in Tallahassee, and held the office of register in bankruptcy; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Florida under the reconstruction acts; removed from Tallahassee to Pensacola; was elected United-States senator from Florida as a Republican, receiving 51 votes against 18 votes for William Marvin, Democrat, serving from June 30, 1868, to March 3, 1873.

Osborne, Thomas B., was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, in 1797; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1817; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fairfield, Connecticut; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,023 votes against 3,701 votes for P. T. Whittlesey, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; removed to New Haven in 1848, and became a professor in the law-school connected with Yale College; died at New Haven, Connecticut, September 2, 1860.

Osgood, Gayton Pickman, was born at Salem, Massachusetts, July 4, 1797; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised in Salem until he removed to North Andover in 1819, at which time he abandoned his profession entirely; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1829 and 1831; was the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Essex North District in 1832, having at first as opponents, supported by the National Republicans, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Kittredge, Jeremiah Nelson, and Ebenezer Bradbury, among whom the opposition vote to Mr. Osgood was divided at seventeen successive elections, commencing in 1831, extending over 1832, and ending in the election of Mr. Osgood June 8, 1833, a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,272 votes against 2,474 votes for Cushing, National Republican, and 262 scattering, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; and died at North Andover, Massachusetts, June 26, 1861.

Osgood, Samuel, was born at Andover, Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1770; studied theology, but, losing his health, engaged in mercantile pursuits; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the Essex-county Convention of 1774, and a member of the Provincial Congress; entered the Revolutionary army as a captain at Lexington and Cambridge in April, 1775; was aide-de-camp to General Ward in 1775-1776, and left the army with the rank of colonel and assistant quartermaster; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress; was first commissioner of the United-States Treasury in 1785-1789; was appointed by President Washington postmaster-general, serving from September 26, 1789, to August 19, 1791; removed to the city of New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1800-1802; was supervisor of New York 1801-1803; was naval officer of the port of New York to his death at New York August 12, 1813. He published a work on chronology, and several volumes on religious topics.

Otero, Miguel A., was born at Valencia, New Mexico, June 21, 1829; received a classical education, graduating at the St. Louis University, Missouri; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice at Albuquerque; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives; was appointed by President Pierce United-States district-attorney for New Mexico, but declined; was attorney-general for the Territory; was elected a delegate from New-Mexico Territory in the Thirty-fourth Congress, having successfully contested the election of José Manuel Gallegos; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Congresses, serving from July 23, 1856, to March 3, 1861.

Otis, Harrison Gray (son of Samuel Allyne Otis), was born in Boston, Massachusetts, October 8, 1765; received a liberal education, graduating at Harvard College 1783; studied law under John Lowell; was admitted to the bar in 1786, and commenced practice at Boston; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1796, 1803, 1804, and 1805, serving the last three years as speaker; was a member of the State Senate in 1805-1811, serving as president; was elected a representative in Congress from Massachusetts, succeeding Fisher Ames to the Fifth Congress as a Federalist, and was re-elected to the Sixth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 15, 1797, until March 3, 1801; was appointed by President John Adams United-States district-attorney for the district of Massachusetts; was a prominent member of the Federalist Convention at Hartford in December, 1814; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1814-1818: was elected to the United-States Senate as a Federalist, and served from March 4, 1817, until he resigned in June, 1822; was the Federal candidate for governor in 1823, but was defeated by W. Eustis, Democrat; was mayor of Boston 1829-1832; and died at Boston, Massachusetts, October 24, 1848.

Otis, John, was born in Maine in 1801; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1823; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hallowell; was a member of the State House of Representatives for five years, and was subsequently a member of the State Senate; was a commissioner for settling the North-eastern boundary; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,274 votes against 4,133 votes for Moses Sherburne, Cass Democrat, and 2,523 votes for Ezekiel Holmes, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Hallowell, Maine, October 17, 1856.

Otis, Samuel Allyne (father of Harrison Gray Otis), was born at Barnstable, Massachusetts, November 24, 1740; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1759; commenced the study of law, but abandoned it, and engaged in mercantile pursuits in Boston; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1770; was a member of the Convention which framed the Constitution of Massachusetts; was on the Board of War during the Revolution; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1787-1788; was chosen secretary of the United-States Senate after the adoption of the Federal Constitution, and filled the office with great fidelity and amenity (without being absent from his desk a single day for thirty years) until his death at Washington City April 22, 1814.

Outlaw, David, was born in Bertie County, North Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at the university of that State in 1824; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Windsor, North Carolina; was a member for three years of the State House of Representatives; was elected solicitor of Edenton District in 1833; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,795 votes against 3,071 votes for Biggs, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,033 votes against 3,477 votes for Person, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 2,868 votes against 1,759 votes for Martin, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,746 votes against 4,833 votes for Shaw, Democrat.

Outlaw, George, was born in Bertie County, North Carolina; was elected a member of the House of Commons of the State legislature in 1796 and 1797, and of the State Senate in 1802, 1806-1808, 1810-1814, 1817, 1821, and 1822; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Eighteenth Congress (in place of Hutchins G. Burton, resigned), serving from January 10, 1825, to March 3, 1825; and died August 15, 1835.

Overstreet, James, was born in Barwell District, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Sixteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to April 24, 1822; he was returning home from Washington, accompanied by his wife, to whom he had but recently been married, when he was taken ill on the road near Salisbury, North Carolina, and died in a few hours, April 24, 1822.

Overton, Edward, jun., was born at Towanda, Pennsylvania, February 4, 1836; graduated at Princeton College, New Jersey, in 1856; was admitted to the bar in May, 1858; entered the Union army in September, 1861, as major of the Fiftieth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers; was promoted to lieutenant-colonel in 1863, and from that time commanded the regiment until mustered out October, 1864; served as register in bankruptcy from 1867 until elected in 1873 a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,954 votes against 14,958 votes for Joseph Powell, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Overton, Walter H., was born in Tennessee in 1783; entered the army as first lieutenant of infantry May 3, 1808; was promoted to be major of the Third Rifles February 21, 1814; was brevetted lieutenant-colonel for gallant conduct at the battle of New Orleans; commanded Fort St. Philip during the bombardment by the British fleet in January, 1815; resigned October 31, 1815; settled in Louisiana, and became interested in planting in the Red-River country; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; died on his plantation, near Alexandria, Louisiana, January 4, 1846.

Owen, Allen F., was born in North Carolina; removed to Georgia, and resided at Talbotton; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,754 votes against 4,260 votes for Cary, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was appointed consul-general at Havana.

Owen, George W., was born in Brunswick County, Virginia, in 1798; received an academical education; removed to Mobile, Alabama; was mayor of Mobile; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Eighteenth Congress, defeating Bagby and Dinsmore; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was appointed collector of the port of Mobile in 1829; died at Mobile, Alabama, August 18, 1836.

Owen, James, was born in Bladen County, North Carolina, in December, 1784; was educated at Pittsborough under Mr. Bingham; was a planter; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1808-1811; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1819; was president of the Wilmington and Raleigh Railroad.

Owen, Robert Dale, was born at Glasgow, Scotland, November 7, 1801; received a classical education, graduating at Hofwyl College, near Berne, Switzerland; immigrated to this country with his father in 1823, and joined him in establishing a social community at New Harmony, Indiana; was an editor of "The Free Enquirer," published at New York 1828-1831; returned to New Harmony in 1832; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835-1838; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,704 votes against 6,102 votes for Payne, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,346 votes against 6,331 votes for Wilson, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 7,054 votes against 7,445 votes for Embree, Whig; was appointed by President Pierce chargé d'affaires at Naples in 1853, and minister in 1855, remaining there until 1858; was an earnest supporter of the Union in 1861, and served on a commission to investigate frauds in the purchase of arms; became a Spiritualist, and lost his reason, which he partially recovered; died at his summer residence on Lake George June 24, 1877. He published "An Outline of the System of Education at New Lanark;" "Moral Philosophy;" "Discussion with Origen Bachelor on the Personality of God, and the Authenticity of the Bible;" "Pocahontas," an historical drama; "Hints on Public Architecture," with a hundred and thirteen illustrations; "Footfalls on the Boundary of Another World;" "The Wrong of Slavery, and the Right of Emancipation;" "Beyond the Breakers," a novel; "The Debatable Land between this World and the Next;" and "Threading my Way," being twenty-seven years of autobiography.

Owens, George W., was born in Georgia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Savannah; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Unionist on a general ticket, receiving 27,510 votes against 25,337 votes for Foster, State-rights; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 29,337 votes against 28,419 votes for Nisbet, State-rights, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; died at Savannah in 1856.

Owsley, Bryan Y., was born in Kentucky; resided at Jamestown; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 4,096 votes against 4,560 votes for Caldwell, Democrat, and 1,507 votes for Stone, Whig.

Paca, William, was born at Wye Hall, Maryland, October 31, 1740; received a classical education, graduating at Philadelphia College in 1758; went abroad, and studied law at the Middle Temple; was admitted to the bar; returned home, and practised at Annapolis; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1771-1774; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1774-1779; was a member of the State Senate 1777-1779; was chief justice of Maryland 1778-1780; was chief justice of the Court of Appeals 1780-1782; was governor of Maryland 1782 and 1786; was a delegate to the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution in 1788; was United-States judge for the district of Maryland from 1789 until his death in 1799.

Pacheco, Romualdo, was born at Santa Barbara, California, October 31, 1831; was educated by private tutors; engaged in nautical pursuits, and subsequently in agriculture; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853; was elected county-judge in 1853, serving for four years; was a member of the State Senate in 1851, and again in 1861; was elected State treasurer in 1863; was elected lieutenant-governor in 1871, and became governor when Governor Booth was elected to the United-States Senate; and was elected a representative from California in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,104 votes against 19,103 votes for Peter D. Wigginton, Democrat, as declared by the governor's certificate, but the House awarded the seat to Mr. Wigginton, who was admitted February 7, 1878. He was the first native Californian elected to Congress.

Packard, Jasper, was born in Mahoning (formerly Trumbull) County, Ohio, February 1, 1832; removed with his father to Indiana in 1835; was brought up on a farm; was a student at Oberlin College, and afterwards at the University of Michigan, where he graduated in 1855; taught school; settled at Laporte, and edited "The Union;" studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1861; entered the Union army at the commencement of the war for the suppression of the Rebellion as a private; served as a lieutenant in the Vicksburg campaign, and, during the assault on that place, was wounded in the face; was commissioned captain, and was in the march from Memphis to Chattanooga; received two promotions during the Atlanta campaign, and in 1865 was appointed a brigadier-general by brevet for meritorious services; on being mustered out of service in 1866, he was chosen auditor of Laporte County, holding the office until 1868, when he was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,489 votes against 14,268 votes for Farrand, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,490 votes against 13,052 votes for S. I. Anthony, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 16,813 votes against 15,828 votes for Henricks, Liberal Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875.

Packer, Asa, was born at Groton, Connecticut, December 29, 1806; received a public-school education; removed to Springville, Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, in 1822; learned the carpenter's trade; removed to Mauch Chunk in 1832; became largely interested in the production of coal and in railroads; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,909 votes against 3,035 votes for Foster, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Nebraska Democrat, receiving 9,136 votes against 6,433 votes for Stewart, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; founded and endowed the Lehigh University; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention of 1868 at New York.

Packer, John B., was born at Sunbury, Pennsylvania, March 21, 1824; received an academic education; studied law, and has, since his admission to the bar in 1844, continued in the practice of his profession; was district-attorney from 1845 to 1847; was a member of the legislature of Pennsylvania in 1850 and 1851; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,598 votes against 12,902 votes for Knipe, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,597 votes against 11,147 votes for E. G. Scott, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,545 votes against 13,486 votes for A. Rutherford, Democrat, Liberal Republican, and Labor Reformer; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,528 votes against 9,678 votes for W. M. Breslin, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1877.

Paddock, Algernon S., was born at Glenn's Falls, New York, in 1830; educated at the Glenn's Falls Academy, taking the regular Union-College course; studied law; removed to Omaha, Nebraska, in the spring of 1857; was a candidate for the Territorial legislature in 1858; was a delegate to the First Territorial Republican Convention of Nebraska in 1859; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was appointed secretary of Nebraska in April, 1861, by Abraham Lincoln, which office he held until admission of the State in 1867, acting as governor a considerable part of this period; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Baltimore in 1864; was Independent Republican candidate for Congress in 1866; was appointed governor of Wyoming Territory in 1868, and declined; was elected a United-States senator from Nebraska as a Republican (to succeed Thomas W. Tipton), receiving all votes, Republican and Democratic, in joint convention, but twelve; took his seat in March, 1875. His term of service will expire March 4, 1881.

Page, Horace Francis, was born in Orleans County, New York, October 20, 1833; received a public-school education; emigrated to California in 1854; is a stage-proprietor and mail-contractor; was unanimously nominated for the State Senate by the Republican Convention of El Dorado County in 1869, and defeated; and was elected a representative from California in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,803 votes against 12,819 votes for P. Coggins, Liberal Republican, indorsed by the Democratic Convention; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,625 votes against 12,287 votes for H. Larkin, Democrat, and 5,324 votes for C. A. Tuttle, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 20,815 votes against 15,916 votes for C. J. Carpenter, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Page, John, was born at "Rosewell," Gloucester County, Virginia, April 17, 1743; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1763; was prominent in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate in 1776 to the Constitutional Convention; served in the Revolutionary army as colonel of a regiment raised to repel the British; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Second, Third, and Fourth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1797; was commissioner of loans from Virginia from 1806 until his death at Richmond, Virginia, October 11, 1808. He published "Political Addresses" 1796-1799.

Page, John, was born at Haverhill, New Hampshire, May 21, 1787; received an academical education, and cultivated his ancestral acres; was appointed assistant United-States tax-assessor in 1813, and assessor in 1815; was a member of the State legislature in 1818-1820 and 1835; was annually elected (with the exception of one year) register of deeds for Grafton County 1828-1834; was elected State councillor in March, 1836; and the following June was elected to the United-States Senate as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Isaac Hill), serving from June 13, 1836, until March 3, 1837; was again elected State councillor in 1838; was governor of New Hampshire 1840-1842; was a Royal Arch Mason; and died at Haverhill, New Hampshire, September 8, 1865.

Page, Mann, was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress in 1777.

Page, Robert, was born in Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801.

Page, Sherman, was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to New York, and settled at Unadilla; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas in Otsego County; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; died at Unadilla.

Paine, Elijah, was born at Brooklyn, Connecticut, January 21, 1757; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1781; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1784, and commenced practice; also engaged in agriculture and manufactures; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1786; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1787-1791; was a judge of the State Supreme Court 1791-1795; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1801; was United-States judge for the district of Vermont from 1801 until his death at Williamstown, Vermont, April 28, 1842.

Paine, Ephraim, was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1784-1785.

Paine, Halbert E., was born at Chardon, Ohio, February 4, 1826; received a classical education, graduating at the Western-Reserve College in 1845; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice at Cleveland, Ohio; removed to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in 1857; entered the Union army in May, 1861, as colonel of the Fourth Wisconsin Volunteers; was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general in January, 1863; lost a leg the following June, while in command of the Third Division of the Nineteenth Corps, at the last assault on Port Hudson; was brevetted major-general in March, 1865; having resigned in May, 1865, was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,860 votes against 13,278 votes for John W. Cary, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,679 votes against 10,298 votes for Brown, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 17,513 votes against 17,084 votes for Mitchell, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871; resumed the practice of law at Washington City.

Paine, Robert T., was born at Edenton, North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 5,228 votes against 4,882 votes for Shaw, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Paine, Robert Treat, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, March 11, 1731; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1749; kept school; studied theology, and acted as chaplain to the Northern Provincial troops; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1759, and commenced practice at Taunton; was a member of the Colonial House of Representatives 1773; was a delegate to the Provincial Congress 1774-1775; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1774-1778; was attorney-general of Massachusetts, and a member of the Executive Council; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1779; removed to Boston in 1780; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts 1790-1804; died at Boston May 11, 1814.

Palen, Rufus, was born in Sullivan County, New York; received a public-school education; resided at Fallsburg; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,453 votes against 4,615 votes for Anthony Hasbrouck, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; died at Albany, New York, April 26, 1841.

Palfrey, John Gorham, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, May 2, 1796; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1815; studied theology; was ordained minister of Brattle-square Church, Boston, as successor of Edward Everett, June 17, 1818; was professor of sacred literature and dean of the divinity-school at Cambridge 1831-1839; was editor of "The North-American Review" 1835-1843; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1842-1843; was secretary of state of Massachusetts 1844-1848; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,513 votes against 3,754 votes for Robinson, Democrat, and 659 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Free-soil candidate for the Thirty-first Congress; was one of the editors of "The Boston Commonwealth;" was appointed by President Lincoln postmaster at Boston 1861-1866. He has published "History of New England to 1688" in three volumes, "History of Brattle-square Church," "Life of Colonel William Palfrey," "Lectures on the Jewish Scriptures and Antiquities," "Lectures on the Evidences of Christianity," "Review of Lord Mahon's History of England," "Relation between Judaism and Christianity," "Centennial Discourse at Barnstable," "The Progress of the Slave Power," and a number of essays, orations, and addresses.

Palmer, Beriah, was born in New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1792-1795; resided at Ballston; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805.

Palmer, Frank W., was born at Manchester, Indiana, October 11, 1827; received a common-school education; was apprenticed to the art of printing in Jamestown, New York; became joint proprietor and editor of "The Jamestown Journal" in 1848; in 1853 and in 1854 was elected a member of the legislature of New York; in 1858 he removed to Dubuque, Iowa, and became editor and one of the proprietors of "The Dubuque Daily Times;" in 1860 he was elected State printer of Iowa, and was re-elected in 1862, 1864, and 1866; was editor and proprietor of "The Iowa State Register" from May, 1861, to December, 1866, and editor-in-chief from December, 1866, to June, 1868; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,409 votes against 13,402 votes for P. Gad Bryan, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,798 votes against 12,516 votes for B. F. Montgomery, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873; removed to Chicago; edited "The Chicago Inter-Ocean;" was appointed a member of the Postal Commission created by Congress in 1876; was appointed by President Hayes postmaster at Chicago February 27, 1877.

Palmer, George W., was born at Hoosick, New York, January 13, 1818; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Plattsburg; was surrogate of Clinton County January 24, 1844-June 7, 1847; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,799 votes against 4,363 votes for Averill, Democrat, and 4,129 votes for Ross, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,058 votes against 6,079 votes for Waldo, Democrat, and 1,589 votes for Watson, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Baltimore in 1864; was appointed in 1866 a judge of the Mixed Court at Sierra Leone, under the treaty with Great Britain for the suppression of the slave-trade.

Palmer, John, was born at Hoosick, New York, in 1785; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice at Plattsburg in partnership with Chancellor Walworth; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was district-attorney for Clinton County 1817-1841; was again elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was first judge of Clinton County; his health failing, he visited the West Indies for his health, and died of consumption at St. Bartholomew December 8, 1840.

Palmer, William Adams, was born in Vermont; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Danville, Vermont; was a member for six years of the State House of Representatives, and for two years of the State Senate; was for eight years clerk of the Caledonia-county courts; was a judge of the Supreme Court 1816-1818; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont (in place of James Fisk, resigned), serving from November 16, 1818, to March 3, 1825; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1828; was governor of Vermont 1831-1835; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1835; died at Danville, Vermont, December 12, 1860.

Park, Benjamin, was born in New Jersey September 2, 1777; received a public-school education; removed to that portion of the North-western Territory which afterwards became the State of Indiana in 1801; was elected a delegate from Indiana Territory in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 12, 1805, to March 1, 1808, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Jefferson judge of the United-States District Court, which position he held until his death at Salem, Indiana, July 12, 1835.

Parker, Amasa J., was born at Sharon, Connecticut, in 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Union College, New York; studied law; was admitted to the bar in October, 1828, and commenced practice at Delhi, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1833, and a regent of the State University in 1835; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was appointed in 1844 a circuit-judge, and vice-chancellor of the Court in Equity; was elected a justice of the Supreme Court for the Third District June 7, 1847-June 7, 1855; was appointed by President Buchanan in 1859 United-States attorney for the district of New York; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1867.

Parker, Andrew, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Mifflintown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,270 votes against 6,863 votes for McCulloch, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Parker, Hosea W., was born at Lempster, New Hampshire, May 30, 1833; received an academic education at South Woodstock, Vermont; entered Tufts College in 1855, and left during his sophomore year; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1859; was a member of the legislature of New Hampshire in 1859-1860; removed to Claremont in 1860, and commenced the practice of law, in which he has since been engaged; was a member of the Democratic National Convention in 1868; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 127 majority over S. G. Griffin, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Parker, Isaac, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, June 17, 1768; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Castine, in the district of Maine; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; was appointed by President Adams United-States marshal for the district of Maine; removed to Portland; was appointed in 1806 a judge of the Supreme Court, and was chief justice of the Supreme Court 1814-1820; was professor of law at Harvard University 1816-1827; was a delegate to the Massachusetts Convention for the revision of the Constitution in 1820, and its president; died at Boston, Massachusetts, May 26, 1830. He published a "Sketch of the Character of Judge Parsons."

Parker, Isaac C., was born in Belmont County, Ohio, October 15, 1838; worked on a farm until he was seventeen years of age; received an academic education; taught school for four years; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1859; removed to St. Joseph, Missouri, and commenced practice; was elected city-attorney of St. Joseph in 1861, 1862, and 1863; raised a company for the First Nebraska Infantry in 1861; was in the military service in Missouri during the Rebellion, holding the rank of corporal; was elected a member of the Electoral College of Missouri in 1864; was elected circuit-attorney in 1864, and held the office until he resigned in 1867; was elected in 1868 circuit-judge for six years, but resigned in October, 1870; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,714 votes against 10,723 votes for J. H. Ellis, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,233 votes against 13,090 votes for B. Pike, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Parker, James, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, in 1768; received an academical education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and located at Gardiner, Maine (then Massachusetts); held several local offices; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; died at Gardiner, Maine, November 9, 1837.

Parker, James, was born at Bethlehem Township, Hunterdon County, New Jersey, March 1, 1776; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, New York, in 1793; entered a counting-room in New York, and remained there until 1797, when he removed to Perth Amboy; was elected eleven years a member of the State House of Representatives; was a presidential elector on the Jackson ticket in 1824; was collector of the customs at Perth Amboy 1829-1833; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was one of the commissioners appointed in 1807, 1827, and 1833, to obtain a settlement of the boundary question between New York and New Jersey; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1844.

Parker, John, was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1786-1788.

Parker, John Mason, was born at Granville, New York, June 14, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College, Vermont, in 1828; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Owego, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,915 votes against 3,467 votes for McDowell, Democrat, and 1,964 votes for Cushing, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,383 votes against 8,374 votes for Hathaway, Democrat, and 1,229 votes for Lawrence, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Parker, Josiah, was born in Eastern Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1801, when a re-districting of the State excluded him from the Norfolk district; died in Isle-of-Wight County, Virginia, March 21, 1810.

Parker, Nahum, was born in New Hampshire in 1759; was State councillor 1805-1807; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire, serving from October 26, 1807, to 1810, when he resigned; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Hillsborough County 1822-1825; was a member of the State Senate and its president in 1828; died in Hillsborough County in 1839.

Parker, Richard, was born in Clarke County, Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Berryville, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 683 majority over Charles J. Faulkner, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was elected by the legislature of Virginia, while a member of Congress, to be judge of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit of that State (in the place of Judge Douglass, deceased).

Parker, Richard E., was born in Loudon County, Virginia, in 1777; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was for many years successively a judge of the General Court and the Circuit Court of Virginia; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Benjamin W. Leigh, resigned), serving from December 15, 1836, to February 13, 1837, when he resigned, having been elected by the legislature of Virginia one of the judges of the Court of Appeals (in the place of Tabney Carr, deceased); died at Snickersville, Virginia, November 6, 1840.

Parker, Samuel W., was born in Jefferson County, New York, September 9, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Miami University, Ohio, in 1828; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1831, and commenced practice at Connersville; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1836-1841; was for two years State attorney; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,102 votes against 4,540 votes for Julian, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,181 votes against 6,153 votes for Grose, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was a presidential elector on the Clay ticket in 1845, and on the Frémont ticket in 1856; was elected president of the Junction Railway Company of Indiana; became largely interested in agricultural pursuits.

Parker, Severn E., was born in Northampton County, Virginia; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; held several county offices; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; died in Northampton County, Virginia, October 21, 1836.

Parks, Gorham, was born in Massachusetts in 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bangor; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 1,216 majority, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was United-States marshal for the district of Maine 1838-1841; was United-States attorney for the district of Maine 1843-1845; was United-States consul at Rio Janeiro 1845-1849.

Parmenter, William, was born in East Cambridge, Massachusetts, March 30, 1789; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat and anti-Mason, receiving 4,034 votes against 3,110 votes for S. Hoar, Whig, and others; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,397 votes against 4,307 votes for Nathan Brooks, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1845; was appointed by President Polk naval officer at the port of Boston, serving from 1845 to 1849; died at East Cambridge, Massachusetts, February 25, 1866.

Parris, Albion Keith, was born at Hebron, Maine, January 19, 1788; was reared on a farm; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1809, and commenced practice at Paris, Maine; was prosecuting-attorney for Oxford County in 1811; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1813, and a State senator in 1814; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to 1818, when he resigned; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1819; was appointed judge of probate for Cumberland County in 1820; was elected governor of Maine, receiving 629 majority over two other candidates, and was four times re-elected, serving from 1822 to 1827; was elected a United-States senator from Maine, serving from December 3, 1827, to August 26, 1828, when he resigned; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Maine 1828-1836; was second comptroller of the United-States Treasury June 18, 1836-November 27, 1850; returned to Portland, Maine, and was elected mayor of the city in 1852; died at Portland, Maine, February 11, 1857.

Parris, Virgil Delphini, was born in Maine; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Buckfield; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1838; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Timothy J. Carter, deceased) as a Democrat, receiving 4,412 votes against 3,686 votes for Zadock Long, Whig, and 242 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from May 29, 1838, to March 3, 1841; was a member of the State Senate in 1842 and 1843, serving a short time as president pro tempore and acting-governor of the State; was United-States marshal for the district of Maine 1844-1848, United-States special mail agent 1853-1856, and naval storekeeper at the Kittery Navy Yard; died at Paris, Maine, June 14, 1871.

Parrish, Isaac, was born in Ohio; resided at Cambridge; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Parrott, John F., was born in Greenland, New Hampshire, in 1768; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1811; was defeated as a War candidate for representative in the Thirteenth Congress, receiving 16,051 votes on a general ticket against 18,589 votes for Daniel Webster, Peace candidate; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was appointed postmaster at Portsmouth in 1826; died at Greenland, New Hampshire, July 9, 1836.

Parrott, Marcus J., was born at Hamburg, South Carolina, October 27, 1828; received a classical education, graduating at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, in 1849; studied law at Cambridge; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Ohio; was a member of the Ohio State House of Representatives in 1853 and 1854; removed to Leavenworth City, Kansas; was elected a delegate from Kansas Territory in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Parsons, Edward Young, was born at Mid-dletown, Kentucky, December 12, 1842; attended the public schools at Louisville until he was twelve years of age, when he studied a year at the High School of St. Louis; returning to Louisville, he entered the university of the public schools of that city, and graduated with first honors in June, 1861; after teaching in that school for three years, during which time he studied law, he received the degree of master of arts; entering the Louisville Law School, he graduated in 1865; after practising law a few months at Henderson, Kentucky, commenced practice at Louisville, and has since been engaged in it, holding no public offices; he was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,300 votes against 859 votes for John T. Gray, Democrat, and 313 votes for Logan A. Wood, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to July 8, 1876, when he died at Washington City.

Parsons, Lewis E., was appointed provisional governor of Alabama by President Johnson in 1865; was elected a senator from Alabama in 1865 for the term ending March 3, 1871, and his credentials were presented February 13, 1866, but not acted on.

Parsons, Richard C., was born at New London, Connecticut, October 10, 1826; received a liberal education; removed to Ohio at the age of twenty years, and entered upon the study of the law; was admitted to practice in October, 1851; in the same year was elected a member of the city council of Cleveland, and the subsequent year president of that body; in 1857 he was elected to the Ohio legislature, and in 1859 was re-elected, and chosen speaker of the House of Representatives; in 1861 he was tendered by President Lincoln the mission to Chili, which he declined, and subsequently was appointed consul at Rio Janeiro, where he served one year, resigning in 1862; was appointed collector of internal revenue at Cleveland, which place he filled for four years, when he was removed by Andrew Johnson; in 1866 he received the appointment of marshal of the Supreme Court of the United States, and served six years; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,101 votes against 10,377 votes for S. Chamberlain, Liberal Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,330 votes against 13,849 votes for Henry B. Payne, Democrat, and 364 votes for Goodman, Prohibitionist.

Partridge, George, was born at Duxbury, Massachusetts, February 8, 1740; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1762; studied divinity, but was never ordained; taught school at Kingston, Massachusetts; was a delegate to the Provincial Congress 1774-1775; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1775-1779; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1779-1782 and 1783-1785; was sheriff of Plymouth County for several years; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to 1790, when he resigned; died at Duxbury, Massachusetts, July 8, 1828.

Partridge, Samuel, was born in New York; resided at Elmira; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,374 votes against 10,245 votes for Ezra S. Sweet, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Paterson, William, was born at sea, of Irish parents, in 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1763; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1769, and commenced practice; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1776; was attorney-general of the State of New Jersey 1776-1786; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1780 and 1781; was elected one of the first United-States senators from New Jersey, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1790, when he resigned; was governor of New Jersey 1791-1793; was appointed by President Washington a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, serving from March 4, 1793, until his death at Albany, New York, September 9, 1806. He published in 1799 a revised edition of "The Laws of New Jersey."

Patterson, David T., was born in Greene County, Tennessee, February 28, 1819; received an academical education; was engaged in manufacturing pursuits; studied and practised law; was elected a judge of the Circuit Court in 1854, and re-elected in 1862; was elected United-States senator from Tennessee as a Conservative after the reconstruction of that State, serving from July 26, 1866, to March 4, 1869.

Patterson, George W., was born at Londonderry, New Hampshire, November 11, 1799; received an academic education; taught school one season; removed to Livingston County, New York, in 1818, thence to Warsaw, New York, in 1822, and thence, in 1825, to Leicester, New York, where he carried on a farm, and was engaged in the manufacture of agricultural implements; was commissioner of highways, school commissioner, justice of the peace, brigade paymaster, and supervisor of Leicester; was a member of the State Assembly eight years, the last two of which, 1839 and 1840, he was speaker of the House; removed to Westfield, New York, in 1841, to take charge of the Chautauqua land-office, and continues to hold that position; was appointed basin commissioner at Albany by Governor Seward, harbor commissioner at New York by Governor Clark, and quarantine commissioner for the port of New York by Governor Morgan; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention that nominated John C. Frémont for president, and to the National Republican Convention that renominated Abraham Lincoln for a second presidential term; has been supervisor of Westfield three years; represented Chautauqua County in the State Constitutional Convention in 1846; was elected lieutenant-governor of the State of New York in 1848; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,910 votes against 10,601 votes for James Freland, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Patterson, James W., was born at Henniker, New Hampshire, July 2, 1823; graduated at Dartmouth College; was secretary of the State Board of Education from 1857 to 1861; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1862; was a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,947 votes against 10,571 votes for W. Burns, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,687 votes against 9,099 votes for Bingham, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1833, to March 3, 1867; was elected a United-States senator (to succeed George G. Fogg, Republican), serving from 1867 to March 4, 1873; was a professor at Dartmouth College; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1877 and 1878.

Patterson, John, was born in Tioga County, New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805.

Patterson, John, resided at St. Clairsville, Ohio; was elected a representative from that State in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Patterson, John James, was born at Waterloo, Juniata County, Pennsylvania, August 8, 1830; graduated at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in 1848; was editor of "The Juniata Sentinel" in the Scott presidential campaign of 1852, and for ten years afterward was editor of "The Harrisburg Telegraph;" was engaged in banking, and in the management of railroads; was a member of the State legislature of Pennsylvania in 1858, 1859, 1860, and 1861; removed to South Carolina in 1869; served in the Union army on the staff of General Williams of Pennsylvania; was elected United-States senator from South Carolina as a Republican (to succeed Frederick A. Sawyer, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1873. His term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Patterson, Thomas, was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; resided at West Middleton; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1825.

Patterson, Thomas J., was born in New York; resided at Rochester; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,333 votes against 5,298 votes for Sampson, Democrat, and 281 votes for Sperry, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Patterson, Thomas M., was born in the County of Carlow, Ireland, November 4, 1840; immigrated to the United States when young, and received a common-school education in Indiana, followed by a year's studies at Asbury University, Greencastle, Indiana, and a year's studies at Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Indiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Denver, Colorado; never held public office until he was elected a delegate from Colorado in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,633 votes against 7,470 votes for H. Bromwell, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, but the certificate of election was awarded to James B. Belford; Mr. Patterson contested the seat, and it was given to him by the House December 13, 1877.

Patterson, Walter, was born in Columbia County, New York; resided at Livingston; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1818; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Patterson, William, was born in Maryland; removed to Ohio, and settled at Mansfield; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Patterson, William, was born at Londonderry, New Hampshire, June 4, 1789; removed to the Genesee Valley, New York, in 1815; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to August 18, 1838, when he died at Warsaw, his health having been impaired by night sessions.

Patton, John, was born in Kent County, Delaware, in 1746; received a public-school education; served in the Revolutionary war as an officer of the Delaware line, or "Blue Hen's Chickens;" was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress from 1785 to 1786; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to February 14, 1794, when his election was successfully contested by Mr. Latimer, who took the seat; was again elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; died at Dover, Delaware, June 17, 1801.

Patton, John, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Curwensville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,699 votes against 8,436 votes for Kerr, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1801, to March 3, 1803.

Patton, John Mercer, was born in Virginia in 1796; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College; studied medicine, and graduated at the Philadelphia Medical College, but never practised, as he preferred the legal profession; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fredericksburg, Virginia; was elected a representative in the Twenty-first Congress (to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of Philip P. Barbour) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Congresses, without even a nominal opposition, serving from 1830 until 1838; opposed the election of Van Buren, and resigned to resume practice; removed to Richmond, and became there the leader of the bar of Virginia; and died at Richmond October 29, 1858.

Paulding, William, jun., was born at Tarrytown, New York, in 1769; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1821; was elected a representative from New York in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 580 votes, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was absent from his seat the last session, having taken the field as brigadier-general of volunteer militia; was mayor of the city of New York March 6, 1824-March 5, 1826; retired to his estate at Tarrytown, where he died February 11, 1854.

Pawling, Levi, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Payne, Henry B., was born in Hamilton County, New York, November 30, 1810; was educated at Hamilton College, New York; studied law under John C. Spencer of Canandaigua; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1834; has been for the last twenty years largely interested in railroad and manufacturing enterprises; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1849-1850; was chosen a presidential elector in 1848; was the Democratic candidate for the United-States senatorship in the protracted contest of 1851; was the Democratic candidate for governor against Salmon P. Chase in 1857; was a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention in 1854, the Charleston Convention in 1860, and the Baltimore Convention in 1872; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress by the Democrats and Liberal Republicans, receiving 13,849 votes against 11,330 votes for Richard C. Parsons, Republican, and 364 votes for Goodman, Prohibitionist, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,521 votes against 17,891 votes for Amos Townsend, Republican.

Payne, William Winter, was born in Fauquier County, Virginia, January 2, 1807; received an academic education; removed to Franklin County, Alabama, in 1825; represented that county in the State House of Representatives in 1831, and, removing to Sumter County, was successively elected from that county from 1834 until 1838; was an unsuccessful candidate for the State Senate in 1839; was again elected to the House in 1840; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,251 votes against 2,956 votes for Elisha Young, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,899 votes against 2,769 votes for John Erwin, Independent, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1847; was an unsuccessful candidate for renomination in 1847; removed to Virginia in 1848, and settled on a plantation near Warrenton.

Paynter, Lemuel, was born in Delaware; received a public-school education; resided at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,260 votes against 1,764 votes for J. B. Sutherland, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 3,875 votes against 2,994 votes for J. B. Sutherland, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841.

Peabody, Nathaniel, was born at Topsfield, Massachusetts, March 1, 1741; received an academic education at Leominster, Massachusetts; studied medicine there with his father, Dr. Jacob Peabody; was licensed, and commenced practice at Plaistow, New Hampshire, in 1761; was commissioned lieutenant-colonel in 1774, but ardently espoused the Revolutionary cause, and was the first man in the province of New Hampshire to resign a royal commission; was elected one of the Committee of Safety January 19, 1776; was appointed adjutant-general of the New-Hampshire militia July 19, 1777, and served in command of a brigade in Rhode Island in 1779; was a delegate from New Hampshire in the Continental Congress in 1779-1780; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1782-1783; was again elected a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1786, but did not act; was a member for eight years of the State legislature, serving as speaker in 1793; held many other important trusts during the Revolutionary struggle, but became peculiarly embarrassed, and had to pass the latter years of his life within the debtor's limits of the jail at Exeter, New Hampshire, where he died June 27, 1823.

Pearce, Duttee J., was born on the Island of Prudence, Rhode Island, in 1789; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Newport; was United-States attorney for the district of Rhode Island; was adjutant-general of Rhode Island 1810-1825; was a presidential elector on the Monroe ticket in 1821; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 1,871 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, receiving 619 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 238 majority over R. B. Cranston, Whig, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1837; died at Newport, Rhode Island, May 9, 1849.

Pearce, James Alfred, was born at Alexandria (then in the District of Columbia) December 14, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1822; studied law under Judge Glenn at Baltimore; was admitted to the bar in 1824, and commenced practice at Cambridge, Maryland; removed to Louisiana in 1825, and engaged in planting, but, in 1827, returned to Maryland, and resumed the practice of law in Kent County; was a member of the lower House of the legislature of Maryland in 1831; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving a majority of 28 over Evans, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was a candidate for re-election to the Twenty-sixth Congress, but was defeated, receiving 3,648 votes against 3,836 votes for P. F. Thomas, Democrat; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig; was elected to the United-States Senate in 1843 as a Whig, and was four times successively re-elected (the last two times as a Democrat), serving from March 4, 1841, until he died at Chestertown, Maryland, December 20, 1862.

Pearce, John J., was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education, and was ordained as a minister in the Methodist-Episcopal Church when eighteen years of age; he continued in the ministry as a member of the Wyoming and Philadelphia Conferences until 1854, when, while in charge of a church at Lock Haven, he was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,588 votes against 7,528 votes for Allison White, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; he declined a re-election; and, four years later, while in charge of a church at Owego, New York, he declined another Congressional nomination.

Pearson, Joseph, was born at Salisbury, North Carolina; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Salisbury; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1804 and 1805; was elected a representative from North Carolina to the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, and was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 22, 1800, until March 3, 1815; he fought a duel, while in Congress, with General John G. Jackson, after a political quarrel, and was severely wounded on the second fire; died at Salisbury, North Carolina, October 27, 1834.

Pease, Henry R., was born in Connecticut February 19, 1835; received an academic education, and normal training for the profession of teaching; followed the profession for eleven years; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; entered the Union army as a private soldier, and was promoted to the rank of captain; served principally on staff duty; was appointed in 1865 superintendent of education for the State of Louisiana while under military rule; was appointed in 1867 superintendent of the education of freedmen in Mississippi; took an active part in the reconstruction of the State; was elected superintendent of education of the State in 1869; edited and published "The Mississippi Educational Journal," the first magazine ever devoted to popular education at the South; was elected United-States senator from Mississippi as a Republican on the 3d of February, 1874 (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Adelbert Ames, Republican), serving from February 12, 1874, to March 3, 1875.

Peaslee, Charles Hazen, was born at Gilman-ton, New Hampshire, February 6, 1804; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1824; studied law with Stephen Moody; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Concord, New Hampshire; was a member of the State legislature; was appointed in 1839 adjutant-general of the militia; was elected a representative in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,973 votes against 4,275 votes for Eastman, Whig, and 2,356 votes for Stevens, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 8,620 votes against 3,073 votes for Eastman, Whig, and 1,914 votes for Stewart, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,170 votes against 3,803 votes for Colby, Whig, and 2,080 votes for Fowler, Free-Soiler, serving from December 6, 1847, until March 3, 1853; was appointed, in March, 1854, collector of customs for the port of Boston; and died at St. Paul, Minnesota, September 20, 1866.

Peck, Erasmus D., was born in Connecticut, September 16, 1808; studied medicine, and graduated at the Berkshire Medical College in 1829; removed to Ohio in 1830; was elected a member of the Ohio legislature in 1856 and 1858; was examining surgeon for the army and for pensions; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican in April, 1870 (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. T. H. Hoag), receiving 13,228 votes against 10,583 votes for Hill, Democrat, and 983 votes for Carter, Repudiation Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,332 votes against 10,242 votes for William F. Lockwood, Democrat, and 80 votes for Pease, Independent, serving from April 23, 1870, to March 3, 1873.

Peck, George W., was born in New York June 4, 1818; received an academical education; removed to Michigan, and resided at Lansing; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846 and 1847, serving the last year as speaker; was secretary of state of Michigan; was editor of "The Lansing State Journal;" was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,233 votes against 9,863 votes for Wisner, Republican, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,524 votes against 18,248 votes for Leach, Republican.

Peck, Jared V., was born in New York; resided at Port Chester; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,533 votes against 5,827 votes for Clark, Republican, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Peck, Lucius Benedict, was born at Waterbury, Vermont, in 1804; received two years of military education at West Point; studied law at Barre, Vermont; was admitted to the bar in 1826, and commenced practice at Barre with Hon. Dennison Smith; after his death, removed to Montpelier, Vermont; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,594 votes against 5,059 votes for Chandler, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,138 votes against 4,267 votes for Buck, Whig, and 2,484 votes for Rowell, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was United-States attorney for the district of Vermont 1853-1857; was president of the Vermont and Canada Railroad until his death at Lowell, Massachusetts, December 28, 1866.

Peck, Luther C., was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Pennsylvania, and thence to Pike, Alleghany County; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,521 votes against 4,763 votes for Calvin T. Chamberlain, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at Nunda, New York, February 16, 1876.

Peckham, Rufus W., was born in New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Albany; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,363 votes against 7,190 votes for Egberts, Whig, and 71 votes for Williams, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was elected a justice of the Supreme Court for the Third Judicial District, and re-elected, serving November 18, 1861-1869; was lost on the steamer "Ville du Havre."

Peddle, Thomas B., was born at Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to America in 1833; he located in Newark, New Jersey, and is now one of the most extensive manufacturers in that city; he was elected a member of the State legislature in 1863, and re-elected in 1864; he was twice mayor of the city of Newark, serving in that office during the years 1865-1868; was president of the Newark Board of Trade in 1873; and was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,565 votes against 16,041 votes for William A. Righter, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Peek, Hermanus, was born at Albany, New York; resided at Schenectady; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821.

Peery, William, was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1785-1786.

Pegram, John, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifteenth Congress (in place of Peterson Goodwin, deceased), receiving 102 majority over Dr. Jones, serving from November 16, 1818, to March 3, 1819.

Pelham, Charles, was born in Person County, North Carolina, March 12, 1835; his family removed to Alabama in 1838; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1858, and practised law at Talladega until 1862, when he entered the Confederate service; was elected judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit in 1868, and was discharging the duties of that office when he was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving a majority of 600 over W. H. Handley, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Pelton, Guy R., was born at Great Barrington, Massachusetts, August 3, 1825; received an academical education; taught school; studied law at Kinderhook; was admitted to the bar in 1850, and commenced practice at New York in 1851; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,084 votes against 2,559 votes for Clinton, Democrat, and 1,123 votes for Miner, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 2,126 votes against 5,716 votes for Sickles, Democrat, and 2,905 votes for Duganne, American.

Pendleton, Edmund, was born in Caroline County, Virginia, in 1741; received a defective classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and became a successful practitioner; was appointed presiding judge of the Virginia Court of Appeals; was a member of the Continental Congress in 1774 and 1775; was a member of the Virginia Constitutional Convention of 1787, and was chosen its president; was appointed by President Washington United-States district-judge in 1780, and declined; died at Richmond, Virginia, October 11, 1823.

Pendleton, Edmund H., resided at Hyde Park, New York; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833.

Pendleton, George H. (son of Nathaniel Greene Pendleton), was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, July 25, 1825; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cincinnati; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1854 and 1855; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,133 votes against 4,256 votes for Taft, Republican, and 2,642 votes for Torrence, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,131 votes against 6,785 votes for T. C. Day, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 7,485 votes against 6,582 votes for Spencer, Republican; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 7,545 votes against 6,418 votes for Groesbeck, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1865; was defeated in 1864 as the Democratic candidate for Vice-President on the ticket headed by George B. McClellan; was appointed president of the Kentucky Central Railroad Company in 1869; was elected United-States senator from Ohio (to succeed Stanley Matthews, Republican). His term of service will commence March 4, 1879.

Pendleton, James M., was born at Pendleton Hill, in North Stonington, Connecticut, January 10, 1822; received an academic education; was engaged seven years in mercantile business at Westerley, Rhode Island, and then in banking, insurance, and manufacturing; was a member of the State Senate of Rhode Island in 1862, 1863, 1864, and 1865; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1868, and was elected presidential elector on the Grant-Colfax ticket the same year; and was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 1,534 votes against 947 votes for S. Rodman, Democrat, and 131 scattering; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 4,310 votes against 2,505 votes for George H. Brown, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Pendleton, John S., was born in Virginia; received an academic education; resided at Culpepper Court House; was appointed by President Tyler chargé d'affaires to Chili, serving August 16, 1841-June 10, 1844; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 2,861 votes against 2,045 votes for Hunter, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was appointed by President Fillmore chargé d'affaires to the Argentine Confederation, serving from February 27, 1851, to March 4, 1854; died near Culpepper Court House, Virginia, November 19, 1868.

Pendleton, Nathaniel Greene (father of George H. Pendleton), was born at Savannah, Georgia, August, 1793; removed with his father to New-York City early in life; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1813; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; served in the war with Great Britain as aide-de-camp to General Gaines 1813-1815; removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1818, and commenced practice; was a member of the State Senate 1825-1829; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 254 majority over Dr. Alexander Duncan, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-eighth Congress by Dr. A. Duncan, Democrat.

Penn, Alexander G., was born in Virginia; received an academic education; removed to Louisiana in 1812, and settled in the parish of St. Tammany; engaged largely in agricultural and mechanical pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was appointed by President Polk postmaster at New Orleans 1845-1849; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-first Congress (in place of John H. Harnanson, deceased) as a Democrat, defeating R. M. Stewart; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 4,740 votes against 3,590 votes for Upton, Whig, serving from December 30, 1850, to March 3, 1853; was appointed by President Pierce a commissioner to superintend the erection of the new custom-house at New Orleans; died, while on a visit to Washington City, May 8, 1866.

Penn, John, was born in Caroline County, Virginia, May 17, 1741; his education, by the death of his father, was deficient; studied law with Edmund Pendleton, his relative; was admitted to practice in 1762, and displayed great genius and eloquence in his practice; removed to Granville County, North Carolina, in 1774; was elected a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1775, signed the Declaration of Independence in 1776, and was re-elected in 1777 and 1779; was appointed by Robert Morris in 1784 receiver of internal-revenue taxes for the State of North Carolina, but soon resigned; and died in September, 1788.

Penniman, Ebenezer Jenckes, was born at Lansingburg, New York; when thirteen years of age he was apprenticed to the art of printing in the office of "The New-Hampshire Sentinel" at Keene; when eighteen years of age he purchased his indentures, and went to New York, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits; removed to Plymouth, Michigan, in 1835, and entered into business there; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig and Free-Soiler, receiving 10,741 votes against 8,909 votes for Buel, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Pennington, Alexander C. M., was born at Newark, New Jersey, in 1811; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,636 votes against 7,460 votes for Price, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,137 votes against 6,816 votes for Darcy, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was for two years a member of the State House of Representatives; removed to the city of New York, where he died January 25, 1867.

Pennington, William, was born at Newark, New Jersey, in 1797; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Newark; was governor and ex officio chancellor of New Jersey 1837-1843, during which time some of his commissions to congressmen, bearing the broad seal of the State, were the subjects of much comment; was appointed by President Taylor governor of Minnesota, and declined; was offered by President Fillmore one of the judgeships in California to settle land-titles under the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 11,641 votes against 9,982 votes for Wortendyke, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was elected speaker of the House; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 16,141 votes against 16,515 votes for Nehemiah Perry, Fusion Democrat; died at Newark, New Jersey, from having accidentally taken an overdose of morphine, February 16, 1862.

Pennybacker, Isaac S., was born in Shenandoah County, Virginia, in 1806; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Harrisonburg; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat (defeating David Steele, Democrat), serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was United-States judge for the district of Western Virginia; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in the place of W. C. Rives, whose term had expired) as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to January 12, 1847, when he died.

Perce, Legrand W., was born at Buffalo, New York, June 19, 1836; received an academic education; studied law at the Albany Law University in 1850-1857; practised law; entered the volunteer service in April, 1861; was appointed second lieutenant of the Sixth Michigan Volunteers in August, 1861, and captain in June, 1862; was brevetted major at Port Hudson in May, 1863; was appointed captain of United-States volunteers in August, 1863, and was brevetted lieutenant-colonel and colonel in 1865; settled at Natchez, Mississippi, and was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,475 votes against 8,080 votes for Brown, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, serving from February 23, 1870, to March 3, 1873.

Perea, Francisco, was born at Zadillas, New Mexico, January 9, 1831; was elected a delegate from New-Mexico Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Perham, Sidney, was born at Woodstock, Maine, March 27, 1819; received an academic education; was a school-teacher and a farmer; was a member of the Maine State Board of Agriculture in 1852 and 1853; was elected a member of the State legislature of Maine in 1854, and was speaker of the House; was county-clerk of Oxford County from 1859 to 1863; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,592 votes against 7,237 votes for Bates, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,839 votes against 8,344 votes for Andrews, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,784 votes against 7,363 votes for Morrill, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869; was governor of Maine 1871-1874; was appointed in 1877 appraiser in the Portland Custom House.

Perkins, Bishop, was born in New Hampshire; removed to New York, and settled at Ogdensburg; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,085 votes against 7,274 votes for Van Rensselaer, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Perkins, Elias, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, April 5, 1767; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice, but soon relinquished the profession; was a presidential elector in 1797; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; was judge of the New-London County Court until he became ineligible by age; was mayor of the city of New London June, 1829, to 1832, when he declined a re-election; and died at New London, Connecticut, September 27, 1845.

Perkins, Jared, was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; resided at Winchester; was State councillor 1846-1849; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig and Free-Soiler, receiving 8,715 votes against 7,777 votes for Morrison, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,556 votes against 9,635 votes for H. Hibbard, Democrat; died at Nashua, New Hampshire, October 14, 1854.

Perkins, John, jun., was born in Louisiana, July 1, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1840; studied law at Harvard University; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Orleans; his health failing, he visited Europe, and, while there, had several volumes of the Colonial records copied, which, on his return, he presented to the State; he was appointed a judge of the Circuit Court in 1851; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,965 votes against 3,787 votes for Pond, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was a deputy from Louisiana to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States at Montgomery February, 1861, and a member of the First and Second Confederate Congresses, serving from February 22, 1862, to the close of the war.

Perrill, Augustus L., was born in Virginia; removed to Ohio, and settled at Lithopolis; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Perry, Aaron F., was born at Leicester, Vermont, January 1, 1815; received a common-school and academic education; studied law at the Yale Law School, New Haven, Connecticut; practised at Columbus, Ohio, and afterward at Cincinnati; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Ohio in 1847-1848; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,039 votes against 7,294 votes for M. Saylor, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to 1872, when he resigned.

Perry, Benjamin F., was appointed by President Johnson provisional governor of South Carolina in 1865; was elected United-States senator from South Carolina for the term of six years, commencing on the 4th of March, 1865; his credentials were presented in the Senate February 28, 1866, read, and ordered to lie on the table.

Perry, Eli, was born in Washington County, New York, December 25, 1802; received a common-school education until he was thrown upon his own resources at fifteen years of age; commenced business at Albany, when twenty-one years of age, as a dealer in provisions, and continued it for twenty-five years; was elected alderman for two years, and afterward member of the General Assembly of the State of New York; in 1851 was elected mayor of the city of Albany, which office he held by re-elections twelve years; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,716 votes against 14,726 votes for Harder, Republican, and 336 votes for Hastings, the Working-man's candidate; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 18,609 votes against 17,669 votes for C. H. Adams, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Independent Democratic candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,108 votes against 12,626 votes for Charles H. Adams, Republican, and 9,903 votes for T. J. Quinn, Democrat.

Perry, John J., was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, August 2, 1811; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice at Oxford, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1839, 1842, and 1843, and of the State Senate in 1846 and 1847; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,007 votes against 7,313 votes for William Kimball, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 12,031 votes against 10,032 votes for David R. Hastings, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate to the Peace Congress in 1861; edited "The Oxford Democrat;" was a member of the Executive Council of Maine; removed to Portland.

Perry, Nehemiah, was born at Ridgefield, Connecticut, March 30, 1816; received an academical education; removed to Newark, New Jersey, and engaged in the cloth and clothing business; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and president of the common council of Newark; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,200 votes against 15,802 votes for Pennington, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,779 votes against 7,622 votes for Bradley, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865.

Perry, Thomas, was born in Maryland in 1808; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cumberland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was a circuit-judge 1851-1861 and 1864-1871; died at Cumberland, Maryland, June 27, 1871.

Peter, George, was born at Georgetown, Maryland (now the District of Columbia), September 28, 1779; received a classical education, graduating at Georgetown College; entered the United-States army as second lieutenant in the Ninth Infantry in July, 1799; was transferred to the artillery, and promoted, and in May, 1808, organized and commanded the first light battery of artillery in the country, resigning June 11, 1809; commanded a battalion of volunteers for the defence of Washington City, May to June, 1814; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of Alexander C. Hanson, resigned) as a Democrat, receiving 1,602 votes against 1,444 votes for George C. Washington, and 1,223 votes for H. R. Warfield; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1816, to March 3, 1819; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was defeated as a candidate for the Twentieth Congress by George C. Washington, Whig; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was elected in 1856 a member of the Board of Public Works of Maryland; died on his farm near Darnestown, Maryland, June 22, 1861.

Peters, John A., was born at Ellsworth, Maine, October 9, 1822; graduated at Yale College; studied law at the Cambridge Law School; practised law; was a member of the legislature of Maine in 1862, 1863, and 1864; was elected attorney-general of the State in 1864, 1865, and 1866; and was elected a representative from Maine in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,059 votes against 6,564 votes for Weston, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,337 votes against 8,873 votes for Ladd, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,962 votes against 7,322 votes for M. Emery, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873; was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Maine in 1872.

Peters, Richard, was born near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 22, 1744; received a classical education, graduating at Philadelphia College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; entered the Revolutionary army as captain of volunteer infantry, but was soon transferred by Congress to the secretaryship of the Board of War, which he filled June 13, 1776–June 8, 1781; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1782–1783; was appointed by Washington comptroller of the treasury, but declined, accepting the position of United-States judge of the District Court of Pennsylvania, which he held from 1789 to his death at Philadelphia August 21, 1828. He published many contributions in the transactions of the Philadelphia Agricultural Society, of which he was president, and "Admiralty Decisions in the United-States District Court of Pennsylvania 1780–1807." A sketch of his life was published by Samuel Breck.

Petrie, George, was born in New York; resided at Little Falls; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Petriken, David, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Danville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,156 votes against 3,943 votes for David Hubley, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at Danville, Pennsylvania, March 1, 1847.

Pettigrew, Ebenezer, was born in North Carolina; resided at Cool Spring; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig (defeating Dr. Hall), serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837.

Pettis, Spencer, was born in Virginia in 1802; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fayette, Missouri; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was killed in a duel which he fought with Major Thomas Biddle at St. Louis August 26, 1831.

Pettis, S. Newton, was born in Ashtabula County, Ohio, in 1828; received an academical education; studied law with Joshua R. Giddings; was admitted to the bar in Pennsylvania in 1848, and commenced practice at Meadville; was appointed by President Lincoln an associate justice for the Territory of Colorado, serving 1861, 1862; returned to Meadville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fortieth Congress (in place of Darwin A. Finney, deceased) as a Republican, receiving 17,906 votes against 16,300 votes for Knox, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Pettit, Charles, was born in New Jersey in 1737; received a classical education; studied law, and practised; was secretary under Governor Franklin, and was continued in office by Governor Livingston until called by General Nathanael Greene to serve as assistant quartermaster-general; when General Greene resigned, he was tendered promotion as quartermaster-general, but declined; after the war he entered into business as an importing merchant at Philadelphia; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and originated the debt-funding system; was a delegate from Philadelphia to the Continental Congress 1785–1787; died at Philadelphia September 4, 1806.

Pettit, John, was born at Sackett's Harbor, Jefferson County, New York, July 24, 1807; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Lafayette, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives for two terms; was United-States district-attorney; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,403 votes against 5,985 votes for Bryant, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,260 votes against 5,745 votes for Holmes, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 6,789 votes against 6,471 votes for Brier, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana (in place of James Whitcomb, deceased), serving from January 18, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was appointed by President Buchanan chief justice of the United-States courts in Kansas; was elected in 1870 supreme judge of Indiana; the Democratic party renominated him for the same position in 1876, but owing to scandals in connection with the court, that excited popular indignation, he was forced off the ticket, and the name of Judge Perkins substituted; he died at Lafayette, Indiana, June 17, 1877.

Pettit, John U., was born in New York; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1839; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wabash, Indiana, in 1841; was United-States consul at Maranhão, Brazil, 1850–1853; was appointed, on his return, judge of the Upper Wabash Circuit of Indiana; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,389 votes against 7,201 votes for Slack, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,235 votes against 10,443 votes for Garver, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 10,748 votes against 10,038 votes for J. R. Coffroth, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861.

Peyton, Bailie, was born in Sumner County, Tennessee; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Gallatin, Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was appointed by President Taylor minister to Chili, serving August 9, 1849–September 14, 1853; removed to New Orleans; was United-States attorney for the district of Louisiana; removed to San Francisco, California, where he practised; returned to Tennessee; was a presidential elector on the Bell and Everett ticket in 1860.

Peyton, E. G., of Copiah County, Mississippi, presented to the House of Representatives on the 4th of June, 1860, credentials signed by Governor Humphreys, declaring that he had been elected to represent the Fifth District of Mississippi in the Thirty-sixth Congress.

Peyton, Joseph H., was born in Sumner County, Tennessee, in 1813; received an academical education; studied medicine, but soon abandoned his profession for politics; held several local offices; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,853 votes against 3,854 votes for Donelson, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, but died before taking his seat, at Gallatin, Tennessee, November 12, 1845.

Peyton, Samuel O., was born in Bullitt County, Kentucky, in 1804; received a public-school education; studied medicine; graduated at Transylvania University in 1827, and commenced practice at Hartford, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,068 votes against 5,958 votes for Waddill, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 3,878 votes against 8,035 votes for Johnson, Whig; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,212 votes against 6,173 votes for Johnson, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,939 votes against 7,199 votes for Jackson, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; died at Hartford, Kentucky, January 4, 1870.

Phelps, Charles E., was born at Guilford, Vermont, May 1, 1833; removed with his parents to Pennsylvania in 1837, and to Maryland in 1841; was educated at private schools in Baltimore, at Princeton College, and at the Cambridge Law School; continued the study of law in Baltimore with Robert J. Brent, Esq.; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Baltimore in 1855; was elected to the city council of Baltimore in 1860; was major of the Maryland Guard and volunteer battalion (many of whose members afterwards joined the Confederacy), and resigned April 19, 1861; entered the Union army in 1862 as lieutenant-colonel of the Seventh Regiment Maryland Volunteers; was promoted to the colonelcy in 1863; was brevetted brigadier-general for gallant conduct at the battle of Spottsylvania May 8, 1864, in which he was wounded and taken prisoner, but afterwards recaptured by General Sheridan's cavalry; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-ninth Congress as the Union War candidate (succeeding Henry Winter Davis), receiving 9,313 votes against 1,753 votes for A. Leo Knott, Democratic and Peace candidate; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as the Union Conservative candidate, receiving 5,545 votes against 4,568 votes for Joseph J. Stewart, Radical Republican, who contested the seat, but subsequently withdrew; pending this contest, he declined an executive appointment as judge of the Court of Appeals of Maryland; after leaving Congress, he practised law at Baltimore, holding no other public offices than the honorary ones of State manager of the Colored House of Reformation, and commissioner of public schools.

Phelps, Darwin, was born at East Granby, Connecticut; when quite young he became an orphan, and went to reside with his grand-parents in Portage County, Ohio; received a good education at the Western University, and after studying law in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, with his kinsman, Walter Forward, settled at Kittanning, Pennsylvania, in 1835, devoting himself to the practice of his profession; he was a member of the State legislature in 1855; he was a delegate to the Chicago Convention of 1860, and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,095 votes against 11,046 votes for Mitchell, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Phelps, Elisha (father of John Smith Phelps), was born at Simsbury, Connecticut, November 7, 1779; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1800; studied law at Litchfield; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Simsbury; was for several years a member of the State Senate and State House of Representatives, serving as speaker in 1821 and 1829; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was State comptroller 1830–1834; was a commissioner to revise and codify the State laws in 1835; died at Simsbury, Connecticut, April 18, 1847.

Phelps, James, was born at Colebrook, Connecticut, January 12, 1822; received a thorough academic education; was a student in the law department of Yale College; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and practised until 1863, during which time he was several years judge of probate; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853, 1854, and 1856, and of the State Senate in 1858 and 1859; was elected judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut in 1863 for a term of eight years, and re-elected for a similar term in 1871; was elected judge of the Supreme Court of Errors in 1873, and held that office until he resigned in 1875, when he was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,440 votes against 13,844 votes for S. W. Kellogg, Republican, and 559 votes for Harrington, Prohibitionist; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,500 votes against 16,777 votes for S. W. Kellogg, Republican, and 268 votes for Cummings, Prohibitionist, serving from December 6, 1875.

Phelps, John Smith (son of Elisha Phelps), was born at Simsbury, Connecticut, December 22, 1814; received a classical education, graduating at Washington (now Trinity) College, Hartford, Connecticut; studied law with his father; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Simsbury, but removed in 1843 to Springfield, Missouri; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was appointed in 1841 brigade-major and inspector of militia; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 11,062 votes against 5,848 votes for Winston, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress; receiving 8,478 votes against 5,607 votes for Woodson, Whig, and 2,035 votes for Shields, anti-Benton; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 11,392 votes against 5,458 votes for Price, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,342 votes against 7,982 votes for Johnson, Benton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,718 votes against 6,911 votes for Emerson, American, and 110 votes for Larrimore, Benton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 13,424 votes against 8,050 votes for Richardson, Republican; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,363 votes against 9,301 votes for Rains, Republican, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1863; served in the Union army as colonel of the Twenty-fifth Missouri Volunteers, and was wounded at the battle of Pea Ridge; was appointed by President Lincoln military governor of Arkansas; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 1,840 votes against 3,072 votes for Boyd, Emancipationist; was appointed in 1867 a commissioner to adjust the Indian-war claims; was governor of Missouri 1777-1781.

Phelps, Launcelot, was born in Connecticut; resided at Hitchcockville; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Phelps, Oliver, was born at Windsor, Connecticut, in 1749; received a mercantile education at Suffield, Connecticut; entered into mercantile pursuits at Granville, Massachusetts; served during the Revolution in the commissary department of Massachusetts; in 1788 he purchased, with associates, a tract of two million two hundred thousand acres of land in the Genesee valley of New York; opened in Canandaigua the first land-office in America, and his system of survey by township and ranges has since been followed by the General Government; in 1795 he, with associates, bought of Connecticut the tract of land in Ohio known as the Western Reserve, comprising three million three hundred thousand acres; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was a judge of the Circuit Court; and died at Canandaigua, New York, February 21, 1809.

Phelps, Samuel Shethar, was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, May 13, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1811; studied law; served in the war of 1812 as a paymaster, and afterwards commenced practice at Middlebury, Vermont; was a member of the Council of Censors in 1827; was a member of the Legislative Council in 1831; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont 1831-1838; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont as a Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1851; was appointed a senator (in place of William Upham, deceased), serving from January 19, 1853, until the Senate decided, March 16, 1854, that he could not hold his seat by appointment; died at Middlebury, Vermont, March 25, 1855.

Phelps, Timothy G., was born in New York; removed to California, and settled at San Mateo; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Phelps, William W., was born in Oakland County, Michigan, June 1, 1826; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Michigan in 1846; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice; edited a Democratic newspaper 1851-1855; was county commissioner for Oakland County 1852 and 1853; was appointed by President Pierce in 1854 register of the United-States land-office at Red Wing, Minnesota; was elected a representative from Minnesota in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 22, 1858, to March 3, 1859; became the editor of "The Red-Wing Sentinel" in 1860; died in 1873.

Phelps, William Walter, was born at New York, August 24, 1839; was graduated at Yale College in 1860 with high honors; afterward he pursued his studies in Europe, and later at Columbia-College Law School of New York, where he received the valedictory appointment of his class; then entered immediately upon the practice of law; he was a director of the National City Bank and Second National Bank of New York, the United-States Trust Company, and Farmers' Loan and Trust Company; also in the following railroad companies, — viz., Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Oswego and Syracuse, Syracuse and Binghamton, Cayuga and Susquehanna, International of Texas, Houston and Great Northern, New Haven and Northampton, Morris and Essex, and others; he was elected Fellow of Yale College in July, 1872, and was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-third Congress by a vote of 12,701 against 9,986 votes for A. B. Woodruff, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Independent Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,670 votes against 11,877 votes for Augustus W. Cutler, Democrat.

Phillips, John Finis, was born in Boone County, Missouri, December 31, 1834; was educated at the State University of Missouri, and at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky, graduating at the latter institution in 1855; studied law with General John B. Clark at Fayette, Missouri, and practised at Sedalia, Missouri; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Missouri in 1861; was commissioned as colonel in 1862, and commanded a regiment of cavalry in the Federal army until the close of the war; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at New York in 1868; and was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,446 votes against 12,132 votes for James H. Lay, People's candidate, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Phillips, Henry M., was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; resided at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,279 votes against 6,560 votes for Foust, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,451 votes against 9,749 votes for Millward, Union.

Phillips, John, was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania; resided at Hummelstown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Phillips, Philip, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, December 13, 1807; received a classical education at the Military Academy at Norwich, Vermont; studied law, and was admitted to the bar at Charleston, December 14, 1828; was a member of the South-Carolina State Convention of 1832, and voted against nullification; was a member of the State House of Representatives of South Carolina in 1834 and 1835; removed to Mobile, Alabama, and practised law there; was president of the State Democratic Convention in 1837; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Alabama in 1844 and 1851; was a member of the National Democratic Convention which nominated Pierce and King in 1852; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,880 votes against 4,777 votes for E. Lockwood, Whig, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855, when he declined a re-election; he has since practised at Washington City.

Phillips, Stephen Clarendon, was born at Salem, Massachusetts, November 1, 1801; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1819; studied law, but became a merchant at Salem; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1824-1829, and of the Senate in 1830; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Rufus Choate resigned) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 3,920 votes against 3,752 votes for all others, serving from December 1, 1834, to 1838, when he resigned; was mayor of Salem December, 1838-March, 1842; was defeated as the Free-soil candidate for governor of Massachusetts in 1848 and 1849; was a member of the State Board of Education, and a trustee of the State Lunatic Hospital at Worcester; engaged extensively in the lumbering business in Canada; and was lost by the burning of the steamer "Montreal" on the River St. Lawrence June 26, 1857.

Phillips, William A., was born at Paisley, Scotland, January 14, 1826; immigrated to the United States with his father in 1838; practised law, and edited a newspaper until 1855; went to Kansas on the staff of "The New-York Tribune;" entered the Union army as major in 1861; commanded the Indian and other regiments during the war in the West; was a member of the State legislature of Kansas; was elected a representative from Kansas in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 67,114 votes against 33,274 votes for Laughlin, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,087 votes against 11,233 votes for M. J. Parrott, Democrat, and 2,074 votes for N. Green, Independent; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 29,352 votes against 15,642 votes for Thomas P. Fenton, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Philon, Robert, was born at Donegal, Ireland; immigrated to the United States; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821.

Phoenix, J. Phillips, was born at Morristown, New Jersey; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at New-York City; was for several years a member of the municipal government; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1841; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,084 votes against 4,156 votes for Nicoll, Democrat, and 29 votes for Kennedy, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,601 votes against 3,788 votes for Hart, Cass Democrat, and 793 votes for Smith, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died suddenly, at an advanced age, at New-York City, May 4, 1859.

Pickens, Andrew, was born at Paxton, Pennsylvania, September 19, 1739; received a public-school education; removed with his parents in 1752 to the Waxhaw Settlement, South Carolina; served as a volunteer in Grant's expedition against the Cherokees in 1761; entered the Revolutionary army as captain, and rose to the rank of brigadier-general, rendering distinguished services throughout the war; commanded an expedition against the Cherokees in 1782, by which he obtained a large cession of territory; was a member of the South-Carolina House of Representatives for several years; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was elected major-general of militia in 1795; was a commissioner to negotiate several treaties with the Cherokee Indians; and died in Pendleton District, South Carolina, August 17, 1817.

Pickens, Francis W., was born at Togadoo, South Carolina, April 7, 1807; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice in Edgefield District; engaged largely in planting, and paid much attention to scientific agriculture; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, where he made a report in 1833 that Congress, as the mere agent of the several States, had no claim to allegiance, and could exercise no sovereignty; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of George McDuffie, resigned) as a Nullifier; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from December 8, 1834, to March 3, 1843; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Southern Convention at Nashville in 1850 and 1851; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Cincinnati in 1856; was appointed by Mr. Buchanan minister to Russia, serving from January 11, 1858, to September 9, 1860; when South Carolina seceded from the Union, he was chosen governor, and was an active advocate of the Rebellion; died at Edgefield, South Carolina, January 25, 1869.

Pickens, Israel, was born in Cabarrus (then Mecklenburg) County, North Carolina; settled in Burke County; was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina in 1809; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,976 votes against 2,342 votes for Felix Walker, and 370 votes for I. H. Stencilis; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, until March 3, 1817; was appointed register of the land-office of Mississippi Territory (which included the present State of Alabama) 1817; was governor of Alabama 1821-1825; was appointed a senator in Congress from Alabama (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Henry Chambers), serving from April 10, 1826, until December 21, 1826.

Pickering, Timothy, was born at Salem, Massachusetts, July 17, 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1763; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Salem; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was appointed in 1775 a judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Essex County, and sole judge of the Provincial Maritime Court; entered the Revolutionary army as colonel of the Essex regiment, serving in New Jersey; was appointed by Washington adjutant-general May 24, 1777; was elected by Congress, August 5, 1780, quartermaster-general (as the successor of General Greene); was appointed by President Washington to conduct several negotiations with the Indian nations 1790-1794; was appointed by General Washington postmaster-general November 7, 1791, secretary of war January 2, 1794, and secretary of state December 10, 1795, holding the last position until he was removed by President John Adams May 10, 1800; settled on a farm in the backwoods of Pennsylvania; returned in 1802 to Massachusetts; was defeated as a candidate for the Eighth Congress by Jacob Crowninshield, who received 120 majority; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts (in place of Dwight Foster, resigned), and re-elected, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1811; was defeated as a candidate for re-election as senator by J. V. Varnum in 1811; was chosen by the legislature a member of the Executive Council; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 2,249 votes against 103 votes for all other candidates; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, receiving a large majority over a Democratic opponent, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; retired to his farm at Wenham, Massachusetts, which he cultivated with his own hands; was the founder and the first president of the Essex-county Agricultural Society; died at Salem, Massachusetts, January 29, 1829. His "Life" was published by his son, Octavius Pickering, in 1867.

Pickman, Benjamin, was born in 1763; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge in 1784; travelled in Europe; on his return, studied law; was admitted to the bar, but soon abandoned the profession, and devoted himself to mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1800; was for several years a member of the State Senate; was a member of the Executive Council in 1807; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1820; died at Salem, Massachusetts, August 14, 1843.

Pierce, Charles W., was born in New York in 1823; removed to Illinois; served in the Union army as a lieutenant of Illinois volunteer infantry; remained in Alabama, and settled at Demopolis; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Fortieth Congress, serving from July 21, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Pierce, Franklin, was born at Hillsborough, New Hampshire, November 23, 1804; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1824; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Hillsborough; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1829-1833, serving the last two years as speaker; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 23,056 votes against 6,688 votes for Anthony Colby, Whig, and 1,875 votes for John Gould, anti-Mason; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire, serving from September 4, 1837, to 1842, when he resigned; resumed practice at Concord, New Hampshire; declined the position of attorney-general of the United States offered him by President Polk in 1846; served in the Mexican war as colonel of the Ninth Infantry; was commissioned brigadier-general in March, 1847, and remained in Mexico until the close of the war; was president of the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was elected President of the United States, receiving 254 electoral votes against 42 for General Winfield Scott, serving from March 4, 1853, to March 3, 1857; visited Europe in 1858-1860; lived in retirement at Concord, New Hampshire, where he died October 8, 1869. His biography was written by Nathaniel Hawthorne.

Pierce, Henry Lillie, was born at Stoughton, Massachusetts, August 23, 1825; received a thorough English education; is a manufacturer; was a member of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts in 1860-1866; was an alderman of the city of Boston in 1870 and 1871; was mayor of Boston in 1873; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William Whiting), having no organized opposition, and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,011 votes against 4,927 votes for B. Dean, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; declined a renomination; was again mayor of Boston in 1878.

Pierce, Joseph, was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to 1802, when he resigned.

Pierce, William, was born in Georgia; served in the Revolutionary war as aide-de-camp to General Nathanael Greene, and was presented with a sword by Congress; was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1786-1787; was a delegate from Georgia to the Convention which framed the Federal Constitution. He published his impressions of Congress in a Savannah newspaper, now in the Force Collection in the library of Congress.

Pierson, Isaac, was born in Essex County, New Jersey, August 15, 1770; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1789; studied medicine, graduating from the College of Surgeons and Physicians at New York, and practised at Orange, New Jersey, for upwards of forty years; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twentieth Congress, receiving nearly 5,000 majority, and was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; died of apoplexy at Orange, New Jersey, September 22, 1833.

Pierson, Jeremiah H., was born in Essex County, New Jersey; removed to New York, and settled at Ramapo; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Pierson, Job, was born in New York in 1791; resided at Schaghticoke; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835.

Pierson, John J., resided at Mercer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fourth Congress (in place of John Banks, resigned), serving from December 5, 1836, to March 3, 1837.

Pike, Austin F., was born October 16, 1819; received an academic education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar of Merrimack County in July, 1845, and practised at Franklin; was a member of the New-Hampshire House of Representatives in 1850, 1851, 1852, 1855, and 1866, and speaker of the House the last two years; was a member of the New-Hampshire Senate in 1857 and 1858, and president of the Senate the last year; was chairman of the Republican State Committee in 1858 and 1859; was delegate to the Philadelphia Convention which nominated General Frémont in 1856, and was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,792 votes against 10,773 votes for Samuel N. Bell, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 12,930 votes against 13,084 votes for Samuel N. Bell, Democrat.

Pike, Frederick A., was born at Calais, Maine, December 9, 1817; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and commenced practice at Calais; edited "The Calais Advertiser" one year from April 14, 1841; was a member of the State legislature of Maine for several years, serving one year as speaker of the House; was State attorney for Washington County; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,426 votes against 7,768 votes for Bradbury, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 9,160 votes against 8,217 votes for J. White, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,566 votes against 8,866 votes for J. White, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,351 votes against 7,973 votes for Crosby, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1869; was again a member of the State House of Representatives; was defeated as the Liberal Republican candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 10,918 votes against 14,181 votes for Eugene Hale, Republican.

Pike, James, was born at Salisbury, Massachusetts, November, 1818; received a classical education; studied theology, graduating at the Wesleyan University, Connecticut; was a minister in the Methodist-Episcopal Church 1841-1854; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 12,611 votes against 9,750 votes for G. W. Kitteridge, Democrat, and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,242 votes against 11,206 votes for G. W. Kitteridge, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; since the expiration of his term, has been an active member of the New-Hampshire Methodist Conference, and presiding elder of the Dover District.

Pile, William A., was born near Indianapolis, Indiana, February 11, 1829; received an academic education; studied theology, and was a clergyman of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, and a member of the Missouri Conference; joined the Union army as chaplain of the Missouri volunteers in 1861; took command of a light battery in 1862; was placed in command of a regiment of infantry, and was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general, serving throughout the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,728 votes against 6,510 votes for Hogan, Conservative, serving from March 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-first Congress, receiving 9,553 votes against 9,734 votes for Erastus Wells, Democrat; was appointed by President Grant governor of New Mexico, serving 1869-1870; was appointed minister resident at Venezuela May 23, 1871, and resigned in 1874.

Pilsbury, Timothy, was born at Newbury, Massachusetts, April 12, 1789; received a public-school education; was clerk in a store; went to sea as sailor and as mate, and was captain of a brig on a cruise to Europe; removed to Maine; was a member of the State legislature of Maine and of the Executive Council; was defeated as a candidate for Congress in the Eastport District; removed to Ohio, thence to Louisiana, and thence to Brazoria, Texas; was a member of the House of Representatives, and then of the Senate of the republic of Texas; was elected a representative from Texas, on the admission of that State, in the Twenty-ninth Congress, as a Calhoun Democrat, receiving 43 majority; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from June 10, 1846, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Calhoun-Democrat candidate for the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 2,135 votes against 4,120 votes for Volney E. Howard, Democrat, 2,796 votes for Williamson, Democrat, and 721 votes for Hugh McLeod, Democrat; died near Danville, Texas, November 23, 1858.

Pinchback, Percy Bysshe Shelley, was born in Georgia May 10, 1837; was taken when young to New Orleans; received a good English education at Gilmore's High School, Cincinnati; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of Louisiana in 1867; was a delegate from Louisiana in the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1868; was a member of the State Senate of Louisiana in 1868; was appointed by President Grant registrar of the land-office in Louisiana, but declined; was elected December 6, 1871, lieutenant-governor of Louisiana (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Lieutenant-Governor Dunn); was acting governor of Louisiana during the impeachment of Governor Warmouth in 1872; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana January 15, 1873, and was again elected in January, 1874, but he was not admitted to his seat.

Pinckney, Charles, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, March 9, 1758; received a classical education at the school of Dr. Oliphant; studied law with his father, Colonel Charles Pinckney, and was admitted to the bar in 1779; was a member of the Provincial legislature 1779-1780; was taken prisoner by the British in 1780; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1777-1778, and again in 1784-1787; was a member of the United-States Constitutional Convention in 1787; was a member of the State Convention by which the Federal Constitution was ratified in 1788, and of the State Constitutional Convention in 1790; was governor of South Carolina 1789-1792 and 1796-1798; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina as a Democrat, defeating General Pickens, and serving from February 16, 1797, to December 19, 1801; was minister to Spain January 12, 1803-May 21, 1805; was a member of the State legislature 1806; was governor of South Carolina 1806-1808; was a member of the State legislature 1810-1814; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating two Federal opponents, and serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; he retired to private life, and died at Charleston, South Carolina, February 25, 1822. He published a pamphlet in support of Mr. Monroe's election to the presidency, and his "Travels in Europe."

Pinckney, Henry Laurens, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, September 24, 1794; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1812; studied law with his brother-in-law, Robert Y. Hayne; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Charleston; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1816-1832; was mayor of Charleston in 1832; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was again mayor of Charleston in 1839 and 1849; was collector of the port of Charleston, and died there February 3, 1863.

Pinckney, Thomas, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, October 23, 1750; received a classical education in England, graduating at Oxford University; studied law at the Temple at London; was admitted to practice as a barrister; returned to South Carolina, and commenced practice at Charleston in 1773; served in the Revolutionary army, attaining the rank of major, and was wounded and taken prisoner at the battle of Gum Swamp in 1780; declined the position of United-States district-judge offered him by President Washington in 1789; was governor of South Carolina 1789-1792; was minister to Great Britain January 12, 1792-July 28, 1796; was minister to Spain November 24, 1794-November, 1795, negotiating the treaty of San Idelfonso; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fifth Congress (in place of William Smith, resigned) as a Federalist, and was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from November 23, 1797, to March 3, 1801; was appointed major-general at the commencement of the war of 1812, and placed in command of the Southern Military Division, serving throughout the war; died at Charleston, South Carolina, November 2, 1828.

Pindall, James, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from that State in the Fifteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to 1820, when he resigned.

Pinkney, William (grandfather of William Pinkney Whyte), was born at Annapolis, Maryland, March 17, 1764; received a classical education at King William School (now St. John's College); left his father, who was loyal to King George, and became a clerk in an apothecary's shop at Baltimore, where he commenced the study of medicine under Dr. Dorsay; he attracted the attention of Judge Chase at a debating society, and was persuaded by him to study law; was admitted to the bar in 1786, and commenced practice in Harford County; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1788, and of the State House of Delegates in 1789; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress, but objection was made on the ground of non-residence, and he resigned November 9, 1791; was a member of the Executive Council of Maryland 1792-1795, and again a member of the House of Delegates in 1795; was one of the commissioners at London under Jay's treaty 1796-1804; was attorney-general of Maryland 1805; was joint minister plenipotentiary to Great Britain with James Monroe 1806-1807, and minister plenipotentiary 1807-1811; returned to the United States in 1811; settled in Baltimore; was a member of the State Senate; was attorney-general of the United States December 11, 1811-February 10, 1814; commanded a battalion of volunteer riflemen in Stansbury's Maryland Brigade in 1814, and was wounded in the battle of Bladensburg; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from January 8, 1816, to April 23, 1816, when he resigned on being appointed minister plenipotentiary to the Two Sicilies; was appointed minister plenipotentiary to Russia March 7, 1816, which position he held until February 14, 1818; was elected United-States senator from Maryland (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Alexander C. Hanson), and took his seat January 4, 1820, serving until his death at Washington, caused by over-exertion in arguing a case before the Supreme Court, February 25, 1822.

Pinson, Richard A., of Pontotoc County, Mississippi, presented to the House of Representatives on the 4th of June, 1836, credentials signed by Governor Humphreys, declaring that he had been elected to represent the Second District of Mississippi in the Thirty-sixth Congress.

Piper, William, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 413 majority over John Rea, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817.

Piper, William A., was born in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, in 1825; volunteered at St. Louis, Missouri, in 1846, and served in the Mexican war; removed from St. Louis to California in 1848, and, after the spring of 1849, resided in San Francisco; engaged in general business; was elected a representative from California in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,417 votes against 6,791 votes for Ira P. Rankin, Republican, and 6,103 votes for John F. Swift, Independent; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,363 votes against 22,114 votes for Horace Davis, Republican.

Pitcher, Nathaniel, was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, in 1777; removed to Sandy Hill, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1806, 1815-1817; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1821; was elected lieutenant-governor of New York in 1826, and became acting governor on the death of Governor Clinton, serving from February, 1827, to January, 1829; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1823; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; died at Sandy Hill, New York, May 25, 1836.

Pitkin, Timothy, was born at Farmington, Connecticut, in 1765; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1785; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at New Haven; was for several successive years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving five sessions as speaker; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Ninth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1819. He published "Statistical View of the Commerce of the United States" 1816, and revised in 1835; and "Political and Civil History of the United States 1763-1797."

Pitman, Charles W., was born in New Jersey; removed to Pennsylvania, and resided at Pottsville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 10,203 votes against 8,182 votes for Dockery, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Plaisted, Harris M., was born in Jefferson, New Hampshire, November 2, 1828; was brought up on his father's farm, working summers, and teaching school winters; graduated at Colby University in 1853, and at the law-school of the University of Albany in 1855; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bangor, Maine, in 1856; served in the Union army throughout the war as colonel of the Eleventh Maine Volunteers, and as brigadier-general and major-general by brevet; was a member of the State legislature in 1867 and 1868; was a delegate from the State at large to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1868; was attorney-general of Maine in 1873, 1874, and 1875; and was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-fourth Congress (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Samuel F. Hersey) as a Republican, receiving 10,735 votes against 9,766 votes for James C. Madigan, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Plant, David, was born at Stratford, Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1804; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819 and 1820, serving as speaker; was a member of the State Senate 1821-1823; was lieutenant-governor of Connecticut 1823-1827; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; died at Stratford, Connecticut, October 18, 1851.

Plants, Tobias A., was born in Beaver County, Pennsylvania, March 17, 1811; was self-educated; taught school; studied law, and commenced practice at Pomeroy, Ohio; was a member of the State legislature of Ohio in 1858, 1859, 1860, and 1861; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,847 votes against 9,564 votes for James M. Morris, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,816 votes against 10,752 votes for Follett, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Plater, George, was born in Maryland in 1736; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1753; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Annapolis; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1778-1781; was a delegate to the convention which ratified the Federal Constitution in 1788, and its president; was governor of Maryland in 1792; died at Annapolis, Maryland, February 10, 1792.

Plater, Thomas, was born at Annapolis, Maryland; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1805.

Platt, James H., jun., was born in St. John's, Canada, July 13, 1837, of parents who were American citizens, and residents of Vermont; received an academic education; graduated from the medical department of the University of Vermont in 1859; in 1861 entered the Union army as first sergeant of the Third Vermont Volunteers; became captain of Company B, Fourth Vermont Volunteers, and served on the staff of Major-General Sedgwick as acting chief quartermaster, Sixth Army Corps, until the death of that officer; was taken prisoner May 30, 1864, and held until the following December; was appointed lieutenant-colonel, and assigned to duty as chief quartermaster of the Sixth Corps, and, declining the same, was honorably discharged the service; settled in Petersburg, Virginia, April 6, 1865; was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention of Virginia in 1867; served as a member of the city council of Petersburg, and as a member of the Board of Education; removed to Norfolk; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-first Congress as a Radical Republican, receiving 16,781 votes against 11,255 votes for Godwin, Conservative, and 2,736 votes for Bayne, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 15,505 votes against 10,902 votes for R. B. Bolling, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,553 votes against 10,329 votes for B. P. Lee, Democrat, serving from January 27, 1870, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,390 votes against 13,521 votes for John Goode, jun., Democrat.

Platt, Jonas, was born in Oneida County, New York; resided at Whitesborough; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; was appointed a justice of the Supreme Court of New York February 23, 1814; died at Peru, New York, June 19, 1834.

Platt, Thomas C., was born at Owego, New York, July 15, 1833; received an academic education at the Owego Academy; was a member of the class of 1853 of Yale College, New Haven, but withdrew in his junior year on account of ill health; followed mercantile pursuits after he left college; was president of the Tioga National Bank; was extensively engaged in lumbering in Michigan; was county-clerk of the county of Tioga in 1859, 1860, and 1861; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,603 votes against 13,406 votes for M. Goodrich, Liberal and Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,766 votes against 13,013 votes for Jones, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Platt, Zephaniah, was born in Dutchess County, New York; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1784-1786; was judge of the court of the district in which he lived until advancing years warned him to give up active labor; he then retired to his handsome estate on Lake Champlain, where he founded the town of Plattsburg, and died there.

Pleasants, James, was born in Virginia in 1769; received a thorough English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Goochland Court House; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1796; was clerk of the House 1803-1811; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1819; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of John W. Eppes, resigned), serving from December 14, 1819, to March 1, 1822, when he resigned; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention 1829-1830; died near Goochland Court House, Virginia, November 9, 1836.

Plumb, Preston B., was born in Delaware County, Ohio, October 12, 1837; received a common-school education; learned the art of printing, and afterwards aided in establishing "The Xenia News;" removed to Kansas in 1856; established "The Emporia News;" was a member of the Leavenworth Constitutional Convention in 1859; was admitted to the bar in 1861; was elected to the lower House of the legislature in 1862; and was chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and subsequently reporter of the Supreme Court; in August of the same year, entered the service as second lieutenant in the Eleventh Kansas Infantry, and served successively as captain, major, and lieutenant-colonel of that regiment; was a member and speaker of the Kansas House of Representatives in 1867, and also a member in the following year; having relinquished the practice of the law on account of failing health, he became president of the Emporia National Bank in January, 1873; was elected United-States senator from Kansas as a Republican (to succeed James M. Harvey, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1877; his term will expire March 3, 1883.

Plumer, Arnold, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Franklin; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 246 majority, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Plumer, George, was born in Alleghany County, Pennsylvania; resided at Robbstown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, defeating Alexander W. Foster; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1827.

Plumer, William (father of William Plumer), was born at Newburyport, Massachusetts, June 25, 1759; removed with his father to Epping, New Hampshire, in 1768; received an academic education; studied law with John Prentiss at Londonderry; was admitted to the bar in 1787, and commenced practice at Epping; filled several town-offices; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1785, 1788, 1790, 1791, 1797, 1798, 1800, and 1801, serving two years as speaker, and was president of the State Senate in 1810 and 1811; was a member of the New-Hampshire Constitutional Convention in 1791-1792; was State solicitor for Rockingham County, which office he resigned when elected to the United-States Senate (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of James Sheafe), serving from December 6, 1802, until March 3, 1807; was governor of New Hampshire 1812-1813 and 1816-1819; was a presidential elector in 1820, casting his vote for John Quincy Adams (the only one in opposition to the re-election of President Monroe, to whom he objected on account of his financial recommendations); devoted the last thirty years of his life to literary pursuits, and died at Epping, New Hampshire, December 22, 1850. He published, during the last thirty years of his life, numerous contributions to the periodical press, signed "Cincinnatus," an "Appeal to the Old Whigs," and "An Address to the Clergy." His life, edited by Rev. A. P. Peabody, D.D., was published in 1856.

Plumer, William (son of William Plumer), was born at Epping, New Hampshire, October 9, 1789; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge in 1809; studied law with his father; was admitted to the bar, but was never known as a practising lawyer; was repeatedly elected a member of the State Senate or House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; and died, after a brief attack of dysentery (never before having known a day's indisposition), at Epping, New Hampshire, September 18, 1854. He published "Youth, or Scenes from the Past, and other Poems," "Manhood," &c., a series of poems.

Plummer, Franklin E., was born in Virginia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Westville, Mississippi; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twenty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; became very poor, and died at Jackson, Mississippi, September 24, 1802.

Poe, Washington, was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,952 votes against 4,813 votes for Chappell, Democrat; he never took his seat, but resigned "on account of imperative personal engagements."

Poindexter, George, was born in Loudon County, Virginia, in 1779; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in the Territory of Mississippi in 1802; was elected a delegate from Mississippi Territory in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, and was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1813; was appointed United-States judge for the Territory; served on General Jackson's staff in the war of 1812; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was governor of Mississippi 1819-1821; was appointed a United-States senator (in place of Robert H. Adams, deceased), and subsequently elected, serving from December 6, 1830, to March 3, 1835; removed to Lexington, Kentucky, where he practised a few years, and then returned to Jackson, Mississippi; fought a duel with a merchant named Abijah Hunt, and killed him; died at Jackson, Mississippi, September 5, 1853. He published a revised code of the laws of Mississippi.

Poinsett, Joel Roberts, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, March 2, 1779; was taken to England by his parents when a child, returning to Charleston in 1788; was educated at Greenfield, Connecticut, under President Dwight; his health forced him to travel in 1796 in Europe, where he studied medicine and military affairs; was appointed by President Madison in 1809 to visit South America, and ascertain the prospects of the revolutionists there; returning to South Carolina, he was elected to the State House of Representatives; was a prominent Freemason, and an officer of the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventeenth Congress as a Federalist, defeating George Geddes; and was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 361 majority over Samuel Warren, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; was appointed on a special commission to Mexico in 1822, and minister to Mexico 1825-1829; was appointed by President Van Buren secretary of war, serving from March 7, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was opposed to nullification, secession, and a war with Mexico; died at Statesburg, South Carolina, December 12, 1851. He published "Notes on Mexico," and delivered a number of essays and orations on manufactures, agriculture, and science.

Poland, Luke P., was born at Westford, Vermont, November 1, 1815; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was register of probate of Lamoille County in 1839 and 1840; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Vermont in 1843; was prosecuting-attorney in 1844 and 1845; was judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont from 1845 to 1856, and in 1860 was made chief justice; received in 1861 the degree of doctor of laws from the University of Vermont; was appointed a United-States senator from Vermont (in place of Jacob Collamer, deceased), serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,844 votes against 3,935 votes for Chase, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 15,407 votes against 5,152 votes for Chase, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,479 votes against 3,206 votes for L. S. Partridge, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 11,070 votes against 2,929 votes for H. W. Steele, Independent, and 2,446 votes for J. W. Pierce, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1875, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as a Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 4,079 votes against 8,295 votes for D. C. Denison, Republican, and 1,524 votes for L. P. McLane, Democrat; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Cincinnati in 1876.

Polk, James Knox (brother of William H. Polk), was born near Little Sugar Creek, Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, November 2, 1795; went with his father to Tennessee in 1806; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1818 with the highest honors; studied law at Nashville with Felix Grundy; was admitted to the bar in 1820, and commenced practice; was an active member of the Masonic fraternity, holding offices in the lodge and chapter; was a member of the legislature of Tennessee in 1823-1825; was elected a representative in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat (defeating James T. Sanford, Whig), and was successively re-elected until the Twenty-fifth, serving from December 5, 1825, until March 3, 1839, and as speaker from December 7, 1835; was elected governor of Tennessee in 1839 as a Democrat, receiving 54,680 votes against 52,114 votes for Cannon, Whig; was nominated for President of the United States by the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore May 29, 1844, and elected in November, 1844, receiving 170 electoral votes against 105 electoral votes for Henry Clay; was inaugurated March 4, 1845, and declined a renomination; died at Nashville, Tennessee, June 15, 1849. His life, by John S. Jenkins, and a history of his administration, were published in 1850.

Polk, Truisten, was born in Sussex County, Delaware, May 29, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1831; studied law at Yale Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at St. Louis, Missouri; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1845; was a presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848; was elected governor of Missouri, and inaugurated in January, 1857, but soon after resigned; was elected a United-States senator from Missouri as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1857, to January 10, 1862, when he was expelled.

Polk, William H. (brother of James Knox Polk), was born in Maury County, Tennessee, May 24, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Tennessee; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Columbia; was appointed by President Tyler minister to Naples, serving March 13, 1845-August 31, 1847; served in the Mexican war as major of the Third Dragoons, serving August 31, 1847-July 20, 1848; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,812 votes against 3,672 votes for Thomas, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was opposed to secession in 1861; died at Nashville December 16, 1862.

Pollard, Henry M., was born at Plymouth, Windsor County, Vermont, June 14, 1836; received a common-school and academic education, graduating in 1857 at the scientific department of Dartmouth College; served in the Union army during the war as major of the Eighth Regiment of Vermont Volunteers; located in Chillicothe in the fall of 1865, and has since resided there, practising law; and was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,582 votes against 15,802 votes for R. A. De Bolt, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Pollock, James, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1831; resided at Milton; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress (in place of Henry Frick, deceased) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses, serving from April 23, 1844, to March 3, 1849; was elected governor as a Union Republican in 1854, receiving 204,008 votes against 167,001 votes for Bigler, Democrat, serving 1855-1858; was a delegate to the Peace Convention at Washington in 1861; was appointed director of the United-States Mint at Philadelphia 1861-1867.

Polsley, Daniel, was born near Fairmont, Virginia, November 28, 1803; received a common-school education; studied law, and practised until 1845, when he retired to engage in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the West-Virginia (Wheeling) Convention in 1861; was elected lieutenant-governor of the loyal State Government of Virginia in 1861; was elected judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of West Virginia in 1862, and was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,211 votes against 3,639 votes for Oley, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869; died at Point Pleasant, West Virginia, of consumption, October 14, 1876.

Pomeroy, Charles, was born at Meriden, Connecticut, September 3, 1825; received an academic education; studied and practised law, but is a farmer; settled in Iowa in 1855, and was a presidential elector from that State on the Lincoln ticket in 1860; was appointed receiver in the United-States land-office at Fort Dodge in 1861; and was elected a rep-representative from Iowa in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,775 votes against 6,257 votes for Russell. Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Pomeroy, Samuel C., was born in Southampton, Massachusetts, January 3, 1816; was educated at Amherst College, Massachusetts; went to New York, where he resided for some years, and returned to Massachusetts, where he held several local offices; was a member of the legislature of Massachusetts in 1852; was an organizer and the chief financial agent of the New-England Emigrant Aid Society; went to Kansas, and was identified with its organization; was elected United-States senator from Kansas as a Republican, and took his seat in 1861; and was re-elected in 1867, serving from March 4, 1861, to March 3, 1873.

Pomeroy, Theodore M., was born at Cayuga, New York, December 31, 1824; graduated at Hamilton College, New York; studied and practised law; was district-attorney of Cayuga County from 1850 to 1856; was a member of the General Assembly of New York in 1857; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,437 votes against 7,691 votes for Beardsley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 13,834 votes against 11,196 votes for Hadley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 16,027 votes against 11,832 votes for Cuyler, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 16,189 votes against 11,404 votes for Humphreys, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1869.

Pond, Benjamin, was a native of the State of New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1808-1810; was elected a representative from New York in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, without opposition, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress, but died before taking his seat, at Schroom Lake, New York, June 14, 1815.

Pool, John, was born in Pasquotank County, North Carolina, June 16, 1826; graduated at the University of North Carolina in 1847; is a practising lawyer; was elected to the State Senate in 1856, re-elected in 1858, and again in 1864, and again in 1865; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1865; was the Whig candidate for governor of the State in 1860; was elected United-States senator from North Carolina in 1865; and was re-elected in 1868, and qualified and took his seat in July, 1868, serving from July 10, 1868, to March 3, 1875.

Pope, John, was born in Prince William County, Virginia, in 1770; having lost an arm by accident, he studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Springfield, Kentucky; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was a presidential elector on the Jefferson ticket in 1801; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky as a Democrat, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1813; was appointed Territorial governor of Arkansas 1820-1835; returned to Springfield; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Hardin, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 200 majority over Robert C. Palmer, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Independent candidate for the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 2,338 votes against 4,872 votes for Stone, Democrat, and 3,701 votes for Grigsby, Whig; died at Springfield, Kentucky, July 12, 1845.

Pope, Nathaniel, was born at Louisville, Kentucky, in 1784; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University; studied the French language, and law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at St. Genevieve, Missouri, 1824; was appointed secretary of the Territory of Illinois in 1800, and removed to Springfield; was elected a delegate from Illinois Territory in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1816, to December 4, 1818; was appointed United-States judge for the District of Illinois in 1818, and occupied that position until his death at Springfield June 14, 1850.

Pope, Patrick H., was born in 1808; resided at Louisville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 1,704 votes against 1,690 votes for H. Crittenden, Clay Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as a Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fourth Congress; died at Louisville, Kentucky, May 4, 1841.

Poppleton, Earley F., was born in Richland County, Ohio, September 29, 1834; was educated at the Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware; studied law at Elyria, Ohio, where he commenced practice; removed in 1861 to Delaware, where he resided, and practised his profession; was on the Democratic electoral ticket from the Eighth Congressional District in 1868; was elected to the State Senate of Ohio in 1870 to fill a vacancy; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,627 votes against 11,199 votes for J. W. Robinson, Republican, and 1,045 votes for Harrod, Prohibitionist, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,175 votes against 15,978 votes for John S. Jones, Republican, and 308 votes for Levi L. Benson, Prohibitionist.

Porter, Albert G., was born at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, April 20, 1824; received a classical education, graduating at Asbury University in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice at Indianapolis; was councilman and corporation attorney; was appointed in 1853 reporter of the Supreme Court of Indiana; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,776 votes against 9,716 votes for M. M. Ray, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 13,029 votes against 11,887 votes for R. L. Walpole, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as presidential elector on the Hayes ticket in 1876; was appointed by President Hayes first comptroller of the treasury (in place of R. A. Taylor, deceased) March 5, 1878.

Porter, Alexander J., was born near Armagh, Ireland, in 1786; his father, who was a clergyman, having been executed as a member of the Society of United Irishmen, he was brought to Nashville when a lad by an uncle; he received a public-school education; was a clerk in a store; studied law at night; was admitted to the bar, and, by advice of General Jackson, located in Attakapas, Louisiana; was a delegate to the Convention which framed a State Constitution; was a judge of the State Supreme Court for fifteen years; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana as a Whig (in place of Joseph S. Johnston, deceased), serving from January 6, 1834, to January 5, 1837, when he resigned; was again elected a United-States senator by a Democratic legislature, serving from December 4, 1843, to January 13, 1844, when he died of ossification of the heart at Attakapas, Louisiana.

Porter, Augustus S. (son of Peter Buel Porter), was born at Canandaigua, New York, January 18, 1798; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1818; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Detroit, Michigan; was mayor of Detroit in 1838; was elected a United-States senator from Michigan as a Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845; removed in 1848 to Niagara Falls, the residence of his father.

Porter, Charles H., was born in Cairo, New York; received an academic education; was a student at the Law University at Albany, New York, in 1852-1853; practised law in Greene County until the spring of 1861, when he entered the Union army; settled at Norfolk, Virginia, and was attorney for the Commonwealth there from October, 1863, until January, 1870, and attorney for the city for one year; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Virginia in 1867 and 1868; and was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,311 votes against 13,041 votes for Hunnicutt, Conservative, 815 for Mulford, Independent Democrat, and 231 for Cook, Independent Colored; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 15,555 votes against 10,657 votes for A. Ordway, Democrat, and 5 scattering votes, serving from January 27, 1870, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Independent candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13 votes against 15,393 votes for William H. H. Stowell, Republican, and 8,068 votes for P. W. McKinney, Democrat.

Porter, Gilchrist, was born in Virginia; removed to Missouri, and resided at Bowling Green; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,889 votes against 5,878 votes for Henderson, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 6,224 votes against 7,007 votes for Lamb, Democrat; was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,119 votes against 6,877 votes for Corneek, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Porter, James, was born at Williamstown, Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Skaneateles, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814 and 1815; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was appointed register of the Court of Chancery at Albany, and held the position until his death at Albany.

Porter, John, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress (in place of Michael Leib, resigned); was re-elected to the Tenth and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 8, 1806, to March 3, 1811.

Porter, Peter Buel (father of Augustus S. Porter), was born at Salisbury, Connecticut, in 1773; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1791; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1795, and commenced practice at Canandaigua, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, receiving 1,168 majority, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1813; served as major-general on the frontier during the war with Great Britain, and distinguished himself in several battles; was appointed by President Madison in 1815 commander-in-chief of the army, but declined; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to 1816, when he resigned; was commissioner under the treaty of Ghent in 1816; was secretary of state of New York 1815-1816; was appointed by John Quincy Adams secretary of war, serving from May 26, 1828, to March 9, 1829; was one of the early projectors of the Erie Canal; died at Niagara Falls, New York, March 20, 1844.

Porter, Timothy H., was born at New Haven, Connecticut; removed to Olean, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1816-1817, and of the State Senate 1823; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was again a member of the State Senate 1828-1831, and of the State House of Representatives 1838-1840.

Posey, Thomas, was born on the banks of the Potomac July 9, 1750; received a public-school education; was county-lieutenant of Spottsylvania County, Virginia; participated in the early Indian and French war, and fought throughout the Revolution, receiving the appointment of brigadier-general in 1793; removed to Kentucky; was State senator; was four years lieutenant-governor; was major-general in command of the Kentucky levies in 1800; removed to Louisiana; was appointed a United-States senator from Louisiana (in place of John Noel Destrahan, resigned), serving from December 7, 1812, to February 5, 1813, when his successor took his seat; was appointed governor of the Indian Territory March 3, 1813; was appointed Indian agent in 1816, and held the position until his death at Shawneetown, Illinois, March 19, 1818.

Post, Jotham, jun., was born in New York; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1794-1797; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815.

Poston, Charles D., was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, April 20, 1825; received a public-school education; removed to California in 1850; was employed in the San Francisco custom-house for four years; went to Arizona in 1854 to engage in silver-mining; was appointed superintendent of Indian affairs for the Territory; was elected a delegate from Arizona Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Potter, Allen, was born in Saratoga County, New York, October 2, 1818; received a public-school education; removed to Michigan in 1838, and located at Kalamazoo in 1845; has been engaged in manufacturing, mercantile pursuits, and banking; was elected president of the village in 1850, 1863, 1870, and 1872, and president of the local Board of Education in 1870 and 1871; was elected president of the Kalamazoo and South-Haven Railroad Company in 1870; and was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-fourth Congress as an Independent candidate, nominated by the Democrats and Liberals, receiving 13,317 votes against 12,278 votes for Julius C. Burrows, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Potter, Clarkson Nott, was born in Schenectady, New York, in 1825; graduated at Union College (of which his grandfather, Rev. Eliphalet Nott, was president, and his father, Bishop Alonzo Potter, was vice-president) in 1842; graduated at the Rensselaer Institute as a civil engineer in 1843, and was a surveyor in Wisconsin; studied law in that State, and, after coming to the bar, commenced the practice of his profession in New-York City in 1847; held no public offices, but was engaged in many important cases; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 16,533 votes against 12,700 votes for Bradley, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,249 votes against 10,635 votes for J. Westervelt, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,199 votes against 14,269 votes for E. Flagg, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,178 votes against 11,160 votes for George B. Brandreth, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Potter, Elisha Reynolds (father of Elisha R. Potter, jun.), was born at Little Rest (now South Kingston), Rhode Island, November 5, 1764; was a blacksmith's apprentice, a farmer, and a soldier, in early life; studied law, and, after having been admitted to the bar, practised at South Kingston; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1793, and for thirty years thereafter, with occasional break; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Fourth Congress (in place of Benjamin Bourne, resigned) as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 19, 1796, to 1797, when he resigned; was again elected to the Eleventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, receiving 163 majority; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 2, 1815; was defeated as candidate for governor of Rhode Island in 1818; died at South Kingston, Rhode Island, September 26, 1835.

Potter, Elisha R., jun. (son of Elisha R. Potter), was born at Kingston, Rhode Island, June 20, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1830; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was State adjutant-general in 1835 and 1836; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 1,096 majority, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was State commissioner of public schools, serving from May, 1849, to October, 1854, when he resigned that he might devote himself exclusively to his profession. Has published "The Early History of Narragansett," "Paper Money in Rhode Island," and several essays on public schools and suffrage.

Potter, Emery D., was born in Ohio; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Toledo; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,874 votes against 3,859 votes for Tilden, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,029 votes against 4,240 votes for Fitch, Free-Soiler, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was appointed by President Buchanan United-States judge for the Territory of Utah.

Potter, John F., was born at Augusta, Maine, May 11, 1817; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1837, and commenced practice at East Troy, Wisconsin; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,111 votes against 12,814 votes for Hadley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 14,428 votes against 11,171 votes for Brown, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 16,197 votes against 13,508 votes for Arnold, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 12,186 votes against 14,334 votes for Brown, Democrat; was appointed governor of Nebraska Territory by President Lincoln, but declined, and he was then appointed consul-general of the United States for the British Provinces in North America.

Potter, Robert, was born in Granville, North Carolina; entered the United-States navy as a midshipman March 2, 1815, and resigned March 26, 1821; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Halifax, North Carolina; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1826; was elected a representative in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, until March 3, 1831; moved by jealousy, he committed a brutal maim on two male relatives of his wife August 28, 1831, for which he was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and the payment of one thousand dollars' fine; removed to Texas, where he was killed in a disreputable private quarrel.

Potter, Samuel J., was born in Rhode Island in 1750; was a presidential elector in 1792 and in 1797; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island, serving from October 17, 1803, to October 1, 1804, when he died.

Potter, William W., was born in 1790; resided at Bellefonte; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,832 votes against 6,763 votes for Williamson, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,517 votes against 6,288 votes for William Irvin, Whig, but died before taking his seat, at Bellefonte, October 28, 1839.

Pottle, Emory B., was born at Naples, New York; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Naples; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,368 votes against 3,897 votes for Ogden, Democrat, and 4,211 votes for Oliver, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,558 votes against 7,173 votes for Ogden, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Potts, David, jun., was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, in 1793; resided at Pottstown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig and anti-Mason; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 1,325 votes against 1,068 votes for John Morgan, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1839; died at Pottstown, Pennsylvania, January 17, 1863.

Potts, Richard, was born in Maryland; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1781 and 1782; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Charles Carroll, resigned), serving from February 4, 1793, to March 1, 1796, when he resigned.

Pound, Thad C., was born at Elk, Pennsylvania, December 6, 1833; received an academic education at Milton Academy, Wisconsin, and Rushford, Alleghany County, New York; removed to Rock County, Wisconsin, in May, 1856, and engaged in the manufacture of lumber and the mercantile business, being president of the Union Lumbering Company, and of the Chippewa Falls and Western Railway; was a member of the Legislative Assembly of Wisconsin in 1864, 1866, 1867, and 1869, serving the last year as speaker pro tempore; was lieutenant-governor of Wisconsin 1870 and 1871; was a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia in 1872; and was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,838 votes against 13,860 votes for George W. Cate, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Powel, Samuel, was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Powell, Alfred H., was born in Loudon County, Virginia, March 6, 1781; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College; studied law at Alexandria, Virginia; was admitted to the bar in 1800, and commenced practice at Winchester; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1830; was stricken down by apoplexy while arguing a case before the Chancery Court at Winchester, Virginia, in 1831.

Powell, Cuthbert, was born at Alexandria, Virginia, in 1779; was mayor of Alexandria; removed to Loudon County; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died at Langollen, Virginia, May 8, 1849.

Powell, Joseph, was born at Towanda, Pennsylvania, June 23, 1828; received a common-school and academic education; business in early life that of merchant, subsequently adding that of banker and coal-operator; had never held public office until elected a representative in Congress from a district previously Republican, and represented by Hon. D.

Wilmot, Hon. G. A. Grow, and Hon. U. Mercur; he was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,183 votes against 12,082 votes for Laporte, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,958 votes against 16,954 votes for Edward Overton, jun., Republican.

Powell, Lazarus W., was born in Henderson County, Kentucky, October 6, 1812; received a classical education, graduating at St. Joseph's College, Bardstown, in 1833; studied law at the Transylvania University; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Henderson, carrying on his plantation at the same time; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1844; was governor of Kentucky 1851-1855; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; died on his farm, near Henderson, Kentucky, July 5, 1867.

Powell, Levin, was born in Loudon County, Virginia, in 1738; served through the Revolutionary war as an officer of the Virginia line, and rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel; was a delegate to the State Convention which ratified the Federal Constitution; was a candidate for Congress, and it was recorded in the newspapers that "General Washington, on the day of election, mounted his old iron-gray charger, and rode ten miles to the county court-house to vote for his brave brother-soldier, Lieutenant-Colonel Powell, who is happily elected;" he served in the Sixth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; declined a re-election; died at Bedford, Pennsylvania, August 6, 1810.

Powell, Paulus, was born in Virginia; resided at Amherst Court House; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,136 votes against 3,029 votes for Goggin, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 2,857 votes against 2,695 votes for Goggin, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,751 votes against 3,912 votes for Musely, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 3,934 votes against 3,096 votes for Ligon, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 3,453 votes against 5,003 votes for Leake, Independent Democrat.

Powers, Gershom, resided at Auburn; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

Powers, Llewellyn, was born at Pittsfield, Maine, in 1838; was educated at Colby University, and at the law department of Albany University; was admitted to the bar in 1861, and commenced practice at Houlton; was prosecuting or county attorney 1864-1871; was collector of customs for the district of Aroostook 1868-1872; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1874-1876; and was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,880 votes against 10,069 votes for John P. Donworth, Democrat, and 908 votes for Lyndon Oak, Moral Reformer, serving from October 15, 1877.

Poydras, Julian, was born in Louisiana; was the founder and benefactor of the Female Orphan Asylum at New Orleans; was elected a delegate from Orleans Territory in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1809, to March 3, 1811; died June 25, 1824, at Point Coupée, Louisiana.

Pratt, Daniel D., was born at Palermo, Maine, October 26, 1818; was taken to the State of New York by his parents when a lad; entered Hamilton College, and graduated in 1831; removed to Indiana in 1832; taught school; went to Indianapolis in 1834; wrote in the office of the secretary of state, and studied law in the mean time; settled at Logansport in 1836, and commenced practice; was a member of the legislature of Indiana in 1851 and 1853; was elected a representative to the Forty-first Congress in 1868 by a majority of 2,287, and, before taking his seat, was elected United-States senator from Indiana as a Republican (to succeed Thomas A. Hendricks, Democrat), serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was appointed by President Grant commissioner of internal revenue, serving from May 15, 1875, to August 1, 1876; he died at Logansport, Indiana, very suddenly, of heart-disease, June 17, 1877.

Pratt, Henry O., was born at Foxcroft, Maine, February 11, 1838; was educated at Foxcroft Academy in that State; studied law, and graduated at the law department of Harvard University; removed to Iowa in 1862; served as a private in the army to suppress the Rebellion; commenced the practice of law at Charles City in 1864; was elected to the Iowa House of Representatives in 1869, and re-elected in 1871; and was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,615 votes against 4,574 votes for A. Y. Lusch, Liberal Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,725 votes against 6,689 votes for Bowman, anti-Monopolist, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; was ordained as a minister in the Methodist-Episcopal Church.

Pratt, James T., was born at Middletown, Connecticut, in 1805; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits on a farm at Sandy Hill; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,852 votes against 8,519 votes for Clark, Know-Nothing.

Pratt, Thomas G., was born at Washington, District of Columbia, in 1805; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Upper Marlborough; was a member of the State House of Representatives for several years, and a State senator for six years; was governor of Maryland 1844-1847; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Reverdy Johnson, resigned), serving from January 14, 1850, to March 3, 1857; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864; died at Baltimore, Maryland, after a severe illness and much suffering, from a disease of the heart, November 9, 1869.

Pratt, Zadock, was born at Stephentown, New York, October 30, 1790; received a public-school education; engaged in tanning leather in the Catskill Mountains, where he established a town called Prattsville; was a member of the State Senate in 1830; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1836; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 6,967 votes against 5,772 votes for Palen, Whig, and 29 votes for Bishop, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was a presidential elector on the Pierce ticket in 1852; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1852; was the president of several societies and associations; died at Bergen, New Jersey, April 6, 1871.

Prentiss, John H., was born at Worcester, Massachusetts, April 17, 1784; learned the art of printing; removed to Cooperstown, New York, and published "The Freeman's Journal" there 1808-1849; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,724 votes against 4,216 votes for William H. Averill, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at Cooperstown, New York, June 26, 1864.

Prentiss, Samuel, was born at Stonington, Connecticut, March 31, 1782; removed with his father to Worcester, Massachusetts, and subsequently to North-field, where he commenced the study of law; completed his legal studies at Brattleborough, Vermont, with John W. Black; was admitted to the bar in 1802, and commenced practice at Montpelier in 1803; was a member of the State House of Representatives; declined the office of associate justice of the Supreme Court, and in 1850 permitted himself to be elected chief justice of that court; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont as a Whig, serving from December 5, 1831, to April 11, 1842, when he resigned; was appointed in 1842 judge of the United-States District Court in Vermont, which office he held until his death at Montpelier, Vermont, January 15, 1857.

Prentiss, Sergeant Smith, was born at Portland, Maine, September 30, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1826; studied law at Gorham; removed to Mississippi as a tutor in the family of Mrs. Shields, near Natchez; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Vicksburg; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,161 votes, but the election was set aside by the House, and at the second election he received 12,249 votes, defeating his Democratic opponent, serving from May 30, 1838, to March 3, 1839; resumed practice; removed in 1845 to Louisiana, where he sustained a brilliant reputation as a lawyer and an orator; died at Longwood, near Natchez, Mississippi, July 1, 1850.

Preston, Francis (father of William Campbell Preston), was born in Virginia in 1770; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress; was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; died May 26, 1835.

Preston, Jacob A., was born in Maryland; resided at Perrymanville; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Preston, William, was born near Louisville, Kentucky, October 16, 1816; received a classical education, graduating at St. Joseph's College, Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Louisville; served in the Mexican war as lieutenant-colonel of Kentucky volunteers; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1850-1851; was a presidential elector on the Scott ticket in 1852; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-second Congress (in place of Humphrey Marshall, resigned) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 6,609 votes against 4,847 votes for S. S. English, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1852, to March 3, 1855; was appointed by President Buchanan minister to Spain, serving from December 15, 1858, to May 24, 1861; returning home, he entered the Confederate army as brigadier-general April 18, 1862; was promoted to the rank of major-general January 1, 1865, and assigned to the command of the division of Major-General Polignac after his return to France; was transferred in October, 1863, to the command of a division in Longstreet's corps, Army of the Tennessee, composed of the brigades of Gracie, Twiggs, and Kelly; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1868.

Preston, William Ballard, was born in Montgomery County, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,671 votes against 3,443 votes for Chapman, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was appointed by President Taylor secretary of the navy, serving from March 8, 1849, to July 22, 1850; was a delegate from Virginia to the Provisional Confederate Congress which assembled at Richmond in July, 1861; was a senator from Virginia in the First Confederate Congress February 22, 1862, until his death at his residence at Blackburg, Virginia, November 14, 1862.

Preston, William Campbell (son of Francis Preston), was born at Philadelphia (while his father was there as a representative from Virginia) December 27, 1794; received a classical education, graduating at the College of South Carolina in 1812; studied law under William Wirt at Richmond; travelled at home and abroad; was admitted to the bar in 1820, and in 1822 commenced practice at Columbia, South Carolina; was a member of the State legislature, and a trustee of the College of South Carolina; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina as a Calhoun Nullifier, serving from December 2, 1833, until December, 1842, when he resigned, and resumed practice; was president of the College of South Carolina 1846-1851, and again a trustee 1851-1857; and died at Columbia, South Carolina, May 22, 1860. He published a "Eulogy on Hugh S. Legare," with several orations and addresses on literary and historical subjects.

Price, Hiram, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, January 10, 1814; received a business education; is president of the State Bank of Iowa; was paymaster-general of Iowa in 1861; was a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,433 votes against 8,930 votes for Thayer, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 16,571 votes against 8,822 votes for George H. Parker, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,275 votes against 9,220 votes for Cook, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,439 votes against 14,683 votes for J. H. Murphy, Democrat, serving from October 16, 1877.

Price, Rodman M., was born in Sussex County, New Jersey, November 5, 1816; received a classical education, which was completed at Princeton College, but illness prevented his graduation; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was appointed purser in the navy in 1840, and was stationed at San Francisco when gold was discovered in California; was navy agent at San Francisco in 1848, and exercised judicial functions under the American flag; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,286 votes against 8,149 votes for Ryerson, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,469 votes against 7,636 votes for Pennington, Whig; was governor of New Jersey 1854-1857; was a delegate to the Peace Congress at Washington in 1861.

Price, Samuel, was born in Fauquier County, Virginia; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Lewisburg; was clerk of the County Court of Nicholas County in 1831, and State's attorney of that county in 1833; was a delegate to the legislature from Nicholas and Fayette Counties 1834-1836; was Commonwealth's attorney for Braxton County from 1836 to 1850; was a delegate to the legislature from Greenbrier County from 1847 to 1852, except for one year; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1850-1851 and of 1861; was elected lieutenant-governor of Virginia in 1863, and continued until the close of the war; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of West Virginia in 1872, and president thereof; was elected circuit-judge in 1865, but not commissioned by the governor, as he could not take the test-oath; was appointed to the United-States Senate (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Allen Taylor Caperton) as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1876, to January 31, 1877.

Price, Sterling, was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, in September, 1809; received an academical education; removed to Missouri, and settled at Keytesville; was a prominent Freemason; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to August 12, 1846, when he resigned to take command of a regiment of volunteer cavalry for the Mexican war; distinguished himself, and was made brigadier-general; was governor of Missouri 1853-1857; took part in the organization of Kansas; was elected State bank commissioner; organized in 1861 an armed force, called the Missouri State Guard, which he commanded; was received into the Confederate forces, March 6, 1862, as major-general commanding the Missouri State Guard; commanded the Confederate Military District of Arkansas, and afterwards the Confederate Army of the West; was placed in 1864 in command of a division composed of the brigades of Drayton, Churchill, Tappan, and Parsons; distinguished himself in several engagements; went to Mexico at the close of the war, and organized a bureau of immigration, but returned to Missouri; and died at St. Louis September 29, 1867.

Price, Thomas L., resided at Lexington; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-seventh Congress (in place of John W. Reid, expelled) as a Democrat, serving from January 21, 1862, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 4,333 votes against 4,930 votes for McClurg, Emancipationist; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864; died at Lexington, Missouri, July 15, 1870.

Price, William P., was born January 29, 1835; was placed at the printer's trade when ten years of age, and became master of the art; entered Furman University at Greenville, South Carolina, in 1854, but left, without graduating, to take editorial charge of a newspaper; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1856 at Charleston; practised law at Greenville, South Carolina; was a member of the legislature of South Carolina in 1864, 1865, and 1866; returned to Georgia in 1866; was a member of the legislature of Georgia in 1868; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,333 votes against 3,113 votes for Wimpey, Republican, and 1,298 votes for Findlay, Independent Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,338 votes against 3,911 votes for Wimpey, Republican, and 825 votes for Boyd, Independent Democrat, serving from February 24, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Pridmore, A. L., was born in Scott County, Virginia, June 27, 1837; was brought up on a farm; by his own exertions, alternately teaching and going to school, he attained a fair English education; in August, 1861, he raised a company of volunteer infantry, and served as its captain until June, 1862, when he was promoted major of the Twenty-first Battalion of Virginia Infantry; was again promoted in December, 1862, lieutenant-colonel of infantry, and in October, 1863, colonel of cavalry, and commanded the Sixty-fourth Virginia Cavalry until the close of the war; was elected a member of the Virginia House of Delegates in March, 1865, but the close of the war prevented him from taking his seat; commenced the study of law in 1865; was admitted to the bar, and has since practised at Jonesville; was a member of the Virginia State Senate 1871-1875; and was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,127 votes against 4,791 votes for George T. Egbert, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Prince, Charles H., was born at Buckfield, Oxford County, Maine, May 9, 1837; was reared on his father's farm, attending the public school in the winters; engaged in mercantile pursuits; entered the Union army as captain; was cashier of the Freedman's Branch Bank at Augusta, Georgia; was State superintendent of freedmen's schools; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, serving from July 25, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Prince, Oliver H., was born in Virginia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Macon, Georgia; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of Thomas W. Cobb, resigned), serving from December 1, 1828, to March 3, 1829; was lost at sea in the steamer "Hone" October 9, 1837. He published a "Digest of the Laws of Georgia."

Prince, William, was elected a representative from Indiana in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to 1824, when he died at Princeton, Indiana.

Prindle, Elizur H., was born at Newton, Connecticut, May 6, 1829; received an academic education; studied law, and practised; was district-attorney of Chenango County, New York, in 1860, 1861, and 1862; was a member of the State Assembly of New York in 1863; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1867-1868; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,752 votes against 14,389 votes for J. Juliard, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Pringle, Benjamin, was born at Richfield, New York, November 9, 1807; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised for several years, but relinquished the profession on being made president of the Bank of Genesee at Batavia; was judge of the Genesee-county courts for one year; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,386 votes against 8,903 votes for Sherman, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,510 votes against 2,483 votes for Belden, Democrat, and 3,829 votes for Laning, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1863; was appointed by President Lincoln a judge of the Court of Arbitration at Cape Town under the treaty with Great Britain.

Profit, George H., resided at Petersburg, Indiana; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,009 votes against 5,170 votes for Robert Dale Owen, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; transferred his political allegiance to President Tyler; was appointed by President Tyler minister to Brazil June 7, 1843, and returned August 10, 1844, the Senate not having confirmed his appointment; died at Louisville, Kentucky, September 5, 1847.

Prosser, William F., was born at Williamsport, Pennsylvania, March 16, 1834; received a common-school education; studied law, but never practised; went across the plains to California in 1854; engaged in mining and trading; served as lieutenant in the volunteer Indian service in 1858 and 1859 on the northern coast of that State; was the first candidate of the Republican party for any office in Trinity County, California, where he was nominated for the legislature in 1860, and, in a county strongly Democratic, came within 200 votes of an election; when the war of the Rebellion broke out, in 1861, he returned from California, and enlisted as a private in the "Anderson troop;" served through the war in the Army of the Cumberland; participated in almost all of its battles; was captured, paroled, and exchanged in 1862; served as quartermaster of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry until that regiment left Louisville for Nashville in December, 1862, when he was placed in command of one of its companies, and in that capacity took part in the battle of Stone River; shortly after was transferred to the Second Tennessee Cavalry, of which he was adjutant during its organization; was commissioned major in March, 1863, lieutenant-colonel in March, 1864, and colonel in June, 1865; in the latter part of 1864 commanded a brigade of cavalry then serving in the district of North Alabama; at the close of the war he purchased the farm near Nashville, which he cultivates, and where he resides; in 1867 he was elected to the lower House of the legislature by the Republican party of Davidson County; was elected speaker pro tempore in February, 1869, pending the investigation of certain charges against the speaker of the House of Representatives; in December, 1867, he was elected one of the directors of the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company; in March, 1868, he was appointed one of the directors on the part of the State for the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad; and was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving a vote of 5,804, which was largely reduced by the intimidation and violence made use of by the rebel element of the district, against 2,655 votes for Motley, Democrat, 1,817 votes for Mercer, Independent Republican, and 80 votes for Garrett, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 5,428 votes against 7,991 votes for Edward I. Gollady, Democrat, and 3,525 votes for Bailie Peyton, Independent Democratic Conservative.

Pruyn, John V. L., was born at Albany, New York, in 1811; was educated at the Albany Academy; received a degree at Rutgers College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Albany; was appointed master in chancery by Governor Marcy; was appointed a regent of the State University in 1844, and in 1862 became chancellor of the university, and president of the board of regents (a position which he held to the time of his death); was a member of the State Senate in 1861; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Erastus Corning) as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was again elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,920 votes against 14,972 votes for J. H. Ramsey, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869; died at Clifton Springs, New York, November 21, 1877.

Pryor, Roger A., was born in Dinwiddie County, Virginia, July 19, 1828; received a classical education, graduating at Hampden-Sidney College in 1845; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Petersburg, but abandoned it on account of ill health; commenced writing for the press; was on the editorial staff of "The Washington Union" in 1852, and of "The Richmond Enquirer" in 1855; was appointed by President Pierce in 1855 special commissioner to Greece; established "The South" in 1857, and, after it had failed, was on the staff of "The Washington States;" was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-sixth Congress (in place of William O. Goode, deceased), serving from December 7, 1859, to March 3, 1861; served in the Rebellion as brigadier-general from April 16, 1862, until July 19, 1862, when he resigned; was a representative from Virginia in the Confederate House of Representatives; was captured by the Union troops in November, 1864, and imprisoned in Fort Lafayette, but soon afterwards released; he has subsequently practised law in New-York City.

Pugh, George Ellis, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, November 28, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at Miami University in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Cincinnati, Ohio; served in the Mexican war as captain of the Fourth Ohio Volunteers and as aide-de-camp to General Lane; returning to Cincinnati in 1848, he became the partner of George H. Pendleton; was a member of the State legislature in 1848 and 1849; was city solicitor in 1850; was State attorney-general in 1851; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor in 1863; was nominated at the head of the Democratic electoral ticket of Ohio in 1864, but declined to serve; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,464 votes against 9,893 votes for Benjamin Eggleston, Unionist; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention, but withdrew from its deliberations, and afterwards devoted himself entirely to his profession; died at Cincinnati of an attack of gout July 19, 1870.

Pugh, J. Howard, was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, June 23, 1827; received an academic education; studied medicine, and graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1852; commenced the practice of medicine in Burlington in 1854, where he has since resided; is president of the Mechanics' National Bank of Burlington, to which position he was elected in 1869; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,015 votes against 15,485 votes for Hezekiah B. Smith, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Pugh, James L., was born in Burke County, Georgia, in 1820; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Alabama; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving no opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to January 21, 1861, when he retired from the House, his State having seceded from the Union; was a member from Alabama of the House of Representatives in the First and Second Confederate Congresses, serving from February 22, 1862, to the surrender in 1864.

Pugh, John, was born at Hilltown, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809.

Purdy, Smith M., was born in Chenango County, New York; resided at Norwich; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,560 votes against 7,597 votes for Hunt, Whig, and 175 votes for Avery, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Purman, William J., was born in Centre County, Pennsylvania, April 11, 1840; received a liberal education, and studied law at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania; entered the Union army as a private, and served on special duty at the War Department until transferred to Florida in 1865; was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1868; was elected to the State Senate in 1868; was secretary of state in 1868; was judge of Jackson County Court in 1868-1869; was re-elected to the State Senate in 1869 for a term of four years; was chairman of the Florida and Alabama Annexation Commission in 1869-1870; was assessor of United-States internal revenue for the district of Florida in 1870-1872; was chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee in 1871-1872; was elected a representative from Florida in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,537 votes against 15,811 votes for C. W. Jones, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,710 votes against 8,618 votes for John A. Henderson, Democrat; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,623 votes against 13,163 votes for Robert H. M. Davidson, Conservative Democrat.

Purviance, Samuel A., was born at Butler, Pennsylvania, November 8, 1809; was a student at Washington College, but did not graduate; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Butler; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1836; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1838 and 1839; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,926 votes against 3,832 votes for Palmer, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,840 votes against 4,854 votes for Gibson, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Purviance, Samuel D., was born in North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805.

Purvey, Richard C., was born at Mecklenburg, Virginia, February 9, 1801; received a good English education; engaged in farming and merchandising; removed to Huntsville, North Carolina; was elected in 1838 to the State House of Representatives, in 1840 to the State Senate, and again in 1844, 1846, and 1852, to the House; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,173 votes against 5,788 votes for Boyd, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,516 votes against 6,150 votes for Scales, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,950 votes against 7,679 votes for Scales, Democrat; was a delegate from North Carolina to the Confederate Provisional Congress which assembled at Richmond in July, 1861.

Putnam, Harvey, was born in Genesee County, New York, in 1793; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Attica; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of William Patterson, deceased) as a Whig, serving from December 3, 1838, to March 3, 1839; was a member of the State Senate 1843-1846; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,489 votes against 2,730 votes for Smith, Van Buren Democrat, and 2,575 votes for Willett, Cass Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; died at Attica, New York, September 21, 1855.

Quarles, James M., was born in Louisa County, Virginia, February 8, 1823; removed with his father to Kentucky in 1833; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; removed to Clarksville, Tennessee; was State attorney for the Tenth Judicial District; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a National American, receiving 6,994 votes against 6,236 votes for Menees, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Quarles, Tunstall, was born in Virginia; removed to Kentucky; was county-judge; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to 1820, when he resigned; removed to Cape Girardeau, Missouri, where he was receiver of public moneys in the United-States land-office.

Quincy, Josiah, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, February 4, 1772; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1790; studied law with William Tudor; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Boston; was successively defeated as the Federal candidate for the Seventh and Eighth Congresses, the successful candidate for the Seventh and Eighth Congresses being William Eustis, Democrat; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Ninth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, receiving 2,904 votes against 1,805 votes for Jarvis, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1813; declined a re-election; was elected a member of the State Senate 1813-1820, and, in 1821 and 1822, of the State House of Representatives, serving the last year as speaker; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1820; was judge of the Municipal Court of Boston in 1822; was mayor of Boston 1823-1829, when he failed to obtain a re-election; was president of Harvard College 1829-1845; died at his country-house at Quincy July 1, 1864. He published a "Memoir of Josiah Quincy, Jun.," "History of Harvard University" (two volumes), "Speeches in Congress, and Orations," "Life of J. Q. Adams," "History of the Boston Athenæum," "Essays on the Soiling of Cattle," "Memoir of James Grahame," "Journals and Memoir of Major Samuel Shaw," "Municipal History of Boston," and Centennial Address on the two hundredth anniversary of Boston.

Quinn, Terence J., was born at Albany, New York, October 16, 1836; was educated at public schools and at the Albany Academy; was by profession a brewer; was an alderman 1860-1863 and 1869-1871; volunteered with the Twenty-fifth Regiment New-York State Militia as second lieutenant for the defence of Washington in April, 1861, and again in 1862, when the regiment was sent to Suffolk, Virginia; was a member of the State legislature for the session of 1874; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,497 votes against 16,597 votes for Hamilton Harris, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877, until he died at Albany, June 18, 1878, from a cold contracted at Washington.

Quitman, John Anthony, was born at Rhinebeck, New York, September 1, 1799; received a classical education; studied theology with his father, Rev. Dr. Quitman; studied law at Philadelphia; was professor of law in Mount-Airy College, Pennsylvania, in 1818; removed to Ohio in 1820, locating at Chillicothe, and afterwards at Delaware, where he practised law, and was initiated in Freemasonry; removed in 1821 to Natchez, Mississippi, where he married, and soon became distinguished in his profession; was grand master of Masons of Mississippi 1826-1838, 1845-1846; was a member of the House of Representatives in the State legislature in 1827; was appointed chancellor of the State in 1830, and, when a change in the constitution rendered that office elective in 1832, was elected for six years; resigned in 1835 on being elected to the State Senate, which chose him president, and thus made him ex officio governor for a time; visited England in 1839 in behalf of the Mississippi Railroad, of which he was the president; was appointed judge of the High Court of Appeals in 1840; served in the Mexican war as brigadier and as major general, especially distinguishing himself at Monterey and Chapultepec; was chosen presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848; received the thirty-third degree of Masonry at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1848; was governor of Mississippi in 1850-1851; was elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,558 votes against 4,499 votes for Hillyer, Know-Nothing; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat without opposition, serving from December 1, 1855, until his death at "Monmouth," his plantation in Mississippi, July 17, 1858. His "Life and Correspondence" was published by J. F. H. Claiborne in two volumes.

Radford, William, was born at Poughkeepsie, New York, June 24, 1814; received a public-school education; removed to New York in 1829, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,878 votes against 7,921 votes for Haight, Republican, and 2,578 for Sufferin, Independent; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,333 votes against 10,213 votes for Larkin, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Fortieth Congress, receiving 9,357 votes against 12,012 votes for William H. Robertson, Republican; died at Yonkers, New York, January 18, 1873.

Rainey, Joseph H., was born at Georgetown, South Carolina (where both of his parents were slaves, but, by their industry, obtained their freedom), June 21, 1832; although debarred by law from attending school, he acquired a good education, and further improved his mind by observation and travel; his father was a barber, and he followed that occupation at Charleston till 1862, when, having been forced to work on the fortifications of the Confederates, he escaped to the West Indies, where he remained until the close of the war, when he returned to his native town; he was elected a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1868, and was a member of the State Senate of South Carolina in 1870, resigning when elected a representative from South Carolina in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican (to fill the vacancy caused by the non-reception of B. F. Whittemore) by a majority of 17,193 votes over Dudley, Conservative; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 20,221 votes against 11,628 votes for C. W. Dudley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 19,765 votes, being all that were cast; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,370 votes against 13,563 votes for Samuel Lee, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,180 votes against 16,661 votes for J. S. Richardson, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869.

Ramsay, David (brother of Nathaniel Ramsay), was born in Pennsylvania April 2, 1749; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1765; was for two years tutor in a Maryland family; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and located at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1773; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1776-1783; served in the Revolutionary army as a surgeon, and was at the siege of Savannah; was captured at the fall of Charleston in May, 1780, and imprisoned for eleven months at St. Augustine, Florida; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1782-1786; was for several years a member of the State Senate, and its president; he was mortally wounded by a maniac, and died two days afterward, at Charleston, South Carolina, May 8, 1815. He published "History of the Revolution in South Carolina" (two volumes), "History of the American Revolution" (two volumes), "Life of Washington," "History of South Carolina," "Memoirs of Martha L. Ramsay," "Means of Preserving Health in Charleston," "History of the Independent Church in Charleston, South Carolina, from its Origin to 1814," "Universal History Americanized" (eight volumes), an "Oration on the Acquisition of Louisiana," and "Eulogium on Dr. Rush."

Ramsay, Nathaniel (brother of David Ramsay), was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at New-Jersey College in 1767; entered the Revolutionary army, and commanded a Maryland regiment, at the head of which he distinguished himself in the battle of Monmouth; was made prisoner at Charleston, South Carolina, and confined at St. Augustine; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1785-1787; died October 25, 1817.

Ramsay, Robert, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; resided at Harts-ville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 4,047 votes against 4,038 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Ramsey, Alexander, was born near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, September 8, 1815; studied at Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania; was secretary of the Electoral College of Pennsylvania in 1840; was clerk of the State House of Representatives in 1841; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 591 majority over David Ümberger, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,915 votes against 7,401 votes for A. Holmes, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was appointed Territorial governor of Minnesota in 1849, holding office until 1853; was mayor of St. Paul, Minnesota, in 1855; was governor of Minnesota 1859-1863; was elected a United-States senator from Minnesota as a Republican (to succeed Henry M. Rice, Democrat); and was re-elected, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1875.

Ramsey, William, was born at Sterrett's Gap, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1779; received a public-school education; held the office of county-clerk; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Carlisle; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; died at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, September 5, 1831.

Ramsey, William S., was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, June 12, 1810; received a classical education, which was completed at Dickinson College, but, his health failing, he did not graduate; went abroad, and was an attaché to the American legation at London, Mr. Stevenson being the minister; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, receiving 5,572 votes against 4,144 votes for Frederick Watts, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to October 17, 1840; he was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, and a few weeks afterwards committed suicide at Barnum's Hotel, Baltimore, by shooting himself in the right eye, October 17, 1840.

Randall, Alexander, was born in Maryland; resided at Annapolis; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,783 votes against 7,657 votes for Murray, Opposition, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Randall, Benjamin, was born in Massachusetts in 1789; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1809; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1814, and commenced practice at Bath, Maine (then Massachusetts); was a member of the State Senate in 1833; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, defeating John D. McCrate, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 1,200 majority over Joseph Sewall, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was appointed by President Taylor collector of customs for the port of Bath, and held the office at the time of his death, October 14, 1857.

Randall, Samuel J., was born at Philadelphia October 10, 1828; received an academic education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the city councils of Philadelphia four years; was a member of the State Senate of Pennsylvania in 1858 and 1859; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,720 votes against 6,273 votes for Webb, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,764 votes against 7,742 votes for Butler, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,192 votes against 7,723 votes for Gibbons, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 14,745 votes against 8,408 votes for Berry, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,853 votes against 6,705 votes for B. Huckell, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 10,133 votes against 8,845 votes for D. F. Houston, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,703 votes against 7,060 votes for David F. Houston, Republican, and was chosen speaker at the last session; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,751 votes against 8,980 votes for Benjamin L. Barry, Republican, and was chosen speaker of the House, serving from December 7, 1863.

Randall, William H., was born in Kentucky; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at London, Kentucky; was, by appointment, clerk of the circuit and county courts of Laurel County 1836-1851, and one year by election after the adoption of the new constitution; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,898 votes against 196 votes for Bradley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,634 votes against 3,824 votes for Garrard, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Randolph, Edmund, was born in Virginia August 10, 1753; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Williamsburg; entered the Revolutionary army as aide-de-camp to Washington in 1775; was attorney-general of Virginia July, 1776; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1779-1782; was governor of Virginia 1786-1788; was a member of the Convention that framed the Federal Constitution; was appointed by Washington attorney-general of the United States September 26, 1789; was transferred to the State Department as secretary of state January 2, 1794; was invited to resign in August, 1795, having lost the confidence of the President in consequence of an intrigue with the administration; died in Frederick County, Virginia, September 12, 1813. He published "A Vindication" of his resignation.

Randolph, James F., was born in Middlesex County, New Jersey, June 26, 1791; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; was editor of "The New-Brunswick Fredonian" 1812-1842; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas of Middlesex County; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twentieth Congress (in place of George Holcombe, deceased); was re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 1, 1828, to March 2, 1833; was president of a bank at New Brunswick for ten years; died at Jersey City, New Jersey, March 19, 1871.

Randolph, James H., was born in Jefferson County, Tennessee, October 19, 1825; was educated at Holston College, Newmarket, Tennessee; read law, and commenced practice in 1850; was elected to the State legislature for 1857 and 1858, and again in 1860-1861; was elected to the Senate in 1865; was elected judge of the Second Judicial Circuit of Tennessee in 1869, and re-elected after the Constitutional Convention in 1870, which office he held until he resigned to become a candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,349 votes against 11,215 votes for William McFarland, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Randolph, John, was born in Chesterfield County, Virginia, June 2, 1773; received a classical education, and remained a short time at Princeton, Columbia, and William and Mary Colleges; studied law with Edmund Randolph, and was admitted to the bar; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixth Congress as a State-rights Democrat, and served from December 2, 1790, to March 3, 1813; was an anti-Madison candidate for election as a representative in the Thirteenth Congress, but was defeated by John W. Eppes, War Democrat, a son-in-law of Thomas Jefferson; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress, defeating John W. Eppes by 32 majority, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again defeated for re-election to the Fifteenth Congress by Archibald Austin, Democrat; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress, defeating Archibald Austin by 490 majority; was re-elected to the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Congresses; was transferred in 1825 to the Senate to fill the vacancy by the appointment of James Barbour as secretary of war; was defeated as a candidate for re-election to the Senate in 1827 by John Tyler, but was returned as a representative to the Twentieth Congress, and served until March 3, 1829; was a member of the Virginia Constitutional Convention; was appointed by President Jackson minister to Russia May 26, 1830, and served until September 19, 1830, when he returned home; he died at Philadelphia May 24, 1833. His life was written by Garland in 1850, and by Parton in 1867.

Randolph, Joseph Fitz, was born in New Jersey in 1803; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1825, and commenced practice at Freehold; was appointed prosecuting-attorney for Monmouth County; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; resided his two last terms at New Brunswick; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1844; was a judge of the State Supreme Court 1845-1852; removed to Trenton, and practised there; removed to Jersey City, and died there, after a long illness, March 20, 1873.

Randolph, Peyton, was born near Williamsburg, Virginia, 1723; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and was appointed king's colonial attorney in 1756; was a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses for many years, and was several times elected its speaker; was a prominent Freemason; was a member of the Virginia Convention of 1773, and was elected its president; was appointed a delegate to the First Continental Congress, which met at Philadelphia September 5, 1774, and was elected its president, but was forced to resign the next month on account of ill health; was re-appointed to the Second Congress, which met at Philadelphia May 10, 1775, but was again forced to resign in a few days on account of ill health, and return to Virginia; resuming his seat in the fall, he died suddenly of an apoplectic fit October 22, 1775; his remains were brought from Philadelphia to Williamsburg by Edmund Randolph, his nephew, and deposited in the family vault in the college chapel with suitable ceremonies.

Randolph, Theodore F. (son of James F. Randolph, member of Congress from 1826 to 1832), was born at New Brunswick, New Jersey, June 24, 1826; received an ordinary education at Rutgers Grammar School; was by occupation a merchant, iron and coal producer, and president of the Morris and Essex Railroad; was elected to the House of Assembly of the State legislature in 1859, to the Senate of New Jersey in 1862 (short term), and re-elected in 1863 (full term); was elected governor of the State of New Jersey in 1869, serving until 1872; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions of 1864 and 1872, and is now the New-Jersey member of the National Democratic Committee, and chairman of the Executive Committee of that body; was elected United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat (to succeed John P. Stockton, Democrat), and took his seat March 4, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Randolph, Thomas Mann (son-in-law of Thomas Jefferson), was born in Virginia; received a liberal education; was appointed by President Madison colonel of the Twentieth Infantry, serving from March 3, 1813, to March 13, 1814; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; was governor of Virginia 1819-1822; died at Monticello June 20, 1828.

Rankin, Christopher, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; removed to Natchez, Mississippi; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Sixteenth Congress, defeating Cowles Mead; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, defeating George Poindexter; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, defeating George Poindexter; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 14, 1826, when he died at Washington City.

Ransier, Alonzo J., was born at Charleston, South Carolina, in January, 1834; was self-educated; was employed as shipping-clerk in 1850 by a leading merchant, who was tried for violation of law in "hiring a colored clerk," and fined one cent with costs; was one of the foremost in the work of reconstruction in 1865; was a member of a convention of the friends of equal rights in October, 1865, at Charleston, and was deputed to present the memorial there framed to Congress; was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1868; was elected a member of the House of Representatives in the State legislature in 1869; was chosen chairman of the State Republican Central Committee, which position he held until 1872; was elected a presidential elector on the Grant and Colfax ticket in 1868; was elected lieutenant-governor of South Carolina in 1870 by a large majority; was president of the Southern-States Convention at Columbia in 1871; was chosen a delegate to, and was a vice-president of, the Philadelphia Convention which nominated Grant and Wilson in 1872; and was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,061 votes against 6,549 votes for W. Gurney, Independent Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Ransom, Matt W., was born in Warren County, North Carolina, in 1826; received an academic education; graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1847; studied law, and was admitted to the bar on graduating in 1847; is a lawyer and planter; was elected attorney-general of North Carolina in 1852, and resigned in 1855; was a member of the legislature of North Carolina in 1858, 1859, and 1860; was a peace commissioner from the State of North Carolina to the Congress of Southern States at Montgomery, Alabama, in 1861; entered the Confederate army, serving as lieutenant-colonel, colonel, brigadier-general, and major-general, and surrendered at Appomattox; was elected United-States senator from North Carolina as a Democrat in January, 1872; took his seat April 24, 1872, and was re-elected in 1876; his term of service will expire in 1883.

Rantoul, Robert, jun., was born at Beverly, Massachusetts, August 13, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1826; studied law under John Pickering and Leverett Saltonstall; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at South Reading; removed to Gloucester in 1833; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1837; was appointed a member of the Massachusetts Board of 1837; removed to Boston in 1838; was appointed by President Polk collector of the port of Boston in 1843, but the appointment was not confirmed by the Senate; was appointed United-States district-attorney for Massachusetts in 1845, and resigned in 1849; was elected to the United-States Senate as a Coalition Democrat (to fill a vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Daniel Webster), serving from February 22, 1851, to March 3, 1851; and was elected a representative from Massachusetts to the Thirty-second Congress as a Coalition Democrat on the second ballot, serving from December 1, 1851, until he died at Washington, after a brief attack of fever, August 7, 1852.

Rapier, James T., was born in Florence, Alabama, in 1840; was educated in Canada; is a planter; was appointed a notary-public by the governor of Alabama in 1856; was a member of the first Republican Convention held in Alabama, and was one of the committee that framed the platform of the party; represented Lauderdale County in the Constitutional Convention held at Montgomery in 1867; was nominated for secretary of state in 1870, but defeated with the rest of the ticket; was appointed assessor of internal revenue for the second collection-district of Alabama in 1871; was appointed State commissioner to the Vienna Exposition in 1873 by the governor of Alabama; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,100 votes against 16,000 votes for C. W. Oates, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; and was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 19,124 votes against 20,180 votes for Jeremiah N. Williams, Democrat.

Rariden, James, was born in Kentucky; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Centreville, Indiana; was a member of the State Senate and House of Representatives; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, defeating Jonathan McCarty; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at Cambridge City, Indiana.

Rathbun, George, was born in New York; resided at Auburn; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,177 votes against 6,686 votes for Morgan. Whig, and 486 votes for Cuyler, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,511 votes against 7,130 votes for Richardson, Whig, and 921 votes for Stayles, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Raum, Green B., was born at Golconda, Illinois, December 3, 1829; received a common-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Harrisburg; entered the service as major, and rose to the rank of brigadier-general in the Union army during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-first Congress, receiving 14,261 votes against 14,764 votes for John M. Crebs, Democrat; was appointed by President Grant commissioner of internal revenue August 2, 1876.

Ray, John, was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress, and presented his credentials December 19, 1865, but was not admitted.

Ray, William H., was born in Dutchess County, New York, December 14, 1812; his parents removed to Oneida County, New York, in 1813, and again in the fall of 1834 to Illinois; received a common-school education; commenced business as a merchant in 1837, and engaged in banking 1865; was appointed by Governor Oglesby in 1869 as one of the Board of Equalizers at its first meeting; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,188 votes against 11,669 votes for W. H. Neece, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Raymond, Henry J., was born at Lima, New York, January 24, 1820; was reared on a farm; attended the public schools in the winters; became a teacher, and fitted himself for college; graduated at the University of Vermont in 1840; removed to New-York City, where he was successively connected with "The New-Yorker," "The New-York Tribune," and "The New-York Courier and Enquirer;" was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1850; established "The New-York Times" in 1851; was elected lieutenant-governor of New York in 1856; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,315 votes against 6,929 votes for Ward, Democrat, 1,647 votes for Norton, Democrat, and 1,347 votes for Hawkins, Independent, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1866; died of apoplexy at New-York City June 18, 1869. He published a "Life of Daniel Webster," "History of the Administration of President Lincoln," and "Life, Public Services, and State Papers of Abraham Lincoln," besides many magazine articles and political essays.

Rayner, Kenneth, was born in Bertie County, North Carolina, in 1808; was educated at the Tarborough Academy; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but never practised; removed to Hereford County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835, 1836, 1838, 1839, 1846, 1848, and 1851; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,635 votes against 2,009 votes for Samuel T. Sawyer, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 3,731 votes against 2,883 votes for Moore, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1849; wrote "The Life and Services of Andrew Johnson" in 1866; removed to Mississippi; was appointed by President Grant in 1874 a judge of the Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims; was appointed by President Hayes in 1877 solicitor of the treasury.

Rea, David, was born in Ripley County, Indiana, January 19, 1831; received an academic education; removed to Missouri in 1842; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1862, and practised at Savannah, Missouri; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,953 votes against 10,395 votes for P. A. Thompson, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,593 votes against 10,395 votes for Benjamin F. Loan, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Rea, John, was born in Pennsylvania in 1755; served in the Revolutionary army; was several times a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1811; was defeated as a candidate for the Twelfth Congress; was again elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, February 6, 1829.

Read, Almon H., was born at Shelburn, Vermont, June 12, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Williamstown College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Montrose, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and of the State Senate; was State treasurer in 1840; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress (in place of David Dimmock, jun., deceased) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 318 majority, serving from March 18, 1842, to June 3, 1844, when he died at Montrose, Pennsylvania.

Read, George, was born in Cecil County, Maryland, in 1733; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1752, and commenced practice at New Castle, Delaware; was attorney-general of the three lower counties on the Delaware 1763-1774; was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1774-1777; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1776, and its president; was a delegate from Delaware to the Federal Constitutional Convention; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1779 and 1780; was a judge of the Court of Appeals in admiralty cases in 1782; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was chief justice of Delaware from 1793 to his death at New Castle, Delaware, September 21, 1798. Published "Arguments on the British Debts." His "Life and Correspondence" was published by William Thompson Read.

Read, J., was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress in 1787 and 1788.

Read, Jacob, was born in South Carolina in 1752; received a liberal education; studied law in England, and, on his return, practised at Charleston; served in the Revolutionary army as colonel of South-Carolina volunteers; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1783-1786; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1801; was appointed by President John Adams judge of the United-States court for the district of South Carolina, serving from 1801 until his death at Charleston, South Carolina, July 17, 1816.

Read, Nathan, was born in Salem, Massachusetts, in 1760; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1781; studied medicine, and for several years kept an apothecary's shop at Salem; invented several mechanical contrivances, among them the application of steam to propelling boats, before Fulton had successfully experimented; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixth Congress (in place of Samuel Sewall, resigned) as a Federalist, receiving a majority of 214 votes over Jacob Crowninshield, Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventh Congress, again defeating Jacob Crowninshield, Democrat, serving from November 25, 1800, to March 3, 1803; removed to the vicinity of Belfast, Maine, where he cultivated a large tract of land; was appointed a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; died near Belfast, Maine, January 21, 1849.

Read, Thomas B., was born in Kentucky; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Lexington; removed to Mississippi, and practised at Natchez; was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi (in place of David Holmes, resigned), serving from March 11, 1826, to March 3, 1827; was re-elected, but died suddenly while at Lexington, Kentucky, on his way to Washington, before having taken his seat, November 26, 1829.

Read, William B., was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, December 14, 1820; was educated in Hardin County; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and practised at Hodgenville; was appointed visitor to the Military Academy at West Point in 1856; was elected to the State Senate of Kentucky for four years in 1857, and again in 1861; was the Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor in 1863 on what was known as the Wickliffe ticket, and was defeated; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions at Charleston and at Baltimore in 1860, and at Chicago in 1864; was elected to the House of Representatives of the legislature of Kentucky in 1867, and served two years; and was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,314 votes against 3,831 votes for J. M. Fidler, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 8,521 votes against 548 votes for Hobson, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Reade, Edwin G., was born in Orange County, North Carolina, November 13, 1812; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and commenced practice at Roxborough, North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,752 votes against 3,447 votes for Kerr, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was a delegate to the Reconstruction Convention which met at Raleigh in 1865, and, was chosen its president.

Reading, John R., was born in Philadelphia County, Pennsylvania, November 1, 1826; received a liberal education; studied medicine; graduated from the Jefferson Medical College, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,199 votes against 13,158 votes for Caleb N. Taylor, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to December 5, 1870, when, his election having been successfully contested, his competitor took the seat; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,401 votes against 11,561 votes for Alfred C. Harmer, Republican.

Ready, Charles, was born at Readyville, Tennessee, December 22, 1802; received a classical education, graduating at Greenville College, and receiving the degree of A.M. from the Nashville University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,143 votes against 4,577 votes for Barry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,069 votes against 632 votes for Keeble, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,151 votes against 5,851 votes for Guild, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Independent candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,844 votes against 6,719 votes for Hatton, Opposition; was an active supporter of the Southern Confederacy.

Reagan, John H., was born in Sevier County, Tennessee, October 8, 1818; received a common-school and limited collegiate education, but did not graduate; is a lawyer and farmer; settled in the republic of Texas in May, 1839; was a deputy-surveyor of the public lands 1839-1843; was elected captain of a company, and justice of the peace, in 1842; was elected colonel of militia, and probate judge, in 1846; was elected to the State House of Representatives for two years in 1847; was elected judge of the District Court for six years in 1852; resigned, and was re-elected for six years in 1856; was elected a representative from Texas in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,799 votes against 10,085 votes for Evans, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 20,565 votes against 3,541 votes for W. B. Ochiltree, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was elected to the Secession Convention of Texas in 1861; was elected with others by that convention deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederacy; was appointed postmaster-general of the Provisional Government of the Confederacy March 6, 1861; was re-appointed on the permanent organization of the Confederate Government in 1862, and occupied the position until the close of the war; was also appointed acting secretary of the treasury of the Confederate Government for a short time preceding the close of the war; and was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving about 4,000 majority over William Chambers, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,697 votes against 6,416 votes for S. W. Cooper, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Reding, John R., was born at Haverhill, New Hampshire; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; was naval store-keeper at Portsmouth 1853-1858; was mayor of Portsmouth; was a member of the State House of Representatives.

Reed, Charles M., was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; engaged in the navigation of the lakes, and became an extensive steamboat proprietor; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; died at Erie, Pennsylvania, December 16, 1871.

Reed, Edward C., was born at Fitzwilliam, New Hampshire, March 8, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1812; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1814, and commenced practice at Homer, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833.

Reed, Isaac, was born at Walldoborough, Maine, in 1810; received a public-school education; devoted himself to mercantile pursuits; was for six years a member of the State House of Representatives; was defeated as a candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, but subsequently was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-second Congress (in place of Charles Andrews, deceased) as a Whig, receiving 6,652 votes against all others, serving from June 25, 1852, to March 3, 1853; was State treasurer in 1856.

Reed, John (father of John Reed), was born in Plymouth County, Massachusetts, in 1751; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1772; was ordained in 1780, and settled at West Bridgewater, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourth Congress as a Federalist; was elected to the Fifth and Sixth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1801; died at West Bridgewater, Massachusetts, February 12, 1831.

Reed, John (son of John Reed), was born at Bridgewater, Massachusetts, in 1781; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1803; was a tutor in that institution for two years; studied law with Hon. William Baylies; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Yarmouth; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; was successively elected from the Seventeenth to the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1841; was known as "the life member;" was lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts 1845-1851; died at Bridgewater, Massachusetts, of no particular disorder, but of a gradual decay of vital power, November 25, 1860.

Reed, Joseph, was born at Trenton, New Jersey, August 27, 1741; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1757; went abroad, and studied law at the Temple in London; returned in 1802, and commenced practice at Trenton; was appointed deputy-secretary of New Jersey in 1767; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was president of the Pennsylvania Convention in January, 1775; in July, 1775, at the solicitation of Washington, he resigned a lucrative practice, and accompanied him to Cambridge as his aide-de-camp and military secretary; served during the campaign of 1776; was appointed in 1776 chief justice of Pennsylvania, and brigadier-general in the Revolutionary army; he declined both offices, but participated as a volunteer in the battles of Brandywine, Monmouth, and Germantown; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1777-1778; was president of the State of Pennsylvania 1778-1781; resumed his profession at the close of 1781; visited England in 1784 for his health, and, returning, died at Philadelphia March 5, 1785.

Reed, Philip, was born in Kent County, Maryland; received an academical education; served as captain in the Revolutionary army; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Robert Wright, resigned), serving from December 29, 1806, to March 3, 1813; commanded a regiment of home guards, which repelled at Moorfields, Maryland, a superior force of British seamen under Sir Peter Parker, who was killed; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress (having successfully contested the election of Jeremiah Causden), serving from March 20, 1822, to March 3, 1823; died at Huntingville, Kent County, Maryland, November 2, 1829.

Reed, Robert R., was born in Pennsylvania; received a liberal education; studied medicine, and practised at Washington; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,417 votes against 6,359 votes for W. Hopkins, Jackson Democrat, and 549 votes Free-Soil, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, December 15, 1864.

Reed, Thomas B., was born at Portland October 18, 1839; graduated at Bowdoin College, Maine, in 1860; studied law; was acting assistant paymaster, United-States navy, from April 19, 1864, to November 4, 1865; was admitted to the bar in 1865, and commenced practice at Portland; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1868-1869, and of the State Senate in 1870; was attorney-general of Maine in 1870-1872; and was elected a representative from Maine in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,235 votes against 15,143 votes for John M. Goodwin, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Reed, William, was born at Marblehead, Massachusetts, in 1777; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist, and was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, defeating Crowninshield, Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, until March 3, 1815; was prominently connected with several religious associations, to which he bequeathed large legacies; and died very suddenly, while attending a sabbath-school meeting at Marblehead, Massachusetts, February 18, 1837.

Reeder, Andrew H., was born near Trenton, New Jersey, August 6, 1807; received a thorough English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Easton, Pennsylvania; invariably refused office until he was appointed in 1854 governor of Kansas; he was removed in July, 1855, but was unanimously elected by the people of Kansas as their delegate to Congress, and afterwards, under the Topeka Constitution, as United-States senator from Kansas; Congress refused to ratify this constitution, and he was not admitted; died at Easton, Pennsylvania, July 5, 1864.

Reese, David A., was born in South Carolina; removed to Georgia, and resided at Monticello; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,002 votes against 3,883 votes for Saffold, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Reeves, Henry A., was born at Sag Harbor, Suffolk County, New York, December 7, 1832; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1852; read law, and was admitted to the bar, but never practised; became editor of "The Republican Watchman" at Greenport in 1858; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,338 votes against 11,945 votes for Wood, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Reid, David Settle, was born in Rockingham County, North Carolina, April 19, 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice; was a member of the State Senate 1835-1840; was elected a representative from North Carolina to the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,195 votes against 3,327 votes for Mitchell, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 3,630 votes against 2,858 votes for Reid, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, until March 3, 1847; was nominated for governor of North Carolina as a Democrat in 1848, and was defeated, receiving 41,486 votes against 42,360 votes for Manly, Whig; was elected governor in 1850 as a Democrat, receiving 44,845 votes against 42,071 votes for Manly, Whig; and was re-elected in 1852, receiving 48,484 votes against 42,993 votes for Kerr, Whig, serving 1851-1855; was elected United-States senator as a Democrat (in the place of W. P. Mangum, Whig), and served from December 4, 1854, until March 3, 1859; was a delegate to the Peace Congress of 1861.

Reid, John W., was born at Lynchburg, Virginia, June 14, 1821; received a public-school education; removed to Missouri in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice; served in the Mexican war as captain of a company in Colonel Doniphan's regiment of mounted volunteers; resumed practice; was two years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,699 votes against 10,432 votes for Mitchell, Opposition, and served during the first session from July 4, 1861, to August 6, 1861; entered the Confederate service, and was expelled, for "having taken up arms against the government of the United States," on the first day of the second session, December 2, 1862.

Reid, Robert Raymond, was born in Beaufort District, South Carolina, in 1789; removed early in life to Augusta, Georgia; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fifteenth Congress (in place of John Forsyth, elected senator) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from February 18, 1819, to March 3, 1823; was elected mayor of Augusta at the expiration of his congressional term; was a judge of the Superior Court of Georgia; was appointed by President Jackson in 1832 United-States judge for the district of East Florida; was appointed by President Van Buren governor of the Territory of Florida, serving 1839-1841; was a delegate to the convention which framed a State Constitution for Florida, and its president; died near Tallahassee, Florida, July 1, 1844.

Reilly, James B., was born in Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, August 12, 1845; was educated at the Pottsville High School, graduating June 1, 1862; studied law; was admitted to the bar January 11, 1869, and commenced practice at Pottsville; was elected district-attorney of Schuylkill County October 8, 1871, and served until January 1, 1875, having been elected, while holding that position, a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,600 votes against 8,056 votes for Theodore Garretson, and 141 votes for W. M. Randall, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 10,107 votes against 10,026 votes for Nutting, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Reilly, John, was born at Abnerville, Wheatfield Township, Indiana County, Pennsylvania, February 22, 1836; received a common-school education; entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in the engineer corps, April 10, 1854, and filled various minor situations until April 1, 1865, when he was appointed superintendent of transportation, which position he held at the time of his election to Congress, but resigned on taking his seat; was president of the board of city commissioners of Altoona in 1872 and 1873; was president of the Bell's Gap Railroad Company during its construction in 1872 and 1873; is connected with several manufacturing industries of Pennsylvania; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,727 votes against 10,580 votes for Samuel S. Blair, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,148 votes against 14,668 votes for Jacob Miller Campbell, Republican.

Reilly, Wilson, was born in Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; learned the hatter's trade; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,224 votes against 9,715 votes for Pumroy, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,081 votes against 9,348 votes for McPherson, Republican.

Reilly, Luther, was born in Pennsylvania; received an academic education; studied medicine, and practised at Harrisburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, defeating Harris, Whig, and serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; died at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, in 1839.

Relfe, James H., was born in Virginia, and, at an early age, removed with his parents to Washington County, Missouri; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Caledonia, Missouri; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Rencher, Abraham, was born in Wake County, North Carolina; received a liberal education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1822; studied law, and practised in Chatham County; was elected a representative from North Carolina to the Twenty-first Congress as a Whig, and continuously re-elected until the Twenty-fifth Congress inclusive, serving from December 7, 1829, until March 3, 1839; was again re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, until March 3, 1843; was appointed by President Tyler chargé d'affaires to Portugal, and served from September 22, 1843, until November 18, 1847; was appointed by President Buchanan governor of the Territory of New Mexico, and served 1857-1861.

Revels, Hiram R., was born in Fayetteville, North Carolina, September 1, 1822; desiring to obtain an education, which was denied in his native State to those of African descent, he removed to Indiana; spent some time at the Quaker Seminary in Union County; entered the Methodist ministry; afterwards received further instructions at the Clarke-county Seminary, when he became preacher, teacher, and lecturer among his people in the States of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Missouri; at the breaking-out of the war, he was ministering at Baltimore; he assisted in the organization of the first two colored regiments in Maryland and Missouri; during a portion of 1863 and 1864 he taught school in St. Louis, then went to Vicksburg, and assisted the provost-marshal in managing the freedmen affairs; followed on the heels of the army to Jackson; organized churches, and lectured; spent the next two years in Kansas and Missouri in preaching and lecturing on moral and religious subjects; returned to Mississippi, and settled at Natchez; was chosen presiding elder of the Methodist church, and a member of the city council; and was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi as a Republican, serving from February 25, 1870, to March 3, 1871; was pastor of a Methodist-Episcopal church at Holly Springs, Mississippi; removed to Indiana, where he was pastor of the African Methodist-Episcopal church at Richmond.

Reynolds, Arthur E., of Tishemingo County, Mississippi, presented to the House of Representatives on the 4th of June, 1866, credentials signed by Governor Humphreys, declaring that he had been elected to represent the First District of Mississippi in the Thirty-sixth Congress.

Reynolds, Edwin R., was born at Fort Ann, New York, February 16, 1816; was a student at Brown University, but withdrew at the end of the second year, and received the degree of M.A. at Hobart College, Geneva, New York; was principal of the Albion Academy, Orleans County, New York, for six years; was county superintendent of common schools for Orleans County in 1843-1845; studied law at Albion with Hons. A. H. Cole and D. H. Cole; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and practised at Albion; was a justice of the peace 1848-1854; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress (in place of Silas M. Burroughs, deceased) as a Republican, receiving 8,759 votes against 5,801 votes for L. J. Peck, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1860, to March 3, 1861; was elected judge and surrogate of Orleans County in 1863, serving until January 1, 1868; was a delegate to the National Liberal Republican Convention at Cincinnati May 6, 1872, and supported Horace Greeley; continued the practice of law, interesting himself also in agricultural pursuits.

Reynolds, Gideon, was born in New York; resided at Hoosick; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig anti-Rent candidate supported by Democrats, receiving 6,055 votes against 5,362 votes for Warren, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851.

Reynolds, James B., resided at Clarksville, Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 1,100 majority over S. Brewer, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Reynolds, John, was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, February 26, 1788; when he was about six months old, his parents removed to Tennessee, and in 1800 they removed thence to the vicinity of Kaskaskia, Illinois; he was reared on a backwoods farm, but acquired a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1812, and commenced practice at Cahokia; serving in a company organized for the defence of the frontier, he became known as "The Old Ranger;" was elected a justice of the Illinois Supreme Court in 1818; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827, 1828, and 1829; was elected governor of Illinois in 1831, and in 1832 took the field as commander of the State militia in the Black Hawk war; was appointed a representative in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Charles Slade), and elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 1, 1834, until March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Van Buren candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 3,116 votes against 3,202 votes for A. W. Snyder, Democrat, and 2,018 votes for Gatewood, Whig; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress by upwards of 2,000 majority over J. Hogan, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, until March 3, 1841; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from August 3, 1841, until March 3, 1843; was active in securing the building of railroads and macadamized roads; visited Europe in 1839; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846 and 1852, serving the last term as speaker; died at Belleville, Illinois, May 8, 1865. He published the "Pioneer History of Illinois," "John Kelly," "My Own Times," and a number of sketches of travel.

Reynolds, John H., was born at Moreau, Saratoga County, New York, June 21, 1819; received an academical education; studied law with Mr. Beekman at Kinderhook; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Albany; was appointed by President Pierce postmaster at Albany in 1853, and was removed because of his adhesion to Stephen A. Douglas; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as an Independent Republican, receiving 9,571 votes against 8,371 votes for Corning, Democrat, and 260 votes for Livingston, American, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; returned to his practice; was appointed by Governor Dix a judge of the Commission of Appeals of the State, which position he held until the expiration of the court by constitutional limitation on the first day of July, 1875; died at his country residence at Kinderhook September 24, 1875.

Reynolds, Joseph, was born in New York; resided at Virgil; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837.

Rhea, John, was born in 1753; removed to Tennessee, and located at Sullivan; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 2, 1815; was appointed in 1816 United-States commissioner to treat with the Choctaw Nation; was again elected to the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1823; died May 27, 1832.

Rhett, Robert Barnwell, was born at Beaufort, South Carolina, December 24, 1800; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1824, and commenced practice at Beaufort; up to this time he had been known by his family name of Smith, but he dropped it, and assumed the name of an ancestor, Rhett; was attorney-general of South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth, and Thirtieth Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1849; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina (in place of John C. Calhoun, deceased), serving from January 6, 1851, to 1852, when he resigned, upon the death of his wife; was a leading delegate to the South-Carolina Secession Convention in 1861, and wrote the address giving the reasons for separation; was a delegate from Mississippi to the Provisional Confederate Congress at Montgomery 1861, and chairman of the committee which reported the Confederate Constitution; became the owner of "The Charleston Mercury," which was edited by his son, Robert Barnwell Rhett, jun.; removed to St. James Parish, Louisiana, and died there September 14, 1876.

Ricaud, James B., was born at Baltimore, Maryland, February 11, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College, Maryland; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Chestertown, Maryland; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1834, and of the State Senate 1836-1844; was a presidential elector on the Harrison ticket in 1836, and again on the Clay ticket in 1844; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 8,479 votes against 6,506 votes for Shower, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,701 votes against 7,935 votes for McHenry, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; was appointed judge of the Circuit Court; died at Chestertown, Maryland, January 24, 1866.

Rice, Alexander Hamilton, was born at Newton, Massachusetts, August 30, 1818; received a business training in his father's paper-mill, and at the same time a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1844; entered into the paper business at Boston; was a member of the city council in 1853; was mayor of Boston in 1856 and 1857; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 4,507 votes against 3,511 votes for Waldron, Democrat, and 1,396 votes for Thompson, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 7,292 votes against 6,645 votes for Bigelow, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,044 votes against 5,020 votes for Sleeper, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,711 votes against 5,864 votes for Sleeper, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1867; was governor of Massachusetts 1876-1878.

Rice, Americus V., was born at Perrysville, Richland (now Ashland) County, Ohio, November 18, 1835; was educated at the common schools and at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1860; was a law student until April 12, 1861, when he enlisted as a private soldier in the Union army; was promoted to second lieutenant and captain in the Twenty-first Ohio Volunteers, and served in West Virginia until the expiration of his term of enlistment in August, 1861; immediately raised a company, and parts of others, for the Fifty-seventh Ohio Volunteers, and was successively promoted to captain, lieutenant-colonel, and colonel of that regiment, and brigadier-general of United-States volunteers; was discharged the service January, 1866, and became manager of the private banking-house of C. H. Rice & Co., Ottawa, Ohio; was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,477 votes against 8,279 votes for Lytle, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 20,543 votes against 12,645 votes for Long, Republican, serving from December 6, 1876.

Rice, Benjamin F., was born at East Otto, Cattaraugus County, New York, May 28, 1828; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was a member of the Kentucky legislature in 1855-1856; was elected presidential elector in 1856 for the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky; removed to Minnesota in 1860; entered the Union army as a private in 1861; was promoted to captain in the Third Minnesota Infantry Volunteers, and served three years; settled at Little Rock in 1864; practised law until 1868; took a leading part in organizing the Republican party in the State of Arkansas in the early part of 1867; was chairman of the State Central Committee, and conducted a successful canvass in three successive elections; was elected United-States senator from Arkansas as a Republican, serving from June 3, 1868, to March 3, 1873.

Rice, Edward Y., was born in Logan County, Kentucky, February 8, 1820; was educated at common schools and at Shurtleff College; studied and practised law; was elected in 1847 county-recorder of Montgomery County, Illinois; was a member of the legislature of the State of Illinois in 1849-1850; was elected judge of the County Court of Montgomery County, and served two years; was appointed master in chancery for that county from 1853 until 1857, when he was elected judge of the Eighteenth Circuit of Illinois, to which office he was re-elected in 1861, and again re-elected in 1867; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of the State of Illinois in 1869-1870; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,963 votes against 12,028 votes for J. W. Kitchell, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Rice, Henry M., was born at Waitsfield, Vermont, November 29, 1816; received a public-school education; went West as an assistant in making government surveys; resided in the Territories of Iowa and Wisconsin and Minnesota; was a clerk for Kennett Mackenzie in 1833, and in 1840 was himself appointed post-sutler at Fort Atkinson, which he held about two years; in 1843 he commenced trading with the Winnebago Indians in connection with the American Fur Company, which occupation he followed till the removal of these Indians to Long Prairie, one hundred and forty miles above St. Paul; during the removal of the Winnebagoes he was appointed to treat with the Chippewas for the tract of land occupied by the former tribe; he also procured the removal of the Chippewas from Lake Superior to the Mississippi, thus throwing their trade into the upper Mississippi Valley, instead of through Detroit and Saut Ste. Marie; was elected a delegate from Minnesota Territory in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was elected a United-States senator from Minnesota, serving from May 12, 1858, to March 3, 1863; was elected treasurer of Ramsay County in 1878.

Rice, John B., was born at Easton, Maryland, in 1809; received a common-school education; went on the stage at New York in 1839, when he played the character of the uncle in "George Barnwell;" having achieved success in his profession, he married Mary Anne Warren, an actress of acknowledged ability, who was a sister of the celebrated comedian, William Warren of Boston; removed to Chicago, Illinois; was an actor and manager of a theatre; retired from the stage in 1857; was elected mayor of Chicago in 1865, and re-elected in 1867; and was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,870 votes against 8,235 votes for Otis, Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to December 16, 1874, when he died at Norfolk, Virginia.

Rice, John H., was born at Mount Vernon, Maine, February 5, 1816; received a public-school education; held several local offices at Augusta 1832-1838, devoting his leisure-hours to the study of law; served as a staff-officer during the North-eastern boundary troubles; was appointed deputy-sheriff of Piscataquis County in 1842; was interested in lumbering operations; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice; was a State attorney by successive elections 1852-1860; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,314 votes against 7,983 votes for Blake, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,113 votes against 3,976 votes for Boynton, Democrat, and 1,290 votes for Haynes, Union Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,802 votes against 6,983 votes for Madigan, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1867; was appointed by President Johnson collector of customs at the port of Bangor, Maine, serving 1867-1871; engaged in the prosecution of claims and legal business at Washington City.

Rice, John M., was born in Floyd County, Kentucky; resided at Louisa; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1859 and 1867; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,510 votes against 6,652 votes for Zeigler, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,544 votes against 6,242 votes for G. M. Thomas, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Rice, Thomas, was born in Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1791; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourteenth Congress; and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; died in 1854.

Rice, William W., was born at Deerfield, Massachusetts, March 7, 1826; was fitted for college at Gorham Academy, Maine; graduated at Bowdoin College in 1846; was preceptor in Leicester Academy, Massachusetts, for four years; studied law at Worcester with Hon. Emory Washburn and Hon. George F. Hoar; was admitted to the bar, and practised since at Worcester; was appointed judge of insolvency for the county of Worcester in 1858; was mayor of the city of Worcester in 1860; was district-attorney for the Middle District of Massachusetts 1869-1874; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1875; and was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,890 votes against 10,248 votes for George F. Verry, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Rich, Charles, was born in Hampshire County, Massachusetts, in 1771; removed to Vermont, and settled at Shoreham; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress on a general ticket, receiving 13,635 votes against 6,901 votes for W. A. Griswold; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 1,455 votes against 1,359 votes for Hungerford, serving from December 1, 1817, to October 15, 1824, when he died at Shoreham, Vermont.

Richard, Gabriel, was born at Saintes, France, October 15, 1764; received a classical education, graduating at the College of Angers; studied theology, and received orders at a Roman-Catholic seminary at Paris in 1790; immigrated to the United States in 1798; was professor of mathematics in St. Mary's College, Maryland; was sent by Bishop Carroll as a missionary to Kaskaskia, Illinois; in 1798 he went to Detroit, Michigan, where he published (on a printing-press which had been donated to him at Boston) a periodical in the French language, entitled "Essais du Michigan," and some Roman-Catholic books; it became his duty to excommunicate one of his parishioners who had been divorced from his wife, and who prosecuted Father Richard for defamation of character, obtaining a verdict of one thousand dollars; this money Father Richard could not pay, and was consequently imprisoned in the common jail; but the people of Michigan elected him their Territorial delegate to Congress, and he went from prison to the Capitol, serving in the Eighteenth Congress from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; returning to Detroit, he officiated as grand vicar of the bishop of Ohio; died at Detroit, Michigan, of cholera, September 13, 1832.

Richards, Jacob, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1809.

Richards, John, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourth Congress, having successfully contested the election of James Morris, serving from January 18, 1796, to March 3, 1797.

Richards, John, was born in New York; resided at Johnsbury; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Richards, Mark, was born at New Haven, Connecticut; removed to Vermont; was for eight years a member of the State House of Representatives; was high sheriff of his county for five years; was a presidential elector on the Madison ticket in 1813; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, receiving 13,518 votes against 6,879 votes for R. C. Mallory, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; was lieutenant-governor of Vermont in 1830.

Richards, Matthias, was born in 1757; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a judge of Berks County, Pennsylvania, 1788-1797; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Tenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811; died in 1830.

Richardson, John Peter, was born at Hickory Hill, South Carolina, April 14, 1801; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1819; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fulton, South Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was judge of the Circuit Court; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-fourth Congress (in place of Richard T. Manning, deceased) as a State-rights Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 19, 1836, to March 3, 1839; was governor of South Carolina 1840-1842; was a delegate to the State Conventions of 1852 and 1860; died at Fulton, South Carolina, January 24, 1864.

Richardson, J. S., contested the seat of Joseph H. Rainey of the First District of South Carolina in the Forty-fifth Congress.

Richardson, John Smith, was born on his family plantation in Sumter District, South Carolina, April 11, 1777; received a classical education, graduating at the Charleston College; studied law with John Julius Pringle; was admitted to the bar October 30, 1799, and commenced practice in his native district; was several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected attorney-general of the State in December, 1810; was elected judge December 18, 1818; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventeenth Congress, but declined on account of his private business, which required his presence in South Carolina; became president of the Law Court of Appeals in 1841, and president of the Court of Errors in 1846; defended himself successfully in 1847 against an attempt to legislate him out of office on account of his inability to perform his judicial duties, and died at Charleston, South Carolina, May 8, 1850.

Richardson, Joseph, was born at Billerica, Massachusetts, February 1, 1778; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1802; studied theology, and was licensed to preach in 1803; was ordained over the First Parish in Hingham July 2, 1806; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1820; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1821 and 1822, and of the State Senate in 1823, 1824, and 1826; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; died at Hingham, Massachusetts, September 25, 1871. Published a number of school-books.

Richardson, William A., was born in Fayette County, Kentucky, in 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Rushville, Illinois, but afterwards removed to Quincy; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836, and of the State Senate in 1838; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844, and speaker of the House; was a presidential elector on the Polk ticket in 1844; served in the Mexican war as captain in Hardin's regiment of Illinois volunteers, and was promoted to be major for his gallant conduct at Buena Vista February 26, 1847; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 8,099 votes against 7,197 votes for Browning, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 9,018 votes against 8,443 votes for Browning, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,935 votes against 8,122 votes for Williams, Republican, serving from December 6, 1847, to August 25, 1856, when he resigned; was appointed by President Buchanan governor of Nebraska, serving 1857-1858, when he resigned; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois (in place of Stephen A. Douglas, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from January 30, 1863, to March 3, 1865; died of paralysis at Quincy, Illinois, December 27, 1875.

Richardson, William Marchant, was born at Pelham, New Hampshire, January 4, 1774; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Groton, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist, and was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, defeating Hale, War Democrat, by over 1,000 majority, when, owing to the opposition to the war, every Democratic candidate in Massachusetts was defeated; he resigned after the second session, serving from January 22, 1812, until April 18, 1814; removed to Portsmouth in 1814, and was appointed chief justice of New Hampshire in 1816, discharging the duties of the office until he died at Chester, New Hampshire, March 23, 1838. He published "The New-Hampshire Justice" and "The Town Officer." A considerable portion of the first and second volumes of the New-Hampshire Reports was his work; nearly all the cases of the third, fourth, and fifth were furnished by him; and of the matter for, perhaps, four volumes more, he prepared a large share.

Richmond, Hiram L., was born in Chautauqua County, New York, May 17, 1810; received a good academic education; studied medicine two years with his father, Lawton Richmond; then entered Alleghany College as a student, where he remained two years; studied law under Hon. David Derickson of Meadville; was admitted to the bar in February, 1838, and, in April thereafter, entered upon the duties of his profession at Meadville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,704 votes against 18,627 votes for S. Griffin, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Richmond, Jonathan, was born at Bristol, Massachusetts, in 1774; received a public-school education; removed to Western New York in 1813, and settled at Aurora, Cayuga County; was collector of United-States internal revenue; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; died at Aurora, New York, July 29, 1865.

Riddle, Albert Gallatin, was born at Monson, Massachusetts, May 28, 1816; his father removed to Newbury, in the Western Reserve of Ohio, in 1817; was reared on a pioneer farm, receiving a public-school education, and was one year at the Painesville Academy; studied law with Governor Seabury Ford; was admitted to the bar in May, 1840, and practised in Geauga County until 1850, when he removed to Cleveland; was elected prosecuting-attorney of Geauga County in 1840, 1842, and 1844; was elected a member of the State legislature in 1848, and again in 1849; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Radical Republican, receiving 11,927 votes against 3,343 votes for A. J. Williams, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was consul at Matanzas, in Cuba, a few months; located at Washington, where he practised; was special assistant attorney-general to prosecute the safe-burglars' case. He published "Students and Lawyers," a volume of "Law Lectures," and three novels, — "Burt Ridgely," "The Portrait," and "Alice Brand."

Riddle, George Read, was born at New Castle, Delaware, in 1817; received a liberal education; studied civil engineering, and was engaged for some years in locating and constructing railroads and canals; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wilmington, Delaware, in 1848; was deputy attorney-general for New-Castle County 1848-1850; was a commissioner in 1849 to retrace "Mason and Dixon's Line;" was a delegate to several National Democratic Conventions; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,055 votes against 5,926 votes for Rodney, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 6,692 votes against 6,630 votes for Houston, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,334 votes against 6,820 votes for Cullen, American; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware (in place of James A. Bayard, resigned), serving from February 2, 1864, to March 29, 1867, when he died at Washington City.

Riddle, Haywood Yancey, was born at Van Buren, Hardeman County, Tennessee, June 20, 1834; was educated at Union University, Murfreesborough, Tennessee, and graduated at the head of his class in July, 1854; was elected adjunct professor of mathematics and languages in the same college, but resigned, after fifteen months, to enter the law-school of Cumberland University at Lebanon in 1856, where he graduated in June, 1857; was admitted to the bar at Ripley, Mississippi, in 1857, but moved in 1858 to Smith County, Tennessee, where he had married, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; entered the Confederate army as a private in 1861, and served through the war, the last year of it on the staff of Brigadier-Generals Marcus J. Wright and W. W. Mackall; moved to Lebanon in 1865 to practise law, but was employed in the office of the county-clerk for five years, and then received the appointment for six years in 1870, but resigned, when elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, December 14, 1875 (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of S. M. Fite), receiving 5,371 votes against 1,396 votes for W. M. Woodcock, Republican, and 994 votes for A. E. Garrett, Democrat (a fatality, unprecedented in the history of the government, had attended the congressmen elected to the Forty-fourth Congress from this district; John W. Head was elected on the first Tuesday in November, 1874, and died in a few days afterward; Samuel M. Fite was elected December 31, 1874, and died October 23, 1875; neither lived to take his seat); he was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,957 votes against 3,545 votes for R. A. Cox, Democrat, and 1,437 votes for R. F. Patton, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Ridgeley, Henry Moore, was born in 1778; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Dover; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 17 majority over Richard C. Dale, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, receiving 4,118 votes against 3,211 votes for Hall, Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 2, 1815; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware (in place of Nicholas Van Dyke, deceased), serving from January 23, 1827, to March 3, 1829; died at Dover, Delaware, August 7, 1847.

Ridgely, Richard, was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress from 1785 to 1786.

Ridgeway, Robert, was a native of Virginia; received a classical education; edited "The Richmond Whig;" claimed a seat as a representative from Virginia in the Fortieth Congress, but was not admitted; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Conservative, receiving 16,732 votes against 13,751 votes for Curtis, Republican; died at Cool Well, Amherst County, Virginia, October 17, 1869.

Ridgway, James, resided at Columbus, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Ridgway, Joseph, was born on Staten Island, New York, May 6, 1783; received a public-school education; learned the house-carpenter's trade; removed to Cayuga County, New York, in 1811, and engaged in the manufacture of fanning-mills; removed again to Columbus, Ohio, where he established an iron-foundry, which became a large railroad-car manufactory; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828-1832; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Riggs, Jetur R., was born in Morris County, New Jersey, June 20, 1809; received an academic education; studied medicine, and graduated from the New-York Medical College; made a voyage around the world; practised medicine from 1832 until 1840, serving two years in the State House of Representatives; went to California in 1849, and was in charge of the hospital at Sutter's Fort there; returned to Paterson; was a member of the State Senate of New Jersey in 1855-1858; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,837 votes against 8,154 votes for J. Huyler, Democrat; died at Drakesville, New Jersey, November 5, 1869.

Riggs, Lewis, was born in Cortland County, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,363 votes against 10,243 votes for James Dunn, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Riker, Samuel, was born on Long Island, New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1784; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress (in place of John Smith, elected senator), serving from November 5, 1804, to March 3, 1805; was again elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809.

Ringgold, Samuel, was born in Maryland; received a public-school education; resided at Hagerstown; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eleventh Congress (in place of Roger Nelson, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1810, to March 2, 1815; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; died at Hagerstown, Maryland, October 18, 1829.

Ripley, Eleazar Wheelock, was born at Hanover, New Hampshire, in 1782; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1800; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Waterville, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine); was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1807 and in 1811; removed to Portland in 1812; was elected a member of the State Senate; served in the war of 1812 as colonel, brigadier-general, and major-general, distinguishing himself in the battles of Chippewa, Niagara, and Erie; was retained in the service, and superintended the erection of fortifications at the Southwest until he resigned in 1820, residing at Jackson, Louisiana; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 1,165 votes against 890 votes for Chavin, 434 votes for Bradford, and 257 votes for Woodruff; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 500 majority, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; declined a re-election; the murder of his only son at the Fanning massacre, and the breaking-out of one of his old wounds, hastened his death, which took place at Jackson, Louisiana, March 2, 1839.

Ripley, James W., was born in Massachusetts (afterwards Maine); received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fryeburg; served as an officer of Maine volunteers in the war of 1812; was for four years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Maine in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of Enoch Lincoln, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December, 1826, to March 12, 1830, when he resigned on account of his delicate health; was appointed collector of customs for the Passamaquoddy district of Maine; died June 17, 1835.

Ripley, Thomas C., was born at Schaghticoke, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress (in place of Richard P. Herrick, deceased), serving from December 7, 1846, to March 3, 1847.

Risley, Elijah, was born in Connecticut in 1780; removed to Chautauqua County, New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,946 votes against 3,649 votes for Chaffee, Cass Democrat, and 2,332 votes for Colman, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Fredonia, New York, January 9, 1870.

Ritchie, David, was born at Canonsburg, Pennsylvania, August 19, 1812; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College in 1829; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Pittsburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,939 votes against 4,532 votes for Shannon, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,705 votes against 3,714 votes for Schaler, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,674 votes against 5,944 votes for McCandless, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859; was county-judge for one year; died at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, January 24, 1867.

Ritchie, John, was born in Frederick City, Maryland, August 12, 1831; was educated mainly at the Frederick Academy; commenced the study of medicine, but relinquished it for that of law, attending during his course the law-school of Harvard College, Massachusetts; was admitted to the bar in October, 1854, and commenced practice at Frederick City; was presidential elector in 1860 on the Breckinridge and Lane ticket; in 1867 was elected to serve for four years as State's attorney for Frederick County from the 1st of January ensuing, which office he held when he was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,304 votes against 12,486 votes for J. E. Smith, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,545 votes against 14,258 votes for Lloyd Lowndes, Republican.

Ritchie, Thomas, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, and located at Somerset; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 9,037 votes against 6,681 votes for Welch, Whig, and 323 votes for Tucker, Abolitionist, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Ritter, Burwell C., was born in Barren County, Kentucky, January 6, 1810; received an academical education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846 and 1850; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Conservative, receiving 6,974 votes against 5,786 votes for Yeaman, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Ritter, John, was born at Exeter, Pennsylvania, February 6, 1779; received a public-school education; entered the printing-office of the "Readinger Adler" in 1797, when the second number was issued, his father being half-owner; in 1802 he purchased his father's interest, and he continued to conduct the paper until his death; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1836; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,941 votes against 1,747 votes for Hehn, Whig; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; died at Reading, Pennsylvania, November 24, 1851.

Rivers, Thomas, was born in Tennessee; resided at Somerville; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 5,860 votes against 5,136 votes for Currin, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Rives, Francis E., was born in Virginia; resided at Littleton; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 60 majority over Dr. Goodwin, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 281 majority over James W. Pegram, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; declined being a candidate for re-election; died at Littleton November 30, 1861.

Rives, William Cabell, was born in Nelson County, Virginia, May 4, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; studied law under Thomas Jefferson; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; served in the home-guard in 1814 and 1815; was a delegate to the State Convention in 1816; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1817, 1818, 1819, and 1822; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was appointed by President Jackson minister to France, serving from April 18, 1829, to September 27, 1832, and negotiating the Indemnity Treaty of July 4, 1831; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Littleton W. Tazewell, resigned) as a Van Buren Conservative, serving from January 4, 1833, to 1834, when he resigned rather than obey instructions; went before the people, and was defeated in the legislature by 4 votes; was again elected a senator (in place of John Tyler, resigned), and was twice re-elected, serving from March 14, 1836, to March 3, 1845; was again appointed minister to France, serving from July 20, 1849, to May 12, 1853; was a delegate from Virginia to the Provisional Confederate Congress which assembled at Richmond in July, 1861; was a representative in the First and Second Confederate Congresses, serving from February 22, 1861, to 1864; died near Charlottesville, Virginia, April 26, 1868. He published "Life and Times of James Madison" (three volumes), "Essays on Agriculture," "Life of John Hampden," "Ethics of Christianity," and "Discourse on the Uses and Importance of History."

Roane, John, was born in Virginia in 1754; received a classical education; was a presidential elector on the Washington ticket; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; died at his residence in King William County, Virginia, November 15, 1838.

Roane, John, was born in Virginia, and was a representative from that State in the Eleventh and Twelfth Congresses, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1813.

Roane, John J., was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833.

Roane, William H., was born in Virginia in 1788; received an academical education; was twice a member of the State Executive Council; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Richard E. Parker, resigned), serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at Tree Hill, near Richmond, Virginia, May 11, 1845.

Robbins, Asher, was born at Weathersfield, Connecticut, in September, 1757; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1782; was a tutor in Providence College (afterwards Brown University), 1783-1788; studied law at Newport with Attorney-General William Channing; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Providence, but removed in 1795 to Newport; was appointed United-States district-attorney in 1812; was a member of the State legislature 1818-1825; was elected a senator from Rhode Island as a Whig (in place of James D'Wolf, resigned), and re-elected, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1839; was again elected a member of the State legislature, serving for several years; and died from the effects of a fall on the ice at Newport, Rhode Island, February 25, 1845.

Robbins, George R., was born near Allentown, Monmouth County, New Jersey, September 24, 1812; received a medical education, graduating at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1837, and practised at Hamilton Square; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 10,539 votes against 7,769 votes for Rue, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,723 votes against 10,692 votes for Wall, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Robbins, John, was born in the village of Bustleton (now the Twenty-third Ward of the city of Philadelphia); received an ordinary school education, and was subsequently at the boarding-school of John Gummere, the eminent mathematician and astronomer, at Burlington, New Jersey; was raised on the farm of his father, and became practically acquainted with agricultural pursuits; when a young man he established himself at Kensington (now the Eighteenth Ward of the city of Philadelphia) as a manufacturer of steel, and afterward became interested in a mill for rolling bar-iron and steel, but he retired from his branch of business in 1855; he was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,661 votes against 6,251 votes for John S. Littell, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,173 votes against 4,554 votes for Littell, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 5,857 votes against 3,300 votes for Sanderson, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855, and declined a re-election in 1854; he filled many local offices, among them several connected with what is now the Board of Education, the municipal government of Kensington, and the Kensington Bank; was an inspector of Moyamensing Prison, a guardian of the poor at Blockley Almshouse, a director of Girard College, a manager of the House of Correction, and, for twenty-five years, a manager of the House of Refuge; and was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,228 votes against 7,579 votes for Leonard Myers, Republican, and 9,095 votes for Alfred C. Harner, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Robbins, William M., was born in Randolph County, North Carolina, and is about forty-five years of age; was educated at Trinity College, North Carolina, and Randolph-Macon College, Virginia, at which latter he graduated in 1851 with the first distinction; is by profession a lawyer; was an officer in the Confederate army during the whole war, participating in nearly all the battles in Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania, from Bull Run to Appomattox; was elected to the Senate of North Carolina in 1868, and re-elected in 1870; was a presidential elector on the Seymour and Blair ticket in 1868, and carried his district by a majority, although the State was lost; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-third Congress as a Conservative Democrat by a majority of upward of 1,600 over D. M. Furches, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving a majority of 4,373 votes over C. L. Cook, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,724 votes against 9,549 votes for Thomas J. Dula, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Roberdeau, Daniel, was born on the Isle of France in 1727; received a thorough mercantile education; entered into the lumber-trade; built a fort at Wyoming, Pennsylvania, which was destroyed by the Indians; was elected a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress, serving 1777-1779; was colonel of a Philadelphia regiment of volunteers; died at Winchester, Virginia, June 5, 1795.

Roberts, Anthony E., was born in Chester County, Pennsylvania, October, 1803; received a public-school education; removed when a lad with his parents to Lancaster, where he became a clerk in a store; was sheriff of Lancaster County 1830-1842; was appointed by President Taylor United-States marshal of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, serving 1840-1853; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,561 votes against 5,371 votes for Hiestler, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 10,001 votes against 8,320 votes for Hiestler, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Roberts, Charles B., was born at Uniontown, Maryland, April 19, 1842; graduated at Calvert College, New Windsor, Maryland, in 1861; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1864; was a presidential elector on the Seymour and Blair ticket in 1868; and was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,682 votes against 8,238 votes for John T. Ensor, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,033 votes against 11,984 votes for J. Morrison Harris, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Roberts, Edward W., was born near Nashville, Tennessee, June 13, 1823; removed in 1825 with his parents to Iberville Parish, Louisiana; was educated at country schools, and the preparatory department of Centenary College, Louisiana; entered Augusta College, Kentucky, in 1842, and then entered the Nashville University, Tennessee, leaving, before graduating, in 1844; commenced the study of law in 1845; served in the war with Mexico in 1846 as orderly sergeant of the Second Louisiana Volunteers, a six-months regiment; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847-1849; entered the law department of the University of Louisiana, and graduated in 1850; practised law in Iberville Parish; was again elected to the State House of Representatives in 1853; was elected State auditor of public accounts in 1857, re-elected in 1858, and held the office until 1862; entered the Confederate service in March, 1862, as captain of a company which he had raised for the Twenty-seventh Louisiana Infantry; participated in the bombardments, engagements, and siege at Vicksburg from May 18, 1862, to the surrender, and also served in the battle of Baton Rouge August 5, 1862, as volunteer aide to General Ruggles; was captured at Vicksburg July 4, 1863, and the regiment was not afterwards in active service; after the war, resumed the practice of law at Baton Rouge; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Conservative Democrat, receiving 15,520 votes against 11,147 votes for Charles E. Nash, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Roberts, Ellis H., was born at Utica, New York, September 30, 1827; was trained a printer; graduated at Yale College, Connecticut, in 1850; became in 1851 editor and proprietor of "The Utica Morning Herald;" sat in the National Republican Convention of 1864, and was elected to that of 1868; was a member of the legislature of the State of New York in 1867; was elected a representative from

New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,322 votes against 10,606 votes for A. B. Weaver, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,284 votes against 10,481 votes for R. U. Sherman, Liberal and Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875; resumed the editorial control of "The Utica Morning Herald;" was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,496 votes against 11,922 votes for Scott Lord, Democrat.

Roberts, Jonathan, was born in 1771; received a public-school education; was a member of the Pennsylvania State Senate and House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to February 28, 1814, when, having been elected a United-States senator (in place of Michael Leib, resigned), he took his seat in the Senate, serving until March 3, 1821; was appointed by President Harrison collector of customs at the port of Philadelphia, and was removed by President Tyler; died at Philadelphia July 7, 1834.

Roberts, Robert W., was born in Delaware; removed to Scott County, Mississippi, and located at Hillsborough; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Roberts, William Randal, was born in Cork County, Ireland, February 6, 1830; arrived in the United States in July, 1849; received an academic education; was engaged in mercantile pursuits in New York for nearly twenty years, and retired from business in 1869, and never sought for or held a political office until he was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,586 votes against 2,215 votes for J. A. Briggs, Republican, and 159 votes for Gibbons, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,281 votes against 5,356 votes for M. Stewart, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Robertson, George, was born in Mercer County, Kentucky, November 18, 1790; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1809, and commenced practice at Lancaster; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1822-1827, serving the last four years as speaker; was elected State secretary of state in 1828; was chief justice of the State of Kentucky 1829-1833; resumed the practice of law at Lexington, and died there May 16, 1874.

Robertson, John, was born in Virginia; resided at Richmond; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Andrew Stevenson, resigned) as a Whig, receiving 689 votes against 331 votes for W. H. Roane, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 395 majority over W. H. Roane, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 8, 1834, to March 3, 1839; declined being a candidate for re-election.

Robertson, Thomas Bolling, was born at Richmond, Virginia, in 1778; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1807; was appointed United-States district-judge for Louisiana, and removed to New Orleans; was elected the first representative from Louisiana in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 875 majority; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, receiving 880 majority; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, receiving 599 votes against 152 votes for J. B. Prevost; and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 23, 1812, to 1818, when he resigned.

Robertson, Thomas J., was born in Fairfield County, South Carolina, August 3, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at the South-Carolina College; engaged in planting; was aide-de-camp to Governor Alston of South Carolina in 1857 and 1858; during the Rebellion was a fearless and outspoken Union man, and never in any way compromised his position as a loyal citizen of the United States; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention assembled under the reconstruction acts of Congress, and, on the first meeting of the legislature under the present Constitution, was elected without opposition United-States senator from South Carolina as a Republican to fill an unexpired term; and was re-elected, serving from July 10, 1868, to March 3, 1877.

Robertson, William H., was born at Bedford, New York, October 10, 1823; received an academical education; studied and practised law; was a member of the State Assembly of New York in 1849 and 1850; was a member of the State Senate of New York in 1854 and 1855; was judge of Westchester County, New York, for twelve years; was a presidential elector in 1860; was elected a representative from New York in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,012 votes against 9,957 votes for Radford, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Robie, Reuben, was born in Vermont; removed to Steuben County, New York, and settled at Bath; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,368 votes against 7,538 votes for Church, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Robinson, Christopher, was born in Rhode Island; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected State attorney-general; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Thirty-sixth Congress as an American Republican, receiving 3,406 votes against 2,654 votes for Davis, Republican, serving from December 5, 1839, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 6,656 votes against 6,998 votes for Sheffield, Unionist; was appointed by President Lincoln minister to Peru, serving June 8, 1861-November 28, 1865.

Robinson, Edward, was born in 1796; received a public-school education; was a ship-master and merchant at Thomaston, Maine; was for two years a member of the Maine Senate; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Jonathan Cilley, deceased) as a Whig, receiving 4,203 votes against 3,528 votes for John T. McCrate, Democrat, 204 votes for W. J. Farley, Independent Whig, 134 votes for Joseph Sewell, Independent Democrat, and 77 votes for Edwin Smith, Conservative, serving from April 28, 1838, to March 3, 1839; was a presidential elector on the Harrison ticket in 1840; died at Thomaston, Maine, February 20, 1857.

Robinson, George D., was born at Lexington, Massachusetts, January 20, 1834; prepared for college at Hopkins Classical School, Cambridge, Massachusetts; graduated at Harvard College in 1856; was principal teacher at the Chicopee High School 1856-1865; studied law with Hon. Charles Robinson, jun.; was admitted to the bar at Cambridge, Massachusetts; commenced practice at Chicopee in 1866; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1874, and of the State Senate in 1876; and was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,922 votes against 9,760 votes for Chester W. Chapin, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Robinson, James C., was born in Edgar County, Illinois, in 1822; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1834; served as a private in the Mexican war; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,588 votes against 11,760 votes for Oglesby, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 19,293 votes against 16,298 votes for Cunningham, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 13,644 votes against 5,523 votes for Hicks, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; was again elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,072 votes against 12,443 votes for J. Merriam, Republican, and 1,175 votes for Minier, Prohibitionist; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,234 votes against 12,311 votes for M. H. Chamberlain, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Robinson, James W., was born in Union County, Ohio, November 28, 1826; graduated at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in 1848, and at the Cincinnati Law College in 1851, and practised law at Marysville; was elected a member of the House of Representatives in the legislature of Ohio in 1858, 1860, and 1864; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,573 votes against 13,140 votes for G. W. Morgan, Democrat, and 229 votes for C. W. Townsend, Prohibitionist, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,199 votes against 11,627 votes for Earley F. Poppleton, Democrat, and 1,045 votes for Harrod, Prohibitionist.

Robinson, John L., was born in Kentucky; received a good English education; removed to Rush County, Indiana, and located at Rushville; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,908 votes against 7,422 votes for P. A. Hackleman, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 8,120 votes against 7,343 votes for Robinson, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 8,242 votes against 8,173 votes for Watts, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was appointed in 1853 by President Buchanan United-States marshal for the Southern District of Indiana, and held the position until his death at Rushville March 21, 1860.

Robinson, John M., was born in 1793; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Carmi, Illinois; was a judge of the State Supreme Court; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois (in place of John McLean, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from January 4, 1831, to March 3, 1841; died at Ottawa, Illinois, April 26, 1843.

Robinson, Jonathan (brother of Moses Robinson), was born at Hardwick, Massachusetts, in 1745; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bennington, Vermont; was chief justice of Vermont 1801-1807; was elected United-States senator from Vermont (in place of Israel Smith, resigned), serving from October 26, 1807, to March 2, 1817; died at Bennington, Vermont, November 3, 1819.

Robinson, Milton S., was born at Versailles, Indiana, April 20, 1832; received a common-school education; studied law with his father at Greensburg, Indiana, and commenced practice at Anderson in 1851; was a presidential elector on the Republican ticket in 1856; was appointed director of the Northern Indiana State Prison in 1861, but resigned after a brief term of service; entered the Union army in September, 1861, as lieutenant-colonel of the Forty-seventh Indiana Volunteer Infantry; was promoted colonel of the Seventy-fifth Indiana Volunteer Infantry in 1862, and was subsequently brevetted brigadier-general; was elected State senator 1866-1870; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1872; and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,471 votes against 12,017 votes for Edmond Johnson, Inflation Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,403 votes against 17,127 votes for Chambers, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Robinson, Moses (brother of Jonathan Robinson), was born at Hardwick, Massachusetts, March 26, 1741; received a classical education; removed to Vermont with his father; studied law, and practised; was chief justice of Vermont in 1778; was governor of Vermont 1789-1790; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont as a Democrat, serving from October 24, 1791, to March, 1796, when he resigned; died at Bennington, Vermont, May 26, 1813.

Robinson, Orville, was born in New York; resided at Mexico; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1834, 1836, and 1837; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,819 votes against 6,598 votes for Duer, Whig, and 956 votes for Jackson, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again elected a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856.

Robinson, Thomas, jun., was born in Sussex County, Delaware; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Twenty-sixth Congress, defeating Millegan, serving from December 2, 1831, to March 3, 1841; died at Georgetown, Delaware, after an illness of four years, October 28, 1843.

Robinson, William E., was born near Cookstown, Ireland, May 6, 1814; immigrated to this country in 1836; graduated at Yale College, Connecticut, and was a student at the Yale Law School; was a writer for "The New-York Tribune" over the signature of "Richelieu," and for other journals; was editor of "The People;" practised law; was United-States assessor of internal revenue from 1862 until 1867; was elected a representative from New York in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,634 votes against 10,803 votes for Chittenden, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Robison, David F., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Chambersburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,641 votes against 9,025 votes for Reilly, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Rochester, William B., was born in Washington County, Maryland; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bath, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was appointed a State circuit-judge April 21, 1833, but resigned in 1836, and was defeated as candidate for governor, receiving 96,135 votes against 90,785 votes for De Witt Clinton; he was lost when the steamer "Pulaski" was wrecked off the coast of North Carolina, June 15, 1838.

Rockhill, William, was born in New Jersey; removed to Indiana, and settled at Fort Wayne; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,617 votes against 6,441 votes for Ewing, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Rockwell, John A., was born at Norwich, Connecticut, in 1804; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1822; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Norwich; was twice elected a member of the State Senate; was judge of the County Court; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,734 votes against 5,391 votes for Catlin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 6,112 votes against 5,578 votes for Billings, Democrat, and 654 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,992 votes against 6,140 votes for Cleveland, Democrat; practised in the Court of Claims at Washington, District of Columbia, where he died of apoplexy February 10, 1861.

Rockwell, Julius, was born at Colebrook, Connecticut, April 26, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1826; studied law at the New-Haven Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, in 1830; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1834 to 1838, serving the last three years as speaker; was a State bank commissioner 1838-1840; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,714 votes against 4,138 votes for Byington, Democrat, and 912 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,865 votes against 3,220 votes for Plunkett, Democrat, and 2,325 votes for Sedgwick, Democrat, serving from February 2, 1844, to March 3, 1851; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1853; was appointed a United-States senator from Massachusetts (in place of Edward Everett, resigned), serving from June 15, 1854, to February 10, 1855, when Henry Wilson, having been elected, took his seat; was a presidential elector on the Fillmore ticket in 1856; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858; was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts in 1859.

Rodman, William, was born at Bensalem, Pennsylvania, October 7, 1757; received a liberal education; served in the Revolutionary war; commanded a company during the Whiskey Insurrection in Western Pennsylvania; was for many years a member of the State legislature; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twelfth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; died at Bensalem, Pennsylvania, July 27, 1824.

Rodney, Cæsar (uncle of Cæsar A. Rodney), was born at Dover, Delaware, in 1730; received a liberal education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was appointed high sheriff of Kent County in 1758, and, at the end of his term of service, was created a justice of the peace and a judge of the lower courts; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1762; was a delegate from Maryland to the Stamp-Act Congress in 1765; was again a member of the State House of Representatives, serving as speaker for several years; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1774; entered the Revolutionary army (although he had lost his right eye from cancer, and was troubled with asthma), and commanded a regiment of minute-men in 1775; was again elected a delegate to the Continental Congress, serving 1777-1778; was also brigadier-general commanding the Delaware line; was again elected a delegate to the Continental Congress, but, before he took his seat, he was chosen president of Delaware, serving 1778-1782; died in 1784.

Rodney, Cæsar A. (nephew of Cæsar Rodney), was born in Delaware; received a liberal education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Wilmington, Delaware; was an active Freemason; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was appointed by President Jefferson attorney-general of the United States, and continued by President Madison, serving from January 20, 1807, to December 11, 1811; commanded a battalion of Delaware volunteers, which marched to the defence of Baltimore in 1812; was sent to South America by President Monroe as one of the commissioners to investigate and report on the propriety of recognizing the independence of the Spanish-American republics, which he advocated on his return; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to January 24, 1822, when, having been elected a United-States senator from Delaware, he took his seat in the Senate, serving until January 27, 1823, when he resigned, having been commissioned minister plenipotentiary to Buenos Ayres; he died at his post June 14, 1831.

Rodney, Daniel, was born in Delaware in 1764; was a presidential elector in 1809; was governor of Delaware 1814-1817; received the electoral vote of Delaware for Vice-President in 1821; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Cæsar A. Rodney, elected senator), serving from December 2, 1822, to March 3, 1823; was appointed a United-States senator from Delaware (in place of Nicholas Van Dyke, deceased), serving from December 4, 1826, to January 23, 1827, when the elected successor of Mr. Van Dyke took his seat; died September 2, 1846.

Rodney, George B., was born at New Castle, Delaware, in 1803; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1820; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,467 votes against 5,458 votes for Jones, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; was a delegate to the Peace Congress at Washington in 1861.

Rodney, Thomas, was born in Delaware; was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1781-1783 and 1785-1787; was appointed in 1803, by President Jefferson, United-States judge for the Territory of Mississippi; became a land-owner in Jefferson County, where the town of Rodney was named in honor of him; died there in 1811.

Rogers, Andrew J., was born at Hamburg, New Jersey, July 1, 1823; received a public-school education; taught school, during which time he studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,791 votes against 10,024 votes for Linn, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 14,059 votes against 12,173 votes for Little, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Rogers, Anthony A. C., was born in Sumner County, Tennessee, February 14, 1821; received a limited education in a country school until he was fifteen years old, when he was employed as clerk in a dry-goods store until the age of twenty-two, after which he was largely engaged in mercantile pursuits, being one of the most prosperous merchants in the South-West; he removed to Arkansas in 1854, and in 1861 was the candidate of the Union men for delegate to the State Convention, where he earnestly opposed secession; he was arrested for his loyalty to the General Government, imprisoned, and forced to give bonds to answer the charge of "treason against the Confederate Government;" he was elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress in 1864 by the loyal men of his district; was not permitted to take his seat, his State not having been legally reconstructed; and he was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-first Congress as the "People's candidate" (although he had been for years identified with the Republican party), receiving 6,518 votes against 5,332 votes for Elliot, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,357 votes against 12,742 votes for Oliver P. Snyder, Republican.

Rogers, Charles, was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Sandy Hill; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1833 and 1837; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,143 votes against 2,263 votes for Hunter, Democrat, and 248 votes for Corliss, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Rogers, Edward, was born in Connecticut in 1787; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Madison, New York; was for many years county-judge for Madison County; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,099 votes against 9,015 votes for Victory Birdseye, Whig, serving from December, 1839, to March 3, 1841; died at Galway, New York, May 23, 1857.

Rogers, James, was born in South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Yorkville; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving 4,213 votes against 4,038 votes for W. K. Clowney, Nullifier, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was defeated by Clowney as a candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress; removed to Maybington, South Carolina; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Rogers, John, was born in Maryland; was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1775-1776; was chancellor of Maryland; died at Annapolis October 7, 1789.

Rogers, John, was born at Caldwell, New York, May 9, 1813; received a public-school education; was a manufacturer, merchant, and general-business man; declined public office except to serve as supervisor of the town of Blackbrook, where he resided for nine or ten years; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,444 votes against 9,272 votes for Williams, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Rogers, Sion H., was born in Wake County, North Carolina, September 30, 1825; received a classical education, graduating at the North-Carolina University in 1846; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice at Raleigh; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,201 votes against 4,134 votes for Venable, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; served in the Confederate army as colonel of the Forty-seventh North-Carolina Infantry; was again elected to the Forty-second Congress, serving from May 23, 1872, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,146 votes against 13,379 votes for William A. Smith, Republican; died at Raleigh, North Carolina, August 14, 1874.

Rogers, Thomas J., was born at Waterford, Ireland, in 1781; immigrated to the United States in 1784; learned the art of printing, and for many years published and edited a political newspaper; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress (in place of John Ross, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from March 24, 1818, to April 26, 1824, when he resigned, having been appointed register and recorder of deeds for Northampton County, Pennsylvania; died at New-York City December 7, 1832.

Rollins, Edward H., was born at Somersworth (now Rollinford), New Hampshire, October 3, 1824; received an academic education, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was chairman of the Republican State Committee of New Hampshire at its original organization, and for many succeeding years; was a member of the State legislature in 1855, 1856, and 1857, serving the last two years as speaker of the House; was chairman of the New-Hampshire delegation at the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860 which nominated Lincoln and Hamlin; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,763 votes against 9,791 votes for Bell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,365 votes against 9,999 votes for John H. George, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,984 votes against 8,894 votes for Clark, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1867; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire, serving from March 4, 1877.

Rollins, James Sidney, was born in Madison County, Kentucky, April 19, 1812; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Indiana in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Boone County, Missouri; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1840-1844, of the State Senate 1846-1850, and again of the House 1854-1856; was defeated as the Whig candidate for governor in 1857; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Conservative, receiving 11,161 votes against 10,908 votes for Henderson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 7,700 votes against 2,797 votes for Krekel, Emancipationist, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865.

Roman, J. Dixon, was born in Maryland; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hagerstown; was president of the Hagerstown Bank; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,136 votes against 6,818 votes for Shriver, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1849, and on the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket in 1857; died near Hagerstown, Maryland, January 19, 1867.

Romero, Trinidad, was born at Santa Fé, New Mexico, June 15, 1835; received a common-school education; became interested in merchandise and stock-raising; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives in 1863; was elected probate judge of San Miguel County in 1867, serving until he resigned; and was elected a delegate from the Territory of New Mexico in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,591 votes against 7,418 votes for Pedro Valdez, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Roosevelt, James I., was born at New York December 14, 1796; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1815; studied law with Peter Augustus Jay; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at New York; was a member of the common council in 1828-1830; returned in 1831, and resumed practice; was a commissioner of the almshouse and several other charitable institutions; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835, and again in 1840; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 22,010 votes against 20,996 votes for Moses H. Grinnell, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; declined a renomination in consequence of family bereavements, and made a second visit to Europe; devoted five or six years to the cultivation of his farm in Westchester County, New York, for his health; was elected in 1851 justice of the Supreme Court for the New-York District, and served until 1859, occupying one year, ex officio, a seat in the Court of Appeals; was appointed by President Buchanan United-States attorney for the Southern District of New York; retired to private life; had a fall in his room, by which the neck of the thigh-bone was broken; and died soon afterwards at New York, April 5, 1875.

Roosevelt, Robert B., was born in the city of New York in 1829; was educated as a lawyer, and practised at the bar of New York for twenty years; was appointed commissioner of fisheries for the State of New York in 1868, a position he still holds; has edited "The New-York Citizen" since 1868; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,702 votes against 5,501 votes for M. T. McMahon, Independent Democrat, and 790 votes for Leggett, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873. Has published "Game-Fish of the North," "Superior Fishing," "Game-Birds of the North," "Five Acres Too Much," and other works.

Root, Erastus, was born at Hebron, Connecticut, March 16, 1772; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1793; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Delhi, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1798-1802; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was again elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was a member of the State Senate 1812-1815; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress (having successfully contested the election of John Adams), serving from December 13, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1818-1822; was elected lieutenant-governor in 1822, but was badly defeated by General Talmadge in the exciting canvass of 1823; was again a member of the House in 1830; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Whig candidate to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,284 votes against 5,072 votes for Judson Allen, Democrat; was major-general of militia; was again a member of the State Senate 1840-1844; died very suddenly at New-York City, while on his way to visit the family of his son-in-law at Washington, December 24, 1846.

Root, Jesse, was born at Coventry, Connecticut, January, 1737; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1756; studied theology, and preached, but turned his attention to the law; was admitted to the bar in 1763, and commenced practice at Hartford, Connecticut; took part in the Revolution as lieutenant-colonel; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1778-1783; was appointed a judge of the Superior Court in 1789, and its chief justice in 1796, serving until he resigned in 1807; was a member of the State House of Representatives; died at Coventry, Connecticut, April 5, 1822. He published "Reports of Cases adjudged in the Court of Errors of Connecticut," in two volumes.

Root, Joseph M., was born at Brutus, New York, October 7, 1817; received a thorough English education; studied law at Auburn; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Norwalk, Ohio; was prosecuting-attorney of Huron County; was a member of the State Senate in 1840; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-ninth Congress as an Independent Whig; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 8,434 votes against 6,077 votes for Stone, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; resumed practice at Norwalk.

Roots, Logan H., was born in Perry County, Illinois, March 20, 1841; was principal of the high school at Duquoin the winter previous to reaching his majority, and graduated with the first honors of his class at the Illinois State Normal University in 1862; at once thereafter took an active part in recruiting the Eighty-first Illinois Volunteers; was soon commissioned, and served until promoted by an appointment as a staff-officer of United-States volunteers, under which he was chief dépôt-commisary for the combined armies commanded by General Sherman on the "march to the sea;" served in other responsible positions until the close of the war in 1865; then settled in Arkansas, and engaged in cotton-planting and trading; upon the passage of the reconstruction acts in 1867, took a bold and prominent position in favor of the reconstruction of the State; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Fortieth Congress by a large majority, and was the youngest member of that body; was elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,151 votes against 6,684 votes for Cameron, Democrat, serving from June 24, 1868, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 7,748 votes against 9,318 votes for James M. Hawks, Democrat.

Rose, Robert L., was born at Geneva, New York, October 12, 1804; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits, and cultivated a farm at Allen's Hill; was for many years town supervisor; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Clay Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,816 votes against 4,659 votes for Garlingho, Van Buren Democrat, and 2,166 votes for Parburt, Cass Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1850.

Rose, Robert S., was born in Henrico County, Virginia, in 1772; removed to New York, and settled at Geneva; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1811, 1820, and 1821; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; died at Waterloo, New York, November 24, 1835.

Ross, David, was born in Maryland, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1786-1787.

Ross, Edmund G., was born at Ashland, Ohio, December 7, 1826; learned the art of printing at Huron, Ohio, and, after having been foreman of "The Milwaukee Sentinel," went to Kansas at the commencement of the troubles there, and became editor of "The Kansas Tribune," at that time the only free-State paper in the Territory, all others having been destroyed; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1859 which framed the present constitution of the State; entered the Union army as a private soldier, and was promoted to the rank of major in the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was appointed United-States senator from Kansas as a Republican (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of James H. Lane, deceased), serving from July 25, 1866, to March 4, 1871.

Ross, George, was born at New Castle, Delaware, in 1730; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1751, and commenced practice at Lancaster, Pennsylvania; was a member of the Colonial House of Representatives in 1768; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1774-1777; took an active part in re-organizing the government of Pennsylvania; was appointed, in April, 1779, judge of the Court of Admiralty for Pennsylvania; died at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, from an attack of the gout, July 16, 1779.

Ross, Henry H., was born in Essex County, New York; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, New York, in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Essex, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was county-judge of Essex County in 1847 and 1848; was presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848; died at Essex, New York, September 13, 1862.

Ross, James, was born in York County, Pennsylvania, July 12, 1762; received an academical education; taught school at Canonsburg; studied law at Philadelphia; was admitted to the bar in 1784, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1790; was defeated as the Federal candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1799 by Thomas McKean, Democrat; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Federalist, serving from April 24, 1794, to March 3, 1803; died at his residence, near Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, November 27, 1847.

Ross, John, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to February 24, 1818, when he resigned, having accepted the appointment of president-judge of the judicial district in which he resided.

Ross, Lewis W., was born in Seneca County, New York, December 8, 1812; was educated at the Illinois College; studied and practised law; was a member of the State legislature of Illinois in 1840, 1841, 1844, and 1845; was a presidential elector in 1848; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Illinois in 1831; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,391 votes against no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 15,296 votes against 12,239 votes for Fullerton, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,496 votes against 14,721 votes for Lippencott, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Ross, Miles, was born in Raritan Township, Middlesex County, New Jersey, April 30, 1828; received a practical English education; was for many years engaged with his father in the vessel business, but became a wholesale coal-merchant, and also largely interested in vessel property; filled nearly all of the local positions of his neighborhood; was for two years a member of the State legislature of New Jersey; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,682 votes against 13,629 votes for Amos Clark, jun., Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,525 votes against 15,359 votes for Atherton, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Ross, Sobieski, was born at Coudersport, Pennsylvania, May 16, 1828; was educated as a surveyor and civil engineer, but became engaged in settling a large body of land in several of the northern counties of Pennsylvania; was also a farmer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,041 votes against 14,627 votes for H. Sherwood, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,660 votes against 9,331 votes for H. W. Early, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877; lost his health, and, after having been despondent for some months, shot himself through the heart in the barn near his dwelling at Coudersport, Pennsylvania, October 25, 1877.

Ross, Thomas, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1825; resided at Doylestown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,043 votes against 7,722 votes for Taylor, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,568 votes against 7,328 votes for Taylor, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Ross, Thomas R., was born in 1789; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lebanon, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Sixteenth Congress, receiving 2,804 votes against 1,663 votes for J. H. Piatt, and 1,287 votes for Ethan Stone; was re-elected to the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; retired from practice in 1849, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; lost his eyesight in 1866; died on his farm, near Lebanon, Ohio, June 28, 1869.

Rousseau, Lovell H., was born near Stanford, Kentucky, August 4, 1818; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Bloomfield, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844 and 1845; served in the Mexican war as captain in the Second Indiana Regiment, and distinguished himself at Buena Vista; was elected to the State Senate of Indiana; returned to Kentucky, and commenced practice at Louisville; was a member of the State Senate of Kentucky; entered the Union army, and served prominently in the Army of the Cumberland; commanded his brigade in it on the march to Nashville, and led it at Pittsburg Landing; shared its rough fortunes at Perryville; won a division at Stone River; was in the Tullahoma campaign in the movement on Chattanooga, and at Chickamauga; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, defeating Robert Mallory, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to July 21, 1866, when he resigned, having personally assaulted Representative Grinnell of Iowa in the Capitol; was subsequently re-elected at a new election, and took his seat December 3, 1866, serving to March 3, 1867; was appointed by President Johnson brigadier-general in the regular army assigned to duty at Alaska; he visited some friends at New Orleans before starting, and his conduct led General Sheridan, who was in command there, to make complaint against him; returned from Alaska to testify in the impeachment trial, and was subsequently assigned to the command from which Sheridan was removed; died at New Orleans January 7, 1869.

Rowan, John, was born in Pennsylvania in 1773; removed, when young, to Louisville, Kentucky, where he studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was secretary of the State of Kentucky in 1804; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Tenth Congress, serving from January 9, 1809, to March 3, 1809; was judge of the Court of Appeals in 1819; was grand orator of the grand lodge of Freemasons of Kentucky in 1820; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1831; was minister to Naples from January 3, 1848, to January 1, 1850; died at Louisville, Kentucky, July 13, 1853.

Rowe, Peter, was born in New York; resided at Schenectady; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,916 votes against 10,057 votes for Miller, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Royce, Homer E., was born at Berkshire, Vermont, in 1819; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Berkshire, Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846 and 1847; was State prosecuting-attorney in 1848; was a State senator in 1849-1851; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,116 votes against 3,134 votes for Bingham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,418 votes against 3,280 votes for Bingham, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; is a judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont.

Ruffin, Thomas, was born in Edgecombe County, North Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at Chapel-Hill University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Goldsborough; was circuit-attorney 1844-1848; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,812 votes against 2,653 votes for Loftin, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,739 votes against 3,464 votes for Latham, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,040 votes against 616 scattering votes; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,382 votes against 476 scattering votes, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1861; retired from the House on the secession of North Carolina; was a delegate to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which met at Richmond in July, 1861; served in the Confederate army, and died, as the result of a wound received some days previous, at Alexandria, Virginia, October 8, 1863.

Ruggles, Benjamin, was born in Windham County, Connecticut, in 1763; received an academical education; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Marietta, Ohio, removing afterwards to St. Clairsville; was a devoted member of the Masonic fraternity; was elected in 1810 president-judge of the Court of Common Pleas for the Third Judicial Circuit: was elected a United-States senator from Ohio as a Democrat, and twice re-elected, serving from March 4, 1815, to March 2, 1833; was a presidential elector on the Harrison ticket in 1836; died at St. Clairsville, Ohio, September 2, 1837.

Ruggles, Charles H., was born in Litchfield County, Connecticut, in 1790; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Kingston, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was a judge of the Dutchess-county Circuit Court; was again a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a judge of the Court of Appeals November 8, 1853, and resigned August 30, 1855; died at Poughkeepsie, New York, June 16, 1865.

Ruggles, John, was born at Westborough, Massachusetts, in 1790; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in 1815 at Skowhegan, Maine, but removed to Thomaston in 1818; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1823-1831, and speaker of the House 1825-1829, and again in 1831; he resigned the speakership in 1831 to accept the position of judge of the District Court of Maine (made vacant by the election of Judge S. E. Smith as governor); was elected a United-States senator from Maine (in the place of Peleg Sprague, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from February 6, 1835, to March 3, 1841; retiring from political life, he engaged actively in the duties of his profession; and died at Thomaston, Maine, June 20, 1874.

Ruggles, Nathaniel, was born in Massachusetts in 1761; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1781; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, defeating Seaver, War candidate; was re-elected to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1819; died at Roxbury, Massachusetts, December 19, 1819.

Rumsey, Benjamin, was born in Maryland; and was a delegate from that State in the Continental Congress 1785-1787.

Rumsey, David, jun., was born in New York; resided at Bath; held several offices in Steuben County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,282 votes against 5,938 votes for Grover, Van Buren Democrat, and 2,982 votes for Angel, Cass Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851.

Rumsey, Edward, was born in Kentucky; resided at Greenville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, defeating Jones, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Runk, John, was born in New Jersey; resided at Kingwood; was presidential elector in 1840 on the Harrison and Tyler ticket; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,942 votes against 8,926 votes for Isaac G. Farlee, Democrat (who contested the seat, but the House refused to give it to him by the speaker's casting vote), serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Rush, Benjamin, was born on Poquestion Creek, near Philadelphia, December 24, 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1760; went abroad, and studied medicine at Edinburgh, London, and Paris, returning to commence practice at Philadelphia in August, 1769; held several professorships in the Philadelphia Medical College; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1776-1777; entered the Revolutionary army as surgeon-general of the Middle Department; was made physician-general in July, 1777, and resigned in February, 1778; was a delegate to the State Conventions which adopted the Federal Constitution and framed a State Constitution; was eminently successful in his treatment of the yellow-fever at Philadelphia in 1793; was treasurer of the United-States Mint at Philadelphia from 1799 until his death at that city April 19, 1813. He published "Medical Inquiries and Observations" (in five volumes), "Diseases of the Mind," and "Medical Tracts," besides numerous essays and medical papers.

Rusk, Jeremiah M., was born in Morgan County, Ohio, June 17, 1830; received a public-school education; removed to Vernon County, Wisconsin, in 1853; held several county-offices; was a member of the Wisconsin State legislature of 1862; was commissioned major of the Twenty-fifth Wisconsin Volunteers in July, 1862; was soon afterward promoted to the colonelcy; served with General Sherman from the siege of Vicksburg until mustered out at the close of the war, and was brevetted brigadier-general for meritorious services at the battle of Salkehatchie; was elected bank comptroller of Wisconsin for 1866-1867, and re-elected for 1868-1869; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,042 votes against 9,514 votes for A. Meggett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 16,183 votes against 8,547 votes for S. Marston, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,637 votes against 10,133 votes for Fulton, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Rusk, Thomas J., was born in South Carolina; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Georgia; removed to Texas in 1835; was a delegate to the convention that declared the independence of Texas in March, 1836; was the first secretary of war of the new republic; was in the battle of San Jacinto, and took command after General Sam. Houston was wounded, retaining it until October, 1836, when he resumed his duties as secretary of war; was chief justice of the Supreme Court of Texas 1838-1842; was a delegate to, and president of, the convention that confirmed the annexation of Texas to the United States in 1845; was elected a United-States senator from Texas as a Democrat, serving from March 26, 1846, to July 29, 1856, when he committed suicide at Nacogdoches, Texas.

Russ, John, was born at Ipswich, Massachusetts, in 1764; received a public-school education; removed to Connecticut, and located at Hartford; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1823; died at Hartford, Connecticut, June 22, 1832.

Russell, David, was born in Massachusetts in 1800; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Salem, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816 and 1830; was district-attorney for the Northern Judicial District of New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,346 votes against 2,671 votes for John Williams, jun., Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1841; died at Salem, New York, November 24, 1861.

Russell, James M., was born at York, Pennsylvania, November 10, 1786; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bedford, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress (in place of Joseph Lawrence, deceased) as a Whig, serving from January 3, 1842, to March 3, 1843; died at Bedford, Pennsylvania, December 20, 1870.

Russell, Jeremiah, was born at Saugerties, New York, in 1776; received a public-school education; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1836; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,376 votes against 5,436 votes for Elting, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress; died at Saugerties, New York, in 1867.

Russell, John, was born in New York; resided at Cooperstown, Otsego County; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809.

Russell, Jonathan, was born at Providence, Rhode Island, in 1771; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1791; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but did not practise, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; was minister to Sweden and Norway January 18, 1814–October 16, 1818; was a commissioner to negotiate a treaty of peace with Ghent 1814; on his return home, settled at Mendon, Massachusetts, and took an active part in politics; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Benjamin Adams, Federalist, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; died at Milton, Massachusetts, February 16, 1832.

Russell, Joseph, was born in New York; resided at Warrensburg; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,441 votes against 4,759 votes for Moore, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,506 votes against 5,324 votes for Tabor, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Russell, Samuel S., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Bedford; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,216 votes against 8,845 votes for Danner, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Russell, William, was born in Ireland; immigrated to Ohio; resided at West Union; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-third Congress; removed to Portsmouth, Ohio; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died at Portsmouth, Ohio, October 2, 1845.

Russell, William F., was born at Saugerties, New York; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Saugerties; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,878 votes against 5,902 votes for Fream, American, and 4,912 votes for Brodhead, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Rust, Albert, was born in Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at El Dorado, Arkansas; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving no regular opposition, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 16,302 votes against 3,104 votes for Jones, Independent, and 3,452 votes for Drew, Independent, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; served in the Confederate army as brigadier-general; died April 3, 1870.

Rutherford, John, was born at New York in 1760; received a classical education, graduating at New-Jersey College in 1776; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Edgerston, New Jersey; was a presidential elector in 1798, 1813, and 1821; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey, serving from October 24, 1791, to February, 1798, when he resigned on account of ill health, and devoted himself to the cultivation of his large landed estates; died at Edgerston, New Jersey, February 23, 1840.

Rutherford, Robert, was a native of Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress; was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, defeating General Daniel Morgan, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; was a candidate for re-election to the Fifth Congress, but was defeated by General Morgan, the House of Representatives sustaining a report from the Committee on Elections against his claim to the seat December 7, 1797.

Rutledge, Edward, was born at Charleston, South Carolina, November, 1749; received an academical education; went to London in 1769, where he studied law at the Temple; returned to Charleston, where he commenced practice in 1773; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress 1774–1777; was appointed a member of the first Board of War in June, 1776; served in the Revolutionary war as captain of a company of volunteer artillery; was taken prisoner by the British when they occupied Charleston, and confined at St. Augustine for a year before he was exchanged; resided near Philadelphia until the British evacuated Charleston in 1782, when he returned to his home, and resumed his practice; was elected governor of South Carolina in 1798, and held the office until his death, of gout, January 23, 1800.

Rutledge, John (father of John Rutledge, jun.), was born in Ireland in 1739; received a classical education; studied law at the Temple at London, and commenced practice at Charleston in 1761; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Provincial Congress at New York in 1765; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1774–1777; was elected president of South Carolina 1776–1778, and governor 1779–1782; was again elected a delegate to Congress 1782–1783; was elected one of the State chancellors in 1784; was a member of the State Convention to ratify the Federal Constitution; received the electoral vote of South Carolina for Vice-President in 1789; was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court by President Washington, and confirmed by the Senate September 24, 1789, and resigned in 1791; was elected chief justice of South Carolina in 1790, and resigned in 1795, having been appointed by President Washington chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, but the Senate refused to confirm the nomination December 15, 1795; while on his way to hold the Circuit Court of North Carolina, he was taken sick December 1, and lost his reason, which had not been restored when he died in July, 1800.

Rutledge, John, jun. (son of John Rutledge), was born in South Carolina in 1766; received a liberal education; studied law with his father, and practised at Charleston, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fifth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Sixth and Seventh Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1803; died at Philadelphia September 1, 1819.

Ryall, D. B., was born at Trenton, New Jersey; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Freehold, New Jersey; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat (an attempt made to contest his seat was unsuccessful), serving from March 10, 1840, to March 3, 1841.

Ryan, Thomas, was born at Oxford, New York, November 25, 1837; lived in Bradford County, Pennsylvania, from infancy until 1865, when he removed to Topeka, Kansas, where he afterwards resided; received an academic education; entered the volunteer army of the United States in 1862, and was mustered out as a captain in the fall of 1864 on account of wounds received in the battle of the Wilderness; was admitted to the practice of law in 1861; was county-attorney in Kansas for eight successive years; was assistant United-States attorney for Kansas from 1873 to 1877; and was elected a representative from Kansas in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 25,171 votes against 11,634 votes for Samuel J. Crawford, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Sabin, Alvah, was born at Georgia, Vermont, October 23, 1793; received a classical education; studied theology; was for ten years a member of the State House of Representatives; was secretary of state for Vermont in 1841; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,706 votes against 3,803 votes for Heywood, Democrat, and 294 votes for Kasson, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,862 votes against 3,608 votes for Heywood, Democrat, and 33 scattering, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857.

Sabine, Lorenzo, was born at Lisbon, New Hampshire, February 28, 1803; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Eastport, Maine; served three years in the State House of Representatives of Maine; removed to Massachusetts; was a special agent of the treasury department; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-second Congress (in place of Benjamin Thompson, deceased) as a Whig, serving from December 28, 1852, to March 3, 1853; resided in Boston, where he died April 14, 1877. He published "Life of Commodore Preble," "The American Loyalist," "Report on the Fisheries," "Notes on Duels and Duelling," and numerous historical and other essays published in the magazines and newspapers.

Sackett, William A., was born in New York; resided at Seneca Falls; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,845 votes against 5,260 votes for Bascom, Democrat, and 1,820 for Bigelow, Cass Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,305 votes against 5,814 votes for Smith, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Sage, Ebenezer, was born in Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1778; removed to New York, and settled at Sag Harbor; was elected a representative from New York in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, receiving a majority of 3,136 votes; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 2, 1815; claimed to have been again elected to the Sixteenth Congress, and took his seat, but the House gave it to James Guyon, jun., so that he only served from December 6, 1819, to January 14, 1820; died at Sag Harbor, New York, January 20, 1834.

Sage, Russell, was born in Oneida County, New York, August 4, 1816; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Troy, New York; was an alderman of that city 1841-1848; was for some years treasurer of Rensselaer County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,583 votes against 6,185 votes for Seymour, Democrat, and 149 votes for Sherman, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,954 votes against 2,075 votes for Clum, Democrat, and 1,971 for Cook, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857.

Sailly, Peter, was born in Lorraine, France; immigrated to the United States in 1783, and located at Plattsburg, New York, where he engaged in business; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was appointed by President Jefferson collector of customs at Plattsburg in 1807, and held the office until he died there May 2, 1826.

Saltonstall, Leverett, was born at Haverhill, Massachusetts, June 13, 1783; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1802; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Salem in 1805; was defeated as the Whig candidate from the Essex South District in 1820; was a member of the State Senate in 1831; was mayor of Salem 1836-1838; was a presidential elector on the Webster ticket in 1837; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Stephen C. Phillips, resigned) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from December 5, 1838, to March 3, 1843; was an active member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and other literary and historical associations; died at Salem, Massachusetts, May 8, 1845. He published an "Historical Sketch of Haverhill."

Sammons, Thomas, was born in Montgomery County, New York; received a public-school education; served as an officer in the Revolutionary war; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Tenth Congress by Peter Swart; was again elected in the Eleventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1813; died at Johnstown, New York.

Sample, Samuel C., was born in Maryland; removed to Indiana, and settled at South Bend; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,693 votes against 5,379 votes for Chamberlain, Democrat, and 127 for Bigelow, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Sampson, Ezekiel S., was born in Huron County, Ohio, December 6, 1831; received his early education at public schools, later at a private school at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, and at Knox College, Illinois; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Sigourney, Iowa, in 1856; was prosecuting-attorney in 1856-1858; entered the Union army as captain in the Fifth Iowa Infantry in 1861, and was lieutenant-colonel in the same regiment when mustered out in 1864; was a member of the State Senate of Iowa in 1866; was judge of the Sixth District of Iowa from January, 1867, until January, 1875; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,461 votes against 9,745 votes for E. N. Gates, anti-Monopolist; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,778 votes against 14,719 votes for H. B. Hendershott, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Sampson, Zabdiel, was born at Plympton, Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1803; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Plympton; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to May 15, 1820, when he resigned, having been appointed collector of customs at Plymouth, Massachusetts; remained in that office until he died at Plymouth July 19, 1828.

Samuel, Green B., was born in Shenandoah County, Virginia, in 1806; received a thorough classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and became a successful practitioner; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; returned to his profession; was a member of the State Reform Convention of 1849; was elected a judge of the Circuit Court in 1850, and of the Court of Appeals in 1853; died at Richmond, Virginia, January 5, 1859.

Sandford, John, was born in New York; resided at Amsterdam; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,341 votes against 4,732 votes for Marcellus Weston, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was a member of the State Senate in 1851; died at Amsterdam, New York, October 7, 1857.

Sandford, Thomas, was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, in 1762; received a thorough English education; removed to Kentucky in 1792, and located at Covington; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1799; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; was drowned in the Ohio River December 10, 1808.

Sandridge, John M., was born in Franklin County, Georgia, January 7, 1817; was reared on a plantation; removed to Louisiana, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1846-1855, serving the last two years as speaker; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1852; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,942 votes against 6,461 votes for Lewis, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,063 votes against 5,205 votes for Sparks, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Sands, Joshua, was born in Queen's County, New York, in 1758; resided at Brooklyn; took an active part in the pre-Revolutionary struggle, and was a member of the Brooklyn Home Guards in 1775; was a member of the State Senate 1792-1799; was appointed by President John Adams collector of customs at New York in 1797; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; died in Queen's County, New York, September 13, 1835.

Sanford, James T., was born in Virginia; removed to Tennessee, and located at Columbia; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 9,316 votes against 1,184 votes for O. C. Merrill, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; he liberally endowed Jackson College.

Sanford, Jonah, was born in New York; resided at Oswego; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827 and 1830; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress (in the place of Silas Wright, jun., who had declined to take his seat) as a Jackson Democrat, serving from May 1, 1830, to March 3, 1831.

Sanford, Nathan, was born at Bridgehampton, Long Island, November 5, 1779; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1799, and commenced practice at New York; was United-States commissioner in bankruptcy in 1802; was United-States attorney for the district of New York 1803-1816; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1815, and chosen speaker; was a member of the State Senate 1812-1815; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1821; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1821; was chancellor of the State of New York from August 1, 1823, until he resigned in January, 1826; was again elected a senator, serving from January 31, 1826, to March 3, 1831; died at Bridgehampton, New York, October 7, 1838.

Sanford, Stephen, was born in Montgomery County, New York, May 26, 1826; was educated at Amsterdam Academy, Georgetown College, and Poughkeepsie Collegiate Institute; was extensively engaged in the business of carpet-manufacturing; never held political office before his election as representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,611 votes against 14,508 votes for White, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Sapp, William Fletcher, was born at Danville, Ohio, November 23, 1824; received an academical education; studied law at Mount Vernon, Ohio, with Columbus Delano and W. R. Sapp; was admitted to the bar in June, 1850, and commenced practice at Mount Vernon; was elected prosecuting-attorney of Knox County in 1854, and re-elected in 1856; removed in 1860 to Omaha, Nebraska; was appointed in 1861 adjutant-general of Nebraska Territory, and was subsequently elected a member of the Territorial Legislative Council; entered the Union army in 1862 as lieutenant-colonel of the Second Nebraska Cavalry, and served until it was mustered out; removed to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he has since practised law; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1865; was appointed by President Grant United-States district-attorney for the district of Iowa in 1869, serving until 1873; and was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,358 votes against 15,236 votes for Lemuel R. Bolter, Democratic and Greenback candidate, serving from October 15, 1877.

Sapp, William R., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; resided at Mount Vernon; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,140 votes against 6,109 votes for William Winnell, Democrat, and 2,650 votes for Richards, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,371 votes against 6,516 votes for Dunbar, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857.

Sargent, Aaron A., was born at Newburyport, Massachusetts, September 28, 1827; was a printer and editor in early life; removed to California in 1849; studied law, and came to the bar in 1854; was district-attorney of Nevada County, California, in 1855 and 1856; received the degree of M.A. from the College of California in 1865; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was again elected to the Forty-first Congress; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 18,065 votes against 15,378 votes for J. W. Coffroth, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873; and was subsequently elected United-States senator from California as a Republican (to succeed C. Cole, Republican), serving from March 4, 1873. His term of office will expire March 3, 1879.

Saulsbury, Eli (brother of Willard Saulsbury), was born in Kent County, Delaware, December 29, 1817; attended common and select schools, and an irregular course at Dickinson College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Dover; was a member of the State legislature of Delaware in 1853 and 1854; was elected United-States senator from Delaware as a Democrat (to succeed Willard Saulsbury, Democrat), and was re-elected, serving from March 4, 1871. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Saulsbury, Willard (brother of Eli Saulsbury), was born in Kent County, Delaware, June 2, 1820; was educated at Delaware College, Delaware, and at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania; studied and practised law; was elected United-States senator from Delaware as a Democrat (to succeed Martin W. Bates); and was re-elected in 1855, serving from March 4, 1859, to March 3, 1871.

Saunders, Alvin, was born in Fleming County, Kentucky, July 12, 1817; received a common-school and academic education; removed to Mount Pleasant, Iowa (then a part of Wisconsin Territory), in 1836; was postmaster at that place for seven years, during which time he studied law with Isaac Van Allen (then United-States district-attorney for Iowa), but never entered upon its practice, preferring to engage in mercantile and banking pursuits; was a member of the Constitutional Convention under which Iowa was admitted into the Union as a State; was a member of the State Senate for eight years; was a member of the first Republican Convention ever held in Iowa; was a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Chicago which nominated Lincoln and Hamlin in 1860; was one of the commissioners appointed by Congress to organize the Pacific Railroad Company; was appointed governor of the Territory of Nebraska by President Lincoln in 1861, and held the office until the State was admitted into the Union in 1867; was a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in 1868 which nominated Grant and Colfax; was elected United-States senator from Nebraska as a Republican (to succeed Phineas W. Hitchcock, Republican), and took his seat March 5, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Saunders, Romulus Mitchell, was born in Caswell County, North Carolina, March, 1791; received a classical education, and was two years at the University of North Carolina; went to Tennessee; studied law under Hugh Lawton White, and was admitted to the bar in 1812; returned to North Carolina; commenced practice, and was elected to the House of Commons of that State in 1815, 1817, and 1819, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Congresses without opposition, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1827, when he declined a re-election; was appointed attorney-general of North Carolina in 1828; was appointed by President Jackson on a commission for the distribution of the claims paid by France in 1833; was elected judge of the Superior Courts of North Carolina in 1835, and resigned in 1840 on accepting the Democratic nomination for governor, but was defeated, receiving 35,883 votes against 44,179 votes for John M. Morehead, Whig; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; was appointed by President Polk minister to Spain, and served from February 25, 1846, until September 24, 1849; was again elected, on his return, a member of the State House of Representatives; died at Raleigh, North Carolina, April 21, 1867.

Savage, John, was born in New York in 1780; resided at Salem; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was United-States district-attorney; was State comptroller February 12, 1821–February 13, 1823; was chief justice of the State Supreme Court January 29, 1823–August, 1837; was United-States assistant treasurer at New York; was a presidential elector on the Polk and Dallas ticket in 1845; died at Utica, New York, October 19, 1863.

Savage, John H., was born in Warren County, Tennessee; received a public-school education; served as a private in the Tennessee volunteers on the Texas frontier before he was of age, and also saw three months' service in Florida against the Seminoles; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Smithville, Tennessee; was appointed by President Polk major of the Fourteenth United-States Infantry, and served through the Mexican war, receiving promotion as lieutenant-colonel, and commanding the regiment after the death of Colonel Graham until the close of the war; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,713 votes against 3,777 votes for Turney, Democrat, and 1,239 votes for Rogers, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,816 votes against 4,352 votes for Goodpasture, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; declined being a candidate to the Thirty-third Congress; was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,016 votes against 5,563 votes for Cullom, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,435 votes against 5,232 votes for Pickett, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Savage, John Simpson, was born in Clermont County, Ohio, October 30, 1841; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1865, and practised at Wilmington; never held any public office; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,972 votes against 11,810 votes for John Q. Smith, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,098 votes against 16,549 votes for Miles Gardner, Republican.

Sawtelle, Cullen, was born at Norridgewock, Maine; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Norridgewock; was register of probate 1830–1838; was a member of the State Senate 1843, 1844; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,875 votes against 3,589 votes for Coburn, Whig, 2,063 votes for Fletcher, Democrat, and 849 for Veazie, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; removed to New-York City.

Sawyer, Frederick A., was born in Bolton, Massachusetts, December 12, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1844; was successively employed as a teacher in Gardiner, Wiscasset, Lowell, Nashua, South Reading, and Boston, leaving the Brimmer School in the last-named city in April, 1859, to accept an invitation to become principal of the State Normal School for girls in Charleston, South Carolina; this position he held until September, 1864, when his persistent loyalty rendered him so obnoxious to the rebels that they gave him a passport for himself and his family through the lines to the post of Port Royal, then in the possession of the Federal forces; in May, 1865, he was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Second District of South Carolina, the first civil appointment made in the State after the Rebellion; he was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention, but was not able to participate in the proceedings of that body; was elected United-States senator from South Carolina July 16, 1868; took his seat July 22, 1868, and served until March 3, 1873; was appointed assistant secretary of the treasury, serving from March 8, 1873, to August 1, 1876.

Sawyer, Lemuel (uncle of Samuel T. Sawyer), was born in Camden County, North Carolina, in 1777; was educated at Flatbush, New York; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Elizabeth, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1800, 1801; was a presidential elector on the Jefferson ticket in 1804; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eleventh and Twelfth Congresses, serving from October 26, 1807, until March 3, 1813; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1823; was defeated as a candidate for the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 2,139 votes against 2,407 votes for Alfred M. Gatlin; was again elected to the Nineteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, until March 3, 1829; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-first Congress by William B. Shepard, who received 377 majority; removed to Washington, District of Columbia, in 1850, and became a department-clerk; died at Washington of heart-disease January 9, 1852.

Sawyer, Philetus, was born in Whiting, Vermont, September 22, 1816; received a public-school and business education; went to Wisconsin in 1847, and engaged in the lumber business; was a member of the State legislature of Wisconsin in 1857 and 1861; was mayor of Oshkosh in 1863 and 1864; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirtieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,218 votes against 10,274 votes for Bouck, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,841 votes against 9,347 votes for Morgan L. Martin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 19,422 votes against 15,234 votes for Vilas, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,258 votes against 11,822 votes for J. Stringham, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1875.

Sawyer, Samuel T. (a nephew of Lemuel Sawyer), was born in Chowan County, North Carolina, in 1800; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Edenton; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1829-1832; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 211 votes against 1,706 votes for G. C. Moore, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress by Kenneth Raynor, Whig, who received 661 majority; removed to Norfolk, Virginia, where he edited "The Norfolk Argus;" was appointed by President Pierce collector of customs at Norfolk; died at New Jersey November 29, 1865.

Sawyer, William, was born in Ohio; resided at St. Mary's; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849.

Say, Benjamin, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Tenth Congress (in place of Joseph Clay, resigned); was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from November 16, 1808, to 1809, when he resigned.

Saylor, Henry B., was born in Montgomery County, Ohio, March 31, 1836; his father removed to Clinton County, Indiana, in August, 1836; received a common-school education; studied law in Preble County, Ohio; was admitted to the bar in 1859; enlisted in the army, and was mustered as lieutenant; was promoted as captain and major of the One Hundred and Eighteenth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry; held no other public office until he was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,334 votes against 15,149 votes for E. Van Long, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Saylor, Milton, was born at Lewisburg, Preble County, Ohio, November 4, 1831; graduated at Miami University in 1852, and afterward at the Cincinnati Law School; practised law at Cincinnati; was a member of the State legislature of Ohio in 1862 and 1863, and of the city council of Cincinnati in 1864 and 1865; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,474 votes against 8,905 votes for B. Eggleston, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,566 votes against 7,252 votes for Green, Republican; was elected speaker pro tempore of the House June 24, 1876; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,144 votes against 13,474 votes for Force, Republican, serving from December 1, 1875.

Scales, Alfred Moore, was born in Rockingham County, North Carolina, November 26, 1827; is not a graduate, but received a classical education at the Caldwell Institute in Greensborough, and at the University of North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and practised at Greensborough; was elected county-attorney of Rockingham County; was a member of the legislature of North Carolina in 1852, 1853, and in 1856, 1857; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,679 votes against 6,950 votes for Puryear, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; volunteered at the beginning of the late civil war as a private in the Confederate army; was afterward promoted, and served as captain, colonel, and brigadier-general during the war; was again elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 10,529 votes against 8,909 votes for W. F. Henderson, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,246 votes against 11,001 votes for James E. Boyd, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Scammon, John F., was born at Saco, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), October 24, 1786; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1817, 1820, and 1821; was collector of customs at Saco 1829-1841; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was a member of the State Senate in 1855; died at Saco, Maine, May 23, 1858.

Schell, Richard, was born at Rhinebeck, New York, in May, 1810; was engaged in mercantile pursuits there; removed to New York in 1834, and entered into the wholesale dry-goods business; was a member of the State Senate of New York in 1857; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress (in place of David B. Mellish, deceased) as a Democrat, receiving 12,562 votes against 5,947 votes for John Hardy, Independent Democrat, serving from December 7, 1874, to March 3, 1875.

Schenck, Abraham H., was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1777; received a thorough English education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804-1806; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; engaged in the manufacture of cotton-goods after the passage of the non-intercourse acts; died at Fishkill, New York, February 20, 1831.

Schenck, Ferdinand S., was born in Middlesex County, New Jersey, February 11, 1790; received a public-school education; studied medicine; was licensed, and practised at Six-mile Run; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1829-1831; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 24,278 votes against 23,780 votes for Condict, Clay Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 3,965 votes against 2,224 votes for his opponent, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1844; was for eight years a judge of the Court of Appeals; died at Camden, New Jersey, May 17, 1860.

Schenck, Robert C., was born at Franklin, Ohio, October 4, 1809; graduated at Miami University; studied law with the Hon. Thomas Corwin at Lebanon, and practised many years at Dayton; was a member of the Ohio legislature in 1841 and 1842; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,870 votes against 5,571 votes for Lowe, Democrat, and 403 votes for Hibbin, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, and Thirty-first Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851; was appointed in 1851 envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Brazil, and was also accredited in 1862 envoy extraordinary to Uruguay, the Argentine Confederation, and Paraguay, negotiating important treaties with those nations; entered the Union army in 1861 under an appointment by President Lincoln as brigadier-general; was promoted to be major-general, to take rank from August 30, 1862 (the date of the battle of Groveton, or second Bull Run), for his conduct in that action, in which he was severely wounded, and continued in military service until he took his seat in Congress in December, 1863; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,027 votes against 11,770 votes for Vallandigham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 14,371 votes against 11,605 votes for Houk, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,027 votes against 13,960 votes for Ward, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,293 votes against 15,818 votes for Vallandigham, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1871; was appointed by President Grant minister to Great Britain, serving 1870-1876.

Schermerhorn, Abraham M., was born in New York; resided at Rochester; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,611 votes against 4,746 votes for Selden, Democrat, and 1,367 votes for Smith, Cass Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,036 votes against 5,623 votes for Buchanan, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; died at Rochester, New York, August 22, 1855.

Schleicher, Gustave, was born at Darmstadt, Germany, November 19, 1823; was educated at the University of Giessen, in the Grand Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt; was engaged as a civil engineer in the construction of several European railroads; immigrated to Texas in 1847, and, after passing some time on the frontiers, located at San Antonio in 1850; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853 and 1854, and of the State Senate 1859-1861; and was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Jeremiah Galvan, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,951 votes against 2,711 votes for J. P. Newcomb, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Schley, William, was born at Frederick City, Maryland, December 15, 1786; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1812, and commenced practice at Augusta, Georgia; was elected a judge of the Superior Court in 1825; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1830; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat on general ticket, receiving 21,551 votes against 15,441 votes for Newnan, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was governor of Georgia 1835-1837; was president of the Medical College of Georgia; died at Augusta, Georgia, November 20, 1858. He published a "Digest of the English Statutes."

Schoolcraft, John L., was born at Albany, New York; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; travelled in Europe with Thurlow Weed; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,227 votes against 3,876 votes for Bouton, Democrat, and 2,315 votes for Wood, Van Buren Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,032 votes against 6,746 votes for Corning, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; died at St. Catherine's, Canada West, May 11, 1860.

Schoonmaker, Cornelius C., was born in Ulster County, New York; resided at Shawangunk; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1777-1790; was elected a representative from New York in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1793; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1795.

Schoonmaker, Marius, was born at Kingston, New York, and resided there; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,851 votes against 7,135 votes for Allaben, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Schumaker, John G., was born at Claverack, Columbia County, New York, June 27, 1826, of German parentage; received an academical education at home, and in Lenox, Massachusetts; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1847; in 1853 he settled in Brooklyn, where he practised; in 1856 he was elected district-attorney for King's County; in 1862 and 1864 he was elected corporation counsel for the city of Brooklyn; was a delegate to the Chicago Convention of 1864; was a member of the State Constitutional Conventions of 1862 and 1867; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 24,418 votes against 12,492 votes for Bellows, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat and Liberal, receiving 13,355 votes against 8,378 votes for A. J. Perry, Republican, and 1,031 votes for W. S. Robinson, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 15,123 votes against 6,652 votes for Wood, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Schuneman, Martin G., was born in Ulster County, New York, and resided there; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807.

Schureman, James, was born in New Jersey in 1757; received a classical education, graduating at Rutgers College in 1775; served in the Revolutionary army as captain of volunteers; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1786-1787; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the First Congress as a Federalist, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was again elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey (in place of John Rutherford, resigned), serving from December 3, 1799, to February 6, 1801, when he resigned; was mayor of the city of New Brunswick; was again elected a representative to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at New Brunswick, New Jersey, January 23, 1824.

Schurz, Carl, was born at Liblar, near Cologne, Germany, March 2, 1829; was educated at the collegiate institution at Cologne, and afterwards at the University of Bonn; was editor of a paper identified with the Revolution of 1848; took part in the defence of Rastadt, after which he fled to Switzerland; subsequently resided in Paris and London, where he was a teacher and correspondent for three years; immigrated to this country in 1852; was a delegate to the Chicago Convention of 1860, taking a leading part in its proceedings; was selected by President Lincoln in 1861 as minister to Spain, which position he soon resigned; was appointed a brigadier-general of volunteers, and was present at the second battle of Bull Run, at the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and Chattanooga; after the war he was appointed a commissioner to visit the Southern States, and report upon the affairs of the Freedmen's Bureau; in 1865 and 1866 he was a Washington correspondent for "The New-York Tribune;" was subsequently connected with the press of Detroit and St. Louis; was a delegate to the Chicago Convention of 1868; and was elected United-States senator from Missouri as a Republican (to succeed John B. Henderson), serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; visited Europe, and, on his return in 1876, took an active part in support of the Republican ticket; was appointed by President Hayes secretary of the interior, serving from March 12, 1877.

Schuyler, Philip, was born at Albany, New York, November 22, 1733; received a good English education; served as captain and commissary in the royal colonial troops in 1755-1763; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1775-1777; was appointed major-general, and placed in command of the Northern Revolutionary army in 1775, but became involved in military disputes, and resigned in 1779; was again a delegate to the Continental Congress 1778-1781; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Federalist, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was again elected a senator, serving from May 15, 1797, to January 3, 1798, when he resigned; died at Albany, New York, November 18, 1804. His "Life and Times" was published by Benson J. Lossing.

Schuyler, Philip J., was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1768; resided at Rhinebeck; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; died at New York February 21, 1835.

Schwartz, John, was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, October 27, 1793; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; served in the war of 1812 as a lieutenant of volunteers; engaged in mercantile pursuits 1806-1829, after which he gave his whole attention to agriculture; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as an anti-Lecompton Democrat, receiving 7,321 votes against 7,302 votes for Jones, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1859, to June 20, 1860, when he died at Reading, Pennsylvania.

Scotfield, Glenni W., was born in Chautauqua County, New York, March 11, 1817; graduated at Hamilton College, New York, in 1840; studied law, and has since practised that profession, except when interrupted by official duties; was a member of the State Assembly of Pennsylvania in 1850 and 1851; was a member of the State Senate in 1857, 1858, and 1859; was temporarily appointed president-judge of the Eighteenth Judicial District of Pennsylvania in 1861; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,954 votes against 9,462 votes for Court-hought, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,631 votes against 9,914 votes for Bigler, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 15,107 votes against 12,481 votes for Scott, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,903 votes against 14,355 votes for Brown, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,055 votes against 12,451 votes for S. Marvin, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as one of the three congressmen at large as a Republican, receiving 358,013 votes against 314,014 votes for H. B. Wright, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1875; was appointed by President Grant register of the treasury in 1877.

Scott, Charles L., was born at Richmond, Virginia, January 23, 1827; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; studied law with his father; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Richmond; went to California in 1849, and worked in the mines until 1851, when he resumed the practice of law at Sonora; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Scott, Gustavus, was born in Maryland; was largely engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1784-1785.

Scott, Harvey D., was born in Ohio; received a public-school education; removed to Indiana, and settled at Terre Haute; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,515 votes against 8,580 votes for Davis, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Scott, John, was born in Hanover County, Virginia, in 1782; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1805; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at St. Genevieve, Missouri, in 1806; was elected a delegate from Missouri Territory in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1816, to January 13, 1817, when his seat was declared vacant; was again elected a delegate to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; Missouri having been admitted as a State, he was elected a representative in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 400 majority over Strother; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1827; died at St. Genevieve, Missouri, October 1, 1861.

Scott, John (father of John Scott), was born in Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania; was a large landholder; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

Scott, John (son of John Scott), was born at Alexandria, Pennsylvania, July 14, 1824; received a common-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and has practised at Huntingdon, Pennsylvania; was prosecuting-attorney from 1846 to 1849; was a member of the board of revenue commissioners in 1851; was a member of the State legislature in 1862; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Republican (to succeed Charles R. Buckalew, Democrat), serving from March 4, 1869, to March 4, 1875; removed to Pittsburg; was chosen, December 30, 1877, general solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Scott, John G., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, December 26, 1819; received a public-school education; went West when seventeen years of age, and became interested in the development of Iron Mountain, Missouri; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 2,758 votes against 2,765 votes for John W. Noell, Emancipationist, and 191 votes for Lawson, Independent; Mr. Noell dying, Mr. Scott was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,559 votes against 3,070 votes for Lindsay, Union candidate, and 444 votes for Bogy, Independent Democrat.

Scott, John Morin, was born in the city of New York; was State secretary of state March 13, 1778-October 23, 1789; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1780-1783.

Scott, Thomas, was born in Pennsylvania; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was again elected to the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795.

Scranton, George W., was born at Madison, Connecticut, May 11, 1811; received an academic education; removed in 1828 to Belvidere, New Jersey, where he was a teamster, and afterwards a clerk; in 1839 he became a manufacturer of iron, and in 1840 he commenced smelting ore with anthracite coal at Slocum, Pennsylvania, which soon became the city of Scranton; he was president of the Lackawanna and Western and of the Cayuga and Susquehanna Railroad Companies; was a Whig; was elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Protective Republican, receiving 10,029 votes against 6,186 votes for McReynolds, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,719 votes against 11,024 votes for Randall, Democrat; and died at Scranton March 24, 1861.

Scudder, Henry J., was born at Northport, New York, in 1825; received a classical education, graduating at Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut, in 1846; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice in New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,877 votes against 11,797 votes for J. W. Covert, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Scudder, Isaac W., was born at Elizabeth in 1818; studied law in the office of his father; removed to Jersey City, and commenced practice there; has twice been prosecutor of the Court of Common Pleas for Hudson County; and was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,377 votes against 9,108 votes for N. D. Taylor, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Scudder, John A., was born in New Jersey in 1767; received an academic education; studied medicine, and practised; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Eleventh Congress (in place of James Cox, deceased), serving from December 3, 1810, to March 3, 1811; removed to Kentucky, and subsequently to Indiana, where he died November 6, 1836.

Scudder, Nathaniel, was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1751; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1777-1779; was killed in a skirmish with an invading party of the British at Shrewsbury, New Jersey, October 15, 1781.

Scudder, Treadwell, was born at Islip, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1828.

Scudder, Zeno, was born at Barnstable, Massachusetts, August 18, 1807; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Barnstable; was a member of the State House of Representatives and of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig on the second ballot, receiving 2,800 votes against 1,324 votes for Fessenden, Democrat, and 954 votes for Hart, Free-Soiler; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress on the second ballot, receiving 5,095 votes against 1,801 votes for Rodney French, Democrat, and 1,905 votes for John Peirce, Free-Soiler, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 1, 1854, when he resigned on account of ill health; held several local offices; died at Barnstable, Massachusetts, June 26, 1857.

Scurry, Richardson, was born in Tennessee; removed to Texas, and located at Charlesville; was elected a representative from Texas in the Thirty-second Congress, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Seaman, Henry J., was born in New York; resided at Richmond, Staten Island; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as an American, receiving 6,164 votes against 5,636 votes for Murphy, Democrat, and 62 for Whiting, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Searing, John A., was born at North Hempstead, New York, May 14, 1805; received a public-school education; was reared as a farmer; was elected sheriff of Queen's County in 1848; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853, but was defeated for re-election by S. N. Snedeker, Native American; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,960 votes against 5,892 votes for Jennings, American, and 5,449 votes for Lord, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; kept a hotel at Minneola, which he superintended in connection with his large farm; died at Minneola, after a lingering illness caused by cancer in the stomach, May 6, 1876.

Searle, James, was born at New York 1730; received an English education, and went to Madeira, where he entered the counting-room of his brother as a clerk; returned home in 1763, and settled at Philadelphia; was one of the managers of the United-States lottery 1776-1778; was for a short time a member of the Navy Board; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1778-1780; was sent to Europe to negotiate a loan for the State of Pennsylvania in 1780, but was unsuccessful, and returned in 1782; died at Philadelphia August 7, 1797.

Seaver, Ebenezer, was born at Roxbury, Massachusetts, January 8, 1763; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1784; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1794-1802; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat; and was successively re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, until March 3, 1813; was defeated as a candidate for re-election to the Thirteenth Congress as a War Democrat, receiving 2,062 votes against 2,530 votes for N. Ruggles, Peace Federalist; was a member of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention of 1820; and died at Roxbury, Massachusetts, March 1, 1844.

Sebastian, William K., was born at Vernon, Tennessee; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, Tennessee; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Helena, Arkansas; was prosecuting-attorney 1835-1837; was circuit-judge 1840-1842, and was appointed chief judge in 1846; was elected a United-States senator from Arkansas (in place of Chester Ashley, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1848, to March 3, 1861; his term would not have expired until March 3, 1865, but, as he did not appear in the Senate, he was expelled, with the other Southern senators, July 11, 1861; it was subsequently claimed that he was a loyal Union man, opposed to secession; he remained quietly at Helena until the Federal troops occupied that place, and in 1864 removed to Memphis, Tennessee, where he died May 20, 1865. The Senate subsequently revoked the resolution of expulsion, and paid his full salary to his children.

Seddon, James Alexander, was born at Fredericksburg, Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1835; was a merchant, and interested in agriculture; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,844 votes against 2,458 votes for John M. Bolts, Whig, and 317 votes for C. C. Lee, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; declined being a candidate for re-election; was a member of the Peace Commission of 1861; was a delegate from Virginia to the Provisional Confederate Congress which assembled at Richmond in July, 1861; was the fourth Confederate secretary of war; died in Goochland County, Virginia.

Sedgwick, Charles B., was born at Pompey, New York, March, 1815; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Syracuse, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,478 votes against 6,267 votes for Taylor, Democrat, and 648 for Noxon, Independent Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,175 votes against 6,088 votes for Taft, Democrat, and 1,233 votes for Hay, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863.

Sedgwick, Theodore, was born at West Hartford, Connecticut, May 9, 1746; received a classical education (but without graduating) at Yale College; commenced the study of divinity, but abandoned it for the law; was admitted to the bar in 1776, and commenced practice at Great Barrington, removing to Sheffield; served in the Revolutionary expedition to Canada in 1776 as aide-de-camp to General Thomas; was for several years a member of the Colonial and subsequently the State House of Representatives; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1785-1786; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the First Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Second, Third, and Fourth Congresses, serving from June 15, 1789, to December 6, 1796, when he took his seat as a United-States senator (in place of George Cabot, resigned), serving until March 3, 1799; was president pro tempore of the Senate; was a delegate to the State Convention that adopted the Federal Constitution in 1788; was again elected a representative to the Sixth Congress, and was elected speaker of the House, serving from December 2, 1800, to March 3, 1801; was a judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts until his death at Boston January 24, 1813.

Seeley, John E., was born at Ovid, New York, August 1, 1810; graduated at Yale College, Connecticut, in 1835; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1840; was elected county-judge and surrogate of Seneca County in 1851, and served as such four years; was presidential elector in 1860, and also in 1864; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,276 votes against 12,134 votes for Daniels, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Seelye, Julius H., was born at Bethel, Connecticut, September 14, 1824; graduated at Amherst College; studied theology at Auburn (New York) Theological Seminary, and also at the Universities of Halle and Berlin; was ordained and installed pastor of the First Reformed Dutch Church at Schenectady, New York, in 1853, where he remained until 1858, when he accepted the professorship of mental and moral philosophy in Amherst College, which he still held at the time of his election to the Forty-fourth Congress; was a trustee of the Clarke Institute for Deaf Mutes, of the Smith College for Women, and of the Mount-Holyoke Female Seminary, and was one of the board of three visitors intrusted with the oversight of the Andover Theological Seminary; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fourth Congress without a nomination from any political party, receiving 7,773 votes against 7,353 votes for Charles A. Stevens, Republican, and 3,473 votes for Henry C. Hill, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; declined a re-nomination, and resumed his duties as professor in Amherst College.

Segar, Joseph E., was born in King William County, Virginia, June 1, 1804; received a public-school education; was elected in 1836 a member of the State House of Representatives, and was for a number of years annually re-elected; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Unionist, serving from May 6, 1862, to March 3, 1863; was elected United-States senator from Virginia (in the place of Lemuel J. Bowden, deceased), and presented his credentials in December, 1864, but was not admitted to a seat; was appointed arbitrator on the part of the United States before the United-States and Spanish Claims Convention August 1, 1877; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,980 votes against 16,885 votes for John Goodey, jun., Democrat.

Selden, Dudley, practised law in New York; held several local offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to July 1, 1834, when he resigned; died at Paris, France, November 7, 1835.

Selye, Lewis, was born at Chittenango, New York, July 11, 1808; received a public-school education; was engaged in manufactures, and identified with the progress of the city of Rochester, where he held several local and county offices; was elected a representative from New York in the Fortieth Congress as an Independent Republican, receiving 12,791 votes against 10,757 votes for Hart, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Semmes, Benedict I., was born in Charles County, Maryland, November 1, 1789; received a classical education; studied medicine, graduating at the Baltimore Medical School in 1811; commenced practice at Piscataway, Maryland, but, after some years, relinquished it, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1825, 1827, and 1828; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-first Congress as a Clay Democrat, receiving 300 majority over John C. Weems; and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress without opposition, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1842 and 1843.

Semple, James, was born in Kentucky in 1800; removed to Illinois in 1827; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828-1833; was attorney-general of Illinois in 1833; was chargé d'affaires to Columbia October 14, 1837-April 1, 1842; was elected one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Illinois in 1842; was appointed a United-States senator from Illinois (in place of Samuel McRoberts, deceased) as a Democrat, and subsequently elected, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; died at Elsie Landing, Illinois, January 27, 1867.

Sener, James B., was born at Fredericksburg, Virginia, May 18, 1837; received an academic education; attended lectures at the University of Virginia as a State student, and graduated in several of its schools; studied law at the Lexington (Virginia) Law School under Judge J. W. Brockenbrough, and was admitted to the bar in 1860; practises his profession; was sergeant of the city of Fredericksburg 1863-1865, and army correspondent of the Southern Associated Press with General Lee's army during the late war; since 1865, editor of "The Fredericksburg (Virginia) Ledger;" was a delegate from Virginia to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1872; and was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,685 votes against 10,312 votes for E. M. Braxton, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Seney, Joshua, was born in Maryland; received a thorough English education from a private tutor; was a delegate from Maryland in the Continental Congress 1787-1788; was elected a representative from Maryland in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to May 1, 1792, when he resigned; was a presidential elector in 1792, voting for Washington and Adams.

Senter, William T., was born in Granger County, Tennessee, in 1802; resided at Panther Springs; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; died at Panther Springs, Tennessee, August 28, 1849.

Sergeant, John (son of Jonathan Dickinson Sergeant), was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, December 5, 1779; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1795; was destined for mercantile pursuits, but abandoned them for the law; was admitted to the bar in July, 1799, and practised at Philadelphia for more than half a century; was appointed by President Jefferson commissioner of bankruptcy in 1801; was deputy attorney-general of Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1823; was appointed, March 4, 1826, one of the two envoys extraordinary to the Panama Congress; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as the Whig candidate for Vice-President on the ticket with Henry Clay in 1832, receiving 49 electoral votes against 189 electoral votes for Martin Van Buren, 30 electoral votes for William Wilkins, 11 electoral votes for Henry Lee, and 7 electoral votes for Amos Elmaker; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, and Thirty-seventh Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to September 15, 1841, when he resigned; was offered the mission to England by President Harrison, and declined; was appointed by Secretary Marcy arbitrator to determine a long-pending controversy between the United States and the State of New Jersey; died at Philadelphia, November 23, 1852. His "Select Speeches" were published at Philadelphia in 1832.

Sergeant, Jonathan Dickinson (father of John Sergeant), was born at Newark, New Jersey, in 1746; received a classical education, graduating at New-Jersey College in 1762; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Newark, New Jersey; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1776-1777; was appointed attorney-general of Pennsylvania in July, 1777, and removed to Philadelphia, where he afterwards resided; contracted the yellow-fever while actively engaged as a member of the Board of Health, and died at Philadelphia October 26, 1793.

Sessions, Walter L., was born in Brandon, Vermont; received a common-school and academic education; studied law, and has practised the profession; was commissioner of schools for several years; was a member of the Assembly of the State of New York in 1853 and in 1854; was a member of the State Senate of New York in 1859 and in 1865; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,170 votes against 9,793 votes for Murray, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,922 votes against 9,573 votes for C. D. Murray, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Settle, Thomas, was born in Rockingham County, North Carolina, about 1791; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Wentworth; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1816, 1826-1828, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1821, when he declined re-election; was elected a judge of the Superior Courts of Law and Equity in 1832; and died in Rockingham County, North Carolina, August 5, 1857.

Severance, Luther, was born at Montague, Massachusetts, October 28, 1797; removed with his father to Cazenovia, New York; received a public-school education, and worked on the farm until his seventeenth year, when he was apprenticed to Jonathan Bruce, at Peterborough, to learn the art of printing; after having served his apprenticeship of five years, he worked as a journeyman in the office of "The Philadelphia Aurora," and subsequently in the office of "The Washington National Intelligencer;" in the fall of 1823 he went by invitation to Augusta, Maine, where he established and published "The Kennebec Journal" in partnership with Russell Eaton; he was a member of the State House of Representatives of Maine in 1829, of the State Senate in 1835 and 1836, and again of the House in 1839 and 1840; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving on the first trial 4,611 votes against 3,981 votes for Samuel Wells, Democrat, and 1,123 votes for Seth May, Abolitionist, and on the second trial a majority of 517 over both of them; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,121 votes against 5,411 votes for W. B. S. Moor, Democrat, and 1,135 votes for Seth May, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, until March 3, 1847; was one of the vice-presidents of the National Whig Convention at Philadelphia which nominated Taylor and Fillmore in 1848; was appointed by President Taylor United-States commissioner to the Sandwich Islands, and served from August, 1850, until he returned in April, 1854; died of consumption at Augusta, Maine, January 25, 1855. A biographical sketch of him was published by James G. Blaine, who succeeded him as editor of "The Kennebec Journal."

Sevier, Ambrose H., was born in Tennessee in 1802; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and, after visiting Missouri, settled at Little Rock, Arkansas; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives, and of the Territorial Senate; was elected a delegate from Arkansas Territory in the Twentieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 463 votes majority over Desha; was re-elected to the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1835; was elected one of the first United-States senators from the State of Arkansas as a Democrat, and was re-elected, serving from December 5, 1836, to March 15, 1848, when he resigned; was appointed by President Polk commissioner, with the rank of minister plenipotentiary, to Mexico, serving from March 14, 1848, to June 4, 1848; returned to Little Rock, Arkansas, and died there December 21, 1848.

Sevier, John (whose father's surname was Xavier), was born in the valley of the Shenandoah, Virginia, in 1745; received a scanty education; settled on the Holston River in North Carolina (now Tennessee) in 1769; became a noted Indian fighter; served in the Revolutionary war, distinguishing himself at King's Mountain in 1780; commanded the expedition which defeated the Creek and Cherokee Indians in 1789; was a general in the Provisional United-States army; was governor of Tennessee 1796-1801, 1803-1809; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the First Congress as a Democrat, serving from June 16, 1790, to March 3, 1791; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twelfth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 2, 1815; was appointed by President Monroe one of the commissioners to locate the boundaries of the Creek Territory, and died, while performing that service, at Fort Decatur, Alabama, September 24, 1815.

Sewall, Charles S., was born at Elkton, Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-second Congress (in place of George E. Mitchell, deceased), serving from December 3, 1832, to March 2, 1833.

Sewall, Samuel, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, December 11, 1757; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1776; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Marblehead, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to January 10, 1800, when he resigned to accept the position of judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts; was appointed chief justice of that court in 1813; died while holding court at Wiscasset, Massachusetts (now Maine), June 8, 1814.

Seward, James L., was born in Georgia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Thomasville, Georgia; was a member of the State legislature 1836-1842; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,429 votes against 4,238 votes for Barton, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,179 votes against 4,541 votes for Varnadoe, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,870 votes against 5,093 votes for Barton, American, and 508 votes for Gaulden, Independent Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859.

Seward, William H., was born at Florida, New York, May 16, 1801; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1822, and commenced practice at Auburn in 1823; was a member of the National Anti-Masonic Convention which met at Philadelphia September 11, 1830; was a member of the State Senate 1830-1834; was defeated as the Whig candidate for governor in 1834; was governor of the State of New York 1838-1842; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Whig, and re-elected, serving from March 4, 1849, until he resigned to enter the cabinet of President Lincoln as secretary of state March 5, 1861, serving until March 3, 1869; he travelled around the world in 1870-1871; and died at Auburn, New York, October 10, 1872. He published the "Life and Public Services of John Quincy Adams;" and his own "Life and Speeches" was published by George E. Baker.

Sewell, James, was elected as a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-seventh Congress (in the place of James S. Williams, deceased), and served from January 1, 1843, to March 3, 1843.

Sexton, Leonidas, was born at Rushville, Indiana, May 19, 1827; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1847; studied law at Rushville with A. W. Hubbard, and at the Cincinnati Law School in the winter of 1848-1849, while William Groesbeck, William Green, and Charles Telford were the professors; was admitted to the bar in 1850, and practised at Rushville; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856; was lieutenant-governor of Indiana from January, 1873, to January, 1877; and was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,502 votes against 14,507 votes for Lewis J. Woolen, Democrat, and 378 votes for William L. Bright, Independent Greenback, serving from October 15, 1877.

Seybert, Adam, was born at Philadelphia in 1773; received a classical education, and devoted himself to chemistry and mineralogy; visited Europe in 1793, and studied at London, Edinburgh, and Göttingen; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eleventh Congress (in place of Benjamin Say, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, receiving 6,276 votes against 4,343 votes for Thomas Truxton; was re-elected to the Thirteenth Congress, serving from November 27, 1809, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; revisited Europe, and died at Paris May 2, 1825. He published "Statistical Annals of the United States 1789 to 1818," a "Dissertation on Putrefaction of the Blood," "Experiments on Land and Sea Air," and several papers in the Transactions of the American Philosophical Society.

Seymour, David Lowrey, was born at Wetherfield, Connecticut, December 2, 1803; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1825; was a tutor at Yale College 1828-1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Troy, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,419 votes against 5,335 votes for Stevenson, Whig, and 79 votes for Sheldon, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,811 votes against 5,594 votes for Sage, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; died at Lanesborough, Massachusetts, October 11, 1867.

Seymour, Horatio, was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, May 31, 1778; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1797; studied law at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Middlebury, Vermont; was judge of probate and a member of the State Council; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont as a Clay Democrat, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 2, 1833; died at Middlebury November 21, 1857.

Seymour, Origen S., was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, in 1804; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Litchfield; was a member of the State House of Representatives and its speaker in 1850; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,633 votes against 8,485 votes for Butler, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was a judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut for eight years.

Seymour, Thomas H., was born at Hartford, Connecticut, in 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Middletown Military Academy; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hartford; was an editor; was judge of probate; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; served in the Mexican war as major of the New-England regiment, which he commanded, after the fall of Colonel Ransom, until the close of the war; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was governor of the State of Connecticut 1850-1853; was appointed by President Pierce minister to Russia, serving May 24, 1853-July 17, 1858; died at Hartford, Connecticut, September 3, 1868.

Seymour, William, was born in Connecticut; removed to New York, and located at Binghamton; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837.

Shafer, Jacob K., was born in Rockingham County, Virginia, December 26, 1823; was educated at Washington College, Virginia; graduated in the law-school of Judge Lucas P. Thompson, in Stanton, in 1846; in 1849 removed to Stockton, California; in 1850 was elected district-attorney of the Fifth Judicial District of California; in 1852 was elected mayor of Stockton; in 1853 was elected judge of San Joaquin County, California, and continued in office until 1862, when he removed to Washington (now Idaho) Territory, and was elected delegate from Idaho in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat over Butler, Republican, and May, Independent Democrat (majority over Butler, 884), serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Shallenberger, William S., was born at Mount Pleasant, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, November 24, 1839; was educated at public schools and at Lewisburg University; engaged in mercantile pursuits; entered the Union army in 1862 in the One Hundred and Fortieth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, and was soon afterward appointed adjutant of the regiment; was wounded in the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and the Wilderness, and was mustered out of service in October, 1864, on account of disability from wounds received; was chairman of the Beaver-county Republican Committee in 1872 and 1874; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,151 votes against 10,648 votes for R. B. McComb, Democrat and Greenback, and 106 votes for J. D. Glenn, Temperance, serving from October 15, 1877.

Shanklin, George S., was born in Kentucky, and resided at Nicholasville; was a presidential elector on the McClellan and Pendleton ticket in 1864; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,624 votes against 3,943 votes for Speed S. Fry, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Shanks, John P. C., was born at Martinsburg, Virginia, June 17, 1826; received an academic education; studied law, and commenced its practice in Indiana; was a member of the legislature of Indiana in 1854; served in the Union army on General Frémont's staff; raised the Seventh Regiment Indiana Volunteer Cavalry, and commanded it until placed in command of a brigade of cavalry; was brevetted major-general February 14, 1865, and mustered out of service September 22, 1865; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,885 votes against 11,796 votes for Asbury Steele, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was again elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 18,145 votes against 15,268 votes for Snow; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 15,597 votes against 14,656 votes for Lowry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,790 votes against 13,396 votes for Colerick, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,115 votes against 17,082 votes for J. E. Neff, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1875; practised law at Washington City.

Shannon, Thomas, resided at Barnesville, Ohio; was a member of the State legislature; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of David Jennings, resigned), serving from December 4, 1826, to March 3, 1827.

Shannon, Thomas B., was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1827; received a public-school education; moved in 1844 to Illinois, and thence in 1849 to California; was engaged in mercantile pursuits 1854-1861; was for four years a member of the State legislature; was elected a representative from California in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was appointed collector of customs at the port of San Francisco.

Shannon, Wilson, was born in Belmont County, Ohio, February 24, 1802; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania College, Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at St. Clairsville, Ohio; was State prosecuting-attorney in 1835; was governor of Ohio in 1838-1840; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor by Thomas Corwin, Whig, who had 19,000 majority; was again governor of Ohio 1842-1844; was minister to Mexico April 9, 1844-May 14, 1845; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,142 votes against 6,054 votes for Hollister, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was governor of Kansas 1855-1856; died at Stanstead, Canada, September 1, 1877.

Sharon, William, was born at Smithfield, Ohio, January 9, 1821; was raised on a farm; entered Athens College in 1842, and remained there two years; studied law with Edwin M. Stanton; was admitted to the bar at St. Louis, and commenced practice; his health failing, he engaged in mercantile pursuits at Carrollton, Illinois; in 1849 he removed to California, and commenced business at Sacramento; in 1850 he went to San Francisco, where he operated in real estate; in 1864 removed to Nevada as the manager of a branch of the Bank of California, and became largely interested in mines; was elected a United-States senator from Nevada as a Republican (to succeed W. M. Stewart, Republican). His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Sharp, Solomon P., was born in Virginia in 1780; removed to Kentucky when a child; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1799, and commenced practice; was several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was attorney-general of Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; was assassinated when a member of the State House of Representatives in November, 1835, and the murderer escaped detection, although the legislature offered a reward of $3,000 for his arrest.

Sharpe, Peter, was born at New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1814-1820; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1821; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was a delegate to the National Tariff Convention held in 1827.

Sharpe, William, was born in Cecil County, Maryland, December 13, 1742; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Mecklenburg, North Carolina, in 1763; was active in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from North Carolina to the Continental Congress 1779-1782; served in the expedition against the Southern Indians as aide-de-camp to General Rutherford, and was one of the commissioners to negotiate a treaty with them in 1777; died in Iredell County, North Carolina, in July, 1818.

Shaw, Aaron, was born in Orange County, New York, in 1811; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lawrenceville; was State's attorney for the Fourth Judicial Circuit; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1849-1850; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,994 votes against 9,878 votes for Brownell, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Shaw, Henry, was born in Windham County, Vermont, in 1788; received an academical education; studied law with Judge Foot at Albany, New York; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lanesborough, Massachusetts, in 1810; was one of the pioneers in the introduction of manufactures into Western Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; declined a renomination; was a member of the State House of Representatives for eighteen years; was a presidential elector in 1833; removed in 1848 to New York City, where he was a member of the Board of Education and of the common council; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853; removed in 1854 to Newbury, where he resided until within a few months of his death at Peekskill, New York, October 17, 1857.

Shaw, Henry M., was born at Newport, Rhode Island, November 20, 1819; received an academical education; studied medicine; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, and commenced practice at Indian Town, North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,833 votes against 4,746 votes for Outlaw, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,293 votes against 5,255 votes for Smith, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; served as a colonel in the Confederate army, and was killed near New Berne, North Carolina, February 23, 1864.

Shaw, Samuel, was born at Dighton, Massachusetts, December, 1768; received a public-school education; was taken to Putney, Vermont, when a lad; studied medicine, and commenced practice at Castleton, Vermont, in 1799; he was convicted under the sedition law for his denunciation of President Adams, and imprisoned, but was liberated by the people; was a member of the State House of Reprerepresentatives in 1799; was a member of the State Council; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Tenth Congress (in place of James Witherall, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, receiving 1,106 majority; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, receiving 1,275 majority, serving from November 8, 1803, to March 3, 1813; served in the army as post and hospital surgeon April 5, 1813–December 31, 1818; died at Clarendon, Vermont, October 22, 1827.

Shaw, Tristram, was born at Exeter, New Hampshire, in 1787; received an academic education; was a councillor for Rockingham County; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; died at Exeter, New Hampshire, March 14, 1843.

Sheafe, James, was born in 1755; received a public-school education; engaged in shipping and mercantile pursuits with great success; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Sixth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 1,035 votes against 542 votes for Woodbury Langdon, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1779, to March 3, 1801; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1801, to 1802, when he resigned; was defeated as the Federal candidate for governor in 1816 by William Plumer, Democrat; died at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1829.

Sheakley, James, was born at Sheakleyville, Pennsylvania, April 24, 1830; received a liberal education; was raised on a farm; removed to California in 1851, and spent three years in the gold-mines; returned to Pennsylvania in 1854, and engaged in mercantile pursuits, and after 1864 was largely interested in the production and shipment of petroleum; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,819 votes against 12,737 votes for J. G. White, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Sheats, Charles Christopher, was born in Walker County, April 10, 1839; received a common-school education; was elected a member of the Secession Convention in 1860, and was one of the seventeen who absolutely refused to sign the ordinance of separation; was elected to the lower House of the General Assembly of Alabama in 1861, and was expelled for his adherence to Unionism in 1862; was indicted for treason to the Confederate Government and imprisoned in 1862, but could not obtain a trial, and was kept in close confinement until after the close of the war; was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1865; was a candidate for Congress in 1865, but was defeated, as there were four Union candidates; was admitted to the bar in 1867, and practised; was a presidential elector on the Grant ticket in 1868; was appointed consul at Elsinore, Denmark, in 1869, which position he occupied until he was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican for the State at large, receiving 89,868 votes, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Sheffer, Daniel, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at York; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Sheffey, Daniel, was born at Frederick, Maryland, in 1770; was bred a shoemaker in his father's shop, but became proficient in astronomical and mathematical studies; arriving at manhood, he walked into Virginia, carrying his tools, and finally located at Abbeville; studied law under Alexander Smyth; was admitted to the bar, and soon enjoyed a lucrative practice; was elected from Augusta County to the House of Delegates; was elected a representative from Virginia to the Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1817; died in Augusta County, Virginia, December 3, 1830.

Sheffield, William P., was born at New Shoreham (Block Island), Rhode Island, August 30, 1820; received an academical education; studied law at Hartford College; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice at New Shoreham; was a delegate to State Constitutional Conventions in 1841 and 1842; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845; removed to Tiverton, and was a member of the State House of Representatives from that place 1849–1853; removed to Newport, which city he represented in the State House of Representatives 1857–1861; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Union candidate, receiving 6,998 votes against 6,656 votes for Robinson, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was again elected, for many successive years, a member of the State House of Representatives; was appointed in 1861 one of the commissioners to revise the State laws.

Sheldon, Lionel A., was born in Otsego County, New York, August 30, 1831; was taken by his parents, when he was four years of age, to Ohio, where he was raised on a farm, attending the district-school during the winter months, and at times, when he became older, teaching school himself; graduated at Oberlin College, Ohio; studied law at Elyria, Ohio, and Poughkeepsie, New York; was admitted to the bar in 1853, and commenced practice at Elyria; was elected judge of probate, and served one term, but declined a nomination; was a delegate to the Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1856, and voted there for the nomination of John C. Frémont; was commissioned brigadier-general of militia by Governor Chase, and took an active part in raising volunteers at the beginning of the war; entered the Union army in August, 1861, as captain of cavalry; was soon after chosen major of the Second Ohio Cavalry, and subsequently became, by transfer, lieutenant-colonel of the Forty-second Ohio Infantry, which regiment he afterwards commanded; he served in West Virginia, Kentucky, and East Tennessee, and in November, 1862, when his regiment had been placed under General Sherman at Memphis, he was placed in command of a brigade which participated prominently in the battles of Chickasaw Bayou and Arkansas Post; in 1863 he was placed in command of the Second Brigade of the Ninth Division of the Thirteenth Army Corps, which was the first to land on the east side of the Mississippi, and which was engaged in the battle of Port Gibson (where he was wounded), and the battles which resulted in the capture of Vicksburg, and subsequent skirmishes; after the war he settled in New Orleans, where he engaged in the practice of his profession; and he was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,751 votes against 6,968 votes for Hunt, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,220 votes against 8,123 votes for A. Bailey, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,299 votes against 12,225 votes for E. Lawrence, Democrat, serving from April 8, 1869, to March 3, 1875.

Sheldon, Porter, was born at Victor, New York, September 29, 1831; received an academic education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1854; practised his profession at Randolph, New York, until 1857, when he removed to Rockford, Illinois, where he continued the practice of his profession until 1865, when he returned to Chautauqua in his native State; in 1861 he was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Illinois; and he was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,416 votes against 8,433 votes for Beggs, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Shellabarger, Samuel, was born in Clarke County, Ohio, December 10, 1817; received a classical education, graduating in 1841 at the Miami University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Springfield, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1852 and 1853; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,931 votes against 7,831 votes for J. S. Harrison, Democrat, and 232 votes for E. P. Tyffer, American, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,100 votes against 10,372 votes for S. S. Cox, Democrat; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,756 votes against 9,587 votes for S. S. Cox, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,689 votes against 11,516 votes for Miller, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869; was appointed by President Grant minister to Portugal, serving from April 21, 1869, to December 31, 1869; was again elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,488 votes against 12,060 votes for H. J. Jewett, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 5, 1873; practised law at Washington City.

Shelley, Charles M., was born in Sullivan County, Tennessee, December 28, 1833; removed to Alabama with his father in 1836; received but a limited education; was brought up to the trade of an architect and builder, and has ever since followed that business; he entered the Confederate service in February, 1861, as lieutenant, and was stationed first at Fort Morgan, and was afterwards attached to the Fifth Alabama Regiment; after further service he was commissioned brigadier-general, and served under Generals Joseph E. Johnston and Hood; after the war he returned to his occupation, and now resides in Selma, Dallas County, Alabama; he was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,685 votes against 8,675 votes for Jere Haralson, Republican, and 7,236 votes for James T. Rapier, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Shepard, Charles, was born at New Berne, North Carolina, December 5, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Chapel Hill in 1827; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 261 majority over Biddle, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died at New Berne, North Carolina, October 31, 1843.

Shepard, William Biddle, was born in New Berne, North Carolina, in 1799; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Elizabeth City; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twentieth Congress as a Whig, and successively re-elected to the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, and to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 2,534 votes against 429 votes for Pipkin, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, until March 3, 1837, when he declined a re-election; was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina 1838-1848; and died at Elizabeth City, North Carolina, June 20, 1852.

Shepherd, William, was born in Massachusetts December 1, 1737; served in the Revolutionary army as captain, distinguishing himself at the engagements at Fort William Henry and Crown Point, and was appointed a brigadier-general in 1783; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixth and Seventh Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1803; was major-general of militia; died at Westfield, Massachusetts, November 11, 1817.

Shepley, Ether, was born at Groton, Massachusetts, November 2, 1789; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1811; studied law at South Berwick; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Saco (then in Massachusetts, now in Maine); was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819; was a delegate to the Convention which framed the Constitution of Maine in 1820; was United-States attorney for the district of Maine 1821-1833; removed to Portland; was elected a United-States senator from Maine as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1836, when he resigned, having been chosen a justice of the Supreme Court of Maine, and subsequently chief justice, which latter position he held until 1855; was appointed in 1856 sole commissioner to revise the statutes of Maine; died at Portland, Maine, January 15, 1877. He published "The Revised Statutes of Maine," and, while on the bench, furnished the materials for twenty-six volumes of Reports.

Sheplor, Matthias, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, locating at Bethlehem; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Sheppard, Augustus H., was born at Rockford, North Carolina; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Surry County; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1822, 1823, 1824, 1825, and 1826; was elected a representative in the Twentieth Congress, and successively re-elected to the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, until March 3, 1839; was a candidate for re-election in 1839 as a Whig, but was defeated, receiving 3,696 votes against 3,743 votes for John Hill, Democrat; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, until March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,022 votes against 2,634 votes for Clemmons, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,405 votes against 3,138 votes for Keene, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, until March 3, 1851.

Sherburne, John Samuel, was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1757; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1776; studied law; attended the Cambridge Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Portsmouth; served as brigade-major on the staff of General Whipple (who commanded a brigade of New-Hampshire troops in the Rhode-Island campaign), and lost a leg at the battle of Butt's Hill August 29, 1778; was elected a representative from New Hampshire to the Third Congress, and was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, until March 3, 1797; was appointed by President Jefferson United-States attorney for the district of New Hampshire, serving 1801-1804, and United-States judge for the district of New Hampshire, serving from May, 1804, until he died, at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, August 2, 1830.

Sheredine, Upton, was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 2, 1793.

Sheridan, George A., was born at Millbury, Massachusetts, February 22, 1840; received a good English education; removed to Illinois; entered the Union army as captain of the Eighty-eighth Illinois Volunteers; went to Louisiana in 1866; was elected sheriff of Carroll Parish in 1867; was appointed adjutant-general of Louisiana in 1869; was elected a representative at large from Louisiana in the Forty-third Congress as a Liberal, defeating P. B. S. Pinchback, who contested the seat, but the House awarded it to Mr. Sheridan in the closing hours of the session; visited Mexico; took an active part in the presidential campaign of 1876; delivered a eulogy on Senator Morton throughout Indiana in aid of a monument to his memory; was appointed by President Hayes in 1878 recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia.

Sherman, John, was born at Lancaster, Ohio,

May 10, 1823; received an academic education; studied law with his brother, Charles T. Sherman, at Mansfield; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice in partnership with his brother at Mansfield; was a delegate to the Whig National Conventions of 1848 and 1852; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,617 votes against 5,794 votes for Lindley, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,926 votes against 7,065 votes for Brumback, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,426 votes against 7,095 votes for Patrick, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,428 votes against 8,564 votes for Burns, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio to succeed George E. Pugh, Democrat (S. P. Chase, who had previously been elected, having been appointed secretary of the treasury), and was twice re-elected, serving from March, 1861, to March 8, 1877, when he resigned; was appointed secretary of the treasury by President Hayes, serving from March 9, 1877.

Sherman, J. W., was born in New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,867 votes against 5,032 votes for Richmond, Democrat, and 2,758 votes for Cooley, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Sherman, Roger, was born at Newton, Massachusetts, April 19, 1721; received a public-school education; learned the shoemaker's trade, and went to New Milford, Connecticut, to work at it, carrying his tools on his back; engaged in mercantile pursuits; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1754, and commenced practice; was appointed judge of the Court of Common Pleas; removed to New Haven in 1761; was a member of the Colonial Assembly; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1765, and remained on the bench until 1789; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1774-1784; was a delegate to the Federal Constitutional Convention of 1787; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut (in place of William S. Johnson, resigned), serving from October 24, 1791, to July 23, 1793, when he died at New Haven, Connecticut.

Sherman, Socrates N., was born in Vermont; removed to New York, and located at Ogdensburg; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,134 votes against 7,456 votes for Foote, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Sherrill, Eliakim, was born in New York; received a public-school education; resided at Shandakin; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Sherrod, William C., was born at Courtland, Alabama, August 17, 1835; prepared for college at Edgefield, North Carolina; was educated at Chapel-Hill College, North Carolina; was a cotton-planter; was a member of the National Democratic Convention held at Charleston in 1860; served in the State legislature of Alabama in 1859-1860; was an officer in the Confederate army during the war; and was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,932 votes against 2,836 votes for Hinds, Republican, serving from December 7, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Sherwood, Henry, was born in Bridgeport, Connecticut, October 9, 1817; has devoted himself exclusively to the practice of law during the past twenty-four years; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,205 votes against 13,178 votes for W. H. Armstrong, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Sherwood, Isaac R., was born in Dutchess County, New York, August 13, 1835; was educated at the Hudson-River Institute, Claverack, New York, and at Antioch College, Ohio; studied law at the Cleveland Law Institute; located in 1857 at Bryan, his present residence, where he established a Radical paper, "The Williams-county Gazette;" in 1859 he was elected probate judge of Williams County, which office he resigned to enter the Union army as a private in the Fourteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry April 18, 1861; after serving in the ranks for four months in West Virginia, and participating in several skirmishes, he was commissioned lieutenant in the One Hundred and Eleventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry; was appointed adjutant; served in that capacity through the Buell campaign in Kentucky in 1862; was promoted to be major February 1, 1863; participated in the campaign against John Morgan, and in the East Tennessee campaign under General Burnside; was promoted to be lieutenant-colonel February 12, 1864, and commanded his regiment to the close of the war in numerous battles, receiving a brevet of brigadier-general for gallant and meritorious services; he edited "The Toledo Commercial," and for six months afterward was an editorial writer on "The Cleveland Leader;" he was elected secretary of state for Ohio in 1868, and re-elected in 1870; and he was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,471 votes against 12,406 votes for Frank H. Hurd, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Sherwood, Samuel, was born in New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Delhi, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; removed to New York in 1833, and died there November 8, 1862.

Sherwood, Samuel B., was born in Connecticut in 1767; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Saugatuck, Connecticut; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; died at Saugatuck, Connecticut, April 27, 1833.

Shiel, George K., was born in Ireland; immigrated to the United States, and located in Oregon; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Shields, Benjamin G., resided at Demopolis, Alabama; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 8, 1843; was chargé d'affaires at Venezuela March 14, 1845-January 7, 1850.

Shields, Ebenezer J., was born in Georgia; removed to Tennessee, and located at Pulaski; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; died at Pulaski, Tennessee, May 20, 1846.

Shields, James, resided at Dick's Mills, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 1,700 majority over John Woods, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; died at Dick's Mills, Ohio, July 17, 1831.

Shields, James, was born in Tyrone County, Ireland, in 1810; immigrated to the United States in 1826; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and commenced practice at Kaskaskia, Illinois; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was State auditor in 1839; was judge of the Supreme Court in 1843; was commissioner of the General Land Office April 16, 1845–January 6, 1847; was appointed by President Polk brigadier-general of volunteers July 1, 1846, and served throughout the Mexican war, receiving severe wounds in the battles of Cerro Gordo and Chapultepec; was brevetted major-general, and mustered out of service July 20, 1848; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855; removed to Minnesota; was elected a United-States senator from Minnesota, serving from May 12, 1858, to March 3, 1859; removed to California; was appointed brigadier-general in the Union army August 19, 1861, and commanded a division in Banks's army in the Shenandoah Valley, where he gained the battle of Winchester March 23, 1862, having received a severe wound in the skirmish the preceding day; removed to Missouri, and settled on a farm in Carroll County; was appointed adjutant-general of the State in 1877; was defeated in 1878 as a candidate for doorkeeper of the House of Representatives. Congress subsequently recognized his services by increasing his pension to one hundred dollars a month.

Shinn, William N., was born in New Jersey; was reared on a farm, and was a farmer at Mount Holly; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat on a general ticket, receiving 24,383 votes against 23,810 votes for Southard, Clay Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 1,300 majority, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Shipherd, Zebulon R., was born in Washington County, New York, and resided at Granville; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at Moriah, New York.

Shippen, William, was born in Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1754; studied medicine at Edinburgh, Scotland, and, on his return to Philadelphia, he delivered the first course of lectures on anatomy in the United States; was a founder of the Medical School of Philadelphia, in which he was the first professor of anatomy; was commissioned in 1777 medical director-general of the Continental army; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1778–1780; died at Philadelphia November 4, 1801.

Shober, Francis E., was born in Salem, North Carolina, March 12, 1831; received an academic education both in his native State and Pennsylvania; graduated at the University of North Carolina in June, 1851; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1854; was elected to the lower branch of the General Assembly of North Carolina in 1862 and 1864, and to the State Senate in 1865; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,192 votes against 11,103 votes for Boyden, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat by a large majority, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Shoemaker, Lazarus D., was born at Kingston, Pennsylvania, November 5, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State Senate 1866–1868; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,279 votes against 12,059 votes for J. B. McCollom, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,551 votes against 16,881 votes for S. Woodward, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Shorter, Eli S., was born at Monticello, Georgia, March 15, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Eufaula, but relinquished his profession for planting; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,716 votes against 5,520 votes for Alford, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress (defeating Butt Patterson, an Independent candidate), serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Shower, Jacob, was born in Maryland; resided at Manchester; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-third Congress as an Independent, receiving 7,246 votes against 6,330 votes for Wethered, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Sibley, Henry H. (son of Solomon Sibley), was born at Detroit, Michigan, February, 1811; received an English education; passed his early life on the frontier as an Indian trader in the service of the American Fur Company; was elected a delegate from Wisconsin Territory in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from January 15, 1849, to March 3, 1849; was elected a delegate from Minnesota Territory in the Thirty-first Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, defeating A. M. Mitchell, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; was the first governor of the State of Minnesota in 1858; served in the Union army as brigadier-general of volunteers, and was brevetted major-general; was a visitor to the Military Academy at West Point in 1867.

Sibley, Jonas, was born at Sutton, Massachusetts, March 7, 1762; received a classical education; held some of the principal town-offices in Sutton for thirty-five successive years; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Massachusetts in 1806–1823 (seventeen successive years); was chosen by the House to fill a vacancy occasioned in the Senate by death in 1819; was a presidential elector on the Monroe ticket in 1820; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating B. Adams, Federalist, and serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was defeated as a candidate for re-election after four successive trials; died at Sutton, Massachusetts, February 10, 1834.

Sibley, Mark H., was born at Great Barrington, Massachusetts, in 1796; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1814, and commenced practice at Canandaigua; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1834–1835; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was a member of the State Senate in 1841; was a county-judge in 1847; died at Canandaigua, New York, September 8, 1852.

Sibley, Solomon (father of Henry H. Sibley), was born at Sutton, Massachusetts, October 7, 1769; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1795, and commenced practice at Marietta, Ohio, removing soon to Cincinnati, and to Detroit in 1797; was elected a representative from Michigan Territory in the Sixteenth Congress (in place of William W. Woodbridge, resigned); was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving a plurality over Judge Woodward and Mr. McCloskey, serving from November 20, 1820, to March 3, 1823; was appointed judge of the State Supreme Court in 1824, and occupied the position until deafness forced him to resign in 1836; died at Detroit, Michigan, April 4, 1846.

Sickles, Daniel E., was born in New York, October, 1821; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847, and of the State Senate in 1865; was appointed by President Pierce secretary of legation to London, Mr. Buchanan being the minister; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,716 votes against 2,905 votes for Duganne, American, and 2,126 votes for Pelton, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 3,177 votes against 3,015 votes for Williamson, Republican, and 2,874 votes for Walbridge, Independent Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; on the 28th of February, 1859, he killed Philip Barton Key at Washington City for having had criminal connection with his wife, and was tried for murder, and acquitted; entered the Union army in 1861 as colonel of the New-York Excelsior Regiment, and served through the war, losing a leg at the battle of Gettysburg July 2, 1863, and was placed on the retired list as major-general April 14, 1869; was appointed by President Johnson minister to the Netherlands, but declined; was a delegate from New York to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1868; was appointed by President Grant minister to Spain, serving May 15, 1869–December 20, 1873; returned to New York.

Sickles, Nicholas, was born at Kinderhook, New York; resided at Kingston; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,446 votes against 2,063 votes for Barringer, Whig, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; died at Kingston, New York, May 13, 1845.

Sill, Thomas H., was born in Connecticut; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Erie, Pennsylvania, in 1812; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of Patrick Farrelly, deceased) as a Whig, serving from April 3, 1826, to March 3, 1827; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848.

Silsbee, Nathaniel, was born in Essex County, Massachusetts, in 1773; received an academical education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Mr. Stephens, Federalist, by 7 votes; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, defeating Timothy Pickering, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; declined a re-election; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1821, and of the State Senate in 1823–1825; was elected a United-States senator as a Democrat (in place of James Lloyd, resigned), and was re-elected, serving from December 4, 1826, to March 3, 1835; died at Salem, Massachusetts, July 1, 1850.

Silvester, Peter, was born in New York; was a member of the Albany Committee of Safety in 1774; was a delegate to the New-York Provincial Congress May 8, 1775, to May 13, 1776; was elected a representative from New York in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was a member of the State Senate 1797–1800; died at Kinderhook, New York, January 30, 1845.

Simkins, Eldred, was born at "the Cedar Fields," Edgefield District, South Carolina, August 29, 1779; received a classical education at Dr. Wadell's Willington Academy; was three years at the Litchfield (Connecticut) Law School; then studied with Chancellor De Saussure; was admitted to the bar at Charleston in 1805, and commenced practice at Edgefield Court House in 1806; was repeatedly sent to the State legislature from his native district; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress (as the successor of John C. Calhoun, who had accepted a position in Mr. Monroe's cabinet), defeating Edmund Bacon and William Butler; and was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from February 8, 1818, to March 3, 1821; declined a re-election, resigning in favor of his partner, George McDuffie, and divided his time between his profession and his planting interests; and died on his plantation in 1832.

Simmons, George A., was born in New Hampshire in 1791; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1816; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Keeseville, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,093 votes against 6,852 votes for Ireland, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,533 votes against 3,062 votes for Bailey, American, and 1,752 votes for Thomas, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; died at Keeseville, New York, October 27, 1857.

Simmons, James Fowler, was born at Little Compton, Rhode Island, September 10, 1795; received a thorough English education; became a farmer and a manufacturer; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828–1841; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1847; was again elected a senator, serving from December 7, 1857, to December, 1862, when he resigned; died at Johnson, Rhode Island, July 10, 1864.

Simms, William E., was born in Kentucky; resided at Paris; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,932 votes against 6,865 votes for Harlan, Opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Simons, Samuel, was born at Bridgeport, Connecticut, in 1777; received an academic education; studied medicine, and practised at Bridgeport; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; died at Bridgeport, Connecticut, January 13, 1847.

Simonton, William, was born at Hummelstown, Pennsylvania; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 2,640 votes against 2,131 votes for Hummel, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; died at South Hanover, Pennsylvania, May 18, 1846.

Simpson, John, was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirteenth Congress, but did not take his seat, as he raised a company of volunteers, which he commanded, for the expedition under General Winchester, and was massacred at the River Raisin January 22, 1813.

Simpson, Richard F., was born in South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at the University of South Carolina in 1816; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Pendleton; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849.

Sims, Alexander Dromgoole, was born in Brunswick County, Virginia, June 11, 1803; received a classical education at Chapel-Hill College, and at Union College, Schenectady, where he graduated; removed to Darlington Court House, South Carolina, in 1826, to take charge of the academy there; studied law while teaching; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Darlington; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1840–1844; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a State-rights Democrat, defeating John McQueen; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress by 39 majority, serving from December 1, 1845, until his death at Kingstree, South Carolina, whither he had gone to meet his constituents, November 16, 1848.

Sims, Leonard H., was born in North Carolina; removed to Missouri, and located at Springfield; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Singleton, Otho R., was born in Jessamine County, Kentucky, October 14, 1814; received a classical education, graduating at St. Joseph's College, Bardstown, Kentucky; studied law, and graduated at the Lexington Law School, and practised law; was a member of the State House of Representatives two years, and of the State Senate six years; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,367 votes against 6,669 votes for McClung, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,729 votes against 5,907 votes for William A. Lake, Know-Nothing; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,279 votes against 5,130 votes for Lake, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,040 votes against 2,376 votes for Smith, Opposition, retiring January 12, 1861; was a representative from Mississippi in the Confederate Congress from 1861 until 1865; served in the Confederate army as aide-de-camp to General Robert E. Lee; was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 9,652 votes over Jason Niles, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,130 votes against 4,547 votes for W. M. Hancock, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Singleton, Thomas D., was born in South Carolina; was elected a representative from that State in the Twenty-third Congress as a Nullifier, defeating Thomas R. Mitchell, Union Democrat; died, before taking his seat, in the fall of 1833.

Sinnickson, Clement H., was born in Salem County, New Jersey, September 16, 1834; graduated from Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1855; studied law with William L. Dayton at Trenton; was admitted to the bar in 1858, and has since practised at Salem; entered the Union army in 1861 as lieutenant, and was elected captain in the Fourth New-Jersey Volunteer Infantry, in which he served for the period of its enlistment; and was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,209 votes against 13,019 votes for C. Albertson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,362 votes against 15,472 votes for Sinnerman, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Sinnickson, Thomas, was born in Salem County, New Jersey, in 1745; received a classical education, but turned his attention to mercantile pursuits; served in the Revolutionary war as captain; was for many years a member of the Provincial Council, and afterwards of the State House of Representatives; was presiding judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was again elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; died at Salem, New Jersey, May 15, 1817.

Sinnickson, Thomas, was born at Salem, New Jersey, December 13, 1786; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives for several years; was for twenty years a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; was a judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twentieth Congress (in place of Hodge Thompson, deceased), serving from December 1, 1828, to March 3, 1829; died at Salem, New Jersey.

Sitgreaves, Charles, was born at Easton, Pennsylvania, April 22, 1803; went to New Jersey in 1806; received a classical education; studied and practised law; was in the New-Jersey State military service from 1828 to 1838; was a member of the Assembly of New Jersey in 1831 and 1833; was a member of the Legislative Council in 1834 and 1835; was a member of the State Senate of New Jersey in 1851, 1852, 1853, and 1854; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 16,942 votes against 12,080 votes for Scranton, Republican; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,768 votes against 12,955 votes for Davidson, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869; was president of the Phillipsburg National Bank, and of the Belvidere and Delaware Railroad Company; died at Phillipsburg, Pennsylvania, March 17, 1878.

Sitgreaves, John, was born at New Berne, North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; entered the Revolutionary army in 1776, and was aide-de-camp to Governor Caswell at the battle of Camden; was a member of the Continental Congress 1784-1785; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1786-1789; was appointed by President Jefferson United-States district-judge for North Carolina in 1789, and held the position until he died at Halifax, North Carolina, March 4, 1802.

Sitgreaves, Samuel, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Easton, Pennsylvania; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1790; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to 1798, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Adams a commissioner to treat with Great Britain; died at Philadelphia April 4, 1824.

Skelton, Charles, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to New Jersey, and resided at Trenton; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,259 votes against 8,358 votes for Richards, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 10,229 votes against 9,238 votes for Brown, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Skinner, Richard, was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, May 30, 1788; was educated at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1800, and practised at Manchester, Vermont; was State attorney for Bennington County in 1801; was judge of probate 1806-1812; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was associate judge of the State Supreme Court in 1815, and chief justice in 1816; was a member of the State House of Representatives and its speaker in 1818; was governor of Vermont 1820-1823; was again chief justice of the State Supreme Court 1824-1829; died at Manchester, Vermont, May 23, 1833.

Skinner, Thomson J., jun., was born in Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourth Congress (in place of Theodore Sedgwick, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from January 27, 1797, to March 3, 1799; was again elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1804; was appointed by President Jefferson commissioner of loans.

Slade, Charles, received a public-school education; resided at Carlyle, Illinois; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to July, 1834, when he died, on his way home, in Knox County, Indiana, after an illness of only twenty-four hours.

Slade, William, was born at Cornwall, Vermont, May 9, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1807; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice at Middlebury; was a presidential elector on the Madison ticket in 1812; published and edited "The Columbian Patriot" 1814-1816; was secretary of state 1815-1823; was judge of the Addison-county Court, and subsequently prosecuting-attorney for Addison County; was a clerk in the Department of State at Washington 1823-1829; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1843; was elected reporter of the decisions of the State Supreme Court; was governor of Vermont 1844-1846; was secretary of the National Board of Popular Education; died at Middlebury, Vermont, January 18, 1859.

Slater, James H., was born in Sangamon County, Illinois, in 1826; received a limited common-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a member of the lower House of the Territorial legislature in 1857 and 1858, and then a member of the lower House of the first State legislature; was elected in 1866 district-attorney for the Fifth Judicial District of Oregon, and served two years; and was elected a representative from Oregon in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,588 votes against 11,245 votes for J. G. Wilson, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Slaymaker, Amos, was born in the London Lands, Pennsylvania, March 11, 1755; received a public-school education; served in the Revolutionary army as a private; became a farmer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress (in place of James Whitehill, resigned), serving from December 12, 1814, to March 2, 1815; died at Salisbury, Pennsylvania, June 12, 1837.

Slemons, William F., was born in Weakley County, Tennessee, March 15, 1830; was educated at Bethel College; removed to Arkansas in 1852; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1855, and practised until 1861; was a member of the Arkansas State Convention in 1861; entered the Confederate army in July, 1861, and served through the war, after which he resumed the practice of law; was elected district-attorney in 1866, and reconstructed out of office in 1868; and was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,166 votes against 10,485 votes for John M. Clayton, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,566 votes against 14,159 votes for O. P. Snyder, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Slidell, John, was born in New York in 1793; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Orleans; was United-States district-attorney in 1829-1833; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to November 10, 1845, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Polk minister to Mexico, but, the Mexican Government refusing to receive him, he returned January 26, 1847; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana (in place of Pierre Soulé, resigned), and was re-elected, serving from December 5, 1853, to February 4, 1861, when he retired from the Senate; was sent as commissioner to France by the Confederate Government, and arrested at Havana on the English mail-steamer "Trent" November 8, 1861, by Captain Wilkes, commanding the United-States frigate "San Jacinto;" was brought to the United States, and confined in Fort Warren, Boston Harbor, but soon released on the reclamation of the British Government; he sailed for England January 1, 1862, and resided in France and England until he died at London July 29, 1871.

Slingerland, John I., was born in Albany County, New York, March 1, 1804; received a public-school education; engaged in agricultural pursuits at Bethlehem, near Albany; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; died at Albany October 26, 1861.

Sloan, Andrew, was born at McDonough, Georgia, June 10, 1845; was educated at Marshall College, Georgia, and at Bethany College, West Virginia, which he left before graduating; read law without any tutor, and was admitted to the bar in April, 1866; was elected in May, 1866, county-solicitor of Henry County, Georgia, and resigned in the fall of 1866; removed to Savannah; was appointed deputy-collector of customs; resigned in the spring of 1867, and resumed the practice of law; entered the United-States district-attorney's office at Savannah as an assistant; was afterward regularly appointed as United-States district-attorney, and held the position until he resigned in the spring of 1872, acting at the same time as local counsel for the United States in regard to the cotton claims, and also under the Mixed Commission on British and American claims; was nominated as the Republican candidate for Congress, and was elected a representative from Georgia on the 5th of November, 1872, but Morgan Rawls was returned as representative elect, and obtained the seat; contested the seat, attending to his own case before the House Committee on Elections, and was admitted on the 24th of March, 1874, it having been decided that he had received 10,221 votes against 8,321 votes for Morgan Rawls, Democrat, serving to March 3, 1875.

Sloan, A. Scott, was born at Morrisville, New York, in 1820; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Morrisville; was elected clerk of Madison County in 1847; removed to Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, in 1854; was a member of the Wisconsin House of Representatives in 1856; was appointed a judge of the Circuit Court in 1858; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 34,002 votes against 28,986 votes for Larrabee, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Sloan, Ithamar C., was born in Madison County, New York; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Janesville, Wisconsin, in 1854; was elected district-attorney in 1858 and 1860; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,324 votes against 11,059 votes for Guffy, Union; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 15,538 votes against 10,045 votes for George B. Smith, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Sloan, James, was born in New Jersey, and resided in Gloucester County; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1809; died in Gloucester County, New Jersey, in November, 1811.

Sloane, John, was born at York, Pennsylvania, in 1779; removed to Ohio early in life; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804-1806, serving the last two years as speaker; was United-States receiver of public moneys at Canton 1808-1816, and afterwards at Wooster 1816-1819; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Sixteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1829; was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas for seven years; was secretary of state for Ohio three years; was appointed by President Fillmore treasurer of the United States, serving from November 27, 1850, to April 1, 1853; died at Wooster, Ohio, May 15, 1859.

Sloane, Jonathan, was born in Massachusetts; removed to Ohio, and settled at Ravenna; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837.

Slocum, Henry W., was born at Delphi, New York, September 24, 1827; graduated at West-Point Academy in 1852; on receiving the appointment of second lieutenant, he was assigned to duty in Florida, where he spent about one year; and from 1853 to 1856, as a first lieutenant, he was on duty at Fort Moultrie, on leaving which he resigned his commission; studied law, and was engaged in its practice at Syracuse from 1856 to 1861; in 1859 he was elected to the State legislature, and from 1859 to 1861 he was instructor of artillery in the New-York militia; entered the Union army, when the Rebellion commenced, as colonel of the Twenty-seventh Regiment of New-York Volunteers, and, before the close of 1861, was made a brigadier-general of volunteers; in 1862 he was appointed a major-general, and served till the end of hostilities; in 1865 he was the Democratic candidate for secretary of state of New York, but was defeated, after which he settled at Brooklyn in the practice of law; in 1868 he was chosen a presidential elector; he was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 16,598 votes against 13,734 votes for Booth, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,799 votes against 8,023 votes for E. D. Webster, Republican, and 3,248 votes for R. M. Whiting, jun., Independent Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Slocumb, Jesse, was born in North Carolina in 1782; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to December 20, 1820, when he died of pleurisy, after ten days' illness, at Washington City.

Sloss, Joseph H., was born at Somerville, Alabama, October 12, 1826; received an academic education at Florence, Alabama; studied law at Athens, Tennessee; settled at Edwardsville, Illinois, in 1849; was a member of the legislature of Illinois in 1858-1859; at the commencement of hostilities in 1861, returned to Alabama, and joined the Confederate army, in which he served until the close of the war; was elected mayor of Tusculum soon after the war, and continued in that office (except a short time when he was suspended by the United-States officer commanding in that department) until 1870, when he was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-second Congress as a Conservative Democrat, receiving 9,221 votes against 4,068 votes for J. H. Masterton, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Independent Democratic candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,172 votes against 15,048 votes for G. W. Hewitt, Democrat.

Small, William B., was born at Limington, Maine; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Market, New Hampshire, in 1846; served two terms as solicitor of Rockingham County; left the Democratic party when Fort Sumter was fired upon; was a member of the State Senate in 1870; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Forty-third Congress, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was injured by a fall on the railroad-track at Rochester, and died a few weeks afterwards at New Market, New Hampshire, April 7, 1875.

Smalls, Robert, was born at Beaufort, South Carolina, April 5, 1839; being a slave, was debarred by statute from attending school, but educated himself with such limited advantages as he could secure; removed to Charleston in 1851; worked as a rigger, and led a seafaring life; became connected in 1861 with "The Planter," a steamer plying in Charleston Harbor as a transport, which he took over Charleston Bar in May, 1862, and delivered her and his services to the commander of the United-States blockading squadron; was appointed pilot in the United-States navy, and served in that capacity on the monitor "Keokuk" in the attack on Fort Sumter; served as pilot in the quartermaster's department, and was promoted as captain for gallant and meritorious conduct December 1, 1863, and placed in command of "The Planter," serving until she was put out of commission in 1866; was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1868; was elected a member of the State House of Representatives in 1868, and of the State Senate (to fill a vacancy) in 1870, and re-elected in 1872; and was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,752 votes against 4,461 votes for J. P. M. Epping, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,954 votes against 18,516 votes for G. D. Tillman, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Smart, Ephraim K., was born at Prospect, Massachusetts (now Searsport, Maine), in 1813; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Camden; was appointed postmaster in 1838; was a member of the State Senate in 1841 and 1842; removed to Missouri in 1843, and practised there, but returned to Camden in 1845, and was again appointed postmaster; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,548 votes against 3,852 votes for Johnson, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,911 votes against 5,295 votes for Theophilus Cushing, Whig, and 52 scattering, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was collector of customs at Belfast 1853-1858; established "The Maine Free Press" June 15, 1854, and was its editor until 1857; returned to Camden; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858, and of the State Senate in 1862; removed to Biddeford in 1869, and established "The Maine Democrat," which he edited for a short time; and subsequently returned to Camden, where he died.

Smart, James S., was born, June 14, 1842, in the city of Baltimore, Maryland; received an academic education, graduating from Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in 1863; entered the army in January, 1864, as first lieutenant Sixteenth New-York Heavy Artillery; served in the Army of the James until the second expedition to Fort Fisher; was promoted to a captaincy, and discharged in August, 1865; in November of the same year took charge of "The Washington-county Post," published at Cambridge, New York, and is still connected with that paper; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,835 votes against 13,352 votes for A. Thayer, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Smelt, Dennis, was born in Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Ninth Congress (in place of Joseph Bryan, resigned); was re-elected to the Tenth and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 20, 1806, to March 3, 1811.

Smilie, John, was born in Ireland in 1742; immigrated when a lad to Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was a presidential elector in 1797; was again elected to the Sixth Congress as a Democrat, and re-elected to the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1813; died at Washington City December 30, 1813.

Smith, Albert, was born, at Hanover, Massachusetts, January 3, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1816, and commenced practice at Portland in 1817; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1820; was a postmaster for several years; was United-States marshal for the district of Maine 1830-1838; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress by William Pitt Fessenden, Whig, who received 200 majority; was appointed United-States commissioner to lay out the North-eastern boundary under the Ashburton Treaty, serving 1842-1847; died at Boston May 29, 1867.

Smith, Albert, was born in New York; resided at Batavia; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,844 votes against 3,894 votes for Cooley, Democrat, and 350 votes for Chapin, Abolitionist; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,366 votes against 4,215 votes for Chandler, Democrat, and 736 votes for McKay, American, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Smith, A. Herr, was born in Manor Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, March 7, 1815; graduated at Dickinson College in 1840; studied law with John R. Montgomery at Lancaster; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and has since followed his profession; was elected to the House of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania in 1843, and re-elected in 1844; in 1845 was elected to the State Senate; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,501 votes against 8,526 votes for H. M. North, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,505 votes against 6,220 votes for Patton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,419 votes against 9,574 votes for George Nauman, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Smith, Arthur, was born in Isle-of-Wight County, Virginia, November 15, 1735; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; studied law, but never practised; served in the war of 1812 at the defence of Norfolk; was a member of the State Privy Council; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventeenth Congress, defeating John C. Gray by 341 majority; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 1,600 votes against 1,277 votes for Estill, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; died at Smithsfield, Virginia, March 30, 1853.

Smith, Ballard, was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1821.

Smith, Bernard, was born at Norristown, New Jersey, in 1776; received an academic education; held an office at Washington City; was sent to Europe as bearer of despatches; was postmaster at New Brunswick; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was appointed register of the land-office at Little Rock, and sub-agent to the Quapaw Indians; was private secretary to Governor Izzard; died at Little Rock, Arkansas, July 16, 1835.

Smith, Caleb Blood, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, April 16, 1808; removed with his parents to Ohio in 1814; was educated at the Miami University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Connersville, Indiana; founded and edited "The Indiana Sentinel" in 1832; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1833-1836, serving the last year as speaker; was grand master of Freemasons in Ohio in 1837; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,097 votes against 3,442 votes for C. H. Test, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 4,988 votes against 3,540 votes for Test, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1840; was appointed by President Taylor a member of the commission for investigating the claims of American citizens against Mexico; removed to Cincinnati, where he practised his profession; was a presidential elector on the Fremont ticket in 1856; was appointed by President Lincoln secretary of the interior, serving from March 5, 1861, until December, 1862, when he resigned, having been appointed United-States judge for the district of Indiana; died at Indianapolis, Indiana, January 8, 1864.

Smith, Charles, was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress, but did not take his seat.

Smith, Daniel, was one of the earliest settlers in Tennessee; was appointed by President Washington secretary of the territory south of the Ohio River January 7, 1790; was a general of militia; was appointed a United-States senator from Tennessee (in place of Andrew Jackson, resigned), serving from December 3, 1798, to March 3, 1799; was elected a senator from Tennessee, serving from December 2, 1805, to 1809, when he resigned; died in July, 1818.

Smith, Delazon, was born at New Berlin, New York; received a classical education, graduating at the Oberlin Collegiate Institute of Ohio in 1837; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but became editor of "The True Jeffersonian" at Rochester, New York, and subsequently of "The Western Empire" at Dayton, Ohio; was appointed by President Tyler special commissioner to Quito; removed to Iowa Territory in 1846, and became a licensed Methodist-Episcopal preacher; removed from there to Oregon Territory in 1852; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives in 1854-1856; was a delegate to the convention that framed a State Constitution in 1857; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Oregon as a Democrat, serving from February 14, 1859, to March 3, 1859; died at Portland, Oregon, November 17, 1860.

Smith, Edward Henry, was born at Smithtown, Long Island, in 1809; received a public-school education; was reared a farmer, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Fusion candidate, receiving 11,882 votes against 10,631 votes for Carter, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Smith, Francis O. J., was born in Maine (then a part of Massachusetts); received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Portland; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831; was a member of the State Senate in 1833, and its president; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat, defeating Sewall and Worthington, both Democrats; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 394 majority; and was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress by Albert Smith, Democrat; was defeated as the Whig candidate for clerk of the House in the Twenty-seventh Congress, although the Whig candidate for speaker of the House was chosen; was prominently engaged in introducing electric telegraphs; died at Deering, Maine, in 1876.

Smith, George, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eleventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1813.

Smith, George L., was born in Hillsborough County, New Hampshire, December 11, 1840; received a collegiate education; served in the Union army; settled in Louisiana at the close of the war, and engaged in mercantile business; was elected a member of the General Assembly of Louisiana in 1870 and 1871, and re-elected in 1872; was proprietor of "The Shreveport South-Western Telegram;" is president of the Shreveport Savings Bank and Trust Company; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Samuel Peters, member elect) without opposition, receiving 13,897 votes, and took his seat December 4, 1873, serving to March 3, 1875.

Smith, Gerrit, was born at Utica, New York, March 6, 1797; received a classical education, graduating at Hamilton College in 1818; studied law, but did not then enter into general practice, his time being taken up with the management of the large landed estate which he inherited; he identified himself with the Antislavery party in 1853, and was then admitted to the bar; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as an Ultra Abolitionist, receiving 8,049 votes against 6,206 votes for Hough, Democrat, and 5,620 votes for Ten Eyck, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to 1854, when he resigned; his mind was somewhat troubled after the arrest of John Brown; he died at New York December 28, 1874. He published "Sermons and Speeches," "Theologics," "Nature the Base of a Free Theology," "The Religion of Reason," and many political and antislavery tracts and speeches.

Smith, Green Clay (son of John Speed Smith), was born at Richmond, Kentucky, July 2, 1830; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University in 1849; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice; was a school commissioner 1853-1857; served in the Mexican war as second lieutenant in Humphrey Marshall's Kentucky Mounted Volunteers June, 1846-July, 1847; entered the Union army in 1861 as colonel of the Fourth Kentucky Cavalry; was appointed brigadier-general in 1862, and major-general in 1863; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Union candidate, receiving 6,936 votes against 2,283 votes for Menzies, Democrat, and 1,970 votes for Leathers, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 7,666 votes against 6,421 votes for A. H. Ward, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to 1866, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Johnson governor of Montana, which position he filled until 1869; became a preacher in the Baptist Church.

Smith, H. Boardman, was born at Whitingham, Vermont, August 18, 1826; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, in 1847; studied law, and practised; was appointed by the governor of New York judge of the Chemung-county courts in September, 1859, and, in the following November, was elected to the same office; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,276 votes against 13,352 votes for Robinson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,284 votes against 13,481 votes for R. U. Sherman, Liberal and Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Smith, Isaac, was born in New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1755; was a tutor in that college; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fourth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1797; was appointed by President Washington a commissioner to negotiate a treaty with the Seneca Indians; was a judge of the Superior Court of New Jersey; died in 1837.

Smith, Isaac, was born in Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815.

Smith, Israel, was born in Connecticut April 4, 1759; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1781; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Rupert, Vermont, removing subsequently to Rutland; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the convention that adopted the Federal Constitution in 1791; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Second Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Third and Fourth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 2, 1793; was appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court in 1797; was again elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont, serving from October 17, 1803, to 1807, when he resigned to serve as governor of Vermont 1807-1808; was a presidential elector in 1809; died at Rutland, Vermont, December 2, 1810.

Smith, James, was born in Ireland in 1720; came to the United States with his father in 1729; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Shippenport, but afterward removed to York; was active in pre-Revolutionary movements, and in 1774 raised the first volunteer company in Pennsylvania for the purpose of resisting Great Britain; was a delegate to the Pennsylvania Convention of January, 1775; was a member of the Continental Congress 1776-1778; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1780; died at York, Pennsylvania, July 11, 1806. He published an "Essay on the Constitutional Power of Great Britain over the Colonies in America."

Smith, James S., was born in Orange County, North Carolina; studied medicine, and practised at Hillsborough; was elected a representative in the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1821.

Smith, Jedediah K., was born in New Hampshire in 1770; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Hillsborough County; was a State councillor; died in 1828.

Smith, Jeremiah, was born at Peterborough, New Hampshire, November 29, 1759; served in the Revolutionary army, and was wounded in the battle of Bennington; received a classical education; graduated at Rutgers College, New Jersey, in 1780; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Dover, New Hampshire; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Second Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to 1797, when he resigned; was United-States attorney for the district of New Hampshire 1798-1800; was appointed by President John Adams judge of the United-States Circuit Court, but did not accept the office; was a presidential elector in 1809; was governor of New Hampshire 1809-1810; was for several years chief justice of the State Superior Court; died at Dover, September 21, 1842. He published "Sketch of Judge Caleb Ellis."

Smith, John, was born at Brookhaven, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1784-1799; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifth Congress (in the place of Jonathan N. Haven, deceased) as a Democrat, receiving 1,599 votes against 1,098 votes for S. Wood, Federalist, and 150 scattering; was re-elected to the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from February 6, 1799, to February 23, 1804, when he took his seat as a United-States senator from New York (in place of De Witt Clinton, resigned), serving to March 3, 1813; was appointed by President Madison in 1813 United-States marshal for the district of New York; died at Brookhaven, New York, August 9, 1816.

Smith, John, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 2, 1815; died in March, 1836.

Smith, John, was born in 1735; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Ohio as a Democrat, serving from April 21, 1803, to February 23, 1808, when he resigned; he had been charged with having been connected with Burr and Blennerhasset, and a motion was made in the Senate to expel him, but it failed by one vote, and he then resigned; died July 10, 1816.

Smith, John, was born at Barre, Massachusetts, August 14, 1789; received a public-school education; removed when a boy to St. Albans, Vermont; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice; was State's attorney for Franklin County 1826-1832; was a member of the General Assembly for nine successive years, serving as speaker in 1831, 1832, and 1833; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat by 460 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was a candidate for re-election, but was defeated by Augustus Young, Whig, who received 1,335 majority; resumed practice, and a few years afterwards became interested in railroad projects; died at St. Albans, Vermont, November 26, 1853.

Smith, John A., was born at Hillsborough, Ohio, September 23, 1814; graduated at Miami University; studied and practised law; was a member of the Ohio legislature in 1841 and 1842; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Ohio in 1851; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 12,199 votes against 11,827 votes for J. W. Denver, Democrat, and 326 votes for Loudon, Independent candidate, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Smith, John Ambler, was born at Village View, near Dinwiddie Court House, Virginia, September 23, 1847; was educated at David Turner's high school at Richmond, Virginia; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1867, and practises his profession; was appointed in 1868 commissioner in chancery of the courts of Richmond, and was Commonwealth attorney of Charles-City and New-Kent Counties for one year; was elected to the State Senate of Virginia as a Republican in 1869, and was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,082 votes against 12,514 votes for G. D. Wise, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; practised law at Washington City.

Smith, John Cotton, was born at Sharon, Connecticut, February 12, 1765; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1783; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1786, and commenced practice at Sharon; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1793, 1796-1800, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Sixth Congress (in place of Jonathan Bracc, resigned) as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from November 17, 1800, to August, 1806, when he resigned; was a member of the Northern Society of Antiquarians in Copenhagen, and of the Connecticut Historical Society; was one of the original vice-presidents of the American Bible Society; was a judge of the Supreme Court in 1809, lieutenant-governor in 1810, and governor of Connecticut in 1813-1818; died at Sharon, Connecticut, December 7, 1845. His "Eulogy," by Rev. W. W. Andrews, before the Connecticut Historical Society, was published in 1847.

Smith, John Q., was born in Warren County, Ohio, November 5, 1824; was educated at the common schools; is a farmer; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1860-1861, and 1872-1873; was a member of the Ohio House of Representatives in 1862 and 1863; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,929 votes against 13,700 votes for John W. Sohn, Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Smith, John Speed (father of Green Clay Smith), was born in Jessamine County, Kentucky, July 31, 1792; received a public-school education; served in the campaigns against the Indians under General Harrison, whose aide-de-camp he was at the battle of the Thames in 1813; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,631 majority over Stephen Richardson, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; served several terms as a member of the State House of Representatives, and was speaker in 1827; was appointed by President Jackson United-States attorney for the district of Kentucky; was for several years State superintendent of public works of Kentucky; died at Richmond, Kentucky, June 6, 1854.

Smith, John T., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 851 majority, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Smith, Jonathan B., was born at Philadelphia; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1760; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1777-1778.

Smith, Joseph S., was born in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, June 20, 1824; received a common-school education; studied and practised law; in 1855 he was prosecuting-attorney of the Third Judicial District of Washington Territory; was afterwards elected to the legislature, and was speaker of the House of Representatives of that Territory; under President Buchanan's administration, was United-States district-attorney for Washington Territory for two years, but resigned on his removal to Oregon; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,789 votes against 10,580 votes for Logan, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Smith, Josiah, was born at Pembroke, Massachusetts, in 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1774; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; returning from Washington, he took the small-pox while passing through New York, and died after his arrival at home, March 28, 1803.

Smith, Melancthon, was born at New York; was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1785-1788; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1792.

Smith, Merriwether, was born in Essex County, Virginia; received an academical education; was for many years a member of the Colonial, and subsequently the State, House of Representatives; was a delegate to the Revolutionary Conventions of 1775 and 1776; was a delegate to the State Convention that adopted the Federal Constitution; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1778-1782; died at an advanced age.

Smith, Nathan, was born at Roxbury, Connecticut, in 1770; received a classical education; studied law at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar, and practised at New Haven; was a member of the State House of Representatives for several years; was State's attorney for New-Haven County; was a delegate to the Hartford Convention of Federalists in 1814; was United-States attorney for the district of Connecticut; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut as a Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to December 6, 1835, when he died at Washington.

Smith, Nathaniel, was born at Woodbury, Connecticut, January 6, 1762; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1789, and commenced practice at Woodbury; was a member at different times of the State Senate and House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fourth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1799; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Connecticut 1796-1819; died at Woodbury, Connecticut, March 9, 1822.

Smith, O'Brien, was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807.

Smith, Oliver Hampton, was born near Trenton, New Jersey, October 23, 1794; removed to Indiana in 1817; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Indianapolis; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822; was prosecuting-attorney for the Third Judicial District in 1824 and 1825; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 1,371 majority over Ratcliff Boon, Clay Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; was defeated by Ratcliff Boon as a candidate for the Twentieth Congress; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; declined in 1845 to be the Whig candidate for governor of Indiana; died at Indianapolis, Indiana, March 19, 1849. He published "Recollections of Congressional Life."

Smith, Perry, was born at Washington, Connecticut; received a classical education; studied law at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1807, and commenced practice at New Milford, Connecticut; was for four years a member of the State House of Representatives; was judge of probate for Litchfield County for two years; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; died at New Milford, Connecticut, in 1852.

Smith, R. Barnwell, was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirty-seventh Congress. He had his name changed in September, 1837, by the Court of Equity, to R. Barnwell Rhett, to inherit a legacy, to the possession of which the assumption of the name of Rhett was made obligatory.

Smith, Richard, was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1774-1776.

Smith, Robert, was born at Peterborough, New Hampshire, June 12, 1802; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; removed to Alton, Illinois, in 1832; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1836-1840; was enrolling-clerk of that House 1840-1843; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,778 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 4,061 majority; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 1,991 majority over Trumbull, regularly nominated Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,299 votes against 7,512 votes for Lansing, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; served in the Union army as paymaster; died at Alton, Illinois, December 21, 1867.

Smith, Samuel, was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, July 27, 1752; received a public-school education; entered his father's counting-room at Baltimore, and in 1771 visited Europe as a supercargo of one of his father's vessels; served gallantly in the Revolutionary war as captain, major, and colonel, receiving several wounds; was a member of the State legislature; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Third Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1803; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 2, 1815; commanded the Maryland troops at the successful defence of Baltimore in 1812; was again elected a representative (in place of Nicholas R. Moore, resigned), serving from February 4, 1816, to December 17, 1822, when he again took his seat as senator (in place of William Pinkney, deceased), serving to March 2, 1833; in 1835 he was called by the citizens of Baltimore to organize a force, and put down a mob which had possession of the city; was elected mayor of Baltimore, and died there very suddenly April 23, 1839.

Smith, Samuel, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Tenth and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1811.

Smith, Samuel, was born at Peterborough, New Hampshire, in 1767; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; became a manufacturer of paper; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirteenth Congress on the "Peace" ticket headed by Daniel Webster, receiving 13,569 votes against 15,927 votes for J. Johnson, War Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at Peterborough, New Hampshire, January 17, 1842.

Smith, Samuel A., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Doylestown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833.

Smith, Samuel A., was born in Monroe County, Tennessee, June 26, 1822; was reared on a farm; received a public-school education; taught school while he studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice at Charleston, Tennessee; was State's attorney for the Third Judicial Circuit 1845-1848; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1848; was defeated as a presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848, and on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,703 votes against 6,180 votes for Van Dyke, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,872 votes against 7,331 votes for Anderson, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,662 votes against 6,800 votes for Heiskell, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859; was appointed by President Buchanan commissioner of the General Land Office, serving from January 18, 1860, to February 12, 1860, when he resigned.

Smith, Thomas, was born in Scotland; immigrated to the United States at an early age, and located at Bedford, Pennsylvania, February 9, 1769; was deputy-surveyor, prothonotary, clerk of the sessions, and county-recorder; served in the Revolutionary war as colonel of militia; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1776; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a member of the Continental Congress 1780-1782; was president-judge of his judicial district 1791-1794; was judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania 1794-1809; died at Bedford, Pennsylvania, June 10, 1809.

Smith, Thomas, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving 862 majority, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Smith, Thomas, was born in Pennsylvania in 1800; removed to Indiana when a boy; was apprenticed to a tanner at Rising Sun; received a public-school education; removed to Versailles, Indiana; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 7,021 votes against 6,766 votes for Matson, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Smith, Truman, was born at Roxbury, Connecticut, November 27, 1791; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Litchfield, Connecticut; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831, 1832, and 1834; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,988 votes against 3,526 votes for Charles B. Phelps, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 836 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was a presidential elector on the Clay and Frelinghuysen ticket in 1844; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut, serving from December 3, 1849, to April 11, 1854, when he resigned; removed to New York; was appointed by President Lincoln judge of the Slave-trade Court under the treaty with Great Britain of 1862, and held the position until the court was abolished.

Smith, William, was born in Maryland in 1730; was an ardent supporter of the Revolution; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Maryland 1777-1778; was elected a representative from Maryland in the First Congress as a Federalist, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was appointed by President Washington auditor of the treasury July 16, 1791-November 28, 1791; was a presidential elector on the Washington ticket in 1792; died at Baltimore March 27, 1814.

Smith, William, was born in South Carolina; received a classical education; was elected a representative from the Pinckney District of South Carolina as a Federalist in the First Congress; and was re-elected to the Second, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Congresses, serving from May 25, 1789, to July 10, 1797, when he resigned, having been appointed minister to Portugal, serving until September 9, 1801; died on his plantation in South Carolina in 1812. He published "A Comparative View of the Constitutions of the States and of the United States," a pamphlet against the pretensions of Jefferson to the presidency, and an address to his constituents. His speeches and letters to his constituents were republished in London in 1795.

Smith, William, was born in North Carolina in 1762, but migrated to York District, South Carolina, when very young and poor; received a classical education, graduating at the Mount-Zion College, Winnsborough; studied law; was admitted to the bar at Charleston January 6, 1784, and commenced practice in York District; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and a State senator 1806-1808, when he was elected judge; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1799; was elected a United-States senator (to fill a vacancy occasioned by the resignation of John Taylor) as a Democrat, and was re-elected in 1817, serving from January 10, 1817, to March 3, 1823; was the Union candidate for re-election, but was defeated by R. Y. Hayne, Nullifier; was again elected a senator (to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of John Gaillard), serving from 1826 to March 3, 1831; was the Union candidate for re-election, but was defeated by S. D. Miller, Nullifier; he was twice elected president pro tempore of the Senate; he was offered and declined the appointment of judge of the Supreme Court of the United States; in 1829 he received the seven electoral votes of Georgia for Vice-President; differing with Mr. Calhoun on the question of nullification, he removed to Huntsville, Alabama, in 1833; he declined the appointment of associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States tendered him by President Jackson in 1836; he was a member of the State legislature of Alabama 1835-1839; owning profitable plantations in Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, he was a millionaire; and he died at Huntsville June 26, 1840.

Smith, William, was born at Chesterfield, Virginia; resided at Louisburg; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 282 majority over James Wilson; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 169 majority over Leftwich; and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 85 majority over Thomas Marshall, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1827.

Smith, William, was born in King George County, Virginia, September 6, 1797; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Culpepper Court House; established a line of mail-coaches from Washington City to Milledgeville, Georgia; was a member of the State legislature in 1836 and in 1840; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress (having successfully contested the election of Linn Banks) as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was governor of Virginia 1845-1848; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,223 votes against 3,931 votes for Snowden, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,332 votes against 3,941 votes for Snowden, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,147 votes against 4,845 votes for Thomas, Opposition, and 430 votes for Shackelford, Independent Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1861; was a representative from Virginia in the First Confederate Congress, serving from February 22, 1862, to August 12, 1863, when he resigned to accept a brigadier-general's commission in the Confederate army; was promoted to the rank of major-general August 13, 1863, and resigned December 31, 1863; was governor of Virginia from January 1, 1864, until the overthrow of the Confederacy.

Smith, William Alexander, was born in Warren County, North Carolina, January 9, 1828; received a public-school education; was a farmer; was a member of the Secession Convention of North Carolina in 1861, of the State legislature in 1864, of the Constitutional Convention in 1865, of the State Senate in 1870; was elected president of the North-Carolina Railroad in 1868, and of the Yadkin-River Railroad; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,879 votes against 13,146 votes for S. H. Rogers, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Smith, William E., was born at Augusta, Georgia, March 14, 1829; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in May, 1848, under a special act of the legislature, and practised; was also a planter; was elected ordinary of Dougherty County, Georgia, in 1853; was elected solicitor-general of the South-west Circuit in 1858, and the same year was appointed by Governor Brown to fill the unexpired term of John W. Evans; was nominated as the candidate of the Union party in Dougherty County for the State Convention in 1860, but declined in favor of Lott Warren; entered the Confederate army as a volunteer in the Fourth Georgia Volunteers after the State seceded; was elected captain in April, 1862; lost a leg in the defence of Richmond at King's School House June 25, 1862; was elected to the Confederate Congress in 1863; was tendered the office of circuit-judge in 1874 by Governor Smith, but declined; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,108 votes against 9,789 votes for R. H. Whiteley, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,627 votes against 8,015 votes for R. H. Whiteley, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Smith, William J., was born at Birmingham, England, September 24, 1823; came to the United States when very young; received a good public-school education; learned the painter's trade in Goshen, Orange County, New York; removed to the South in 1846; joined a Tennessee regiment at the commencement of the war with Mexico, and served until its close; was engaged in painting at Memphis for ten years, and then went into the horticultural business in Hardeman County; at the commencement of the Rebellion he was persecuted and arrested on account of his devotion to the Union cause, and, after his release, he acted as guide for the Federal troops; he enlisted as a private in the First West-Tennessee Cavalry, afterwards re-organized as the Sixth Tennessee Cavalry, and was promoted through the different grades until he became brevet brigadier-general; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention; was a member of the State House of Representatives, serving for two years and a half, and was then elected to the State Senate; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-first Congress, receiving 5,393 legal votes against 4,082 votes for Leftwich, Democrat, and 2,439 votes for Nunn, Independent Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Smith, William N. H., was born at Murfreesborough, North Carolina, September 24, 1812; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1834; studied law in New Haven for two years; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Murfreesborough, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives of North Carolina in 1840, and of the State Senate in 1848; was chosen, while a senator, solicitor of the First Judicial District of North Carolina, and held the position for nine years; was defeated by 38 votes as the Whig candidate for Congress; was again elected to the State House of Representatives in 1858, but resigned when elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a State-rights American, receiving 6,045 votes against 5,531 votes for Shaw, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, until March 3, 1861; was a representative from North Carolina in the First Confederate Congress; was a member of the Democratic National Convention of 1868 which nominated Seymour and Blair; was appointed chief justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina January 10, 1878.

Smith, William Russell, was born at Tuscaloosa, Alabama; received a classical education, and was at the University of Alabama, but did not graduate; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Greensborough, Alabama; commanded a company of volunteers in the hostilities against the Creek Indians in 1836; removed to Tuscaloosa in 1838; edited "The Monitor," and was elected mayor in 1839; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1842 and 1843, and was defeated as a candidate for the State Senate in 1843; removed to Fayette County; was elected brigadier-general of militia, and judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-second Congress as a Union Whig, receiving 4,164 votes against 4,114 votes for John Erwin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,021 votes against 2,964 votes for S. Moore, Democrat, and 2,744 votes for Hale, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a National American, receiving 5,089 votes against 3,341 votes for S. Moore, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as a candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress by Sydenham Moore; was a member of the State Convention of 1861, and an active opponent of secession; was elected a representative in the Confederate Congress in 1861, and re-elected in 1863; was president of the University of Alabama for several years after the war, and then devoted himself to his profession and to literary pursuits. He is the author of "Smith's Alabama Justice," "Smith's Digest of the Opinions of the Supreme Court," and several poetical works.

Smith, William Stephens, was born in New York in 1755; received a classical education, graduating at New-Jersey College in 1774; entered the Revolutionary army as aide-de-camp to General Sullivan in 1776; was lieutenant-colonel of the Thirtieth Massachusetts Infantry from November, 1778, to March, 1779; was for a short time on the staff of General Steuben, and then aide-de-camp to General Washington until the close of the war; was appointed by President Washington secretary of legation at London; was surveyor of the port of New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died at Lebanon, New York, June 10, 1816.

Smith, Worthington C., was born at St. Albans, Vermont, April 23, 1823; graduated at the University of Vermont; studied, but did not practise, law; was largely interested in the manufacture and sale of iron; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Vermont in 1863; was a member of the State Senate of Vermont in 1864 and 1865, and was its presiding officer pro tempore during the last term; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 5,730 votes against 2,794 votes for Aldis, Republican, and 2,680 votes for Brigham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 11,105 votes against 4,337 votes for Brigham, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,116 votes against 3,047 votes for H. Gillett, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873.

Smithers, Nathaniel B., was born at Dover, Delaware, October 8, 1818; received a classical education, graduating at Lafayette College, Pennsylvania, in 1836; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and commenced practice at Dover; was clerk of the State House of Representatives in 1845 and 1847; was appointed, in January, 1863, secretary of state for Delaware, but resigned in a few months; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,220 votes against 13 votes for Brown, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Baltimore in 1864.

Smyth, Alexander, was born on the Island of Rathlin, Ireland, in 1765; immigrated to the United States in 1775, and located in Bourdetourt County, Virginia; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in May, 1789, and commenced practice at Abingdon; removed in 1792 to Wythe County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1792, 1796, 1800, 1804-1808; was appointed by President Jefferson colonel of a United-States rifle regiment, which he commanded at the South-West until 1811, when he was ordered to Washington to prepare a system of discipline for the army; was appointed inspector-general in 1812, and ordered to the Canadian frontier, where he failed in an invasion of Canada, and left the army; resumed his practice; was appointed a member of the State Board of Public Works; was again elected to the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,443 votes against 711 votes for Estill; was re-elected to the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1825; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 2,604 votes against 991 votes for Sharp; and was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to April 17, 1830, when he died at Washington City. He published "Regulations for United-States Infantry," and "Remarks on the Apocalypse."

Smyth, George W., was born in North Carolina; removed to Texas, and located at Jasper; was elected a representative from Texas in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving no opposition, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Smyth, William, was born in Tyrone County, near Londonderry, Ireland, January 3, 1824; received an academic education; came to Pennsylvania in 1838; taught school; was clerk in a store; removed to Iowa in 1844; studied law in Iowa City; commenced practice in Marion in 1847; was appointed prosecuting-attorney of Linn County in 1848; was elected and re-elected continuously without opposition to the same office as a Democrat until the fall of 1853, when, on the death of Judge Carleton, he was appointed judge of the District Court for the Fourth Judicial District, Iowa; was elected judge of the same in the spring of 1854 without opposition; resigned in the spring of 1857, and resumed the practice of law at Marion; in 1858 was appointed by the legislature chairman of the commission to revise and codify the laws of the State (the work of the commission, with some legislative amendments, is the revision of 1860); was appointed in 1860 chairman of the commission of legal inquiry for the State for six years; in 1861 was appointed by the legislature one of the four commissioners to act in conjunction with Governor Kirkwood in the management and direction of the sale of the war and defence-fund bonds of the State; was commissioned colonel of the Thirty-first Regiment Iowa Infantry August 10, 1862; resigned December 15, 1864, on account of reduced command, and resumed the practice of law at Marion; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,753 votes against 13,227 votes for Leffingwell, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Snapp, Henry, was born in Livingston County, New York, June 30, 1822; was educated in Rochester, and in Homer, Illinois, after his removal to Illinois in 1833; studied law in Joliet; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and practised twenty-five years; was elected to the Senate of Illinois in 1869, and served until he was nominated for Congress in the fall of 1871; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican by 3,000 majority over L. Leland, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Sneed, William H., was born in Tennessee; resided at Knoxville; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,240 votes against 5,327 votes for Cummins, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Snodgrass, John Fryall, was born in Berkeley County, Virginia, March 2, 1804; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Parkersburg; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1850; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,712 votes against 2,506 votes for Sterritt, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to June 5, 1854, when he died at Parkersburg while pleading a case in court.

Snow, William D., was born in the State of New York; published "The Rochester Tribune" at Rochester, New York, 1852-1854; removed to Arkansas, and was elected a United-States senator from that State in 1864 under the proclamation of President Johnson; his credentials were presented at the special session in March, 1865; when an attempt was made, in February, 1866, to have them considered, they were laid on the table by a vote of 29 ayes against 17 nays, four senators being absent.

Snow, William W., was born in Massachusetts; removed to New York, and located at Oneonta; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,664 votes against 7,608 votes for Chase, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Snyder, Adam W., was born in 1801; resided at Belleville, Illinois; was for several years a member of the Illinois House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat, receiving 3,116 votes against 3,202 votes for Reynolds, Democrat, and 2,018 votes for Gatewood, Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress by Gatewood, Whig; was nominated as the Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, but died, before the election, May 14, 1842, at Belleville.

Snyder, John, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Selinsgrove; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Snyder, Oliver P., was born in Missouri November 13, 1833; received an academic education; removed to Arkansas in 1853; was engaged for several years in scientific and literary pursuits, and had charge of an institution of learning; studied and practised law; was a member of the General Assembly of Arkansas in 1864 and 1865; was elected in 1867 as delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was chosen in 1868 as presidential elector on the Republican ticket; was elected in 1868 a member of the State Senate for four years; was appointed in 1868 one of three commissioners to revise and re-arrange the statutes of Arkansas; declined congressional nominations in 1865 and 1868, and was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,742 votes against 8,357 votes for A. A. C. Rogers, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, defeating Mr. L. Bell, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Sollers, Augustus R., was born in Maryland; resided at Prince Frederick; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 3,815 votes against 2,438 votes for Jenifer, Independent, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was a presidential elector on the Fillmore and Donelson ticket in 1856.

Somes, Daniel E., was born in New Hampshire; removed to Biddeford, Maine; was a manufacturer; was mayor of Biddeford 1855-1857; was president of the Biddeford City Bank 1856-1858; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,552 votes against 6,990 votes for Ira T. Drew, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; removed to Washington City, and became a claim-agent and patent-attorney.

Soule, Nathan, was born in New York; resided at Fort Plain; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1837; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833.

Soulé, Pierre, was born at Castillon, France, in 1801; was sent to the Jesuits' College at Toulouse to prepare for the priesthood, but refused to proceed with his studies, and was sent to an academy at Bordeaux; became engaged in revolutionary movements; went to Paris, where he taught, and became an editor; was sentenced to a fine and imprisonment for publishing revolutionary articles; escaped to the United States, and reached New Orleans in 1825; studied English and local law, and was admitted to the bar; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana (in place of Alexander Barrow, deceased), serving from February 3, 1847, to March 3, 1847; was again elected a senator, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 6, 1853, when he resigned; was appointed by President Pierce minister to Spain, serving from April 7, 1853, to January 1, 1855; was arrested at New Orleans in 1862, and imprisoned at Fort Lafayette, obtaining his release on condition that he would not return to the South until the suppression of the Rebellion; died at New Orleans March 26, 1870.

Southard, Henry (father of Samuel L. Southard), was born on Long Island October, 1749; when he was eight years of age, his father removed with him to Baskingridge, New Jersey; was reared on a farm, and, as a day-laborer, earned the money to purchase a homestead; took an active part in the Revolutionary war; was for nine years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses on a general ticket, receiving on the last trial 18,705 votes against 14,702 votes for his Whig opponent, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1811; was again elected to the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1821; died at Baskingridge, New Jersey, June 2, 1842.

Southard, Isaac, was born in New Jersey; resided at Somerville; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-second Congress as a Clay Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833.

Southard, Milton I., was born in Licking County, Ohio; received a collegiate education, graduating at Denison University, at Granville, Ohio, in 1861; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1863, and has been engaged in the practice continuously since; was elected prosecuting-attorney for Muskingum County in 1867, re-elected in 1869, and again in 1871; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,109 votes against 12,638 votes for L. P. Marsh, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,602 votes against 9,651 votes for N. Barnhill, Republican, and 292 votes for Gertner, Temperance; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,706 votes against 14,642 votes for J. H. Barnhill, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Southard, Samuel L. (son of Henry Southard), was born at Baskingridge, New Jersey, June 9, 1787; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1804; studied law while a tutor in the family of John Taliaferro of Virginia; was admitted to the bar there, and commenced practice at Kensington, New Jersey; was appointed in 1814 law-reporter by the State legislature; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1815, and, in a week after taking his seat, was appointed an associate justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey; was a presidential elector in 1820; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey (in place of James J. Wilson, resigned) as a Whig, serving from February 16, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was secretary of the navy September 16, 1823-March 3, 1829, during which time he was acting secretary of the treasury March 7, 1825-July 1, 1825, and also acted for a short period as secretary of war; was appointed in 1829 attorney-general of New Jersey; was governor of New Jersey in 1832; was again elected a United-States senator, serving from December 2, 1833, to May 3, 1842, when he resigned; died at Fredericksburg, Virginia, June 26, 1842. He published "Reports of the Supreme Court of New Jersey 1816-1820," with a number of political and literary addresses.

Southgate, William W., was born in Kentucky; resided at Covington; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 300 majority over Phelps and Trimble, both Democrats, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1840, and on the Clay and Frelinghuysen ticket in 1844; died at Covington, Kentucky, December 26, 1844.

Spaight, Richard Dobbs (father of Richard Dobbs Spaight), was born in Craven County, North Carolina; was sent to Ireland, where he commenced his academic studies, and completed them at the University of Glasgow; returned home in 1778, joined the Continental army as aide-de-camp to General Caswell, and was at the battle of Camden in 1780; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1781-1786 and 1792, and was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1782-1784, serving in both capacities; was a delegate to the convention which framed the Constitution of the United States in 1787; was governor of North Carolina in 1792; was elected a representative in the Fifth Congress as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Nathan Bryan); and was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, serving from December 10, 1798, to March 3, 1801; was elected to the State Senate of North Carolina in 1801; was challenged by John Stanly; the parties met on Sunday afternoon, and, on the exchange of the fourth fire, Governor Spaight received a wound in the right side, of which he died in twenty-three hours, September 6, 1802.

Spaight, Richard Dobbs (son of Richard Dobbs Spaight), was born at New Berne, North Carolina, in 1796; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at New Berne; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1819, and of the State Senate in 1820-1822; was elected a representative in the Eighteenth Congress, and served from December 1, 1823, until March 3, 1825; was a member of the State Senate in 1824, and served continuously until 1834; was governor of North Carolina in 1835-1837; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits, and declined all official positions until he died November 2, 1850.

Spalding, Rufus P., was born at West Tisbury, Massachusetts, May 3, 1798; went with his parents to Connecticut when young; graduated at Yale College; studied law, and commenced its practice in Trumbull County, Ohio; was a member of the State legislature of Ohio in 1839-1840, and again in 1841-1842, serving the last term as speaker of the House; was elected judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio in 1849, and held the position until the new State Constitution was adopted, when he resumed practice at Cleveland, where he now resides; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,293 votes against 4,183 votes for Paige, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 14,472 votes against 6,661 votes for J. H. Wade, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,479 votes against 7,974 votes for Payne, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Spalding, Thomas, was elected a representative from Georgia in the Ninth Congress (having successfully contested the election of Cowles Mead), serving from December 25, 1805, to 1806, when he resigned.

Spangler, David, resided at Coshocton, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; died at Coshocton, Ohio, October 18, 1856.

Spangler, Jacob, was born in 1768; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 1, 1817, to April 20, 1818, when he resigned; was surveyor-general of Pennsylvania; died at York, Pennsylvania, June 17, 1843.

Sparks, William A. J., was born near New Albany, Indiana, November 19, 1828; his parents removed to Illinois in 1836, and shortly thereafter died; he, in early boyhood, dependent upon his own exertions, labored on a farm, and at intervals attended country-schools; subsequently taught school, and graduated at McKendree College, Illinois, in 1850; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and subsequently practised, except when engaged in official duties; was appointed by President Pierce in 1853 United-States land-receiver for the Edwards-ville (Illinois) land-office, and held that office until 1857; was elected a presidential elector in 1856; was elected to the State House of Representatives of Illinois 1856 and 1857, and to the State Senate (from the Fourth Senatorial District) 1863 and 1864; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at New York in 1868; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,723 votes against 7,932 votes for James S. Martin, Republican, and 4,033 votes for Rolla B. Henry, Independent Reformer; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,591 votes against 12,763 votes for E. M. Ashcraft, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Spaulding, Elbridge G., was born at Summer Hill, New York, February 24, 1809; received an academical education; studied law at Batavia and at Attica, supporting himself by teaching and legal writing; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and commenced practice at Buffalo; was appointed city-clerk in 1838; was elected alderman in 1841, and mayor of Buffalo in 1847; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,622 votes against 3,408 votes for Clinton, Democrat, and 2,387 votes for Wadsworth, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was treasurer of the State of New York 1854-1855; took an active part in organizing the Republican party; was for several years a member of the State Central Committee, and in 1860 was an active member of the Congressional Executive Committee during the Lincoln campaign; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Union candidate, receiving 12,427 votes against 7,539 votes for Hatch, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,256 votes against 10,947 votes for Haven, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; returning to Buffalo, he organized in 1864 the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank of Buffalo, of which he has since been the president. He published "History of the Legal-Tender Paper Money issued during the Great Rebellion."

Speed, Thomas, was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fifteenth Congress, defeating Lancaster and Crutcher, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819.

Speer, Robert Milton, was born in Cassville, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, September 8, 1838; was educated at Cassville Seminary; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1859, and has since practised at Huntingdon; was assistant clerk of the House of Representatives of the legislature of Pennsylvania during the session of 1863; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,335 votes against 10,324 votes for D. J. Morrell, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,011 votes against 11,422 votes for A. A. Barker, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Speer, Thomas J., was born in Monroe County, Georgia, August 31, 1837; received an academic education; is a merchant and planter; was elected justice of the peace in 1861, and re-elected in 1865; was appointed collector of Confederate taxes for Pike County in June, 1863, and served in that capacity until the cessation of hostilities; was elected justice of the Inferior Court for Pike County in 1865, and served until July, 1868; was elected to the Constitutional Convention of Georgia in 1867-1868; was elected to the State Senate of Georgia in 1868, serving until December, 1870; and, while a member, was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,714 votes against 12,790 votes for Lawton, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to August 18, 1872, when he died.

Speight, Jesse, was born in Greene County, North Carolina, September 22, 1795; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822, and of the State Senate 1823-1827, serving several years as speaker; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, defeating McLeod; was re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1837; removed to Plymouth, Mississippi; was elected to the State House of Representatives, and chosen speaker of the House; was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to May 5, 1847, when he died at Columbus, Mississippi.

Spence, John S., was born in Maryland; resided at Berlin; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,503 votes against 1,328 votes for James Murray, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Robert H. Goldsborough, deceased), serving from January 11, 1837, to October 29, 1840, when he died.

Spence, Thomas A., was born at Cambridge, Maryland, February 20, 1810; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1829; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Snow Hill, Maryland; was district-judge in his circuit for some years; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was appointed by Postmaster-General Cresswell assistant attorney-general for the Post-office Department, serving from 1872 to May, 1877; was a special agent of the Post-office Department; died at Washington City November 10, 1877.

Spencer, Ambrose, was born at Salisbury, Connecticut, December 13, 1765; received a classical education, partially at Yale, but graduating at Harvard College in 1783; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Hudson, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1793, and of the State Senate 1795-1798; was assistant attorney-general in 1796, and State attorney-general in 1802; was chosen judge in 1804; was a presidential elector in 1809; was chief justice of the State Supreme Court 1810-1823; retired from the bench, and resumed practice; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was mayor of Albany for one term; retired in 1839 to a farm near Albany, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; was president of the National Whig Convention at Baltimore in 1844; died at Lyons, New York, March 13, 1848.

Spencer, Elijah, was born in Columbia County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Spencer, George E., was born in Jefferson County, New York, November 1, 1836; was educated at Montreal College, Canada; was admitted to the bar in Iowa in 1857; was secretary of the Iowa Senate of 1856; entered the army as captain, assistant adjutant-general of volunteers, in 1862; recruited and raised the First Alabama Cavalry, United-States Volunteers, in 1863; commanded a brigade of cavalry on Sherman's grand march; was brevetted brigadier-general for "gallantry on the field;" resigned position in the army July 4, 1865; was appointed register in bankruptcy for the Fourth District of Alabama in May, 1867; he was elected United-States senator from Alabama as a Republican, and took his seat July 25, 1868, and was re-elected in 1872. His term of office will expire March 3, 1879.

Spencer, James B., was born in New York; resided at Fort Covington; served as captain in the war of 1812; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831 and 1832; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was magistrate, county-judge, and Indian agent; died at Fort Covington, New York, March 16, 1848.

Spencer, John Canfield, was born at Hudson, New York, January 8, 1787; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1809, and commenced practice at Canandaigua; was made master in chancery in 1811; served in the war of 1812 as brigade judge-advocate; was appointed postmaster of Canandaigua in 1814; was assistant attorney-general for the western part of New York in 1815; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1820-1821, serving the first year as speaker; was a member of the State Senate 1824-1828; became prominently connected with the anti-Masonic movement, and was appointed by Governor Van Buren special attorney to prosecute, if they could be found, those connected with the alleged abduction of Morgan; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832; was secretary of state, and superintendent of common schools, 1839-1840; was appointed by President Tyler secretary of war October 12, 1841; was transferred to the Treasury Department March 3, 1843, but opposed the annexation of Texas, and resigned May 2, 1844; edited the Revised Statutes of the State of New York; died at Albany, New York, May 18, 1855.

Spencer, Joseph, was born at East Haddam, Connecticut, in 1714; was judge of probate in 1753; served as major and lieutenant-colonel in the French war 1753; was a member of the Connecticut Council 1776; was appointed brigadier-general in the Continental army June 22, 1775, and major-general August 9, 1776; resigned June 14, 1778, because Congress had ordered an investigation into his military conduct in Rhode Island in 1777; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1779; was elected a member of the Connecticut Council in 1789; and was annually re-elected until he died at East Haddam, Connecticut, January 13, 1789.

Spencer, Richard, was born in Maryland; resided at Easton; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-first Congress as a Clay Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831.

Spencer, William B., was born in Catahoula Parish, Louisiana, February 5, 1835; received a classical education, graduating at Centenary College, and in the law department of the University of Louisiana; was admitted to the bar in 1857, and practised at Harrisonburg, Louisiana, until 1861; entered the Confederate army as captain of infantry, and served throughout the war; resumed the practice of law, after the war, at Vidalia, Concordia Parish, Louisiana; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving a majority of 1,315 votes over Frank Morey, Republican. The Returning Board of Louisiana, however, returned Morey as elected, and he held the seat until May 31, 1876, when the House, by resolution, declared Spencer to have been duly elected, and he was accordingly sworn in June 8, 1876, serving to January 8, 1877, when he resigned.

Spink, Cyrus, was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,438 votes against 7,318 votes for J. P. Jeffries, Democrat, but died before taking his seat.

Spink, S. L., was born at Whitehall, New York, March 20, 1831; received an academic education at Castleton, Vermont; taught school for several years in New England, New York, and Maryland; studied law, and was admitted to practice at Burlington, Iowa, in 1856; removed to Paris, Illinois, in 1860, and became editor and publisher of "The Prairie Beacon," a radical Republican newspaper; was elected to the State legislature in 1864; in 1865 was appointed secretary of Dakota Territory, his commission being signed by President Lincoln on the afternoon before he was assassinated; was re-appointed by President Johnson, and confirmed by the Senate in January, 1866; continued to discharge the duties of that office up to March 4, 1869; was elected a delegate from Dakota in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican nominee, receiving 1,379 votes against 644 votes for Todd, Democrat, 603 votes for Toohy, Independent Democrat, 658 votes for Burleigh, Independent, and 531 votes for Kidder, People's candidate, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Spinner, Francis E., was born at German Flats, New York, January 21, 1802; received a classical education from his father, the Rev. Herr Spinner; was cashier of the Mohawk-Valley Bank for twenty years; entered the State volunteer militia as lieutenant, and was successively promoted to the rank of major-general; was auditor of accounts in the naval office of the New-York Custom House 1845-1849; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an Antislavery Democrat, receiving 7,618 votes against 5,357 votes for Alexander, Whig, and 3,414 votes for Benton, Proslavery Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,722 votes against 6,115 votes for Dodge, Union Whig and Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,582 votes against 6,845 votes for Goodrich, Democrat, and served from December 3, 1855, until March 3, 1861; was appointed by President Lincoln treasurer of the United States March 16, 1861; was successively re-appointed by Presidents Johnson and Grant, and resigned July 1, 1875; retired to private life, passing his winters at Florida.

Sprague, Peleg, was born in Rochester, Massachusetts, December 10, 1756; entered a store as clerk, but afterwards acquired a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1786; studied law with Benjamin West of Charlestown, and was admitted to the bar in 1787; commenced practice at Dartmouth (now New Bedford), but soon removed to Keene, New Hampshire, where he established himself; was appointed solicitor for Cheshire County in 1794; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Fifth Congress (in place of Jeremiah Smith, resigned) on the second trial, defeating Woodbury Langdon, serving from December 15, 1797, until March 3, 1799; declined a re-election on account of his health, and died in 1800.

Sprague, Peleg, was born at Duxbury, Massachusetts, in 1792; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1812; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Augusta, then at Hallowell; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1821 and 1822; was elected a representative from Maine in the Nineteenth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was elected a United-States senator from Maine, serving from December 7, 1829, to January 1, 1835, when he resigned; removed to Boston, and practised there; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1840; was United-States judge for the district of Massachusetts 1841-1865; was living in Boston July 1, 1878.

Sprague, William (uncle of William Sprague), was born at Cranston, Rhode Island, in 1800; received a good English education; engaged in mercantile and manufacturing pursuits; was for many years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; declined a re-election; was governor of Rhode Island in 1838 and 1839; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island (in place of Nathan F. Dixon, deceased), serving from February 18, 1842, to January 17, 1844, when he resigned; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848; died at Providence, Rhode Island, October 19, 1856.

Sprague, William, was born in Rhode Island; removed to Michigan, and located at Kalamazoo; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-first Congress as a Free-Soiler, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died soon afterwards at Kalamazoo.

Sprague, William (nephew of William Sprague), was born at Cranston, Rhode Island, September 12, 1830; received an academic education; became largely interested in manufacturing pursuits; was elected governor of Rhode Island in 1861, and, having raised several regiments for the Union army, served with them as brigadier-general in the early part of the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Republican to succeed James F. Simmons (but, that senator resigning before the expiration of his term, the seat was occupied meanwhile by Samuel G. Arnold, Conservative); he was twice re-elected, serving from March 4, 1863, to March 3, 1875; resumed the control of his manufacturing establishments.

Sprague, William P., was born in Morgan County, Ohio, May 21, 1827; received a common-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits when quite young, and continued in active business until 1864; was the first president of the First National Bank of McConnellsville; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1860-1861 and 1862-1863; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,263 votes against 10,547 votes for J. Cartwright, Democrat, and 148 votes for I. Parker, Prohibitionist; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,350 votes against 11,052 votes for C. L. Poomnan, Liberal Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Sprigg, James C., was born in Maryland; received an academical education; removed to Kentucky, and located at Shelbyville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-seventh Congress, defeating Field, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Sprigg, Michael C., was born in Maryland; resided at Frostburg; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal; was a presidential elector on the Monroe ticket in 1820; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twentieth Congress, receiving 416 majority over John Lee; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; died at Cumberland, Maryland, December 28, 1845.

Sprigg, Richard, was born in Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Fourth Congress (in place of Gabriel Durrall, resigned); was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from May 6, 1796, to March 3, 1799; was again elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803.

Sprigg, Thomas, was born in Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Third Congress; was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797.

Springer, William M., was born in Sullivan County, Indiana, May 30, 1836; removed to Illinois with his parents in 1848; graduated at the Indiana State University, Bloomington, in 1858; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1859; was secretary of the State Constitutional Convention of Illinois in 1862; was a member of the State legislature of Illinois in 1871-1872; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,623 votes against 9,027 votes for Andrew Simpson, Republican, and 2,417 votes for Jonathan B. Turner, Independent Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,409 votes against 13,714 votes for David L. Phillips, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Spruance, Presley, was born in Delaware in 1785; resided at Smyrna; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State Senate, and its president; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; died at Smyrna, Delaware, February 13, 1863.

Stallworth, James A., was born in Conecuh County, Alabama, April 7, 1822; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845, and again in 1847; was elected solicitor of the Second Judicial Circuit of Alabama in 1849, and re-elected in 1853; was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Congress in 1855; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,720 majority over McCaskill, Know-Nothing; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat by 3,083 majority, serving from December 1, 1857, until his withdrawal January 21, 1861, after the secession of Alabama; died at Evergreen, Alabama, in 1862.

Stanard, Edwin O., was born at Newport, New Hampshire, January 5, 1832; at the age of four years, removed to the Territory of Iowa with his parents, living on a farm, and receiving little more than a common-school education, until, at the age of twenty, he went to St. Louis to seek his fortune; taught school three winters in Illinois, opposite St. Louis, and attended school in the city during the summer; in 1855 graduated at a commercial college, and obtained a clerkship in a commission-house; in 1856 opened a commission-house on his own account, and in a few years opened branch houses in Chicago and New Orleans; in 1865 went also into the milling business at St. Louis, and is now exclusively engaged in that business; was elected lieutenant-governor of the State of Missouri on the Republican ticket in 1868, and served two years; and was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-third Congress as a Regular Republican, receiving 5,271 votes against 5,129 votes for W. M. Grosvenor, Liberal Republican and Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Stanberry, William, was born in Essex County, New Jersey; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, and re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, until March 2, 1833; he addressed a communication to Mr. Speaker Stevenson April 14, 1832, stating that he was waylaid in the street the night previous, "attacked, knocked down by a bludgeon, and severely bruised and wounded, by Samuel Houston, late of Tennessee, for words spoken in debate," for which General Houston was brought before the bar of the House, and reprimanded; died at Newark, Ohio, January 27, 1872.

Standifer, James, was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eighteenth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was again elected in the Twenty-first Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, defeating James L. Greene; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1837; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, but died suddenly (when on his way to Washington to take his seat) near Kingston, Tennessee, August 24, 1837.

Standiford, Elisha D., was born in Jefferson County, Kentucky, December 28, 1831; received a common-school education; studied medicine, and graduated in 1853; was a banker, manufacturer, and farmer; was elected to the State Senate of Kentucky in 1868 and in 1871; and was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,179 votes against 5,033 votes for W. P. Boone, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was elected president of the Louisville, Nashville, and Great Southern Railroad, and carried on a farm of 1,400 acres near Louisville.

Stanford, Richard, was born in North Carolina in 1768; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifth Congress as a Democrat; and was re-elected to the Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to April 9, 1816, when he died at Georgetown, District of Columbia.

Stanly, Edward, was born at New Berne, North Carolina; was a student at the Middletown Military Academy; studied law, and was admitted to practice; was elected to the House of Commons of the State legislature in 1844, 1846, and 1848, serving the last term as speaker; was attorney-general of North Carolina in 1847; was elected as a Whig to the Twenty-fifth Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,987 votes against 4,940 votes for W. K. Lane, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,236 votes against 4,966 votes for Thomas Ruffin, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; removed to California, where he devoted himself to the law; was recalled from there by President Lincoln in 1862 to act as military governor of North Carolina; after a few months' service he resigned, and returned to California; died at San Francisco July 26, 1872.

Stanly, John, was born in North Carolina; was a member of the House of Commons from New Berne in 1798, 1799; was elected a representative in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, until March 8, 1803; fought a duel with his predecessor in Congress (Governor Spaight), and mortally wounded him on the fourth fire, September 5, 1802; was pardoned by Governor Williams in 1803; was again elected a representative in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, until March 3, 1811; was again a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1812, 1813, 1814, 1815, 1818, 1819, 1823, 1825, and 1826, serving several times as speaker; he was stricken with paralysis in 1826, and died at New Berne, North Carolina, August 3, 1834.

Stanton, Benjamin, was born at Mount Pleasant, Jefferson County, Ohio, June 4, 1809; was reared on a farm until he was seventeen years of age, and then apprenticed to a tailor until he was twenty-one; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Bellefontaine; was a member of the State Senate in 1841; resigned in 1842, but was re-elected the same year; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,110 votes against 5,181 votes for John A. Corwin, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,000 votes against 3,350 votes for Dial, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,756 votes against 6,210 votes for Runkle, Democrat, and 1,230 votes for Glover, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,716 votes against 5,928 votes for W. Hubbard, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; was lieutenant-governor of Ohio in 1862.

Stanton, Frederick P. (brother of Richard H. Stanton), was born in the District of Columbia; worked with his father, who was a bricklayer; received by his own exertions a classical education, graduating at Columbia College; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Memphis, Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,250 votes against 5,799 votes for J. W. Harris, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 6,495 votes against 6,142 votes for Coleman, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 5,126 votes against 5,120 votes for Yerger, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1855; was appointed governor of Kansas, serving 1858-1861; returned to Washington, and engaged in the practice of law.

Stanton, Joseph, was born at Charleston, Rhode Island, July 19, 1739; served as second lieutenant in the Rhode-Island regiment raised for the expedition against Canada in 1759; was a member of the General Assembly of Rhode Island 1768-1774; was a member of the Committee of Safety January 28, 1775; was colonel of a Rhode-Island regiment in 1776; was a delegate to the State Convention of 1790 which adopted the Federal Constitution; was elected a United-States senator from Rhode Island as a Democrat, serving from June 25, 1790, to March 2, 1793; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1794-1800; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat on the second trial, receiving 549 majority over Thomas Noyes, Federalist; was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, defeating Elisha R. Potter; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, receiving 1,606 votes of the 1,607 votes cast, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1807; died at Charleston, Rhode Island.

Stanton, Richard H. (brother of Frederick P. Stanton), was born at Alexandria, Virginia, September 9, 1812; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Maysville, Kentucky; was appointed postmaster, but was removed when General Taylor became President; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,764 votes against 7,400 votes for John P. Gaines, Taylor Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 7,649 votes against 6,622 votes for Marshall, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,583 votes against 7,070 votes for Hodge, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1855; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan ticket in 1856; was State attorney for his judicial district in 1858; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at New York in 1868; was elected district-judge, serving 1868-1874. He published "The Revised Statutes of Kentucky" and "A Code of Practice."

Starin, John H., was born at Sammons ville, Fulton County (then a part of Montgomery), New York, August 27, 1825; received an academic education; commenced the study of medicine in 1842; established and conducted the drug and medicine business at Fultonville, New York, from 1845 to 1858; from 1848 to 1852 was postmaster at Fultonville; from 1856 to the present time has been largely engaged in the transportation business through New-York City and harbor, and the waters of Long-Island Sound, with its accessories of vessel-building, &c.; is at present a director of the North-River Bank, New-York City, and the Mohawk-River National Bank; is greatly and personally interested in agriculture and stock-raising; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,142 votes against 18,089 votes for Nicholas H. Decker, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Stark, Benjamin, was born at New Orleans, Louisiana, June 28, 1820; received an academical education at New London, Connecticut; entered a counting-house at New York, and became a merchant; removed to Oregon in 1845, and engaged in commercial operations with the Sandwich Islands; relinquished trade in 1850; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and commenced practice at Portland; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives in 1852, and of the State House of Representatives in 1860; was appointed a United-States senator from Oregon (in place of Edward D. Baker, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from February 27, 1862, to December 1, 1862, when his successor took his seat; was a delegate from Oregon to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864, and at New York in 1868; removed to Connecticut.

Starkweather, David A., was born in Connecticut; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Canton, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirtieth Congress by S. Lahm, Independent Democrat; was a presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848; was appointed by President Pierce minister to Chili, serving June 29, 1854–August 26, 1857.

Starkweather, George A., was born in Connecticut; removed to Cooperstown, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Starkweather, Henry H., was born at Preston, Connecticut, April 29, 1826; was educated principally in the public schools; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the Connecticut legislature in 1856; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention that nominated Mr. Lincoln in 1860, and General Grant in 1868; was appointed in 1861 postmaster at Norwich by President Lincoln, and in 1865 he was re-appointed by President Johnson, but after the latter made his speech of February 22, 1866, he sent in his resignation; he was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,723 votes against 7,827 votes for Martin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 9,122 votes against 6,853 votes for Converse, Democrat; was elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,937 votes against 7,472 votes for J. W. Stedman, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 7,754 votes against 6,000 votes for Bill, Democrat, and 769 votes for Palmer, Prohibitionist; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,000 votes against 8,025 votes for L. F. S. Foster, Democrat, and 575 votes for Palmer, Prohibitionist, serving from March 4, 1867, to January 28, 1876, when he died at Washington City.

Starr, John F., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1818; received a public-school education; removed to Camden, New Jersey, in 1844; was engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,491 votes against 8,961 votes for Stratton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,093 votes against 10,126 votes for Dickinson, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

St. Clair, Arthur, was born at Thurso, Scotland, in 1734; received a classical education at the University of Edinburgh; studied medicine with John Hunter; immigrated to America in 1758 with the British troops; was with General Amherst at the capture of Louisburg, and General Wolfe at the conquest of Quebec; resigned his commission in 1762; settled in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in 1764, and erected flour and saw mills; was appointed justice of the Court of Common Pleas and district-surveyor in 1770; was commissioned colonel of militia in 1775, and sent to Fort Pitt to treat with the Indians; was ordered to Canada in 1776, and promoted major-general; distinguished himself in the leading battles of the Revolution; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1785–1787, serving the last year as president; was appointed governor of the North-west Territory in 1788; located and named the city of Cincinnati; was appointed general-in-chief of the army in 1791, and resigned in 1792; was, in the latter years of his life, dependent upon pensions voted him by Congress and by Pennsylvania; died at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, August 31, 1818. He published a "Narrative of the Campaign of 1791;" and a memoir of his life was published by A. T. Goodman.

Stearns, Asahel, was born at Lunenburg, Massachusetts, June 17, 1774; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Chelmsford, Massachusetts; was for several years State attorney for Middlesex County; was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; was defeated as the Federal candidate for Congress in the Middlesex District in 1812 by W. M. Richardson, who was the only Democratic candidate elected in the State; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from January 15, 1816, to March 3, 1817; was professor of law at Harvard College 1817–1829, when he resigned; was the author of a work on "Real Actions," and one of the commissioners for codifying the laws of Massachusetts; died at Cambridge, Massachusetts, February 5, 1839.

Stebbins, Henry G., was born at New York in 1812; received a public-school education; became a banker; was colonel of the Twelfth Regiment New-York National Guard; was a park commissioner, a director of the New-York Academy of Music, and president of the Dramatic Fund Association; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,908 votes against 7,759 votes for McCormick, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to October, 1864, when he resigned.

Stedman, William, was born in Massachusetts in 1765; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1784; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1787, and practised; was for several years clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court at Worcester; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1802; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to 1810, when he resigned; died at Newburyport, Massachusetts, in 1831.

Steele, John, was born in Salisbury, North Carolina, November 1, 1764; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits, and then became a successful farmer; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1787, 1788, 1794, 1795, 1806, 1811-1813; was a member of the convention which met at Hillsborough to consider the Federal Constitution in 1788; was elected a representative in the First Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from April 19, 1790, until March 2, 1793; was appointed in 1806 on the commission to adjust the boundaries between North and South Carolina; was appointed by President Washington first comptroller of the treasury July 1, 1796; was re-appointed by President John Adams, and resigned December 15, 1802, although solicited by President Jefferson to remain; was again elected to the State House of Representatives, but died at Salisbury, North Carolina, on the same day, August 14, 1815.

Steele, John B., was born at Delhi, New York, March 28, 1814; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College, Massachusetts; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Cooperstown, New York; was district-attorney for Otsego County; removed in 1847 to Kingston; was elected in 1850 special judge of Ulster County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,938 votes against 9,780 votes for Sylvester, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,263 votes against 8,422 votes for Cornell, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was thrown from a carriage and killed at Kingston, New York, September 24, 1866.

Steele, John N., was born in Maryland; resided at Vienna; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of Littleton P. Dennis, deceased) as a Whig, receiving 1,017 majority over Stewart, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from 1834 to March 3, 1837.

Steele, Walter Leak, was born at Steele's Mills (now Little's Mills), Richmond County, North Carolina, April 18, 1823; was educated partly at Randolph-Macon College, at Wake-Forest College, and then at the University of North Carolina, where he graduated in 1844; was elected a member of the State House of Commons in 1846, 1848, 1850, and 1854, and of the State Senate in 1852 and 1858; is a member of the legal profession; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions at Charleston and Baltimore in 1860; was the secretary of the State Convention of 1861 which passed the ordinance of secession; was the Democratic candidate for presidential elector in the Sixth District in 1872; and was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,236 votes against 10,283 votes for Allen Jordan, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Steele, William G., was born in Somerset County, New Jersey, December 17, 1820; received an academical education; engaged in mercantile pursuits and banking; was a State director of the Camden and Amboy Railroad, and of the Delaware and Raritan Canal; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,843 votes against 10,438 votes for Berthoud, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 15,708 votes against 9,093 votes for Brownson, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865.

Steele, William R., was born in New-York City July 24, 1842; received an academic education; studied law, and practises the profession; served in the Union army as private and commissioned officer during the late war; was a staff-officer of Major-Generals John Sedgwick, O. O. Howard, John Gibbon, and Alexander S. Webb, of the Army of the Potomac; was elected a member of the Legislative Council of Wyoming Territory in the fall of 1871, resigning the said position the 4th of March, 1873; and was elected a delegate from Wyoming Territory in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving a majority of about 300 votes over W. T. Jones, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress by a majority of 602 votes over Joseph M. Carey, Republican, serving from December 6, 1872, to March 3, 1877.

Steenrod, Lewis, was born in Virginia; resided at Wheeling; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,667 votes against 2,112 votes for Thomas Hamond, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845.

Stenger, William S., was born at Loudon, Pennsylvania, February 13, 1840; graduated at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in July, 1858; studied law; was admitted to the bar in August, 1860, at Chambersburg, where he has since practised; was district-attorney of Franklin County from 1862 to 1871, having been twice re-elected; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,804 votes against 11,781 votes for Langhorn Wister, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,301 votes against 15,232 votes for Thaddeus M. Mahon, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Stephens, Abraham P., was born in New York; resided at Nyack; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,851 votes against 4,372 votes for Gurnee, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Stephens, Alexander Hamilton, was born in that part of Wilkes County, Georgia, which now forms a part of Taliaferro County, February 11, 1812; graduated at the University of Georgia, at Athens, in 1832; taught school eighteen months; was admitted to the bar at Crawfordsville in 1834; was a member of the House of Representatives of the Georgia legislature from Taliaferro County in 1836-1841, and was a member of the State Senate from Taliaferro County in 1842; was run as a presidential elector for the State at large in Georgia on the Douglas and Johnson ticket in 1860; was elected to the Secession Convention of Georgia in 1861; opposed and voted against the ordinance of secession in that body, but gave it his support after it had been passed by the convention against his judgment as to its policy; was elected by that convention to the Confederate Congress which met at Montgomery, Alabama, February 4, 1861, and was chosen Vice-President under the Provisional Government by that Congress; was elected Vice-President of the Confederate States for the term of six years, under what was termed "the permanent government," in November, 1861; visited the State of Virginia on a mission under the Confederate Government in April, 1861, upon the invitation of that State; was one of the commissioners on the part of the Confederate Government at the Hampton-Roads conference in February, 1865; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 38,051 votes against 35,001 votes for James H. Stark, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 4,202 votes against 3,152 votes for Jones, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 3,507 votes against 2,078 votes for Turner, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,019 votes against 2,602 votes for Day, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 4,744 votes against 1,955 votes for Lewis, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 5,634 votes against 2,444 votes for Jones, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,808 votes against 3,079 votes for Lamar, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,151 votes against 4,096 votes for Miller, American, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1850, when he declined a re-election; was elected a United-States senator in 1833 by the first legislature convened under the new Constitution, but was not allowed to take his seat; was elected to the Forty-third Congress (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Ambrose R. Wright), and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a straight-out Jefferson Democrat, receiving 6,822 votes against 12 votes for Harrison, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,471 votes against 1,273 votes for Tennelle, serving from October 15, 1877.

Stephens, Philander, was born in Pennsylvania in 1788; resided at Montrose; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; died at Springfield, Pennsylvania, July 8, 1842.

Stephenson, Benjamin, was born in Kentucky; removed in 1809 to Randolph County, Illinois Territory; was high sheriff of the county; served as colonel of militia in the war of 1812; was elected a delegate from Illinois Territory in the Thirteenth Congress (in place of Shadrack Bond, resigned); was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from November 14, 1814, to March 3, 1817; was appointed receiver of public money at Edwardsville, Illinois, and died there.

Stephenson, James, was born at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, March 20, 1764; removed when young to Virginia, and located at Martinsburg; served under General St. Clair in his Indian expedition as captain of volunteer riflemen; became brigade-inspector; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was again elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Thomas Van Swearingen, deceased); was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1822, to March 3, 1825; died at Martinsburg, Virginia, August 7, 1833.

Sterigere, John B., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Upper Dublin, and subsequently at Morristown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, defeating Philip S. Markley, Adams Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831.

Sterling, Ansel, was born in New-London County, Connecticut; resided at Sharon; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825.

Sterling, Micah, was born at Lyme, Connecticut, in 1781; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1804; studied law at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Adams, removing the next year to Watertown, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; died at Watertown, New York, April 10, 1844.

Sterrett, Samuel, was born in Maryland in 1756; resided at Baltimore; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 2, 1793; died at Baltimore, Maryland, July 12, 1833.

Stetson, Charles, was born at New Ipswich, New Hampshire, November 7, 1801; removed with his parents to Hampden, Maine, in 1802; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1823; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Hampden until 1833, when he removed to Bangor; was appointed judge of the Bangor Municipal Court in 1834, and clerk of the Penobscot-county courts in 1836; was elected a member of the State council 1845-1848; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,095 votes against 4,492 votes for Washburn, Whig, and 2,043 votes for Curtis, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Stetson, Lemuel, was born in New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Keeseville; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835, 1836, and 1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,635 votes against 4,092 votes for McDonald, Whig, and 165 votes for Parkhurst, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was county-judge of Clinton County 1847-1851; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1862.

Stevens, Aaron F., was born at Derry, New Hampshire, August 9, 1810; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was a member of the legislature of the State of New Hampshire in 1849, 1854, 1856, and 1857; was county-solicitor from 1856 until 1861; entered the Union army in 1861 as major of the First New-Hampshire Volunteers; was afterwards colonel of the Thirtieth New-Hampshire Volunteers, commandant of a brigade, and brigadier-general by brevet; and was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,260 votes against 10,305 votes for Harrington, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 11,338 votes against 9,740 votes for Harrington, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was again a member of the State House of Representatives.

Stevens, Bradford N., was born at Boscawen (now Webster), New Hampshire, January 3, 1813; after the usual academic course, he studied one year in Le Petit Séminaire at Montreal, and graduated at Dartmouth College, New Hampshire, in 1835; was an educator six years in Hopkinsville, Kentucky, and New-York City; removed in 1843 to Bureau County, Illinois, where he was a merchant and farmer, and took an active part in the promotion of internal improvements; was chairman of the board of supervisors of Bureau County in 1868; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-second Congress as an Independent Democrat, receiving 11,579 votes against 9,963 votes for Ebon C. Ingersoll, Republican, and 808 votes for Ives, Temperance, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Stevens, Charles A., was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-third Congress (in place of Alvah Crocker, deceased) as a Republican, serving from January 27, 1875, to March 3, 1875.

Stevens, Hestor L., was born at Lima, New York, October, 1803; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Rochester, where he also was connected with the press; removed to Michigan, and located at Pontiac; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,746 votes against 8,948 votes for Bradley, Whig, and 1,048 votes for Calkins, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; died at Georgetown, District of Columbia, May 7, 1864.

Stevens, Hiram S., was born at Weston, Vermont, in 1832; received a common-school education there; removed to New Mexico in 1851, and in 1853 located in that part of New Mexico now known as Arizona; was a member of the Territorial legislature of Arizona 1863-1873; and was elected a delegate from Arizona in the Forty-fourth Congress as an Independent candidate, receiving 1,442 votes against 1,076 votes for C. C. Bean, and 638 votes for John Smith; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 1,412 votes against 1,076 votes for Bean, Independent, and 638 votes for Smith, Independent, serving from October 15, 1877.

Stevens, Isaac Ingalls, was born at North

Andover, Massachusetts, in 1818; received a military education, graduating first in his class at West Point in 1839; entering the corps of engineers, he served on the staff of General Scott in Mexico, distinguishing himself in several engagements; was an assistant in the coast survey; resigned in 1853, having been appointed by President Pierce governor of Washington Territory, which office he held until he resigned in August, 1857; was wounded in a rencounter with Chief Justice Sanders; was elected a delegate from Washington Territory in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; entered the Union army as colonel of the Seventy-ninth New-York Highlanders July 30, 1861; was appointed brigadier-general of volunteers September 28, 1861; served under Sherman in the Port-Royal expedition; was appointed major-general July 4, 1862, and commanded a division under General Pope; was mortally wounded at the second Bull-Run battle while carrying the flag of one of his regiments, and cheering it forward; died at Chantilla, Virginia, September 6, 1862. He published "Campaign of the Rio Grande and Mexico, with Remarks on the Recent Work of Major Ripley," and a survey of the route for the North Pacific Railroad.

Stevens, James, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, in 1768; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was appointed postmaster at Stamford, Connecticut, in 1822; died at Stamford, Connecticut, April 16, 1835.

Stevens, Thaddeus, was born at Peacham, Vermont, April 4, 1792; graduated at Dartmouth College, and removed to Pennsylvania in 1814; while teacher in an academy, he studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was a member of the State legislature of Pennsylvania in 1833, 1834, 1835, 1837, and 1841; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1838; was appointed a canal commissioner in 1838; removed to Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in 1842; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,565 votes against 5,464 votes for Shaeffer, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,701 votes against 4,069 votes for Muhlenberg, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 1, 1853; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,513 votes against 6,341 votes for Hopkins, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 12,964 votes against 470 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,174 votes against 6,650 votes for Steinson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,894 votes against 7,344 votes for North, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,298 votes against 8,675 votes for Reynolds, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1850, to August 11, 1868, when he died at Washington City.

Stevenson, Adlai E., was born in Christian County, Kentucky, October 23, 1835; was educated at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky; studied law in Bloomington, Kentucky, with Williams and Packard, and was admitted to the bar May 1, 1858; removed to Woodford County, Illinois, where he commenced practice; was master in chancery 1861-1865, and State's attorney for the Twenty-third Judicial District 1864-1868; removed to Bloomington January 1, 1869, and commenced practice there; and was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fourth Congress as the candidate of the "Independent Reform Party," receiving 11,135 votes against 9,903 votes for John McNulta, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Stevenson, Andrew (father of John W. Stevenson), was born in Culpepper County, Virginia, in 1784; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Richmond, Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804-1820, serving several years as speaker; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to June 2, 1834, when he resigned, having served as speaker 1827-1834; was minister to Great Britain March 16, 1836-October 21, 1841; devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was rector of the University of Virginia 1856-1857; died at "Blenheim," Albemarle County, Virginia, January 25, 1857.

Stevenson, James S., was born in York County, Pennsylvania; resided at Pittsburg; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; died at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, October 17, 1831.

Stevenson, Job E., was born in Ross County, Ohio, February 10, 1831; received an irregular collegiate education; studied law, and practised; was solicitor of Chillicothe in 1859, 1860, 1861, and 1862; was a member of the Ohio Senate from Ross and Highland Counties in 1863, 1864, and 1865; was defeated as the Republican candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District of Ohio in 1864; removed to Cincinnati in 1865, and continued the practice of law; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 497 majority over Samuel F. Cary, Independent Workingmen's candidate and adopted Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 9,294 votes against 7,745 votes for S. F. Cary, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Stevenson, John W. (son of Andrew Stevenson), was born at Richmond, Virginia, May 4, 1812, and received his early education there; attended the University of Virginia, and graduated in 1834; studied law in Virginia; went to Kentucky in 1841; has been county-attorney; was a representative in the legislature of Kentucky for several years; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention which framed the present Constitution; was one of the revisers who framed a civil and criminal code of practice; was a presidential elector in 1852 and in 1856 for the State at large; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,748 votes against 4,185 votes for Rankin, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,295 votes against 5,839 votes for Jones, Opposition, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was elected lieutenant-governor of Kentucky in 1867; was elected governor in 1868; was elected United-States senator from Kentucky as a Democrat (to succeed T. C. McCreery, Democrat), serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Stewart, Andrew, was born in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, June 1792; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1815, and commenced practice at Uniontown; was appointed by President Monroe United-States attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania; was for three years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1829; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; was defeated for the Twenty-fourth Congress by Andrew Buchanan, Whig; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1849; died at Uniontown, Pennsylvania, July 16, 1872.

Stewart, Archibald, was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1784-1785, to fill a vacancy.

Stewart, Archibald, was born in Virginia; resided at Mount Airy; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Nathaniel H. Claiborne, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress by W. L. Goggin, Whig.

Stewart, David, was born in Maryland; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was appointed a United-States senator from Maryland (in place of Reverdy Johnson, resigned), serving from December 8, 1849, to January 14, 1850, when his successor took his seat; died at Baltimore, Maryland, October 5, 1858.

Stewart, Jacob H., was born at Clermont, Columbia County, New York, January 15, 1829; removed when very young with his parents to Peekskill, New York; received an academic education at the Peekskill Academy; studied medicine, and graduated at the University Medical College of New-York City March, 1851; practised his profession at Peekskill, and at St. Paul, Minnesota, to which he removed in April, 1855; was a member of the State Senate of Minnesota of 1858-1859; was surgeon-general of Minnesota 1857 to 1863; was appointed surgeon of the First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry April 17, 1861; was taken prisoner at the first battle of Bull Run, paroled, and allowed to care for his wounded at Sudley-Church Hospital until they were able to be removed to Richmond, when he was permitted to return home without exchange "for voluntarily remaining on the battle-field in the discharge of his duty;" was mayor of St. Paul in 1864, 1868, 1872, 1873, and 1874; was surgeon of the Board of Enrolment 1864 and 1865; was postmaster of St. Paul 1865 to 1873; was president of the Minnesota State Medical Society 1875 and 1876; was elected a representative from Minnesota to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 22,823 votes against 20,727 votes for W. W. McNair, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Stewart, James, was born in North Carolina in 1770; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from January 26, 1818, to March 3, 1819; died in North Carolina February 3, 1842.

Stewart, James A., was born in Dorchester County, Maryland, November 24, 1808; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cambridge, Maryland; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a circuit-court judge; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,173 votes against 5,863 votes for Dennis, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,339 votes against 6,163 votes for Townsend, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,934 votes against 6,384 votes for Cox, Opposition, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861.

Stewart, John, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixth Congress (in place of Thomas Hartley, deceased); was re-elected to the Seventh and Eighth Congresses, serving from February 3, 1811, to March 3, 1805.

Stewart, John, was born at Chatham, Connecticut, in 1795; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm, and was a practical farmer; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was judge of the Middlesex-county Court; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; died at Chatham, Connecticut, September 16, 1860.

Stewart, Thomas E., was born in New-York City September 22, 1824; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was commissioner of common schools in 1854; was a Republican member of the State Assembly of New York in 1864 and 1865; was nominated by the Conservative Republicans to the Fortieth Congress, and was elected a representative from New York by them and the Democrats, receiving 9,452 votes against 6,955 votes for Spencer, Radical Republican, and 711 votes for Stevenson, Independent Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Stewart, William, was born at Mercer, Pennsylvania, September 16, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Mercer, Pennsylvania; was for three years a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,552 votes against 5,467 votes for Cunningham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,721 votes against 3,777 votes for John N. McGuffin, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1837, to March 3, 1861.

Stewart, William M., was born in Wayne County, New York, August 9, 1827; was a student at Yale College; went to California, where he was engaged in mining; studied and practised law, serving as State attorney and attorney-general; removing to that portion of Utah now Nevada, he was elected to the Territorial legislature in 1861; was elected a member of the convention which framed the Constitution of Nevada in 1863; was elected United-States senator from Nevada as a Republican on the adoption of the State Constitution, and was re-elected, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1875; resumed practice at San Francisco.

Stiles, John D., was born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, January 15, 1823; received an academic education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1844; in 1853 he was elected district-attorney for Lehigh County, and held the office for three years; was a delegate to the National Convention which nominated Mr. Buchanan for President in 1860, to the Chicago Convention in 1864, to the Philadelphia National Union Convention in 1866, and to the Democratic Convention in 1868 which nominated Seymour and Blair; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress (for the unexpired term of his friend T. B. Cooper, deceased) as a Democrat, receiving 581 majority; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,316 votes against 8,092 votes for Krause, Unionist, serving from 1861 to March 3, 1865; was again elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,247 votes against 12,568 votes for Breitenbach, Republican, serving from 1869 to March 3, 1871.

Stiles, William H., was born at Savannah, Georgia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Savannah; was solicitor-general for the Eastern District of Georgia 1833-1836; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 35,164 votes against 32,980 votes for A. H. Chappell, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was appointed by President Polk chargé to Austria, and served April 19, 1845-October 3, 1849; served in the Confederate army with the rank of colonel; died at Savannah, Georgia, December 10, 1865.

Stillwell, Thomas L., was born at Stillwell, Ohio, August 29, 1830; received a classical education at Oxford and College Hill; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice at Anderson, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; engaged in banking; was an officer in the Union army for one year; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,623 votes against 13,383 votes for James F. McDowell, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was appointed by President Johnson minister resident at Venezuela, serving August 3, 1867-June 30, 1868; was killed by J. E. Corwin at Anderson, Indiana, January 14, 1874.

St. John, Charles, was born in Orange County, New York, October 8, 1818; received a common-school education; is a merchant, manufacturer, and lumberman; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,247 votes against 10,747 votes for Sherman, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 11,842 votes against 14,269 votes for E. Flagg, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

St. John, Daniel B., was born at Sharon, Connecticut, October 8, 1808; received a public-school education; removed to New York; became a merchant's clerk at Monticello, and followed mercantile pursuits until 1847; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849; was superintendent of the State Banking Department April 15, 1851-April 4, 1854; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1859 and 1860; engaged in agricultural pursuits near Newbury, New York.

St. John, Henry, was born in New York; removed to Ohio, and located at Tiffin; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,337 votes against 43 votes for Robinson, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

St. Martin, Louis, was born in Louisiana; resided at New Orleans; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,199 votes against 2,763 votes for Hagan, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, and his credentials were presented December 19, 1865, but he was not admitted.

Stockton, John P. (grandson of Richard Stockton, and son of Richard Stockton), was born in Princeton, New Jersey, August 2, 1826; was graduated at Princeton College in 1843; was licensed to practise law in 1846; was called to the bar in 1849; was appointed a commissioner to revise the laws of New Jersey; was subsequently reporter to the Court of Chancery, and published three volumes of equity reports which bear his name; was appointed in 1858 minister resident at Rome, and was recalled at his own request in 1861; was elected United-States senator from New Jersey in 1865 for the term ending in 1871; after holding the position for more than a year, his election was declared by the Senate to have been informal, and he was unseated, and returned to New Jersey and the practice of his profession; was again elected senator as a Democrat (in the place of Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, Republican), serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875; was elected by the Senate of New Jersey State attorney-general March 3, 1877.

Stockton, Richard (grandfather of John P. Stockton, and father of Richard Stockton), was born at Princeton, New Jersey, October 1, 1730; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1748; studied law with Richard Ogden; was admitted to the bar in 1754, and commenced practice at Princeton, New Jersey; visited England in 1766; was appointed an executive councillor of the province of New Jersey in 1768; was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of New Jersey in 1774; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1776-1777; was sent on a mission to the Northern army, and fell into the hands of a party of royalists, who subjected him to such ill usage that he never recovered, but died near Princeton, New Jersey, February 28, 1781.

Stockton, Richard (son of Richard Stockton, and father of John P. Stockton and Robert F. Stockton), was born at Princeton, New Jersey, April 17, 1744; received a classical education, graduating at Nassau Hall in 1779; studied law with Elisha Boudinot at Newark; was admitted to the bar in 1784, and commenced practice at Princeton, New Jersey; was a presidential elector on the Washington and Adams ticket in 1792; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey (in place of Frederick Frelinghuysen, resigned) as a Federalist, serving from December 6, 1796, to March 3, 1799; declined being a candidate for re-election; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; declined being a candidate for re-election; was appointed in 1825 one of the commissioners on the part of the State of New Jersey to negotiate the settlement of the territorial controversy with the State of New York, and the very able argument appended to the report of the New-Jersey commissioners was the production of his pen; died at Princeton March 7, 1828.

Stockton, Robert Field (son of Richard Stockton), was born at Princeton, New Jersey, in 1795; studied at Princeton College; entered the United-States navy as midshipman September 1, 1811, and rose to the rank of commodore, then the highest; was seriously injured by the explosion of a large gun on board of "The Princeton" February 28, 1844; was sent to the Pacific coast in October, 1845; and in 1846 conquered California, establishing a civil government there; returning home, he resigned his commission; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to January 10, 1853, when he resigned; was president of the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company; died at Princeton, New Jersey, October 7, 1856. His "Life and Speeches" was published at New York.

Stoddard, Ebenezer, was born at West Woodstock, Connecticut, May 6, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Woodstock, Connecticut; was for several years a member of the State legislature; was for one year lieutenant-governor; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; died at Woodstock, Connecticut, August 11, 1848.

Stoddard, John T., was born in Charles County, Maryland, in 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1810; was an officer of Maryland volunteers in the war of 1812; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 200 majority over Daniel Jenifer, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; died in Charles County, Maryland, July 19, 1870.

Stokely, Samuel, was born in Ohio; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Steubenville, Ohio; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Stokes, Montford, was born in North Carolina in 1760; received an academic education; was for several years clerk of the Superior Court, and subsequently of the State Senate; was elected a United-States senator from North Carolina (in place of James Turner, resigned) as a Democrat, and was re-elected, serving from December 16, 1816, to March 3, 1823; was a member of the State Senate in 1826, and of the State House of Representatives in 1829 and 1830; was governor of North Carolina 1830-1831; resigned to accept the position of commissioner to superintend the removal of the Indians west of the Mississippi River; and was subsequently appointed by President Jackson Indian agent for Arkansas Territory, where he died in 1842.

Stokes, William B., was born in Chatham County, North Carolina, September 9, 1814; received a public-school education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849 and 1850, and of the State Senate in 1852; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,633 votes against 6,160 votes for Savage, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; entered the Union army in the spring of 1862 as major of Tennessee volunteers; was promoted colonel, and served until honorably discharged in the spring of 1865; was subsequently brevetted major-general for gallant and meritorious services; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Union Republican, receiving 4,454 votes against 2,549 votes for Faulkner, Democrat, and 845 votes for Hood, Secessionist; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 8,023 votes against 1,614 votes for Fleming, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 6,415 votes against 2,035 votes for Garrett, Democrat, serving from July 24, 1866, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 4,116 votes against 9,675 votes for A. E. Garrett, Democrat.

Stone, Alfred P., was engaged in mercantile pursuits at Columbus, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress (to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Heman Allen Moore) as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1844, to March 3, 1845; was appointed by Governor Chase in 1856 acting treasurer of the State of Ohio (to fill a vacancy caused by the suspension of Treasurer Gibson for frauds); was appointed by Secretary Chase, in 1862, collector of internal revenue for the Columbus District of Ohio; was detected in contraband-cotton speculations, and was found to be a defaulter; and committed suicide by taking poison on the grave of his two children at Columbus, Ohio, August 1, 1865.

Stone, David, was born at Hope, North Carolina, February 17, 1770; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1783; studied law under W. R. Davis, and was admitted to the bar in 1793; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1791-1794, 1811, and 1812; was judge of the Supreme Court of North Carolina 1795-1798; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Sixth Congress as a Democrat; was a United-States senator, serving 1801-1806, when he resigned to accept a judgeship in the State Supreme Court; was governor of North Carolina 1808-1810; was re-elected United-States senator in 1813, but, differing with President Madison on war measures, he was censured by the legislature of North Carolina, and resigned; he died at Hope, North Carolina, October 7, 1818.

Stone, Frederick (grandson of Thomas Stone), was born in Charles County, Maryland, February 7, 1820; was educated at St. John's College, Annapolis; studied and practised law; was appointed by the legislature one of the commissioners to simplify and abridge the rules of pleading, practice, and conveyancing in the State courts in 1852; was a member of the State legislature in 1864 and 1865; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,708 votes against 2,632 votes for Albert, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,928 votes against 2,544 votes for Albert, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871.

Stone, James W., was born in Kentucky in 1811; resided at Taylorsville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,872 votes against 3,701 votes for Grigsby, Whig, and 2,338 votes for Pope, Independent, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,843 votes against 5,400 votes for Hill, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; died at Taylorsville, Kentucky, October 13, 1854.

Stone, John W., was born at Wadsworth, Ohio, July 18, 1838; received an academic education; removed to Allegan County, Michigan, in 1850; commenced the study of law in 1859; was elected county-clerk of Allegan County in 1860; was admitted to the bar in January, 1862; was re-elected county-clerk in 1862; was elected prosecuting-attorney in 1864, and re-elected twice, holding the office six years; was elected president of Allegan Village in 1872; was elected circuit-judge of the Twentieth Judicial Circuit of Michigan in April, 1873, which office he held until November 1, 1874, when he resigned, and removed to Grand Rapids to enter upon the practice of law; has continued in the practice of the profession ever since; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 21,908 votes against 18,546 votes for Myron Harris, Democratic and Greenback candidate, and 50 votes for a Temperance candidate, serving from October 15, 1877.

Stone, Joseph C., was born at Westport, New York, July 30, 1820; removed to the Territory of Iowa in 1844; received a limited education at the public schools; studied medicine, graduating at the medical department of the St. Louis University, Missouri, in 1854; enlisted as a private soldier in the First Iowa Cavalry in June, 1861; was made adjutant of the regiment; was promoted captain and assistant adjutant-general of volunteers in 1862; was promoted and brevetted in 1864-1865, and served to the close of the war; has since practised his profession; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,188 votes against 14,814 votes for Wesley C. Hobbs, Democrat, and several hundred votes for the Greenback candidate, serving from October 15, 1877.

Stone, Michael Jenifer (brother of Thomas Stone), was born in Charles County, Maryland, about 1750; received an academical education; was elected a representative from Maryland in the First Congress, serving from June 8, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was for many years judge of the Charles-county Court; died on his estate in Charles County in 1812.

Stone, Thomas (brother of Michael Jenifer Stone, and grandfather of Frederick Stone), was born at Pointon Manor, Charles County, Maryland, in 1743; received an academical education; studied law at Annapolis under Thomas Johnson; was admitted to the bar in 1764, and commenced practice at Frederick Town, Maryland, removing in 1771 to Charles County; was several times a member of the State Senate; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1775-1779 and 1784-1785; was appointed a delegate to the convention which framed the Federal Constitution early in 1787, but domestic circumstances compelled him to decline; died at Port Tobacco, Maryland, October 5, 1787.

Stone, William, was born in Tennessee; resided at Delphi; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fifth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James Standifer) as a Whig, defeating four other Whigs and two Democrats, serving from October 6, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Stone, William H., was born at Schanauquik, New York, November 7, 1828; received a common-school education; removed to St. Louis August 31, 1848, and subsequently resided there as an iron-manufacturer; was president of the St. Louis Hot-Pressed Nut and Bolt Company; was a member of the Twenty-sixth General Assembly of Missouri from the Eleventh Ward of St. Louis County; was a member of the St. Louis Board of Water Commissioners from June 5, 1871, to November 15, 1873, when he resigned to take his seat in the House of Representatives, having been elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,179 votes against 4,859 votes for J. M. Hilton, Republican, and 1,592 votes for J. J. McBride, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,175 votes against 5,566 votes for Robert F. Wingate, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Storer, Bellamy, was born at Portland, Maine, March 9, 1798; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1817; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 156 majority over Lytle, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; declined a renomination; was a presidential elector on the Clay ticket in 1844; served three terms as judge of the Superior Court for the district of Cincinnati, retiring in 1872; was a professor in the Cincinnati Law College; died at Cincinnati, Ohio, June 1, 1875.

Storer, Clement, was born at Kennebunk, Maine, in 1760; received an academical education; studied medicine at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, under Dr. Ammi R. Cutter, and afterwards in Europe, and commenced practice at Portsmouth; held successively commissions, from that of captain to that of major-general, in the militia; was repeatedly chosen a member of the State legislature, serving one year as speaker; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, until March 3, 1809; was elected to the United-States Senate (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Jeremiah Mason), and served from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1819; was high sheriff of the county of Rockingham 1818-1824; and died at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, November 21, 1830.

Storm, John B., was born in Monroe County, Pennsylvania, September 19, 1838; received a collegiate education, and graduated at Dickinson College in July, 1861; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1863; was appointed superintendent of public schools in 1862, and was twice re-elected to that office; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,554 votes against 5,209 votes for Davis, Republican, and 2,357 votes for Klinehans, Independent; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 16,808 votes against 10,569 votes for A. B. Howell, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Storrs, Henry R., was born at Middletown, Connecticut, in 1785; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1804; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Utica, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, until March 3, 1821; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress, and was successively re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, until March 3, 1831; after leaving Congress, he removed to New York, where he became a prominent practitioner at the bar; while on a visit to Connecticut, he died suddenly of angina pectoris at New Haven July 29, 1837.

Storrs, William Lucius, was born at Middletown, Connecticut, March 25, 1795; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1814; studied law at Whitestown, New York; was admitted to the bar in 1817, and commenced practice at Middletown, where he resided until 1840; was a member of the State Assembly in 1827, 1828, 1829, and 1834, serving as speaker in 1834; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-first Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, until March 3, 1833; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig by 134 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, until June, 1840, when he resigned to accept the appointment of associate judge of the Court of Errors; in 1846 he was appointed professor of law at Yale College, serving until 1847; in 1850 he was appointed chief justice of the Court of Errors, holding the position until his death at Hartford June 25, 1861.

Story, Joseph, was born at Marblehead, Massachusetts, September 18, 1779; graduated at Harvard College in 1798; studied law with Chief Justice Sewall of Marblehead; was admitted to the bar in July, 1801, and commenced practice at Salem; was elected as a Democrat to the House of Representatives of Massachusetts in 1805, 1806-1807; was elected to the Tenth Congress (without opposition) as an anti-War Democrat (to fill the vacancy created by the death of Jacob Crowninshield), and served from December 20, 1808, until March 3, 1809, declining a renomination; was again elected to the House of Representatives of Massachusetts in 1811, and was chosen speaker; was appointed by President Madison associate justice of the Supreme Court, which he held until his death; was appointed Dane professor in the Harvard Law School in 1828, when he removed from Salem to Cambridge; received the degree of doctor of laws from Harvard, Brown, and Dartmouth Colleges; died at Cambridge September 10, 1845. He published "Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States," and other law works. His decisions fill many volumes, and he was a contributor to several leading reviews.

Stoughton, William L., was born at New York March 20, 1827; received an academic education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1851; was prosecuting-attorney in 1855-1859; was appointed by President Lincoln United-States district-attorney for the district of Michigan in March, 1861, and resigned the same year in order to enter the Union army; served during the war as a colonel and brigadier-general, and was promoted to the rank of major-general by brevet for gallant and meritorious services; was elected attorney-general for the State of Michigan for 1867 and 1868; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 25,196 votes against 17,396 votes for Chamberlain, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 17,502 votes against 13,923 votes for Henry Chamberlain, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Stout, Lansing, was born at Pamelia, New York, March 27, 1828; received a public-school education; taught school; worked on a farm; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and commenced practice in California; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856; removed to Oregon in 1857, and practised at Portland; was elected judge of the Multnomah-county Court in 1858; was elected a representative from Oregon in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,670 votes against 5,631 votes for Logan, Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was a member of the State House of Representatives; died at Portland, Oregon, in 1870.

Stover, John H., was born at Aaronsburg, Centre County, Pennsylvania, April 24, 1833; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1857, and commenced practice at Aaronsburg; was elected district-attorney for Centre County in 1858; entered the Union army in 1861 as a private, and was at once chosen captain, and then major, of the One Hundred and Sixth Pennsylvania Volunteers; was commissioned colonel of the One Hundred and Eighty-fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers, participating in all the battles of the Army of the Potomac, and witnessing the surrender at Appomattox Court House; removed after the war to Missouri, locating at Versailles; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Fortieth Congress (in place of Joseph W. McClurg, resigned) as a Republican, serving from December 7, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Stow, Silas, was born in Lewis County, New York; resided at Lowville; was elected a representative from New York in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813.

Stowell, William H. H., was born at Windsor, Vermont, July 26, 1840; was educated at the grammar and high schools of Boston, Massachusetts; engaged in mercantile business; settled in Virginia in May, 1865, and was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Fourth District in May, 1869; and was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,205 votes against 9,989 votes for W. L. Owen, Conservative; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 15,393 votes against 8,068 votes for P. W. McKenney, Democrat, and 18 votes for C. H. Porter, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,583 votes against 8,201 votes for W. H. Mann, Democrat, and 38 votes for Charles H. Porter, Independent, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Stower, John G., was born at Madison, New York; received a good English education; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; was a member of the State Senate 1833-1834; died at Hamilton, New York.

Strader, Peter W., was born in Warren County, New Jersey, November 6, 1818; his parents immigrated to South-western Ohio in the spring of 1819; received a common-school education up to twelve years of age; passed three years in a printing-office; was clerk, engineer, and captain on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers from November, 1835, to June, 1848, then general ticket-agent of Little Miami Railroad to February, 1867; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,483 votes against 10,272 votes for Eggleston, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Strait, Horace B., was born in Potter County, Pennsylvania, January 26, 1835; received a common-school education; removed to Indiana in 1854, and from there to Minnesota in 1855; entered the Union army in 1862 as captain in the Ninth Minnesota Infantry; was promoted to major of said regiment in 1864, and was serving at the close of the war as inspector-general on the staff of General McArthur; was elected mayor of Shakopee in 1870, and re-elected in 1871 and 1872; was one of the trustees of the Minnesota Hospital for the Insane since 1866; after the close of the war, engaged in mercantile, manufacturing, and banking business, and was president of the First National Bank of Shakopee; was elected a representative from Minnesota in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,217 votes against 10,835 votes for C. Graham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,742 votes against 13,521 votes for E. St. Julien Cox, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,730 votes against 14,990 votes for E. T. Wilder, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1878.

Stranahan, J. S. T., was born on Long Island, New York; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,927 votes against 7,623 votes for Taylor, Democrat, and 20 votes for Jackson, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Strange, Robert, was born in Virginia September 20, 1796; received a classical education, which was completed at Hampden-Sidney College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fayetteville, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1821, 1822, 1823, and 1826; was a judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina 1826-1836; was elected a United-States senator from North Carolina as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Willie P. Mangum, who had declined to obey instructions given him by the State legislature), and served from December 15, 1836, until 1840, when he in turn declined to obey the instructions of the North-Carolina legislature (the political complexion of which had become changed), and resigned, Mr. Mangum being at once elected as his successor; was solicitor for the Fifth Judicial District of North Carolina; and died at Fayetteville, North Carolina, February 10, 1854. He published, for private circulation, a novel entitled "Eoneguski, or The Cherokee Chief," which preserved many of the traditions of the section in which he resided.

Stratton, Charles C., was born in New Jersey in 1796; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, and received his credentials bearing the "broad seal" of New Jersey, but was not admitted; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; retired to his farm in Gloucester County, and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; died at Swedenborough, New Jersey, March 30, 1859.

Stratton, John, was born in Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803.

Stratton, John L. N., was born at Mount Holly, New Jersey, in 1817; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1836; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and commenced practice at Mount Holly; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,471 votes against 8,767 votes for Wall, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 13,582 votes against 12,154 votes for Green, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was a delegate to the National Loyalists' Convention at Philadelphia in 1868.

Stratton, Nathan T., was born in New Jersey; resided at Mullica Hill; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,475 votes against 5,824 votes for Whitney, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,185 votes against 6,816 votes for Boyle, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855.

Straub, Christian M., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Pottsville; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Strawbridge, James D., was born in Montom County, Pennsylvania, in 1824; received an academic education at Danville, Pennsylvania; entered Princeton College in 1841, and graduated in 1844; graduated in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania in 1847; practised medicine at Danville until the commencement of the war; entered the army as a brigade-surgeon of volunteers, and served throughout the war; was captured, while medical director of the Eighteenth Army Corps, in front of Richmond, and remained three months in Libby Prison; resumed the practice of medicine after the close of the war, and continued in practice until he was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,079 votes against 12,243 votes for B. K. Rhodes, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Street, Randall S., was born at Catskill, New York, in 1780; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Poughkeepsie; was appointed State attorney for his judicial district in 1810, and re-appointed in 1813; served in the war of 1812 as major and lieutenant-colonel of militia; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; removed in 1823 to Monticello, New York, where he practised until he died there November 21, 1841.

Strickland, Randolph, was born at Danville, Steuben County, New York, February 4, 1823; received a common-school education; engaged in teaching; removed to Michigan in 1844; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and immediately commenced practice; was elected prosecuting-attorney in Clinton County in 1852, 1854, 1856, 1858, and 1862; was a member of the State Senate in 1861 and 1862; was provost-marshal from April 24, 1863, until October 15, 1865; was a member of the State Central Republican Committee in 1867 and 1868; was a delegate to the National Conventions in 1856 and 1868; and was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 20,115 votes against 16,720 for Newton, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Strohm, John, was born at Fulton Township, Pennsylvania, October 16, 1793; received a public-school education; taught school for six years; located at New Providence, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1831-1833, and of the State Senate 1834-1811; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849.

Strong, Caleb, was born at Northampton, Massachusetts, January 9, 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1764; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but did not commence practice until 1792; was one of the Committee of Correspondence and Safety in 1774-1775; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1776-1778; was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1779; was a State councillor or a State senator 1780-1786; was a member of the National Convention which framed the Constitution of the United States in 1787; was a member of the Massachusetts State Convention which ratified the Constitution of the United States 1787-1788; was elected to the United-States Senate as a Federalist, and re-elected, serving from March 4, 1789, until 1796, when he resigned; was governor of Massachusetts 1800-1807, and again 1812-1816; was a presidential elector in 1809; and died at Northampton, Massachusetts, November 7, 1819.

Strong, James, was born at Windham, Connecticut, in 1783; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Vermont in 1806; removed to New York, and located at Hudson; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1831; died at Chester, New Jersey, August 8, 1847.

Strong, Jedediah, was born in Connecticut; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1782-1784.

Strong, Julius L., was born at Bolton, Connecticut, November 8, 1828; entered Union College, but left in his senior year, and entered the National Law School at Ballston Spa; studied law with Martin Welles; was admitted to the bar in 1853, and practised at Hartford; was a member of the legislature of Connecticut in 1852 and 1853; and was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,620 votes against 10,885 votes for Dixon, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,977 votes against 11,691 votes for Dr. A. B. Goodrich, serving from April 9, 1869, to September 7, 1872, when he died at Hartford, Connecticut, after a brief illness.

Strong, Selah B., was born at Brookhaven, Long Island, May 1, 1792; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1811; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1814, and practised at Brookhaven; was State's attorney for Suffolk County; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,463 votes against 3,354 votes for King, Whig, and 14 votes for Williamson, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was judge of the Supreme Court for the Second Judicial District June 7, 1847-June 7, 1849.

Strong, Solomon, was born in Massachusetts in 1779; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1812-1813; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1818-1842; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1843 and 1844; died September 16, 1850.

Strong, Stephen, was born in Connecticut; removed to New York, and located at Owego; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,668 votes against 8,813 votes for Sweet, Whig, and 439 votes for Avery, American, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Strong, Theron R., was born in Connecticut; removed to New York, and located at Palmyra; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,824 votes against 5,670 votes for John M. Holley, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Strong, William, was born in Windham County, Connecticut; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Vermont; was for eight years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 441 majority; and was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress on a general ticket, receiving 13,174 votes against 6,582 votes for John Peck, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1821; was for eight years sheriff, and subsequently judge of the County Court.

Strong, William, was born at Somers, Connecticut, May 6, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1828; studied law, supporting himself by teaching school in Connecticut and in New York; was admitted to the bar at Philadelphia in 1832, and practised at Reading; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 8,452 votes against 4,014 votes for Adams, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was elected in 1857 a judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania for fifteen years; resigned in 1868, and resumed practice; was appointed by President Grant, in 1870, a justice of the Supreme Court of the United-States.

Strother, George F., was born in Culpepper County, Virginia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Culpepper Court House; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating John Shackelford; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, defeating John Shackelford, serving from December 1, 1817, to February 10, 1820, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Monroe receiver of public moneys at St. Louis, Missouri.

Strother, James French, was born in Culpepper County, Virginia, September 4, 1811; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Culpepper Court House; was for ten years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving as speaker in 1847-1848; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1859; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 2,377 votes against 1,838 votes for Morton, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; died in Culpepper County, Virginia, September 21, 1863.

Strouse, Myer, was born in Germany, December 16, 1825; immigrated to the United States with his father in 1832, and settled at Pottsville; received an academical education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; edited "The North-American Farmer" at Philadelphia 1848-1852; commenced practice at Pottsville in 1853; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,239 votes against 8,518 votes for Campbell, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,154 votes against 10,679 votes for Fisher, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; died at Pottsville, Pennsylvania, February 11, 1878.

Strudwick, William, was born in North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fourth Congress (in place of Absalom Tatom, resigned), serving from December 13, 1796, to March 3, 1797.

Stuart, Alexander H. H., was born at Staunton, Virginia, April 2, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1828, and commenced practice at Staunton; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836-1838; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was a presidential elector on the Clay ticket in 1844, and on the Taylor ticket in 1848; was appointed by President Fillmore secretary of the interior, serving from September 12, 1850, to March 3, 1853; was a delegate to the National Convention which nominated Mr. Fillmore President in 1856; was a member of the State Senate 1857-1861; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1863; claimed a seat in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a representative from Virginia, but was not admitted.

Stuart, Andrew, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, and located at Steubenville; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,423 votes against 6,885 votes for Brewer, Whig, and 1,220 votes for Lee, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Stuart, Archibald, was born in Virginia; resided at Mount Airy; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, defeating N. H. Clairborne, Van Buren Democrat.

Stuart, Charles E., was born in Columbia County, New York, November 25, 1810; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Kalamazoo, Michigan; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1841-1846; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-first Congress by the combined Whig and Free-soil vote; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 11,923 votes against 11,508 votes for Williams, Whig and Free-Soiler, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was elected a United-States senator from Michigan, serving from March 4, 1853, to March 3, 1859.

Stuart, David, was born in New York; removed to Michigan, and located at Detroit; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,125 votes against 9,370 votes for Howard, Whig, and 605 votes for Dexter, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Stuart, John T., was born in Fayette County, Kentucky, November 10, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Centre College, Kentucky, in 1826; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Springfield, Illinois; served as a private in the Black Hawk war of 1832; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832 and 1834; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 18,405 votes against 18,337 votes for Stephen A. Douglas, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was a member of the State Senate 1848-1852; was again elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,808 votes against 11,443 votes for Swett, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Stuart, Philip, was born in Maryland; received a good English education; served in the Revolutionary army, distinguishing himself at the battle of Eutaw; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Congresses, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1819; was an officer of Maryland volunteers during the British invasion; remained in Washington City after the expiration of his term of congressional service, and died there August 14, 1830.

Sturgeon, Daniel, was born in Pennsylvania October 27, 1789; resided at Uniontown; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Democrat, and re-elected, serving from December 2, 1830, to March 3, 1851; was appointed by President Pierce United-States treasurer at Philadelphia; died July 3, 1878.

Sturgis, Jonathan, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, August 23, 1740; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1759; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Fairfield; was actively engaged in pre-Revolutionary movements; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was a judge of the State Supreme Court 1793-1805; was a presidential elector in 1797 and 1805; died at Fairfield, Connecticut, October 4, 1810.

Sturgis, Lewis Burr, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, in 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1782; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Ninth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1817; he removed to Ohio, and located at Norwalk, where he died March 30, 1844.

Sullivan, George (son of John Sullivan), was born at Durham, New Hampshire, August 29, 1771; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1790; studied law under Judge Steele at Durham; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Exeter in 1793; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1805; was attorney-general of New Hampshire 1805-1806; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twelfth Congress, serving from November 4, 1811, until March 3, 1813; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1813, and a member of the State Senate in 1814 and 1815; was again attorney-general 1816-1835; and died June 14, 1838.

Sullivan, James (brother of John Sullivan), was born at Berwick, Massachusetts (now Maine), April 22, 1744; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Biddeford; was king's attorney for the county of York; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a member of the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts in 1775; was judge of the Superior Court in 1776; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress in 1782; was judge of probate for Suffolk County; was State attorney-general 1790-1807; was governor of Massachusetts 1807-1808; died at Boston, December 10, 1808. He published "Observations on the Government of the United States," "The Path to Riches, or Dissertation on Banks," "History of Maine," "Impartial Review of the Causes, &c., of the French Revolution," "Correspondence with Colonel Pickering," "History of Land-Titles in Massachusetts," "Dissertation on the Constitutional Liberty of the Press," and "A History of the Penobscot Indians." His "Life," with selections from his writings, was published by his grandson, Thomas C. Amory.

Sullivan, John (brother of James Sullivan, and father of George Sullivan), was born at Dover, New Hampshire, February 17, 1741; was educated by his father, John O'Sullivan, who was a school-teacher; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Durham; was commissioned as major of volunteers in 1772, and was at the capture of Fort William and Mary in 1774 by the revolutionists; was elected a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1774, and was re-elected in 1775; was appointed by Congress a brigadier-general June 22, 1775, and a major-general July 29, 1776, serving with distinction until he resigned in 1779; was again elected a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1783, and was re-elected in 1781; was attorney-general of New Hampshire 1782-1786, and president of that State in 1786-1787; was president of the State Convention that ratified the Constitution of the United States, and also speaker of the State House of Representatives in 1788; was a presidential elector, voting for Washington and Adams in 1789, and in March of that year was again elected president of the State of New Hampshire; was appointed by President Washington judge of the United-States District Court for New Hampshire, and occupied that position until his death at Durham, New Hampshire, January 23, 1795.

Summers, George W., was born in Fairfax County, Virginia; was taken early in life to Kanawha County, in the western part of that State; received a good education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Kanawha Court House; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1830-1840; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 3,271 votes against 2,942 votes for Hays, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1850; was defeated in 1851 as the Whig candidate for governor of Virginia; was judge of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit of Pennsylvania May, 1852-July, 1858; was a delegate from Virginia to the Peace Congress at Washington in 1861; paid much attention to agricultural pursuits.

Sumner, Charles, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, January 6, 1811; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1830; studied law, graduating at the Cambridge Law School in 1834; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Boston; was appointed reporter of the United-States Circuit Court; lectured at the Cambridge Law School 1835-1837; travelled in Europe 1837-1840; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts, after a prolonged contest, by a coalition of Democrats and Free-Soilers (to succeed Daniel Webster, Whig); was re-elected in 1857, again re-elected in 1863, and again re-elected in 1869, serving from December 1, 1851, until his death at Washington City of angina pectoris March 11, 1874, with the exception of a prolonged absence from his seat while suffering from an assault made on him at his desk in the Senate Chamber May 22, 1856, by Preston S. Brooks, a representative from South Carolina; he revisited Europe in 1857, and again in 1872. He published an edition of Dunlap "On Admiralty," three volumes of "Circuit-Court Reports," an edition of Reese's "Chancery Reports," and a large number of speeches and orations. Collections of his speeches were published in 1850 and in 1856; and his complete works, revised by himself, were in press when he died. Memoirs of him were published by Edward L. Pierce, Elias Nason, C. Edwards Lester, and others.

Sumter, Thomas, was born in Virginia in 1734; removed early in life to South Carolina; engaged in the war against the Cherokees, and at its close accompanied Oconostotah, or "the Emperor," to England, returning in 1763; was colonel of one of the first Continental regiments raised in South Carolina, and distinguished himself by his persistent attacks on the British and Tories until the close of the war; was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general in 1780, and was voted the thanks of Congress in January, 1781; was a member of the State Convention of South Carolina which met to ratify the Constitution of the United States, and voted against it on the ground that the States were not sufficiently shielded by it from Federal usurpation; was elected a representative from South Carolina to the First and Second Congresses, serving from May 25, 1789, until March 2, 1793; was again elected to the Fifth and Sixth Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1801; was elected a United-States senator from South Carolina as a Democrat (in place of Charles Pinckney, resigned), serving from December 19, 1801, to March 3, 1809; took his seat again November 27, 1809, and resigned in 1810; died at South Mount, near Strasburg, South Carolina, June 1, 1832.

Sumter, Thomas D., was born in Pennsylvania; removed to South Carolina; resided at Statesburg; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Sutherland, Jabez G., was born in Onondaga County, New York, October 6, 1825; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and practised; was prosecuting-attorney of Saginaw County in 1848-1849; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Conventions of 1850 and 1867; was a member of the House of Representatives of the State legislature in 1853; was elected circuit-judge in 1863, and re-elected in 1869; and was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 16,618 votes against 14,879 votes for John F. Driggs, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Sutherland, Joel B., was born at Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 1,108 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 2,366 votes against 1,916 votes for James Gowen, Clay Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving 1,437 majority over James Gowen, Whig, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 1,764 votes against 2,200 votes for Paynter, Democrat; died at Philadelphia November 15, 1861.

Sutherland, Josiah, was born in New York; resided at Hudson; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,672 votes against 5,040 votes for Cowles, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Swan, John, was born in North Carolina, and was a delegate from that State to the Continental Congress 1787-1788.

Swan, Samuel, was born in Somerset County, New Jersey, in 1771; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1831; died at Brunswick, New Jersey, August 24, 1844.

Swann, Thomas, was born at Alexandria, Virginia; educated at Columbian College, and the University of Virginia; studied law with his father at Washington, and was appointed secretary of the Neapolitan Commission; in 1834 he settled in Baltimore, and two years afterward was chosen a director of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; in 1847 he was chosen its president, resigning in 1853; was also president of the North-western Virginia Railroad Company; after a sojourn in Europe, he was in 1856 elected mayor of Baltimore, and re-elected in 1858; in 1864 he was elected governor of Maryland; in 1866 he was elected United-States senator, but declined to leave the executive chair; he was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,056 votes against 5,667 votes for King, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 15,137 votes against 10,414 votes for W. Booth, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,143 votes against 10,886 votes for E. Griswold, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,244 votes against 6,810 votes for John R. Cox, Republican; and was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,250 votes against 12,728 votes for J. H. Butler, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869.

Swanwick, John, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to 1798, when he died.

Swart, Peter, was born at Schoharie, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1793-1799; was elected a representative from New York in the Tenth Congress, defeating Thomas Sammons, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; was a member of the State Senate 1817-1820.

Swearingen, Henry, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, and located at Smithfield; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-fifth Congress (in place of Daniel Kilgore, who had resigned, and appealed to his constituents) as a Democrat, defeating D. Kilgore, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 3, 1838, to March 3, 1841.

Swearingen, Thomas V., was born in Jefferson County, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress, defeating Edward Colston; and was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, defeating R. Bailey by 1,147 votes, serving from December 6, 1819, to June 7, 1822, when he died at Shepherdstown, Virginia.

Sweat, Lorenzo D. M., was born at Parsonville, Maine, May 26, 1818; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1837; studied law at the Harvard Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and practised for two years at New Orleans, Louisiana; returning to Portland, he was city solicitor in 1853 and 1860; was a member of the State Senate in 1862; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,332 votes against 10,205 votes for John N. Goodwin, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,573 votes against 15,000 votes for John Lynch, Union Republican; was again defeated for the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,653 votes against 15,611 votes for John Lynch; was a delegate from Maine to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1868.

Sweeney, W. N., was born in Kentucky May 5, 1832; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-first Congress, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Sweeny, George, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, and located at Bucyrus; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Sweetser, Charles, was born in Vermont; removed to Ohio, and located at Delaware; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,454 votes against 8,438 votes for Duncan, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 8,579 votes against 8,442 votes for Galloway, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Swift, Benjamin, was born at Amenia, New York, April 5, 1781; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1806, and commenced practice at Bennington, removing subsequently to Manchester, and then to St. Alban's; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1813, 1814, 1825, and 1826; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twentieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839; retired to his farm, and, while apparently enjoying good health, fell in a field, and died November 11, 1847.

Swift, Zephaniah, was born at Wareham, Massachusetts, in 1759; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1778; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Windham, Connecticut; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Third Congress, and re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; was secretary to the French mission in 1800; was appointed in 1801 a judge of the Supreme Court, and its chief justice 1806-1819; he was a member of the Hartford Convention of New-England Federalists; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was one of a commission to revise the laws of Connecticut; and died at Warren, Ohio, September 27, 1823. He published "A Digest of the Laws of Connecticut" (in two volumes), an "Oration on Domestic Slavery," a "System of the Laws of Connecticut," and a "Treatise on Bills of Exchange."

Switzler, William Franklin, was born in Fayette County, Kentucky, March 16, 1819; removed with his father to Missouri in 1826; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Columbia; established "The Columbia Patriot" in 1841, and "The Missouri Statesman" in 1843; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1846, 1848, and 1856; was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore in 1860; was appointed in 1862 military secretary of state for Arkansas under the military governor, John S. Phelps; was appointed by President Lincoln in 1863 provost-marshal in Missouri; was a delegate to the Missouri Constitutional Convention of 1865; claimed to have been elected to the Fortieth Congress, and the committee on elections recognized his claim, but the House refused to receive him, and gave the seat to George W. Anderson.

Swoope, Jacob, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, defeating Smith, Democrat, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811.

Swope, Samuel F., was born in Kentucky; resided at Falmouth; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 7,490 votes against 6,991 votes for Harris, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Sykes, George, was born in New Jersey; resided at Mount Holly; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Sykes, James, was born near Dover, Delaware; was prominent in pre-Revolutionary measures; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1777-1778.

Sylvester, Peter, was born at Kinderhook, New York; received an academic education; was elected a representative from New York in the First Congress; and was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from April 22, 1789, to March 2, 1793.

Sylvester, Peter H., was born at Kinderhook, New York, February 17, 1807; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1827; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1830, and commenced practice at Coxsackie, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,621 votes against 3,893 votes for Olney, Democrat, and 3,453 votes for Beekman, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851.

Symmes, John Cleves, was born on Long Island July 21, 1742; was chairman of the Committee of Safety of Sussex County in 1774; was a delegate to the State Provincial Congress, and one of the committee of ten which framed the first State Constitution; was a member of the Legislative Council; served in the Revolutionary army, and distinguished himself in covering the retreat of Washington at Springfield, and at the battle of Monmouth; was chief justice of the State Supreme Court 1777-1787; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1785-1786; removed to the North-west Territory, settling at North Bend, below Cincinnati, where he and his associates had bought a large tract of land known as the "Miami Purchase;" this enterprise involved him in pecuniary difficulties, from which he never recovered, though they left no stain upon his character; in 1788 he was appointed by Congress one of the three judges of the North-west Territory, and held the place till Ohio became a State; one of his daughters was the wife of President Harrison; he died at Cincinnati February 26, 1814, and was buried at North Bend in the same cemetery that encloses the tomb of President Harrison.

Sypher, Jay Hale, was born in Pennsylvania July 22, 1837; received a collegiate education; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; entered the Union army as a private, and rose through all the grades to that of brigadier-general, which he held when mustered out of service at the close of the war, November 25, 1865; located in Louisiana in January, 1866; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago which nominated Grant and Colfax; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican by 3,000 majority; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress by 5,400 majority over St. Martin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress by a majority of 5,500 over Walker, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,299 votes against 12,225 votes for E. Lawrence, Democrat, serving from July 18, 1868, to March 3, 1875.

Taber, Stephen, was born at Dover, New York, March 7, 1821; received an academical education; removed to Queen's County, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State legislature of New York in 1860 and 1861; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,232 votes against 10,023 votes for G. W. Curtis, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 10,458 votes against 9,362 votes for Gleason, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Taber, Thomas, 2d, was born at Dover, New York, May 19, 1785; received a public-school education; was a practical farmer; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress (in place of Thomas J. Oakley, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1828, to March 3, 1829; died at Dover, New York, March 21, 1862.

Taffe, John, was born at Indianapolis, Indiana, January 30, 1827; received an academical education; studied law, and practised at Indianapolis; removed to Nebraska in 1856; was chosen a member of the lower branch of the Territorial legislature in 1858 and 1859; was elected to the upper branch or council in 1860, and was chosen president of that body; entered the military service in 1862, and served fifteen months as major of the Second Nebraska Cavalry; was elected a representative from Nebraska in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican by 748 majority over Paddock, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 8,718 votes against 5,992 votes for Poppleton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,375 votes against 7,967 votes for G. B. Lake, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873; was appointed secretary of Colorado in 1875.

Taggart, Samuel, was born at Londonderry, New Hampshire, March 24, 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1774; studied theology; was ordained in 1777 as pastor of the church at Coleraine, Massachusetts, and filled the position until 1818; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1817; died at Coleraine, Massachusetts, April 25, 1825. He published a number of religious and political pamphlets.

Tait, Charles, was born in Louisa County, Virginia, in 1768; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Georgia; was a judge of the Superior Court of Georgia; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of John Milledge, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 28, 1809, to March 3, 1819; removed to Wilcox County, Alabama; was a judge of the District Court of Alabama 1820-1826; died in Wilcox County, Alabama, October 7, 1835.

Talbot, Isham, was born in Bedford County, Virginia, in 1773; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Frankfort, Kentucky; was a member of the State Senate 1812-1815; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of Jesse Bledsoe, resigned), serving from February 2, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was again elected a senator (in place of William Logan, resigned), serving from November 27, 1820, to March 3, 1825; died near Frankfort, Kentucky, September 25, 1837.

Talbot, Silas, was born in Rhode Island in 1751; received a public-school education; entered the Revolutionary army as captain in a Rhode-Island regiment; was at the siege of Boston; accompanied the army to New York, where he so annoyed the British shipping in the harbor that Congress ordered his promotion to the rank of major; was wounded in the defence of Fort Mifflin in 1777; rendered important services to General Sullivan in 1778 by transporting the Continental troops from the main land to the upper end of Rhode Island; captured the British floating-battery "Pigot" off Newport, and received for his bravery the commission of lieutenant-colonel; armed his prize, and, with the armed sloop "Argo," cruised off New England, capturing a number of prizes; was commissioned captain in the Continental navy September 17, 1779; was captured by a British fleet in 1780, and imprisoned in England until he was exchanged in 1781; after the war, he purchased the confiscated estate of Sir William Johnson in Montgomery County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1792-1793; was elected a representative from New York in the Third Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was recommissioned by President Washington captain in the United-States navy; superintended the building of the frigate "Constitution," which he commanded on the West-India station in 1799; resigned in September, 1800; resided in New-York City, and died there June 30, 1813. The "Life of Silas Talbot" was published by H. T. Tuckerman.

Talbott, Albert G., was born in Kentucky; resided at Danville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,586 votes against 6,570 votes for Fox, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,025 votes against 6,801 votes for Anderson, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Taliaferro, Benjamin, was born in Virginia in 1750; served in the Revolutionary army in the rifle corps commanded by General Morgan; was in the battles of Saratoga and Monmouth, and at the siege of Savannah; was taken prisoner by the British at the surrender of Charleston; settled in Georgia; was a member of the State Senate; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1798; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Sixth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to 1802, when he resigned; was judge of the Superior Court; died in Wilkes County, Georgia, September 3, 1821.

Taliaferro, John, was born in Spottsylvania County, Virginia, in 1708; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; was a presidential elector on the Jefferson ticket in 1805; was again elected to the Twelfth Congress (having successfully contested the election of John P. Hungerford), serving from December 2, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was a presidential elector on the Monroe ticket in 1821; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress (in place of William Lee Ball, deceased), and was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from April 8, 1824, to March 3, 1831; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1843; was librarian of the Treasury Department at Washington 1850-1853; died at "Hagley" (his residence in King George County, Virginia) August 12, 1853.

Taliaferro, Robert W., was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican; a majority of the Committee on Elections reported that he was entitled to a seat, but such was the opposition that no vote was taken on the resolution, although on the last day of the session he was voted $2,000 for compensation, mileage, and expenses.

Tallmadge, Benjamin (father of Frederick Augustus Tallmadge), was born at Setauket, Long Island, New York, February 25, 1754; was thoroughly educated by his father, who was a clergyman; took charge of a school at Wethersfield, Connecticut; entered the Revolutionary army as lieutenant in a Connecticut regiment, and soon rose to the rank of colonel; distinguished himself throughout the war, and was for some years on duty at Washington's headquarters, having charge of the secret correspondence; after the war, he engaged in mercantile pursuits at Litchfield, Connecticut; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Seventh Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1817; died at Litchfield, Connecticut, March 17, 1835.

Tallmadge, Frederick Augustus (son of Benjamin Tallmadge), was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, August 29, 1792; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1811; studied law at the Litchfield Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York in 1813; commanded a troop of volunteer cavalry on Long Island during the closing months of the war with Great Britain; was assistant alderman 1834, and alderman 1836; was State senator 1837-1840, and a portion of that time president of the Senate; was recorder of the city of New York 1841-1840; was elected a representative from New York to the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,205 votes against 1,809 votes for David Broderick, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, until March 3, 1849; was again recorder of the city of New York 1848-1851; was superintendent of the metropolitan police 1857-1862; was clerk of the New-York Court of Appeals 1862-1865; and died at Litchfield, Connecticut, September 17, 1869.

Tallmadge, James, jun., was born at Stamford, New York, January 28, 1778; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1798; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice, but devoted much of his time to agricultural pursuits; served in the war of 1812 as commander of a company of home guards; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; declined a re-election; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1821; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1824; was lieutenant-governor of New York 1826-1827; visited Russia, and secured the introduction of United-States cotton-spinning machinery into that country; was one of the founders of the American Institute at New York, and its president during the last twenty years of his life; was one of the founders of the New-York City University, and for some years president of its council; died suddenly at New-York City September 29, 1853.

Tallmadge, Nathaniel P., was born at Chatham, New York, February 8, 1795; received a classical education, graduating at Union College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Poughkeepsie; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1828, and of the State Senate in 1833-1833; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Conservative Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to June 17, 1844, when he resigned; was appointed by President Tyler governor of the Territory of Wisconsin, and removed by President Polk, serving 1844-1846; resumed practice; and died at Battle Creek, Michigan, November 2, 1864.

Tallman, Peleg, was born at Tiverton, Rhode Island, in 1764; received a public-school education; served in the Revolutionary war when a lad on the privateer "Trumbull;" lost an arm in a naval engagement in 1780; was captured and imprisoned in England and Ireland in 1781-1783; entered the merchant service, and became a merchant at Bath, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine); was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat, but refused to support the war, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813, and declining a re-election; was a member of the State Senate of Maine 1821, 1822; died at Bath, Maine, November 2, 1864.

Tannehill, Adamson, was born in Frederick

County, Maryland, in 1752; received a public-school education; served in the Revolutionary war as captain of riflemen; removed to Pennsylvania, and commenced the cultivation of a small farm near Pittsburg; was a justice of the peace; opposed the Whiskey Insurrection; was brigadier-general of Pennsylvania volunteers in the United-States service from September 25 to December 31, 1812; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; died near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, July 7, 1817.

Tanner, Adolphus H., was born at Granville, New York, May 23, 1833; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and commenced practice at Whitehall, New York; in 1862 he entered the Union army as a captain, and, as lieutenant-colonel of the One Hundred and Twenty-third Regiment of New-York Volunteer Infantry, served until the close of the war, — first in the Army of the Potomac, and subsequently throughout the Atlanta campaign and that of the Carolinas; he was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,054 votes against 14,041 votes for Osgood, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Tappan, Benjamin, was born at Northampton, Massachusetts, May 25, 1773; received a public-school education; was apprenticed to learn the art of copperplate engraving and printing; gave some attention to portrait-painting; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Steubenville, Ohio; was elected to the State House of Representatives of Ohio in 1803; served as aide-de-camp to General Wadsworth in the war of 1812; was a judge of the County Court, and then, for seven years, presiding judge of the Fifth Ohio Circuit Court of Common Pleas; was appointed by President Jackson United-States judge for the district of Ohio in 1833; was elected to the United-States Senate from Ohio as a Democrat, defeating Thomas Ewing, Whig, and serving from December 2, 1839, until March 3, 1845; became a decided antislavery man; died at Steubenville, Ohio, April 12, 1857.

Tappan, Mason W., was born at Newport, New Hampshire; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bradford, New Hampshire; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1853-1855; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 12,129 votes against 8,650 votes for Morrison, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,685 votes against 9,180 votes for Morrison, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 11,288 votes against 10,228 votes for John H. George, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; served in the Union army as colonel of the First New-Hampshire Volunteer Infantry April 20, 1861-August 9, 1861.

Tarbox, John Kemble, was born in that portion of Methuen now comprised within the limits of the city of Lawrence May 6, 1838; was fitted for college in the public schools and academy, but was obliged to relinquish a collegiate course by delicate health; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1860, and has since practised at Lawrence; was for a time, while pursuing his legal studies, political editor of "The Lawrence Sentinel," a Democratic journal; served in the Union army during the war as a line-officer of the Fourth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1868, 1870, and 1871, and of the State Senate in 1872; was mayor of Lawrence in 1873, 1874; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,979 votes against 7,415 votes for James C. Ayer, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,379 votes against 12,100 votes for Benjamin F. Butler, Republican.

Tarr, Christian, was born at Baltimore, Maryland; removed to Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821.

Tate, Magnus, resided in Berkeley County, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fourteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Tatnall, Edward F., was born at Savannah, Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Congresses without opposition, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1827.

Tatnall, Josiah, was born at Bonaventure, Georgia; received an academical education at Nassau, New Providence, but, on the breaking out of Revolutionary hostilities, he returned to Georgia without the knowledge of his parents, and at the age of eighteen joined the command of General Wayne; was colonel of a regiment of State troops raised in 1793 for protection against the Indians; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of James Jackson, resigned), serving from April 12, 1796, to March 3, 1799; was appointed brigadier-general of State troops in 1800; died at Nassau, New Providence, June 6, 1803.

Tatum, Absalom, was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to 1796, when he resigned.

Taul, Micah, was born in Virginia; removed to Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fourteenth Congress, receiving a large majority over Mr. Montgomery, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Taylor, Alexander Wilson, was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, March 22, 1815; was educated at the Indiana Academy, and at Jefferson College, Washington County, Pennsylvania; left college in the spring of 1836 to fill an appointment as clerk in the surveyor-general's office of Pennsylvania; studied law at the law-school in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, and in the office of Judge White at Indiana, Pennsylvania; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and practised; in 1845 was elected prothonotary and clerk of the several courts of Indiana County, and was re-elected in 1848; was a member of the legislature of Pennsylvania in 1859 and 1860; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,982 votes against 13,289 votes for H. D. Foster, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Taylor, Caleb N., was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, July 27, 1813; received an academic education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,259 votes against 11,800 votes for Ross, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1869; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress (having successfully contested the election of John R. Reading), serving from December 5, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Taylor, George, was born in Ireland in 1716; received a good education; immigrated to the United States in 1736; became a day-laborer in iron-works at Durham, Pennsylvania, and in time was the owner of iron-works in Northumberland County; was a member of the Colonial House of Representatives 1764-1769; was appointed colonel of militia, and judge of the County Court, in 1770; was again a member of the Provincial House of Representatives in 1775; was a delegate to the Continental Congress from Pennsylvania in 1776-1777; negotiated treaties of peace with several Indian tribes while he was a delegate in Congress; removed to Easton, Delaware, and died there February 23, 1781.

Taylor, George, was born at Wheeling, Virginia, October, 19, 1820; received an academical education; studied medicine, and subsequently law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and commenced practice in Indiana; removed to Alabama in 1844, and in 1848 removed to Brooklyn, New York, where he practised; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,591 votes against 5,869 votes for Stranahan, Republican, and 5,476 votes for Wood, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,578 votes against 6,475 votes for Humphrey, Opposition, and 5,581 votes for Litchfield, Independent Democrat; resumed practice at Washington City. He published "Indications of the Creator," and several essays upon educational topics.

Taylor, John, was born in Orange County, Virginia; was a planter, and did much towards advancing the science of agriculture; was appointed United-States senator as a Democrat (in place of Richard Henry Lee, resigned); took his seat December 12, 1792; was elected for six years from March 4, 1793, and resigned in 1794; was a presidential elector in 1797; was again appointed a senator (in place of Stevens T. Mason, deceased), serving from October 17, 1803, to December 13, 1803, when A. B. Venable took his seat; was elected a senator (in place of James Pleasants, resigned), defeating H. St. George Tucker and John Tyler, and serving from December 30, 1822, until his death in Caroline County, Virginia, August 20, 1824. He published "An Enquiry into the Principles of the Government of the United States," "Agricultural Essays, by 'Arator,'" "Construction Construed," "Tyranny Unmasked," "New Views of the Constitution of the United States," and several essays on political and agricultural subjects.

Taylor, John, was born at Columbia, South Carolina, May 14, 1770; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1790; commenced the study of law in January, 1791, with Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, at Charleston; was admitted to the bar in June, 1793, and entered into practice at Columbia, but was more particularly devoted to planting; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Tenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to December 31, 1810, when, having been elected a United-States senator (in place of Thomas Sumter, resigned), he took his seat in the Senate, serving until 1816, when he resigned; was again elected a representative in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from 1816 to March 3, 1817; was defeated as a candidate for the Fifteenth Congress by Elias Earle; was defeated as a candidate for the Seventeenth Congress by William Lowndes; was a State senator in 1822; was governor of South Carolina 1820-1822; and died at his residence on Taylor's Hill, Columbia, South Carolina, February 23, 1832.

Taylor, John J., was born in Massachusetts; removed to New York, and settled at Owego; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,420 votes against 8,410 votes for Cook, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Taylor, John L., was born in Stafford County, Virginia, March 7, 1805; received an academical education; studied law at Washington City; was admitted to the bar in 1828, and commenced practice at Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1829; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 314 majority over the Democratic candidate; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,449 votes against 6,624 votes for Cleveland, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,853 votes against 5,321 votes for McCormick, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,653 votes against 6,763 votes for Sherer, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1855; was appointed a clerk in the Interior Department at Washington in 1870; and died suddenly at his desk September 6, 1870.

Taylor, John W., was born in Saratoga County, New York, in 1784; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1808; studied law at Albany; was admitted to the bar in 1806, and commenced practice at Ballston Spa; was a member of the State legislature 1812-1813; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat, and was successively re-elected to the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1833; was speaker of the House during the second session of the Sixteenth Congress (Mr. Speaker Clay having found it impossible to attend until after the holidays), and also of the Nineteenth Congress; removed in September, 1843, to Cleveland, Ohio, where he resumed practice; and died September 18, 1854.

Taylor, Jonathan, was born in Connecticut; removed to Ohio, and settled at Newark; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Taylor, Joseph W., was born in Cumberland County, Kentucky, in 1820; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College, Kentucky; removed to Alabama in 1838; studied law with Judge H. I. Thornton in Greene County, and practised for several years; was presidential elector on the Clay and Frelinghuysen ticket in 1844; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845 and 1847, and of the State Senate in 1855; was elected a representative from Alabama to the Thirty-ninth Congress, and his credentials were presented on the 7th of February, 1866, but he was refused a seat; was chosen president of the board of trustees of the Southern University; was editor of "The Tuscaloosa Times."

Taylor, Miles, was born in New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Donaldsonville, Louisiana; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,180 votes against 5,811 votes for Hunt, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,950 votes against 4,892 votes for Burke, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,908 votes against 4,459 votes for Nichols, Opposition, serving from December 3, 1855, to February 5, 1861, when he retired from the House.

Taylor, Nathaniel G., was born in Carter County, Tennessee, December 20, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice; became a preacher in the Methodist-Episcopal Church South; was a presidential elector on the Scott ticket in 1853; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-third Congress (in place of Brookins Campbell, deceased) as a Whig, receiving 617 majority, serving from March 30, 1854, to March 3, 1855; was a presidential elector on the Bell and Everett ticket in 1860; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 5,236 votes against 4,460 votes for Miller, and 1,626 votes for Randolph, serving from July 24, 1866, to March 3, 1867; was appointed by President Johnson commissioner of Indian affairs, serving from March 26, 1867, to April 21, 1869.

Taylor, Nelson, was born at South Norwalk, Connecticut, June 8, 1821; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New York; served in the Mexican war as captain in the First New-York Volunteer Infantry August 1, 1846-August 1, 1848; was a member of the State Senate of California in 1849; was president of the board of trustees of the State Insane Asylum 1830-1836; was sheriff of San Joaquin County in 1853; returned to New York; served in the Union army as colonel of the Seventy-second New-York Volunteer Infantry; was promoted to be brigadier-general in 1862; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,272 votes against 4,286 votes for Maclay, Mozart Democrat, and 3,921 votes for Ellery, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Taylor, Robert, was born in Virginia; resided at Orange Court House; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

Taylor, Waller, was born in Lunenburg County, Virginia; received a public-school education; removed to Indiana, and located at Vincennes; was Territorial judge in 1806; served as aide-de-camp to General Harrison in the war of 1812, and was with him at the battle of Tippecanoe; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana as a Democrat, and re-elected, serving from December 12, 1816, to March 3, 1825; died in Lunenburg, Virginia, August 26, 1826.

Taylor, William, was born in Connecticut in 1793; removed with his parents to Onondaga County, New York, when quite young; received a public-school education; studied medicine; was licensed to practise, and was a practising physician at Manlius, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841 and 1842; died at Manlius, New York, September 6, 1843.

Taylor, William, was born at Alexandria, Virginia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Rockingham County, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,983 votes against 1,347 votes for A. H. H. Stuart, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to January 17, 1846, when he died very suddenly at Washington City.

Taylor, William P., was born at Fredericksburg, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 957 votes against 670 votes for John Roane, Democrat, and 182 for Upshur, Independent, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-fourth Congress by John Roane, Democrat.

Tazewell, Henry, was born in Brunswick County, Virginia, in 1753; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1773, and commenced practice; was a member of the Provincial House of Burgesses in 1775; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1776; was elected judge in 1785, and judge of the High Court of Appeals in 1793; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of John Taylor, resigned), serving from December 20, 1794, to January 24, 1799, when he died at Philadelphia.

Tazewell, Littleton Walker, was born at Williamsburg, Virginia, December 17, 1774; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1791; studied law with John Wickham at Richmond; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Williamsburg in 1796; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1798; removed to Norfolk, Virginia, in 1801; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixth Congress (in place of John Marshall, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from November 26, 1800, to March 3, 1801; was one of the commissioners of claims under the treaty with Spain ceding Florida in 1820; was offered the mission to Great Britain by President Jackson in 1829, and declined it; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of John Taylor, deceased), serving from December 29, 1824, to July 16, 1832, when he resigned; died at Norfolk, Virginia, May 6, 1860. He published "A Review of the Negotiations between the United States and Great Britain." A discourse on his life by Hugh B. Grisby was published in 1860.

Teese, Frederick H., was born at Newark, New Jersey, October 21, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice at Newark; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1860-1861, and was elected speaker that year; was appointed presiding judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Essex County in 1864, and was re-appointed in 1869; and was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,876 votes against 13,768 votes for Marcus L. Ward, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Telfair, Edward (father of Thomas Telfair), was born in Scotland in 1735; received a classical education at Kirkcubright Grammar School; immigrated to the Province of Virginia in 1735 as the factor of a mercantile house in Glasgow; removed to Halifax, North Carolina, and in 1766 established himself as a commission merchant at Savannah, Georgia; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1777-1779 and in 1780-1783; was one of the commissioners in 1783 to negotiate a treaty with the Cherokees; died at Savannah, Georgia, September 17, 1807.

Telfair, Thomas (son of Edward Telfair), was born at Savannah, Georgia; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1835; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Savannah; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirteenth Congress as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died at Savannah, Georgia, April 2, 1818.

Teller, Henry M., was born in Alleghany County, New York, May 23, 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar in New York, and has since practised; removed to Illinois in 1858, and from there to Colorado in 1861; never held office until he was elected to the United-States Senate (on the admission of Colorado as a State) as a Republican, and took his seat December 4, 1876; and was re-elected December 11, 1876. His term of service will expire March 3, 1883.

Teller, Isaac, was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1798; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress (in place of Gilbert Dean, resigned) as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1854, to March 3, 1855; died at Mattawan, New York, April 30, 1868, while riding in a wagon, and the horse that he was driving went on for several miles before it was discovered that the driver was dead.

Temple, William, was born in Queen Anne County, Maryland, February 28, 1815; received an academical education; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Smyrna, Delaware; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1844, and was chosen speaker; by the death of the governor and the president of the Senate, he became acting governor of Delaware; was a member of the State Senate 1845-1854; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,003 votes against 8,014 votes for George P. Fisher, Republican; died before taking his seat, at Smyrna, Delaware, August 8, 1863.

Ten Eyck, Egbert, was born in Rensselaer County, New York, April 18, 1779; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College; studied law at Albany; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Watertown, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1812-1813, serving the last year as speaker; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1832; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was judge of the Jefferson-county courts; died at Watertown, New York, April 11, 1844.

Ten Eyck, John C., was born at Freehold, New Jersey, March 12, 1814; received an academical education from private tutors; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and commenced practice at Mount Holly, New Jersey; was prosecuting-attorney for Burlington County 1839-1849; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1844; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Republican, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865.

Tenney, Samuel, was born at Byfield Parish, Newbury, Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1772; studied medicine with Dr. Kittredge at Andover; was licensed, and commenced practice at Exeter, New Hampshire; served as surgeon in the Revolutionary army; returned to Exeter, and was judge of probate for Rockingham County; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Sixth Congress (in place of William Gordon, resigned); was re-elected to the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 8, 1800, to March 3, 1805; was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; died at Exeter, New Hampshire, February 6, 1816. He published a number of political, scientific, and agricultural essays.

Terrill, William, was born at Sparta, Georgia; received a thorough English education; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; declined a re-election; took a great interest in the promotion of agricultural science; donated in 1853 twenty thousand dollars for the foundation of the Terrill professorship of agriculture in the University of Georgia; died at Sparta, Georgia, July 4, 1835.

Terry, Nathaniel, was born at Enfield, Connecticut, in 1768; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1786; held several State and local offices; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; died at New Haven, Connecticut, June 14, 1844.

Terry, William, was born in Amherst County, Virginia, August 14, 1824; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1848; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Wytheville in September, 1851; was for some eighteen months one of the editors and proprietors of "The Telegraph;" was in the military service of Virginia in the "John Brown raid" in 1859; entered the Confederate army in April, 1861, as lieutenant in the Fourth Virginia Infantry, "Stonewall Brigade;" served during the war, and by successive promotions attained the rank of brigadier-general March 20, 1864; was nominated for Congress in 1868, but, being under political disabilities, he afterward withdrew; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-second Congress as a Conservative, receiving 10,398 votes against 4,384 votes for F. McMullin, Independent Democrat, and 3,922 votes for R. W. Hughes, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Conservative, receiving 8,052 votes against 1,821 votes for G. W. Henderlite, Republican, and 6,760 votes for

F. McMullin, Independent, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Test, John, was born at Salem, New Jersey; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Brookville, Indiana; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Eighteenth Congress as a Clay Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was defeated as the Clay Democratic candidate for the Twentieth Congress by Oliver H. Smith, Jackson Democrat, who received 1,371 votes; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress as a Whig, defeating Jonathan McCarty, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1831; was presiding judge of an Indiana Circuit Court; removed to Mobile, Alabama, where he practised; died near Cambridge City, Indiana, October 9, 1849.

Thacher, George, was born at Yarmouth, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), April 12, 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1776; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1778, and commenced practice at York, removing to Biddeford in 1782; was a delegate from Massachusetts to the Continental Congress 1787-1788; was elected a representative from the Maine District of Massachusetts in the First Congress, and was successively re-elected to the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1801; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, and afterwards of Maine, 1800-1824; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of Maine in 1819; and died at Biddeford, Maine, April 6, 1824.

Thacher, Samuel, was born at Cambridge, Massachusetts, July 1, 1776; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1793; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1797, and commenced practice at New Gloucester, in that portion of Massachusetts which was afterwards Maine; removed to Warren in 1800; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1801-1811; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Seventh Congress (in place of Silas Lee, resigned), receiving 815 votes against 608 votes for Kinsley; was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 6, 1802, to March 3, 1805; was sheriff of Lincoln County 1814-1821; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Maine in 1824; removed to Bangor, Maine, in 1866, and died there July 19, 1872.

Thayer, Eli, was born at Mendon, Massachusetts, June 11, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1843; became the principal of the Worcester (Massachusetts) Academy, and in 1851 founded the collegiate institute for girls known as the "Oread Institute;" was a member of the State House of Representatives 1853-1854; organized the emigration of antislavery men into Kansas under the auspices of the Emigrant-Aid Society; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,920 votes against 4,414 votes for A. De Witt, American, 2,987 votes for Wood, Democrat, and 292 votes for Thurston, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,280 votes against 2,962 votes for Wood, Democrat, and 31 votes scattering, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 7,949 votes against 9,745 votes for G. F. Bailey, Republican, and 109 votes for S. W. A. Stevens.

Thayer, John M., was born at Bellingham, Massachusetts, January 24, 1820; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University, Rhode Island; studied law; went to Nebraska in 1854; was elected major-general, in which capacity he organized and commanded two expeditions against hostile Indians; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Nebraska; was a member of the upper branch of the Territorial legislature in 1860; entered the Union army as colonel of the First Nebraska Volunteers in 1861; was appointed brigadier-general, and brevetted major-general "for distinguished services;" was elected a United-States senator from Nebraska as a Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 4, 1871; was appointed governor of Wyoming Territory by President Grant in 1875, and superseded by President Hayes in 1878.

Thayer, M. Russell, was born at Petersburg, Virginia, January 27, 1819; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was appointed in 1862 by the governor of Pennsylvania a commissioner to revise the revenue laws of that State; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,605 votes against 9,543 votes for Carrigan, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,007 votes against 10,729 votes for Ross, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; declining a re-election, he was appointed a judge of the District Court of Philadelphia in 1867, and in 1868 was elected by the people a judge of the same court for ten years; was appointed by the President of the United States a member of the board of visitors to the Military Academy; in 1874, under the new constitution of Pennsylvania, he was appointed president-judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia.

Theaker, Thomas C., was born in York County, Pennsylvania, February 1, 1812; received an academical education; removed to Bridgeport, Ohio, in 1830; was a machinist, and constructor of flour-mills; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,311 votes against 7,219 votes for B. F. Spriggs, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 8,510 votes against 9,609 votes for Morris, Democrat; was appointed one of a board of commissioners to investigate the workings of the Patent Office; was appointed by President Johnson commissioner of patents, serving August 17, 1865-June 6, 1868.

Thibodeaux, Bannon G., was born in Louisiana; was reared as a sugar-planter; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; died in the parish of Terrebonne, Louisiana, March 11, 1866.

Thomas, Benjamin S., was born at Boston, Massachusetts, February 12, 1813; removed to Worcester in 1819; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Worcester; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1842; was judge of probate 1844-1848; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848; was a judge of the State Supreme Court 1853-1859; removed to Boston, where he practised, residing at West Roxbury; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Conservative Unionist, receiving 2,774 votes against 305 scattering votes, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; resumed practice at Boston. He published "Law of Towns and Town-Officers," "Suggestions upon the Personal-Liberty Law."

Thomas, Charles R., was born in Carteret County, North Carolina, February 7, 1827; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in June, 1849; studied and practised law; was elected one of the judges of the Superior Court in April, 1868, and resigned on his election as a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving about 2,900 majority over L. W. Humphrey, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 20,072 votes against 11,627 votes for Kitchen, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Thomas, Christopher Y., was born in the county of Pittsylvania, Virginia, March 24, 1818; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in June, 1844, and practised at Martinsville; was elected in 1850 to the State Senate of Virginia for a term of four years; was elected in 1867 a member of the Constitutional Convention of Virginia, held under the reconstruction acts; was elected in 1869 to the State legislature of Virginia for a term of two years, which included two regular sessions and one extra session; and was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,421 votes against 9,299 votes for Alexander M. Davis, Democrat, serving from March 5, 1874, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,723 votes against 10,221 votes for George C. Cabell, Democrat.

Thomas, David, was born in Washington County, New York; resided at Salem; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1794-1800; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to May 1, 1808, when he resigned; was treasurer of the State of New York February 18, 1812-February 10, 1813.

Thomas, Dorsey B., was born in Tennessee; claimed to have been elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-ninth Congress; but the House gave the seat to Samuel M. Arnell, paying Thomas $1,658.80 on condition that he took the same oath as a member, except as regarded the duties of the office.

Thomas, Francis, was born in Frederick County, Maryland, February 3, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at St. John's College, Annapolis; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Frankville; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822, 1827, and 1829, serving the last year as speaker; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1841; was president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company in 1839 and 1840; was elected governor of Maryland, serving 1841-1844, fighting a duel during the canvass with William Price, and becoming soon afterwards involved in a domestic difficulty which culminated in a divorce; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Union Republican, receiving 13,462 votes against 320 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 12,118 votes against 68 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,899 votes against 7,551 votes for Syester, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,252 votes against 9,230 votes for Mauley, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1869; was appointed by President Grant collector of internal revenue, serving from April, 1870, until he was appointed minister to Peru, serving from March 25, 1872, to July 9, 1875; retired to his farm near Frankland, where he was killed by a locomotive while he was walking on the railroad-track January 22, 1876.

Thomas, Isaac, was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fourteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Thomas, James Houston, was born in Iredell County, North Carolina, September 22, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, Tennessee, in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Columbia, Tennessee; was attorney-general of Tennessee 1836-1842; became the law-partner of James K. Polk; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,136 votes against 4,802 votes for Buchanan, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 3,672 votes against 4,812 votes for Polk, Whig; was again elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,023 votes against no opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Thomas, Jesse B., was one of the pioneers of the West; was elected a delegate from Indiana Territory (which included Illinois) in the Tenth Congress (in place of Benjamin Parke, resigned), serving from December 1, 1808, to March 3, 1809; was appointed judge of the United-States Court for the North-western Judicial District; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Illinois, serving from December 4, 1818, to March 3, 1829; removed to Mount Vernon, Ohio; committed suicide in a fit of mental aberration by severing the jugular vein with a razor February 3, 1850.

Thomas, John C., was elected a representative from Maryland in the Sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801.

Thomas, John L., jun., was born at Baltimore, Maryland, May 20, 1835; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1856, and commenced practice at Baltimore; was city-solicitor of Baltimore 1861-1863; was elected State attorney in 1863; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1863; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,541 votes against 4,102 votes for Stevenson Archer, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Fortieth Congress, receiving 5,014 votes against 7,091 votes for Stevenson Archer, Democrat; was appointed collector of customs at the port of Baltimore.

Thomas, Philemon, was born in North Carolina in 1764; received a public-school education; removed to Kentucky, where he was a member of the State House of Representatives; was leader of the party of Americans which settled on the banks of the Lower-Mississippi River, and in 1810 rose in arms against the Spanish authorities, who exercised authority over what is now Mississippi and Louisiana as a part of the Spanish colony of West Florida; settled at Baton Rouge; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; died at Baton Rouge, Louisiana, November 18, 1847.

Thomas, Philip Francis, was born in Talbot County, Maryland, September 12, 1810; was educated at the public schools, and at Dickinson College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1831, and commenced practice at Easton, Maryland; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1836; was a member of the State House of Delegates in 1838, 1843, and 1845; was a representative in the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, until March 3, 1841; was judge of the Eastern-Shore Land-Office Court of Maryland; was elected governor of Maryland in 1847; was appointed commissioner of patents February 16, 1860; was appointed secretary of the treasury by President Buchanan December 10, 1860, and served until January 11, 1861; was elected United-States senator from Maryland, but was refused a seat February 19, 1868; was elected a representative in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,465 votes against 10,147 votes for H. H. Goldsborough, Republican.

Thomas, Richard, was born at Philadelphia in 1745; served in the Revolutionary war; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifth and Sixth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1801; died at Philadelphia in 1832.

Thomasson, William P., was born in Henry County, Kentucky; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar when eighteen years of age, and commenced practice at Corydon, Indiana; was a member of the Indiana House of Representatives; removed to Louisville, Kentucky, in 1841; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,900 votes against 4,497 votes for Lecompte, Democrat, and 1,152 votes for Sprigg, Independent; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 513 majority, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; declined being a candidate for re-election; removed to Chicago, where he practised until 1861, when he entered the Union army as the colonel of a regiment of Illinois Volunteer Infantry.

Thompson, Benjamin, was born at Charlestown, Massachusetts, August 5, 1798; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was repeatedly placed at the head of each department of the government of the town of Charlestown before it was created a city, presiding over the board of overseers of the poor, over the committee of public schools, and over the board of selectmen; was several times a member of the State House of Representatives, and twice a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 334 majority over William Parmeter, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; declined a re-election; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress on the ninth successive trial, defeating John W. Palfrey, Free-Soiler, serving from December 1, 1851, to September 24, 1852, when he died at Charlestown, Massachusetts.

Thompson, Charles P., was born at Braintree, Massachusetts, July 30, 1827; was educated at the common schools, and at the Hollis Institute, Braintree; studied law with Benjamin F. Hallett of Boston; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and remained in Mr. Hallett's office until the spring of 1857, acting as second assistant United-States district-attorney; since then has practised law in Gloucester; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1871, 1872; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,703 votes against 7,731 votes for Benjamin F. Butler, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,003 votes against 12,119 votes for George B. Loring, Republican.

Thompson, George W., was born in Ohio in 1806; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College in 1826; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was appointed United-States attorney for the district of Virginia in 1849; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,251 votes against 3,850 votes for Haymond, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to July 30, 1852, when he resigned to accept a seat on the bench of the Circuit Court, to which he had been elected, defeating Joseph L. Fry. He published "The Living Forces of the Universe," "Address on Common Schools," "Right of Virginia to the North-west Territory," "Life of Lewis Boyd," and several magazine articles.

Thompson, Hedge, was born at Salem, New Jersey; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twentieth Congress, receiving nearly 5,000 majority, serving from December 3, 1827, to July 20, 1828, when he died at Salem, New Jersey.

Thompson, Jacob, was born in Caswell County, North Carolina, May 15, 1810; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina, and afterwards serving there as tutor; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1834; removed to Mississippi in 1835; was elected a representative in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket; re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat on a general ticket; re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress as an anti-hard-paying Democrat on a general ticket; re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,191 votes against 6,033 votes for Josselyn, Independent; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,190 votes against 6,301 votes for Bradford, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, until March 3, 1851; declined a re-election; was appointed by President Buchanan secretary of the interior March 6, 1857, and resigned January 8, 1861; was appointed by the legislature of Mississippi a commissioner to urge North Carolina to secede; was governor of Mississippi 1862-1864; served in the Confederate army as aide-de-camp to General Beauregard, and inspector-general for the department of Mississippi; was a special agent of the Confederate Government in Canada.

Thompson, James, was born at Middlesex, Pennsylvania, October 1, 1806; received an academical education; learned the art of printing; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1823, and commenced practice at Erie, Pennsylvania; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1832-1834, presiding during the last year as speaker; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1836; was presiding judge of the Judicial District Court 1838-1844; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,509 votes against 7,026 votes for Campbell, Whig, and 229 votes for Mann, Free-Soiler, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; resumed practice; was a judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania 1847-1852; was made chief justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in 1866.

Thompson, Joel, was born in Albany County, New York; removed to Smyrna; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1798, 1803, and 1804; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815.

Thompson, John, was born at Stillwater, New York; received a public-school education; was for several years one of the officers of Saratoga County; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1801; was again elected to the Tenth and Eleventh Congresses, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811.

Thompson, John, was born at Rhinebeck, New York, July 4, 1809; received a classical education at Union and Yale Colleges; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Poughkeepsie, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,247 votes against 7,972 votes for Chamberlin, Democrat, and 3,116 votes for Teller, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859.

Thompson, John B., was born in Kentucky in 1810; received a good English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Harrodsburg; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Simeon H. Anderson, deceased) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1840, to March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 6,779 votes against 6,019 votes for C. A. Wickliffe, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 6,586 votes, with no opposition, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky, serving from March 4, 1853, to March 3, 1859; died at Harrodsburg, Kentucky, January 7, 1874.

Thompson, John M., was born in Butler County, Pennsylvania, January 4, 1830; was educated at Witherspoon Institute; studied law with S. A. Purviance; was admitted to the bar in 1855, and practised at Butler, Pennsylvania; was a member of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania in 1859 and 1860, the last year its speaker; served as major, and subsequently as lieutenant-colonel, of the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, and participated in the battles of the second Bull Run, Antietam, and Fredericksburg, in the last of which he was wounded; was a delegate at large to the Chicago Convention which nominated General Grant in 1872; was the messenger who conveyed the electoral vote of Pennsylvania to Washington; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican December 22, 1874 (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Ebenezer McJunkin), receiving a majority of 3,397 votes over R. P. Nevin, Independent, serving from January 5, 1875, to March 3, 1875; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,511 votes against 16,486 votes for James Sheakley, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Thompson, Mark, was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1799.

Thompson, Philip, was born in Kentucky; resided at Yellow Bank; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; was killed in a duel February 20, 1829.

Thompson, Philip R., was born in Culpepper County, Virginia, in 1776; was for many years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Eighth and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1807; died in Kanawha County, Virginia, July 22, 1857.

Thompson, Richard W., was born in Culpepper County, Virginia, June 9, 1800; received a good classical education; removed to Kentucky in 1831, and was a clerk in a small store at Louisville; removed to Lawrence County, Indiana; taught school; was a clerk, selling goods by day, and studying law by night; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Bedford, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1834 and 1835, and of the State Senate in 1836 and 1837; was a presidential elector on the Harrison and Tyler ticket in 1840; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as a Whig candidate for presidential elector on the Clay and Frelinghuysen ticket in 1844; was again elected to the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,402 votes against 6,224 votes for Wright, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; declined a renomination; was offered the Austrian mission by President Taylor, but declined it; was offered the recordership of the General Land Office by President Fillmore, but declined it; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention of 1869 at Chicago, where he framed and read the platform; was a presidential elector on the Grant and Johnson ticket in 1864; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1868, and at Cincinnati in 1876; was appointed by President Hayes secretary of the navy March 12, 1877.

Thompson, Robert A., was born at Kanawha Court House, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,961 votes against 3,510 votes for McComas, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 2,087 votes against 2,873 votes for Haymond, Whig; removed to California, where he was appointed State land commissioner.

Thompson, Thomas W., was born at Newbury, Massachusetts, in 1765; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1786; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Salisbury, New Hampshire, 1790-1810, when he removed to Concord, and continued practice until 1819; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1813, 1814, and speaker; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, until March 3, 1807; was State treasurer of New Hampshire 1809; was appointed to the United-States Senate (in the place of Nicholas Gilman, deceased); served from September 19, 1814, until March 3, 1817; died at Concord, New Hampshire, in October, 1819.

Thompson, Waddy, was born at Pickensville, South Carolina, September 8, 1798; received a classical education, graduating at South-Carolina College in 1814; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1819, and commenced practice; was a member of the State legislature; was solicitor for the Western Circuit of South Carolina; was a brigadier-general of militia; was a presidential elector on the Floyd ticket in 1833; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 500 majority over Norris, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 1,065 majority, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1841; was appointed by President Tyler minister to Mexico, serving February 10, 1842-March 9, 1844; died at Tallahassee, Florida, November 23, 1868. He published "Recollections of Mexico."

Thompson, Wiley, was born in Amelia County, Virginia; removed to Georgia, and located at Elberton; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Seventeenth Congress as a Crawford Democrat, defeating Thomas W. Cobb; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, receiving 10,371 votes on a general ticket; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 2, 1833.

Thompson, William, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Iowa, and located at Mount Pleasant; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, defeating Jesse B. Brown, Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to June 29, 1850, when his seat was declared vacant by the House; entered the Union army as captain in the First Iowa Cavalry; was successively promoted to the rank of major and colonel; was brevetted brigadier-general, and commanded a brigade of cavalry; at the close of the war, was appointed captain of cavalry in the regular army; was placed on the retired list at his own request.

Thomson, Alexander, was born in Franklin County, Pennsylvania; served an apprenticeship as a sickle-maker; studied Latin with Judge Grier; studied law with Judge Riddle; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Chambersburg; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress (in place of John Todd, resigned); was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1824, to May 1, 1826, when he resigned; was city-judge of Lancaster, and then president-judge of the circuit until 1838; was for some years a professor in the law-school of Marshall College; died at Chambersburg suddenly of paralysis August 2, 1848.

Thomson, John, was born in Franklin County, Pennsylvania, in 1777; received an academic education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and located at New Lisbon, Ohio; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; was again elected to the Twenty-first Congress, defeating John Sloane; was re-elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1837; died at New Lisbon, Ohio, December 2, 1852.

Thomson, John R., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, September 5, 1800; entered Princeton College, but left in the junior year to engage in mercantile pursuits; made a voyage to China in 1817; established himself as a merchant at Canton in 1820, and was United-States consul at that port 1823-1825; returning home, he became a director of the New-Jersey Canal Company; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat, and re-elected, serving from December 5, 1853, to September 12, 1862, when he died at Trenton, New Jersey.

Thorington, James, was born in North Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Alabama; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Davenport, Iowa; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,424 votes against 9,873 votes for Hempsted, Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by President Buchanan United-States consul to Aspinwall.

Thornburgh, Jacob M., was born at Newmarket, East Tennessee, July 3, 1837, and there educated at Holston College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1861, and commenced practice at Knoxville; in May, 1862, joined the Federal army in Kentucky under General George W. Morgan as a private, and was promoted until he became colonel of the Fourth Tennessee Cavalry in June, 1863; served under Generals Rosecrans, Sherman, Thomas, and Canby until the close of the war, when he returned to Jefferson County, East Tennessee, and resumed the practice of law; in 1867 he removed to Knoxville; was appointed by Governor Brownlow attorney-general of the Third Judicial District of Tennessee, and was elected to the same position in 1869, and again in 1870; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,078 votes against 5,619 votes for A. Caldwell, Democrat, and 2,633 votes for A. E. Garrett, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,168 votes against 7,338 votes for George W. Mabry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,326 votes against 9,603 votes for W. Cullom, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Thornton, Anthony, was born in Bourbon County, Kentucky, November 9, 1814; received a classical education, graduating at Miami University, Ohio; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Shelbyville, Illinois; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1847 and 1862; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1850; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Thornton, Matthew, was born in Ireland in 1714; immigrated to America when a lad; resided a few years at Wiscasset, then removed to Worcester, Massachusetts, where he received an academical education; studied medicine; was licensed, and commenced practice at Londonderry, New Hampshire; served as surgeon in Pepperell's expedition against Louisburg in 1745; was colonel of a regiment of militia; was a delegate to the convention which declared the Province of New Hampshire to be thenceforth a sovereign State, and its president; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1776-1778; was chief justice of the County of Hillsborough 1778-1780; was judge of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire 1780-1782; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1783, and of the State Senate 1784; was a State councillor 1785; died at Newburyport, Massachusetts, June 24, 1804.

Throckmorton, James W., was born at Sparta, Tennessee, February 1, 1825; his father emigrated to Texas in 1841; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected to the State legislature of Texas in 1851, and served continuously as representative and senator until 1861; was a member of the Secession Convention of Texas, and was one of the seven members of that body that voted against the ordinance of secession; served as captain and major in the Confederate service from the spring of 1861 until November, 1863, when he was again returned to the Senate; in 1864 was appointed by the governor brigadier-general of State troops, and commander on the north-west border of the State in May, 1864, under authority of the Confederate-States Government, and also that of the State of Texas; he concluded a treaty with all the wild tribes of Indians on the Texas border, including the Comanches, Lipans, Cheyennes, and other small bands; returned from the plains in the discharge of this duty in June after the surrender; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention under President Johnson's proclamation, and was chosen the presiding officer of that body; was elected governor of the State of Texas for a term of four years; was inaugurated August 8, 1866, and removed by order of General Sheridan August 9, 1867; was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-fourth Congress, and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 24,118 votes against 1,283 votes for J. C. Bigger, Republican.

Throop, Enos T., was born at Johnstown, New York, August 21, 1784; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Auburn; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to June, 1816, when he resigned on account of the dissatisfaction of his constituents with his vote on the additional-compensation bill; was appointed a circuit-judge April 21, 1823; was elected in 1828 lieutenant-governor on the same ticket with Martin Van Buren for governor, and, upon the latter's appointment as secretary of state of the United States by President Jackson, became governor of New York March 12, 1829; was elected governor, serving 1830-1832; was appointed by President Van Buren minister to Naples, serving from February 6, 1838, to January 12, 1842; passed the remainder of his life at his rural home on the border of Owasco Lake, near Auburn, New York, where he died November 8, 1874.

Thruston, Buckner, was born in Virginia in 1763; received a classical education; removed in early life to Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Frankfort; was appointed United-States judge for the courts of the Territory of Orleans, but declined, as he was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1835, to July 1, 1809, when he resigned; was appointed by President Madison judge of the United-States Circuit Court of the District of Columbia, which office he held until his death at Washington City August 30, 1845.

Thurman, Allen G., was born at Lynchburg, Virginia, November 13, 1813; removed to Ohio in 1819; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1835, and practised at Columbus, Ohio; was a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-ninth Congress; was elected a judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio in 1851; was chief justice of that court 1854-1856; was the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio in 1867; was elected United-States senator from Ohio as a Democrat (in place of Benjamin F. Wade, Republican); took his seat March 4, 1869, and was re-elected in 1874. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Thurman, John R., was born in the city of New York; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1835; removed to Warren County, New York, to take charge of a large landed estate; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,670 votes against 3,455 votes for Hedding, Democrat, and 2,828 votes for Lawrence, Van Buren Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Chestertown, New York, in 1854.

Thurston, Benjamin B., was born at Hopkinton, Rhode Island, June 29, 1804; received a public-school education; was a clerk in a store, and became a merchant; was for fourteen years in succession a member of the State House of Representatives; was a presidential elector on the Van Buren ticket in 1837; was lieutenant-governor in 1838; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,417 votes against 2,349 votes for Updike, Whig, and 60 votes for Hall, Abolitionist, and serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was defeated as the Coalition candidate for the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 2,197 votes, and 2,882 votes for Dixon, Whig; was again elected to the Thirty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 4,438 votes against 452 votes for Aldrich, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 4,484 votes against 594 votes scattering, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1857; removed to New London, Connecticut.

Thurston, Samuel R., was born in Maine; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1843; studied law with R. P. Dunlap; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Linn City, Oregon; was elected a delegate from Oregon Territory in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died on the steamer "California," on her passage from Panama to San Francisco, April 9, 1851.

Tibbatts, John W., was born at Lexington, Kentucky, in 1802; received an academical education; studied law with Judge Barry; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Newport, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,507 votes against 6,164 votes for Wall, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 232 majority over Gaines, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; served in the Mexican war as colonel of the Sixteenth United-States Infantry from March 3, 1847, to August 10, 1848; died at Newport, Kentucky, July 5, 1852.

Tibbitts, George, was born in Rensselaer County, New York; received a thorough English education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1802; was elected a representative from New York to the Eighth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1805; was a member of the State Senate 1815-1818; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820; died at Troy, New York.

Tichenor, Isaac, was born at Newark, New Jersey, February 8, 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1775; studied law at Schenectady, New York, and, while there, was appointed assistant commissary-general, and stationed at Bennington, Vermont, where he was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the Vermont House of Representatives 1781-1784; was State agent to Congress in 1782; was State councillor 1787-1792; was a State commissioner for adjusting the controversy with New York 1791; was a member of the Council of Censors in 1792; was judge of the State Supreme Court 1791-1794, and its chief justice 1795-1796; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont (in place of Moses Robinson, resigned) as a Federalist, serving from December 6, 1796, to November 10, 1797, when he resigned; was governor of Vermont 1797-1807 and 1808-1809; was again elected a senator, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1821; died at Bennington, Vermont, December 11, 1838.

Tiffin, Edward, was born at Carlisle, England, June 19, 1766; immigrated to the United States in 1786, and settled in Charlestown, Virginia; studied medicine, and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1789; removed to Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1798; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives in 1799, and its speaker; was a delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution in 1802, and its president; was elected a United-States senator from Ohio as a Democrat, serving from October 26, 1807, to 1809, when he resigned; was appointed by President Madison the first commissioner of the General Land Office, serving from May 7, 1812, to October 11, 1814; resigned to accept the position of surveyor-general of the Northwestern Territory, which position he held until 1828; died at Chillicothe, Ohio, August 9, 1829.

Tift, Nelson, resided at Albany, Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,645 votes against 11,696 votes for Whitley, Democrat, serving from July 25, 1868, to March 3, 1869.

Tilden, Daniel R., was born in Connecticut; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and located at Ravenna; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,712 votes against 6,310 votes for Lyman, Democrat, and 936 for Hall, Abolitionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Tilghman, Matthew, was born on the Eastern Shore of Maryland; was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1774-1777.

Tillinghast, Joseph L., was born at Taunton, Massachusetts, in 1791; removed to Rhode Island in his boyhood; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1819; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Providence, Rhode Island; was for a number of years a member of the State House of Representatives, and several times elected its speaker; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; died at Providence, Rhode Island, December 30, 1844.

Tillinghast, Thomas, was born at East Greenwich, Rhode Island, August 21, 1742; received an academical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1772 and 1773; was commissioned in the Rhode-Island militia in 1776; held several offices under the Revolutionary authorities; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1778-1780; was appointed a judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1779; was elected associate justice of the State Supreme Court in 1780, serving until 1797; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Fifth Congress (in place of Elisha R. Potter, resigned), receiving 53 majority, serving from November 13, 1797, to March 3, 1799; was again elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; died at East Greenwich, Rhode Island, August 26, 1821.

Tillman, Lewis, was born in Bedford County, Tennessee, August 18, 1816; received a public-school education; never studied any profession; was a farmer by occupation; served a campaign as private against the Seminole Indians in 1835; was clerk of the Circuit Court from 1852 to 1860; was appointed clerk and master of the Chancery Court in March, 1865, and has held the office until recently; was a Whig so long as there was a Whig party, and afterwards a Republican; was one of the signers to the call put forth in the fall of 1864 for the convention that abolished slavery in Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 3,795 votes against 3,363 votes for Sheafe, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Tillotson, Thomas, resided in Dutchess County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1788-1790; was a member of the State Senate 1791-1793; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress, but refused to take his seat.

Tilton, James, was born in Kent County, Delaware, June 1, 1745; received an academical education; studied medicine; graduated at the Philadelphia Medical School in 1771, and commenced practice at Dover, Delaware; entered the Revolutionary army in 1776 as surgeon of a Delaware regiment; was commissioned surgeon-general in 1777, and held that position until peace was declared, when he resumed practice at Dover; was a delegate from Delaware in the Continental Congress 1783-1785; was repeatedly a member of the State House of Representatives; was commissioner of loans 1785-1801; was physician and surgeon-general of the United-States army June 13, 1813-June 15, 1815; removed to the vicinity of Wilmington, Delaware, where he cultivated a small farm, on which he died May 14, 1822. He published a work on "Military Hospitals," "Answers to Queries on the State of Husbandry in Delaware," and several agricultural and medical essays.

Tipton, John, was born in Sevier County, Tennessee, in August, 1785; his father having been killed by the Indians in 1793, he did not even enjoy the advantages of a public-school education, having to support a mother, two sisters, and a half-brother; in 1807 he removed with them to Indiana, where he purchased fifty acres of land, paying for it by splitting rails at fifty cents a hundred; was elected ensign of that noted frontier company, the "Yellow Jacks," in 1811, and served with them in the Tippecanoe campaign; was chosen sheriff of Harrison County, Indiana, in 1815; was elected master of Pisgah Lodge of Freemasons in 1819, and was grand master of Masons in Indiana in 1819 and 1820; was elected a member of the House of Representatives in the State legislature in 1821; was United-States Indian agent with the Miami and Pottawattomie tribes from 1824 until 1831, when he was elected by the legislature United-States senator (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of James Noble); was re-elected for a full term, and served from January 3, 1832, until his death, April 5, 1839, of pulmonary apoplexy, at Logansport, Indiana.

Tipton, Thomas F., was born in Franklin County, Ohio, August 29, 1833; removed when ten years of age to McLean County, Illinois; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1854; was State's attorney for the Eighth Judicial District of Illinois from January, 1867, to December, 1868; was elected circuit-judge of the Eighth Judicial Circuit in 1870, and, on the re-organization of the Circuit Court under the new Constitution, was re-elected circuit-judge of the Fourteenth Judicial Circuit; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,229 votes against 14,977 votes for Adlai E. Stevenson, Independent Reformer, serving from October 15, 1877.

Tipton, Thomas W., was born at Cadiz, Ohio, August 5, 1817; graduated at Madison College, Pennsylvania; studied and practised law; was a member of the State legislature of Ohio in 1845; went to Nebraska, and was elected to a Constitutional Convention of Nebraska; was a member of the Territorial Council of Nebraska in 1860; having studied theology, and being eligible to a chaplaincy, he served in the Union army in that capacity during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected United-States senator from Nebraska, and re-elected, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1875.

Titus, Obadiah, resided at Washington, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839.

Todd, John, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, in 1779; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825; was appointed president-judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the Sixteenth Judicial District, and subsequently an associate judge of the State Supreme Court; died at Bedford, Pennsylvania, April 4, 1830.

Todd, John B. S., was born at Lexington, Kentucky, April 4, 1814; removed with his parents to Illinois in 1827; entered the Military Academy at West Point in 1832, graduating in 1837; was second lieutenant of the Sixth Infantry July 1, 1837, first lieutenant December 10, 1837, and captain November 8, 1843; resigned, and became an Indian trader; was elected a delegate from Dakota Territory in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress (having successfully contested the election of William Jayne), serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was appointed a brigadier-general in the Union army in 1862, and commanded a division in the Army of the Tennessee; died at Yankton, Dakota Territory, January 5, 1872.

Todd, Lemuel, was born July 29, 1817, at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, where he has resided ever since; graduated at Dickinson College; studied and practised law; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 10,472 votes against 8,319 votes for Bonham, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the Union candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,670 votes against 11,191 votes for Ahl, Democrat; served during part of the Rebellion as major of the First Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Reserve Corps, and afterwards as inspector-general of Pennsylvania on Governor Curtin's staff; and was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-third Congress as one of the three congressmen at large as a Republican, receiving 357,743 votes against 311,030 votes for R. Vaux, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Toland, George W., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1816; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,313 votes against 3,078 votes for Morris Longstreth; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving over 2,500 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843.

Tomkins, Caleb, was born in Westchester County, New York; resided at White Plains; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1804-1806; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821.

Tomkins, Christopher, resided at Glasgow, Kentucky; was a lawyer and a judge of the State Circuit Court; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 10 majority over Elijah Hise, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 1,726 votes against 1,648 votes for Elijah Hise, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; died at Glasgow, Kentucky, in 1845.

Tomkins, Cydnor B., was born in Belmont County, Ohio, November 8, 1810; received a classical education, graduating at the Ohio University; was reared on a farm; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at McConnellsville; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,248 votes against 6,462 votes for Smith, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,677 votes against 6,855 votes for G. W. Manypenny, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Tomkins, Daniel D., was born at Searsdale, New York, June 21, 1774; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1795; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1797, and commenced practice at New York; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1801; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1803; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat, but resigned before taking his seat to accept an appointment on the bench of the Supreme Court, serving from July 2, 1804, to June 9, 1807; was governor of the State of New York 1807-1817; was elected Vice-President on the Monroe ticket in 1817, receiving 183 of the 217 votes cast; and was re-elected in 1821, receiving 215 of the 228 votes cast, serving March 4, 1817-March 3, 1825; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of August-November, 1821, and its president; was a prominent Freemason, and grand master of the Grand Lodge of New York in 1820; died on Staten Island, New York, June 11, 1825.

Tomlinson, Gideon, was born at Stratford, Connecticut, December 31, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1802; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Fairfield; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Sixteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1827; was governor of Connecticut 1827-1831, when he resigned, having been elected a United-States senator from Connecticut, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; died at Fairfield, Connecticut, October 8, 1854.

Tomlinson, Thomas A., was born in New York; resided at Keeseville; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835-1836; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,906 votes against 5,107 votes for Augustus C. Hand, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Tompkins, Patrick W., was born in Kentucky; had a scanty English education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Vicksburg, Mississippi; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,939 votes against 6,390 votes for Roberts, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; removed to California soon after the discovery of gold there, and died at San Francisco May 16, 1853.

Toombs, Robert, was born in Wilkes County, Georgia, July 2, 1810; received a classical education, graduating at Union College, New York; studied law at the University of Virginia under Judge Lomas; was admitted to the bar (by special act of the legislature, when a minor) in 1829, and commenced practice at Washington, Wilkes County; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a State-rights Whig, receiving 1,121 majority over E. J. Black, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 1,416 majority over E. J. Black, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 4,232 votes against 2,551 votes for Lawson; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 4,232 votes against 2,538 votes for McMillan, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1853; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia as a State-rights Democrat, and re-elected, serving from March 4, 1853, to March 3, 1861; was a deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which assembled at Montgomery, Alabama, and adjourned to Richmond; was the first secretary of state of the Confederate States, serving from February 21, 1861, to July 30, 1861, when he resigned to accept a brigadier-general's commission in the Confederate army; was assigned, March 4, 1863, to the command of a brigade of Georgia troops in Longstreet's Corps, Army of Northern Virginia; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1876.

Toucey, Isaac, was born at Newtown, Connecticut, November 5, 1796; received a classical education; studied law at Newtown with Judge Chapman; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Hartford; was State attorney for Hartford County 1822-1825; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,108 votes against 5,180 votes for Joseph Trumbull, Whig; was again State attorney for Hartford County 1842-1844; was defeated as Democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut in 1845 by Roger S. Baldwin; was defeated as Democratic candidate for governor in 1846 on the popular vote, but was elected by the legislature; was defeated as Democratic candidate for governor in 1847 by Clark Bissell; was appointed by President Polk attorney-general of the United States, serving from June 21, 1848, to March 3, 1849; was a member of the State Senate in 1850, and of the State House of Representatives in 1852; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut as a Democrat, serving from May 14, 1852, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by President Buchanan secretary of the navy, serving from March 6, 1857, to March 3, 1861; died at Hartford, Connecticut, July 30, 1869.

Towns, George W., was born in Wilkes County, Georgia, May 4, 1802; was self-educated; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1824, and commenced practice in Alabama; returned to Georgia in 1826, and located at Talbotton; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Union Democrat, receiving 27,675 votes against 24,662 votes for Newman, State-rights, serving from December 7, 1835, to September 1, 1836, when he resigned; was again elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 29,600 votes against 28,805 votes for Alford, State-rights, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress (in place of Washington Poe, resigned) as a Democrat, defeating Ambrose Baber, Whig, serving from January 27, 1846, to March 3, 1847; was governor of Georgia 1847-1851; died at Macon, Georgia, July 15, 1854.

Townsend, Amos, was born in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, in 1831; removed at an early age to Ohio, and became a citizen of Cleveland; was for ten years a member of the city council, serving seven of those years as its president; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1873; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,891 votes against 14,521 votes for H. B. Payne, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Townsend, Dwight, was born in New-York City in 1820; was educated at the grammar-school of Columbia College, New York; entered mercantile life when twenty-one years of age, and retired from business in 1862; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress (to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Henry G. Stebbins), serving from December 5, 1864, to March 3, 1865; was elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,632 votes against 11,466 votes for C. C. Norvell, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Townsend, George, was born in Queen's County, New York; resided at Oyster Bay; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819.

Townsend, James, was born in Queen's County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Second Congress, but died at Oyster Bay before taking his seat, in May, 1791.

Townsend, Martin I., was born at Hancock, Massachusetts, February 6, 1810; graduated at Williams College, Massachusetts, in 1833, and removed from Williamstown to Troy, where he has since resided; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and continues to practise; was district-attorney for Rensselaer County in 1842-1845; was a member of the Constitutional Convention for the State at large in 1867-1868; is now a regent of the University of the State of New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,445 votes against 14,931 votes for Charles Hughes, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 19,689 votes against 17,448 votes for Roswell A. Parmenter, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Townsend, Norton S., was born in England; immigrated to the United States, and settled at Avon, Ohio; held several local offices; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,677 votes against 6,230 votes for Worcester, Whig, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Townsend, Washington, was born in West Chester, Pennsylvania, in 1813; received an academic education; became a teller in the Bank of Chester County, Pennsylvania, in 1832; while so employed, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1844; was deputy-attorney under Attorneys-General Darragh and Cooper; was made cashier of the bank above named in 1849, and resigned in 1857 to resume the practice of the law, in which he has continued ever since; was a delegate to the Baltimore National Whig Convention of 1852 and the Chicago National Republican Convention of 1860; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,771 votes against 9,481 votes for Monagan, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,408 votes against 8,231 votes for J. H. Askin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,011 votes against 8,819 votes for F. Taylor, Liberal Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,485 votes against 6,916 votes for J. L. Forwood, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1877.

Townshend, Richard W., was born in Prince George County, Maryland, April 30, 1840; went to Washington City when ten years of age, and was there educated at public and private schools; was a page in the House of Representatives; removed to Illinois in 1858; taught school in Fayette County; studied law with S. S. Marshall at MacLeansborough; was admitted to the bar in 1862, and has since practised; was clerk of the Circuit Court of Hamilton County 1863-1868; was prosecuting-attorney for the Twelfth Judicial Circuit 1868-1872; removed in 1873 from MacLeansborough to Shawneetown, where he was an officer of the Gallatin National Bank; was a member of the Democratic State Central Committee of Illinois 1864, 1865, 1874, and 1875; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,722 votes against 8,516 votes for Edward Bonham, Republican, and 7,523 votes for W. B. Anderson, Independent Reformer, serving from October 15, 1877.

Tracy, Albert H., was born at Norwich, Connecticut, June 17, 1793; received a classical education; studied medicine with his father; when eighteen years of age he removed to New-York State; studied law with his brother at Madison; was admitted to the bar in 1815, and commenced practice at Buffalo; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Conservative Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was offered a seat in the cabinet by President John Quincy Adams, and declined it; was a member of the State Senate 1830-1837; was defeated as the Whig candidate for United-States senator in 1839 by N. P. Talmadge; was offered a seat in the cabinet by President Tyler, and declined it; died at Buffalo, New York, September 12, 1859.

Tracy, Andrew, was born in Vermont; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Woodstock, Vermont; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving as speaker 1842-1845, and was also a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 9,319 votes against 3,261 votes for Kellogg, Democrat, 2,928 votes for Fletcher, Free-Soiler, 1,675 votes for Henry, Democrat, 436 votes for Bartlett, Democrat, and 239 votes scattering, and serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; died at Woodstock, Vermont, October 28, 1868.

Tracy, Henry W., was born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, September 24, 1807; received a public-school education; was reared a farmer, but engaged also in mercantile pursuits; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1860; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1861 and 1862; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as an Independent Republican, receiving 9,520 votes against 7,703 votes for Clark, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Tracy, Phineas L., was born at Norwich, Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1806; removed to New York, and settled at Batavia; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 2,481 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833.

Tracy, Uri, was born at Franklin, Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1789; removed to New York, and settled at Oxford; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was again elected to the Eleventh Congress, and re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1813.

Tracy, Uriah, was born at Franklin, Connecticut, February 2, 1755; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1778; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Litchfield; was several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and speaker of the House in 1793; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Third Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to December 6, 1796, when, having been elected a United-States senator from Connecticut (in place of Jonathan Trumbull, resigned), he took his seat in the Senate, serving until July 19, 1807, when he died at Washington City.

Trafton, Mark, was born in Maine; received an academic education; studied theology, and was the pastor of a church in Westfield, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,610 votes against 3,998 votes for J. Z. Goodrich, Whig, and 2,583 for W. Griswold and scattering, and serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was defeated as the American candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 4,282 votes against 6,823 votes for Henry L. Dawes, Republican, and 4,533 votes for J. D. Weston, Democrat; resumed his ministerial labors, and was pastor of a church at Mount Wollaston.

Train, Charles R., was born at Framingham, Massachusetts, October 18, 1817; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1837; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1841, and commenced practice at Framingham; was district-attorney for six years; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847-1848; was a member of the Executive Council in 1857-1858; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,196 votes against 3,514 votes for Butler, Democrat, and 576 votes for Temple, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 9,272 votes against 2,390 votes for Brown, 2,239 votes for Faulkner, and 391 votes for Abbott, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; served in the Union army as a volunteer aide-de-camp to General McClellan; removed to Boston; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1868-1871; was attorney-general of Massachusetts 1871-1878.

Trapier, Paul, was a delegate to the Continental Congress from South Carolina 1777-1778.

Treadwell, John, was born at Farmington, Connecticut, November 23, 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1767; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Farmington; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1776-1785; was a member of the Continental Congress 1785-1786; was a member of the State Council 1786-1797; was lieutenant-governor of Connecticut in 1798; was judge of probate 1789-1809; was active in the promotion of religious and educational enterprises; died at Farmington, Connecticut, August 19, 1823.

Tredway, William M., was born in Virginia; resided at Danville; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 649 votes against 650 votes for Thomas S. Flournoy, Whig.

Tredwell, Thomas (grandfather of Thomas Tredwell Davis), was born at Smithtown, Long Island, in 1742; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1764; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Plattsburg, of which he was one of the original proprietors; was a delegate to the Provisional Congress of New York 1774-1775; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1776-1777; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1777-1778; was first judge of the Court of Probate 1786-1787; was a member of the State Senate 1786-1789; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1788; was surrogate of Suffolk County 1787-1791; was elected a representative from New York in the Second Congress, and re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1795; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1801; was a member of the State Senate 1803-1807; was surrogate of Clinton County 1807-1831; died at Plattsburg, New York, January 30, 1832.

Tremain, Lyman, was born in Durham, New York, June 14, 1819; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1840, and practised at Albany; was elected supervisor of Durham in 1842; was appointed district-attorney of Greene County in 1844; was elected county-judge and surrogate of Greene County in 1846; was elected attorney-general of the State of New York in 1858; was elected in 1866 member of the Assembly from the city of Albany, and was speaker of the Assembly for the year 1867; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress from the State at large as a Republican, receiving 433,456 votes against 400,697 votes for S. S. Cox, Democrat and Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Trezvant, James, was born in Sussex County, Virginia; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Jerusalem, Virginia; was attorney for the State; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1820; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Nineteenth Congress, defeating Richard Eppes; was re-elected to the Twentieth and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1831; died in Southampton County, Virginia, September 2, 1841.

Trigg, Abram, was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to March 3, 1839.

Trigg, John, was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fifth Congress; was re-elected to the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, to May 17, 1804, when he died.

Trimble, Cary A., was born at Hillsborough, Ohio, September 13, 1813; received a classical education, graduating at the Ohio University in 1833; studied medicine, graduating from the Cincinnati Medical College in 1836; was demonstrator of anatomy at the Cincinnati Medical College 1837-1841; his health failing, he retired from his profession, and devoted himself to farming; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,552 votes against 8,643 votes for Miller, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,593 votes against 11,025 votes for Hutchinson, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,087 votes against 13,721 votes for W. E. Finck, Democrat.

Trimble, David, was born in Frederick County, Virginia, in June, 1782; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Mount Sterling; served under General Harrison in the war of 1812; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating George Stockton; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 1,260 majority over Thomas Fletcher; was re-elected to the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Congresses without opposition, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1827.

Trimble, John, was born in Roane County, Tennessee, February 7, 1812; was educated at the Nashville University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Nashville; was attorney-general of Tennessee from 1836 to 1842; was a member of the State House of Representatives from Tennessee in 1843 and 1844; was a member of the State Senate of Tennessee in 1845, 1846, and again in 1859, 1860, and 1861, when he resigned, and again in 1865, 1866, and 1867, when he resigned; was United-States attorney from 1862 to 1864, when he resigned; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Fortieth Congress as a National Republican, receiving 9,357 votes against 3,163 votes for Baylie Peyton, Democrat, and 480 votes for D. H. Mason, Radical, serving from November 21, 1867, to March 3, 1869.

Trimble, Lawrence S., was born at Fleming, Kentucky, August 26, 1825; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Paducah; was a member of the State legislature of Kentucky in 1851 and 1852; was judge of the Equity and Criminal Court of the First Judicial Circuit of Kentucky from 1856 to 1860; was president of the New-Orleans and Ohio Railroad Company from 1860 to October, 1865; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,749 votes against 3,542 votes for Bradley, Republican; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 9,787 votes against 1,780 votes for Symes, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,608 votes against 1,731 votes for Marshall, Republican, and 293 scattering, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871.

Trimble, William A., was born at Woodford, Kentucky, April 4, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania College; studied law with Judge Robert Trimble; was admitted to the bar in 1811, and commenced practice at Highland, Ohio; served in the war of 1812 as major of Ohio volunteers; was taken prisoner at the surrender of Detroit; was adjutant of a regiment commanded by his brother in the campaign against the Pottawattamie Indians; was appointed major of the Sixth United-States Infantry in 1813; distinguished himself, and was severely wounded at the sortie of Fort Erie; was lieutenant-colonel of the First United-States Infantry from 1814 until he was elected a United-States senator from Ohio, serving from December 6, 1819, to December 13, 1821, when he died; he had attended the conference held with the Indians at Fort Chicago and at Green Bay; on the journey, he so suffered from the inclemency of the weather and his war-wounds, that he became ill, remaining some time on a sick-bed at Albany; and then proceeded to Washington City, where his health declined until he died.

Triplett, Philip, was born in Virginia; removed to Kentucky, and settled at Owensborough; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 1,000 majority over Cornelius Burnett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843.

Trippe, Robert P., was born in Georgia; received a classical education, graduating at Franklin College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Forsyth; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 6,112 votes against 5,216 votes for Smith, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 5,803 votes against 5,423 votes for D. J. Bailey, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; was a representative from Georgia in the First Confederate Congress, serving from February 22, 1862, to February 22, 1864.

Trotter, F. James, was elected a United-States senator from Mississippi (in place of John Black, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from February 19, 1838, to July 10, 1838, when he resigned.

Trotti, S. W., resided at Barnwell Court House, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-seventh Congress (in place of Samson H. Butler, resigned), serving from December 17, 1842, to March 3, 1843.

Troup, George McIntosh, was born at McIntosh's Bluff, on the Tombigbee River, Alabama, September 8, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1799, and commenced practice at Savannah, but paid little attention to the profession; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1800-1805; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Tenth Congress as a State-rights Democrat on a general ticket; was re-elected to the Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth Congresses, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 2, 1815; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of William W. Bibb, resigned) as a State-rights Democrat, serving from December 12, 1816, to 1819, when he resigned; was again elected a senator, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 2, 1833; died in Lawrens County, Georgia, May 3, 1856. His "Life" was published by E. J. Harden.

Trout, Michael C., was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Sharon; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,369 votes against 5,340 votes for Allen, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,172 votes against 7,808 votes for Allison, Whig.

Trowbridge, Rowland E., was born at Elmira, New York, June 18, 1821; went to Michigan when a lad; graduated at Kenyon College, Ohio; was a farmer; was a member of the State Senate of Michigan from 1856 until 1860; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 23,078 votes against 18,287 votes for Thompson, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,647 votes against 11,937 votes for Baldwin, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,064 votes against 11,646 votes for Bancroft, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Trumbo, Andrew, was born in Montgomery County (now Bath), Kentucky, September 13, 1799; received a public-school education; at the age of fifteen he went into the county-clerk's office, and afterwards became clerk; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1824, and commenced practice at Owingsville; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848.

Trumbull, Jonathan (brother of Joseph Trumbull, and father of Joseph Trumbull, jun.), was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, March 26, 1740; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1759; was a member of the Colonial legislature of Connecticut for several years; was appointed by the Continental Congress paymaster-general of the Northern Military Department in 1775, and served until 1778, when he resigned to settle the accounts of his brother, Colonel Joseph Trumbull, commissary-general of the United States; was appointed by General Washington senior aide-de-camp in 1780, and was a member of his staff until the close of the war; was elected to the State House of Representatives, and was chosen its speaker in 1788-1789; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the First Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Second Congress, and chosen speaker of the House October 24, 1791; was re-elected to the Third Congress; was elected United-States senator (in place of Stephen M. Mitchell, resigned), taking his seat June 8, 1795, but resigned when elected in 1796 lieutenant-governor of Connecticut, serving from March 4, 1789, until June 26, 1795; became, by the death of Governor Wolcott, governor in May, 1798; and was annually re-elected eleven successive times as a Federalist, until he died of dropsy of the heart August 7, 1809.

Trumbull, Joseph (brother of Jonathan Trumbull, and uncle of Joseph Trumbull, jun.), was born March 11, 1737; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1756; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1774-1775; was commissary-general of the Revolutionary army July 19, 1775-August 2, 1777; was a commissioner for the Board of War November 27, 1777-April 18, 1778, when he resigned on account of ill health; died July 23, 1778.

Trumbull, Joseph, jun. (son of Jonathan Trumbull, and nephew of Joseph Trumbull), was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, December 7, 1782; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1801; studied law; was admitted to the bar at Windham in 1803, and commenced practice at Hartford in 1804; retired from his profession in 1828, and became president of the Hartford Bank; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-third Congress (in place of William W. Ellsworth, resigned) as a Whig, receiving 16,137 votes against 15,915 votes for Loomis, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1834, to March 3, 1835; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 1,275 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848; was governor of Connecticut in 1849-1850; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1851.

Trumbull, Lyman, was born at Colchester, Connecticut, October 12, 1813; studied law; was admitted to the bar in Georgia, and commenced practice in Illinois; was a member of the legislature of Illinois in 1840; was secretary of state of Illinois in 1841 and 1842; was justice of the Supreme Court of Illinois from 1848 to 1853; was a representative in the Thirty-fourth Congress; was elected United-States senator from Illinois as a Republican (to succeed James Shields, Democrat), and was twice re-elected, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1873; resumed the practice of law at Chicago.

Tuck, Amos, was born at Parsonsfield, Maine; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1835; was a tutor in that institution; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Exeter, New Hampshire; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirtieth Congress as an Independent, receiving 5,608 votes against 4,025 votes for Jenness, Democrat, and 84 scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress as a Free-Soiler, receiving 6,971 votes against 6,638 votes for Kittridge, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig and Free-soil candidate, receiving 7,791 votes against 7,416 votes for Kittridge, Opposition, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,962 votes against 10,168 votes for Kittridge, Democrat; was appointed naval officer of the port of Boston by President Lincoln.

Tucker, Ebenezer, was born at Burlington, New Jersey, in 1758; served in the Revolutionary war; was postmaster and collector of customs at Burlington, New Jersey; removed to Tuckerton; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 4,896 majority, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas, justice of the Court of the Quarter Sessions, and judge of the Orphans' Court; died at Tuckerton, New Jersey, September 5, 1845.

Tucker, George, was born in Bermuda in 1775; removed to Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lynchburg, Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Congresses without opposition, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was professor of moral philosophy and political economy in the University of Virginia 1825-1845; died at Charlottesville, Virginia, April 10, 1861. He published "Letters on the Conspiracy of the Slaves in Virginia," "Letters on the Roanoke Navigation," "Recollections of Ellen R. Tucker," "Essays on National Policy," "The Valley of the Shenandoah," "Joseph Atterly's Voyage to the Moon," "Life of Thomas Jefferson," "Progress of the United States," "Political History of the United States," and many magazine articles and political essays.

Tucker, Henry St. George, was born in Virginia January 5, 1781; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Winchester, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, defeating Colonel Carson, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was chancellor of the Fourth Judicial District, and president of the Virginia Court of Appeals; was professor of law at the University of Virginia 1841-1845; died at Winchester, Virginia, August 28, 1848. He published "Lectures on Constitutional Law," "Lectures on Natural Law and Government," and "Commentaries on the Laws of Virginia."

Tucker, John Randolph, was born at Winchester December 24, 1823; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1843; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Lexington; was attorney-general of Virginia in 1857-1865; was professor of equity and public law at Washington and Lee University, Lexington; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,708 votes against 5,707 votes for Johnson, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,425 votes against 11,127 votes for George H. Burch, serving from December 6, 1875.

Tucker, Starling, was born in Halifax County, North Carolina; removed to South Carolina, and settled at Mountain Shoals; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fifteenth Congress, defeating Anderson Crenshaw; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, defeating Brown and Pearson; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1831; died at Mountain Shoals, South Carolina, February 4, 1834.

Tucker, Thomas Tudor, was born at Port Royal, Bermuda, in 1745; was a delegate from South Carolina to the Continental Congress in 1787-1788; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was treasurer of the United States from December 1, 1810, to his death at Washington City May 2, 1828. He published "An Oration before the South-Carolina Society of the Cincinnati."

Tucker, Tilghman M., was born in North Carolina; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Columbus, Mississippi; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was governor of the State of Mississippi 1841-1843; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; died in Alabama April 30, 1859.

Tufts, John Q., was born near Aurora, Indiana, July 12, 1840; removed with his parents to Iowa in 1852; was educated at Cornell College, Mount Vernon; was a farmer; was elected a member of the legislature of Iowa in 1869, 1871, and 1873; and was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,779 votes against 10,122 votes for J. L. Sheean, anti-Monopolist, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Turner, Benjamin Sterling, was born in Halifax County, North Carolina, March 17, 1825; was raised as a slave, and received no early education, because the laws of that State made it criminal to educate slaves; removed to Alabama in 1830, and, by clandestine study, obtained a fair education; became a dealer in general merchandise; was elected tax-collector of Dallas County in 1867, and councilman of the city of Selma in 1869; and was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,226 votes against 13,466 votes for S. J. Cumming, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 13,174 votes against 15,607 votes for F. G. Bromberg, Democrat and Liberal, and 7,024 votes for P. Joseph, Republican.

Turner, Charles, jun., was born in Massachusetts about 1750; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College; studied theology, and was pastor of a parish in Duxbury, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eleventh Congress (having successfully contested the election of William Baylies) as a War Democrat; was re-elected to the Twelfth Congress, serving from June 28, 1809, to March 3, 1813; was so unpopular on account of his support of the war, that, on visiting Plymouth, in his congressional district, in August, 1812, he was mobbed and kicked; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirteenth Congress, receiving 2,049 votes against 2,950 votes for William Baylies, Federalist; was superintendent of the United-States Marine Hospital at Chelsea.

Turner, Daniel (son of James Turner), was born in Warren County, North Carolina, September 21, 1796; received an academical education; entered the Military Academy at West Point in 1813, and was appointed lieutenant of artillery in 1814; was stationed on Long Island under General Swift, and then at Plattsburg under General McComb; after the war, he was retained on the peace establishment, but resigned his commission in 1815; was a student for two years at William and Mary College, Virginia; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1819, 1820, 1821, 1822, and 1823; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, until March 3, 1829; was principal of the Warrenton Female Seminary.

Turner, James, was born in Southampton County, Virginia, in 1766; removed with his father to Bute (now Warren) County, North Carolina, in 1770; received a public-school education; served in the Revolutionary war as a private in the same company with Nathaniel Macon; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1797-1800, and of the State Senate in 1801 and 1802; was governor of North Carolina in 1802-1805; was elected United-States senator in 1805 as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1805, until 1816, when he resigned on account of ill health; died at Bloomsbury, North Carolina, January 15, 1824.

Turner, James, was born in Maryland; resided at Wiseburg; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, defeating J. T. H. Worthington, also a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by J. T. H. Worthington.

Turner, Thomas, was born at Richmond, Kentucky, September 10, 1821; received a classical education, graduating at Centre College, Danville, in 1840; studied law with his father, Hon. Squire Turner, at Richmond, and at the law department of Transylvania University at Lexington, Kentucky, where he graduated in March, 1842; commenced practice at Richmond; removed in November, 1854, to Mount Sterling, Kentucky, where he practised; was appointed Commonwealth's attorney in March, 1846, and resigned in 1849; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1861-1863; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,103 votes against 12,710 votes for Robert Boyd, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Turner, Thomas J., was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, April 5, 1815; received a public-school education; removed with his father's family to Butler County, Pennsylvania, in 1825; worked on a farm, and as a day-laborer on the Pennsylvania Canal; went westward in 1833; was for three years in St. Paul's County, Indiana, and then settled at Freeport, Illinois; was justice of the peace; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected judge of probate in 1842; was appointed postmaster in 1844; was chosen State district-attorney in 1845; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat (receiving also the votes of the Mormons, then residents in his district), serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1854, and was chosen speaker of the House.

Turney, Hopkins L., was born in Smith County, Tennessee, October 3, 1797; was apprenticed to the tailor's trade; served in the campaign against the Seminole Indians in 1818; did not learn to write until after he was twenty-two years of age; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Winchester; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828-1838; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,447 votes against 2,740 votes for Cox, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses without opposition, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was elected a United-States senator from Tennessee, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; died at Winchester, Tennessee, August 1, 1857.

Turney, Jacob, was born at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, February 18, 1825; was educated at Greensburg Academy; served, while a boy, in a printing-office; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and practised at Greensburg; was elected district-attorney for Westmoreland County in 1850, and re-elected in 1853; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan ticket in 1856; was elected to the State Senate of Pennsylvania in 1857 for three years, and elected speaker in 1859; was defeated for State senator in 1871 by a reduced majority in a strong Republican district; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,065 votes against 8,864 votes for Andrew Stewart, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,962 votes against 12,763 votes for Jacob Rush, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Turpie, David, was born in Hamilton County, Ohio, July 8, 1829; received a classical education, graduating at Kenyon College in 1848; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1849, and commenced practice at Logansport, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1852; was appointed judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1854, and of the Circuit Court in 1856, both of which positions he resigned; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana (in place of Jesse D. Bright, expelled) as a Democrat, serving from January 22, 1863, to March 3, 1863.

Turrell, Joel, was born in Vermont in 1795; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1813; removed to Oswego, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, and was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; died at Oswego, New York, December 28, 1859.

Tuthill, Joseph H., was born at Blooming Grove, New York, February 11, 1811; received a common-school education; was a merchant for thirty-five years; was president of the Ellenville glass-works; was clerk of Ulster County from 1843 to 1847; was a member of the Ulster-county board of supervisors in 1842, 1843, 1861, 1862, 1865, 1866, 1867, 1868, 1869, and 1870; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,559 votes against 11,257 votes for Lindsley, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Tuthill, Selah, was born in Ulster County, New York, in 1775; founded the town of Tuthill in Ulster County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress, but died before taking his seat, September 7, 1821.

Tweed, William M., was born at New York, April 3, 1823; received a public-school education; learned the trade of chair-making, and carried on that business; was an alderman in 1851-1852; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,394 votes against 4,243 votes for Hoxie, Whig, and 818 votes for Morgan, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as a Democratic candidate for alderman by Charles Fox, Know-Nothing; was school commissioner of the Seventh Ward 1856-1858; was a member of the board of supervisors for New-York County in 1858; was defeated as the Peace candidate for sheriff in 1861 by James Lyme, the War candidate; was appointed deputy street commissioner in 1863; was a member of the State Senate 1868-1870; was tried in 1874 on charges of official embezzlement, found guilty, and sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment; escaped in December, 1875; was surrendered by the Spanish authorities at Vigo, in Spain, and brought back to New York on a man-of-war; died at New York, a prisoner, April 12, 1878.

Tweedy, John H., was born in Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1837, and commenced practice at Milwaukee, in the Territory of Wisconsin; was a delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution in 1846; was elected a delegate from Wisconsin Territory in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 10,670 votes against 9,648 votes for Strong, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to May 29, 1848.

Tweedy, Samuel, was born in Connecticut; resided at Danbury; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835.

Twichell, Ginery, was born at Athol, Massachusetts, August 26, 1811; received a public-school education; became interested in stage-coaches and in carrying the mails in 1830; was afterwards an officer of the Boston and Worcester Railroad, and was chosen its superintendent in 1848, and its president in 1857; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,084 votes against 2,601 votes for Aspinwall, Democrat, and 463 votes for Guyney, the Working-men's candidate; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 23,043 votes against 13,714 votes for Mason, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 6,233 votes against 5,640 votes for Gaston, Democrat, and 266 votes for Cushing, Prohibitionist, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873.

Tyler, Asher, was born at Bridgewater, New York, May 10, 1798; received a classical education, graduating at Hamilton College in 1817; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Ellicottsville; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,521 votes against 5,667 votes for Ten Broeck, Democrat, and 255 votes for Allen, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; removed to Elmira, where he was largely engaged in railroad operations; died at Elmira, New York, August 10, 1875.

Tyler, John, was born in Charles-City County Virginia, March 29, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at William and Mary College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar when nineteen years of age, and practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1811-1816; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Fourteenth Congress (in place of John Clopton, deceased) as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 17, 1816, to March 3, 1821; was again a member of the State House of Representatives 1823-1825; was governor of Virginia 1825-1827; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia as a State-rights Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to February 29, 1836, when he resigned on account of differences of opinion with President Jackson; joined the Whig party, and was elected Vice-President on the Harrison ticket in 1840; became President, after the death of President Harrison, April 4, 1841; was a delegate to the Peace Convention of 1861, and its president; renounced his allegiance to the United States; was a delegate to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which assembled at Richmond in July, 1861; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Confederate Congress, but died at Richmond, Virginia, before taking his seat, January 17, 1862. His "Life and Speeches" was published in 1844.

Tyner, James N., was born at Brookville, Indiana, January 17, 1826; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was secretary of the Indiana Senate four consecutive sessions, commencing in 1857; was a presidential elector in 1860; was special agent of the Post-office Department from 1861 to 1866; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-first Congress at a special election (occasioned by the election of Hon. D. D. Pratt to the United-States Senate); was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,113 votes against 13,149 votes for J. F. Henderson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,737 votes against 16,798 votes for Whiteside, Democrat; was appointed by President Grant governor of Colorado, but declined, and accepted the position of second assistant postmaster-general, serving from February 26, 1875, to July 12, 1876, and postmaster-general, serving from July 12, 1876, to March 3, 1877; was appointed by President Hayes first assistant postmaster-general, serving from March 16, 1877.

Tyson, Jacob, was born in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, in 1793; received, through his own exertions, a good education; removed to Richmond County, New York; was a member of the State Senate in 1828; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Tyson, Job Roberts, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, February 12, 1804; received an academic education; taught school; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Philadelphia; was a member of the city council and of the State House of Representatives; took a great interest in literature and the fine arts; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,654 votes against 3,500 votes for Hamilton, Democrat, and serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; died at Woodlawn Hall June 27, 1858. He published "Pennsylvania prior to 1743," "Essay on the Penal Laws of Pennsylvania," "The Lottery System of the United States," and "Memoir of T. C. James, M.D.," with several orations on historical subjects.

Udree, Daniel, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; removed to Berks County, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits and in the manufacture of iron; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1799-1805; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat (in place of John M. Hyneman, resigned), serving from December 6, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Sixteenth Congress (in place of Joseph Heister, resigned), serving from January 8, 1821, to March 3, 1821; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Ludwig Worman, deceased); was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 23, 1822, to March 3, 1825; died at Reading, Pennsylvania, July 22, 1828.

Underhill, Walter, was born in the city of New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,649 votes against 3,905 votes for Maclay, Cass Democrat, and 1,035 votes for Hecker, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Underwood, John W. H., was born in Elbert County, Georgia, November 20, 1816; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Rome, Georgia; was solicitor-general for the Western Circuit 1843-1847; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1850; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1857, and was chosen speaker of the House; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,339 votes against 2,162 votes for Shackleford, serving from December 5, 1859, to January 23, 1861, when he retired from the House, and espoused the cause of the Southern Confederacy; after peace was declared in 1864, he resumed practice at Rome, Georgia.

Underwood, Joseph Rogers, was born in Goochland County, Virginia, October 24, 1791; was adopted by an uncle, and taken to Kentucky in 1803; received a classical education, which was finished at the University of Lexington in 1811; studied law with Robert Wickliffe; served in the war of 1812 as lieutenant of Kentucky volunteers; was wounded and made prisoner by the Indians at Dudley's defeat in 1813; on his release he was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Glasgow, Kentucky; was trustee of the town, and county-attorney; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1816-1819; removed in 1823 to Bowling Green; was a presidential elector on the Clay ticket in 1824; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1825 and 1826; was a judge of the State Court of Appeals 1828, 1835; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, receiving 681 majority over Elijah Hise, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 484 majority over Elijah Hise, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,153 votes against 4,216 votes for Elijah Hise, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 5,961 votes against 3,512 votes for J. W. Irwin, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1843; declined being a candidate for re-election; was elected a United-States senator from Kentucky as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; died at Bowling Green, Kentucky, August 23, 1876.

Underwood, Warner L., was born in Goochland County, Virginia, August 7, 1808; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Virginia in 1830; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bowling Green, Kentucky; was a resident in Texas 1833-1840; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1848, and of the State Senate in 1849; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 7,362 votes against 5,583 votes for Bates, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,359 votes against 6,156 votes for Lewis, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; declined being a candidate for re-election.

Upham, Charles Wentworth, was born at St. John's, New Brunswick, May 4, 1802; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1821; engaged in mercantile pursuits; taught school; studied theology; was a clergyman at Salem, Massachusetts, from December 8, 1824, until December 8, 1844, when he relinquished the ministry on account of a bronchial trouble; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1840 and 1849; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 5,862 votes against 4,364 votes for Robert S. Rantoul, jun., Democrat, 2,979 votes for S. E. Sewall, Free-Soiler, and 49 scattering, which gave no candidate the necessary majority, and, on a second trial, Robert Rantoul, jun., was elected; was mayor of Salem in 1852; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1853; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-third Congress, receiving on the first trial 5,003 votes against 2,740 votes for John B. Alley, Democrat, 2,531 votes for George Hood, Free-Soiler, and 1,729 scattering, which gave no candidate the necessary majority, and he succeeded on a second trial, receiving 4,265 votes against 4,096 votes for George Hood, Free-Soiler, and 793 scattering, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 3,231 votes against 7,428 votes for Timothy Davis, Know-Nothing, and 746 votes for N. J. Lord, Democrat; was a member of the State Senate in 1857 and 1858, and its president; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1859 and 1860; died at Salem, Massachusetts, June 15, 1875. He published "Letters on the Logos" 1823, "Lectures on Witchcraft" 1832, "Life of Sir Henry Vane" 1835, "Life of John C. Frémont" 1856. He prepared a "Life of Washington" at the request of the Board of Education of Massachusetts; its publication was interdicted by Mr. Sparks, on the ground of its being an infringement of his copyright of the "Writings of Washington," but a large edition was subsequently sold at London. He edited "The Christian Review" and "The Christian Register," and was a prolific contributor to reviews and magazines.

Upham, George B., was born in New Hampshire in 1769; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1789; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, serving as speaker in 1809 and 1815; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803; died at Claremont, New Hampshire, February 10, 1848.

Upham, Jabez, was born in Massachusetts; received a liberal education, graduating at Harvard College in 1785; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Claremont, New Hampshire; removed to Brookfield, Massachusetts; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Tenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to 1810, when he resigned; died at Brookfield, Massachusetts, in 1811.

Upham, Nathaniel, was born at Deerfield, New Hampshire, June 9, 1774; received an academical education at Phillips Academy at Exeter; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and also of the Executive Council; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Fifteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1823; died at Rochester, New Hampshire, July 10, 1829.

Upham, William, was born at Leicester, Massachusetts, in August, 1792; removed with his father to Vermont in 1802; received a classical education at the University of Vermont; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1812, and commenced practice at Montpelier, Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827 and 1828; was State's attorney for Washington County in 1829; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1830; was elected a United-States senator from Vermont as a Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to January 14, 1853, when he died of small-pox, after ten days' illness, at Washington City.

Upson, Charles, was born at Southington, Connecticut, March 19, 1821; received an academic education; was a student at the Yale-College Law School; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Coldwater, Michigan; was county-clerk for St. Joseph County in 1849 and 1850; was prosecuting-attorney in 1853 and 1854; was a member of the State Senate of Michigan in 1855 and 1856; was elected attorney-general of the State in 1861 and 1862; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,147 votes against 11,385 votes for Turner, Union; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 19,151 votes against 12,538 votes for Nathaniel A. Balch, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 19,623 votes against 11,228 votes for Severens, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Upson, William H., was born at Worthington, Franklin County, Ohio, January 11, 1823; graduated at Western-Reserve College in 1842; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Akron, Ohio; was a member of the Senate of Ohio in 1854 and 1855; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,359 votes against 11,980 votes for F. F. Backus, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 11,053 votes against 6,695 votes for J. M. Coffinberry, Democrat, and 448 votes for Taylor, Prohibitionist, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Upton, Charles Horace, was born at Belfast, Maine, August 23, 1812; removed to Virginia, and settled at Falls Church; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, defeating S. F. Beach, who unsuccessfully contested the seat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; died at Geneva, Switzerland, June 17, 1877.

Vail, George, was born in New Jersey in 1803; received an academical education; resided at Morristown; was engaged with his brother (Alfred Vail) and S. F. Morse in projecting the instruments used for telegraphic communication; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,247 votes against 6,265 votes for Coursen, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,281 votes against 6,816 votes for Osborn, anti-Nebraska, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was appointed by President Buchanan consul at Glasgow; died at Morristown, New Jersey, May 23, 1875.

Vail, Henry, was born in New York; resided at Troy; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; died at Troy, New York, June 25, 1833.

Valk, William W., was born in South Carolina; removed to New York, and resided at Flushing; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 3,753 votes against 2,778 votes for Allen, Democrat, and 2,676 votes for Vail, Whig, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Vallandigham, Clement L., was born at New Lisbon, Ohio, July 29, 1820; received a classical education, studying one year at Jefferson College, Ohio; removed to Maryland, where he was for two years the preceptor of an academy at Snow Hill; returned to Ohio in 1840; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Dayton, Ohio; edited "The Dayton Empire" 1847-1849; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Cincinnati in 1856; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fifth Congress (having successfully contested the election of Lewis D. Campbell) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,903 votes against 9,715 votes for Campbell, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 11,052 votes against 10,918 votes for Craighead, Republican, serving from May 25, 1858, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 11,779 votes against 13,027 votes for Robert C. Schenck, Republican; was arrested by the Union military authorities in 1863 for having expressed his approval of the Rebellion, and banished to the Confederate States; but he went from Wilmington to Bermuda, and thence to Canada, where he remained until peace was restored; during his exile he was defeated as Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions at Chicago in 1864, and at New York in 1868; died at Lebanon, Ohio, June 17, 1871, from a wound received by the accidental discharge of a pistol while he was arguing a case in court.

Van Aernam, Henry, was born at Marcellus, New York, March 11, 1819; received an academic education; graduated at a medical college, and practised at Franklinville, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858; served in the Union army as surgeon of the One Hundred and Fifty-fourth New-York Volunteers; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,996 votes against 7,374 votes for Jonas K. Button, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,405 votes against 7,290 votes for Risley, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Van Allen, James Q., was born in Rensselaer County, New York; received a public-school education; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1804; was elected a representative from New York in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809.

Van Allen, John E., was born in Rensselaer County, New York; received an academical education; resided at Troy; was elected a representative from New York in the Third Congress; was re-elected to the Fourth and Fifth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1799; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1800-1801.

Van Auken, Daniel M., was born in Pike County, Pennsylvania, January 15, 1826; graduated at Union College, New York; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Milford, Pennsylvania; was prosecuting-attorney for Pike County, Pennsylvania, from 1855 until 1859; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,907 votes against 9,121 votes for Lilley, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 17,928 votes against 10,323 votes for Torrey, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871.

Van Buren, John, was born in Ulster County, New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Kingston, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,007 votes against 5,930 votes for Benjamin R. Bevier, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; died at Kingston, New York, January 16, 1855.

Van Buren, Martin, was born at Kinderhook, New York, December 5, 1782; was reared on his father's farm; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1803, and commenced practice at Kinderhook, removing to Hudson in 1809; was a member of the State Senate 1813-1820; was attorney-general of the State of New York February 17, 1815-July 8, 1819; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1821; was elected a United-States senator from New York as a Democrat, and re-elected, serving from December 3, 1821, to December 20, 1828, when he resigned to accept the office of governor of the State of New York; this position he resigned on the 12th of March, 1829, having been appointed by President Jackson secretary of state of the United States; this position he resigned August 1, 1831, having been appointed by President Jackson minister to Great Britain, but the Senate rejected his nomination, and he took leave March 19, 1832; was elected Vice-President on the Jackson ticket in 1832, receiving 189 of the 277 electoral votes cast; was elected President in 1836, receiving 170 of the 294 electoral votes cast, serving March 4, 1837-March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for President in 1840, receiving 60 electoral votes against 234 electoral votes for W. H. Harrison, Whig; was the candidate of the Antislavery party for President in 1848; visited Europe in 1853-1855; died at Kinderhook, New York, July 24, 1862. He wrote "Inquiry into the Origin and Course of Political Parties in the United States," published by his sons after his death. Lives of him were written by W. Holland, M. Dawson, D. Crockett, and others.

Vance, John, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, and resided at Urbana; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823.

Vance, John L., was born at Gallipolis, Ohio, July 19, 1839; was educated in the common schools, in a printing-office, and at the Gallia Academy; studied law; graduated at the law-school of the Cincinnati College in April, 1861; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Gallipolis; entered the Union army in April, 1861, and served in the various grades from captain to commandant of his regiment until December, 1864; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; established "The Gallipolis Bulletin" in 1867; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,437 votes against 10,496 votes for H. S. Bundy, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,639 votes against 15,213 votes for Henry S. Neal, Republican.

Vance, Joseph, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, March 21, 1786; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits and cattle-breeding; was one of the earliest settlers in Ohio, settling at Urbana; was several times a member of the State House of Representatives; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1820; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1835; was governor of Ohio in 1836; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,510 votes against 4,552 votes for Hunt, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was a delegate to the Whig National Convention of 1848; died on his farm near Urbana, Ohio, August 26, 1851.

Vance, Robert B., was born in Buncombe County, North Carolina; resided at Nashville, Nash County; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Eighteenth Congress as a Crawford Democrat, receiving the same number of votes as Felix Walker, Jackson Democrat (the election then devolved upon the sheriffs of the four counties composing the congressional district, of whose votes Mr. Vance received 3, and Mr. Walker 1), serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Vance, Robert Brank, was born in Buncombe County, North Carolina, April 24, 1828; received a public-school education; was by occupation a farmer; was clerk of the Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions from 1848 to 1856; was elected captain of a company in the Confederate service in 1861; was twice elected colonel of the Twenty-ninth North-Carolina Regiment, and was appointed brigadier-general in 1863; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-third Congress as a Democratic Conservative, receiving 11,300 votes against 8,945 votes for W. G. Candler, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,127 votes against 6,887 votes for P. Durham, Independent; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,868 votes against 7,426 votes for Erastus R. Hampton, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873.

Vance, Zebulon B., was born in Buncombe County, North Carolina, May 13, 1830; received a thorough English education, and was one year at the University of North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1853, and commenced practice at Asheville, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1854; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-fifth Congress (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the election of Thomas L. Clingman as senator) as a State-rights American, receiving 2,049 majority over Avery, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,026 votes against 6,331 votes for Craige, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1858, to March 3, 1861; was colonel of a North-Carolina regiment which he raised for the Confederate army; was governor of North Carolina 1861-1863; was a member of the Democratic National Convention of 1868 which nominated Seymour and Blair.

Van Cortlandt, Philip, was born at New York, September 1, 1749; received a thorough English education, and became a land-surveyor; entered the Revolutionary army at the commencement of the war as lieutenant-colonel; was commissioned as colonel in 1776; served throughout the war, and was appointed brigadier-general for his gallant conduct at Yorktown under General Lafayette; was a delegate to the State Convention which adopted the Federal Constitution in 1788; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1788-1790, and of the State Senate 1791-1793; was elected a representative from New York in the Third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1809; devoted the remainder of his life to the cultivation of his farm in Westchester County, New York; accompanied General Lafayette on his tour through the United States in 1824; died November 5, 1831.

Van Cortlandt, Pierre, jun., was born in Westchester County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1793-1795; was elected a representative from New York in the Twelfth Congress as a Democrat by a majority of 1,533, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; died at Cortlandt, New York.

Vanderpool, Aaron, was born at Kinderhook, New York, February 5, 1799; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1820, and commenced practice at Kinderhook; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826 and 1830; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,658 votes against 9,460 votes for Robert Dorlon, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; removed to New-York City, and died there July 18, 1870.

Vanderveer, Abraham, was born in King's County, New York, in 1781; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; died at Brooklyn, New York, July 21, 1839.

Vandever, William, was born in Maryland; received a public-school education; removed to Iowa, and located at Dubuque; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 25,503 votes against 22,764 votes for Leffingwell, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 36,805 votes against 27,206 votes for Samuels, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; served in the Union army as colonel in 1861.

Van Dyke, John, was born in New Jersey; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Brunswick; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,340 votes against 5,173 votes for Kirkpatrick, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress receiving 7,282 votes against 6,023 votes for Hilliard Democrat, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1851; was judge of the Supreme Court of New Jersey.

Van Dyke, Nicholas, was born in Delaware was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1777-1782; was a signer of the articles of Confederation.

Van Dyke, Nicholas, was born in Delaware received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1788; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Tenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey, serving from December 1, 1817, to May 19, 1826, when he died at New Castle, Delaware.

Van Gaasbeck, Peter, was born in Ulster County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795.

Van Horn, Burt, was born at New Fane, New York, October 23, 1823; was raised on a farm; was a farmer and a manufacturer; was educated at the Madison University, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1858-1860; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,662 votes against 5,882 votes for Ely, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,671 votes against 9,533 votes for Willett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 12,204 votes against 9,131 votes for Comstock, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Van Horn, Robert T., was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, May 19, 1824; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; went to Missouri, where he was mayor and postmaster of Kansas City; was a member of the State Senate of Missouri in 1863, 1864, 1865; served in the Union army as major and lieutenant-colonel of Missouri volunteers during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Radical Republican, receiving 3,498 votes against 3,226 votes for Norton, Democrat, and 695 votes for King, Democrat. was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 5,391 votes against 4,857 votes for James T. Burch, Conservative; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 5,427 votes against 4,560 votes for Shields, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871.

Van Horne, Archibald, was elected a representative from Maryland in the Tenth Congress was re-elected to the Eleventh Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1811.

Van Horne, Espy, was born in Lycoming County, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829 died at Williamsport, Pennsylvania, June 25, 1829.

Van Horne, Isaac, was born in Pennsylvania served as captain in the Revolutionary war; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1805; was appointed receiver of public moneys at Zanesville, Ohio.

Van Houton, Isaac B., was born in Rockland County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833 to March 3, 1835; died at Clarkstown, New York.

Vanmeter, John J., was born in Ohio; resided at Piketon; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,344 votes against 5,142 votes for Lucas, Democrat, and 106 votes for Stewart, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Van Ness, John P., was born at Ghent, New York, 1770; received a classical education; was a student at Columbia College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, but never practised; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat, and took his seat December 7, 1801; he was married, in May, 1802, to Marcia Burnes, the heiress of Washington City, and soon afterwards accepted from President Jefferson the commission of major of the uniformed militia of the District of Columbia, for which the House of Representatives declared his seat forfeited January 17, 1803; he then made Washington City his home; was elected mayor; was president of the Bank of the Metropolis, and filled other local positions; died at Washington City March 7, 1846.

Van Rensselaer, Henry (son of Stephen Van Rensselaer), was born at Albany, New York, in 1811; received a military education at the West-Point Military Academy, graduating in 1831; was commissioned brevet second lieutenant of the Fifth United-States Infantry July 1, 1831, and resigned January 27, 1832; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,258 votes against 5,948 votes for Preston King, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; served in the Union army as a colonel and inspector-general, a portion of the time on the staff of Lieutenant-General Scott; died at Cincinnati, Ohio, March 23, 1864.

Van Rensselaer, Jeremiah (brother of Stephen Van Rensselaer), was born in 1741; received an academical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1758; was an active supporter of Revolutionary measures; was elected a representative from New York in the First Congress, serving from May 9, 1789, to March 3, 1791; was a presidential elector in 1801; was lieutenant-governor of New York 1801-1804; died at Albany, New York, February 22, 1822.

Van Rensselaer, Killian K., was born at Albany, New York, in 1763; received a thorough English education; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1811; died at Albany, New York, June 18, 1845.

Van Rensselaer, Solomon, was born in Rensselaer County, New York, in 1774; received a thorough English education; entered the United-States army as cornet of cavalry March 14, 1792; was promoted to be captain, and wounded through the lungs at the battle of Miami August 20, 1794; was promoted to be major January 8, 1799, and was mustered out in June, 1800; was adjutant-general of New York in 1801, 1810, and 1813; served in the war of 1812 as lieutenant-colonel of New-York volunteers, and was dangerously wounded in the assault on Queenston Heights October 13, 1812; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to January 14, 1822, when he resigned to accept the postmastership at Albany, which he held until he was removed by President Van Buren in 1839; died near Albany April 23, 1852.

Van Rensselaer, Stephen (brother of Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, and father of Henry Van Rensselaer), was born at New York November, 1764; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1782; was a member of the New-York Senate 1791-1795; was lieutenant-governor of New York 1795-1801; served in the war of 1812 as major-general of volunteers on the frontier; was a canal commissioner from April 17, 1816, until his death, serving the last fourteen years as president of the canal board; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress (in place of Solomon Van Rensselaer, resigned) as an Adams man; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from March 12, 1822, to March 3, 1829; died at Albany January 26, 1839.

Vansant, Joshua, was born at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1804; received a public-school education; was for many years in the hat business; was a senatorial elector in 1830; was postmaster of Baltimore 1830-1841; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845; was a member of a special water commission in 1852; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,876 votes against 5,061 votes for Preston, Whig, and serving from December 5, 1853, until March 3, 1855; was several times a director on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in behalf of the city and of the state; was four times appointed finance commissioner of Baltimore; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Maryland in 1867; was elected mayor of Baltimore in 1871, and re-elected in 1873; was appointed city comptroller of Baltimore in 1876.

Van Trump, Philadelph, was born at Lancaster, Ohio, November 15, 1810; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing, and edited "The Lancaster Gazette and Enquirer;" was a delegate to the National Whig Convention which nominated Scott and Graham in 1852; was a candidate for senatorial elector on the Fillmore ticket for Ohio in 1856; was president of the Bell and Everett State Convention in 1860; was the Democratic candidate for supreme judge of Ohio in the years 1863, 1864, and 1865; served as judge of the Court of Common Pleas from 1862 to 1866; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,546 votes against 11,336 votes for Jones, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,287 votes against 11,374 votes for Turney, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873.

Van Valkenburgh, Robert B., was born in Steuben County, New York, September 4, 1821; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bath, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1852, 1857, and 1858; was placed in command of the State recruiting-dépôt at Emira in 1861, and organized seventeen regiments for the war; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,167 votes against 8,507 votes for Walker, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 14,827 votes against 10,774 votes for Hathaway, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; took the field as colonel of the One Hundred and Seventh Regiment of New-York Volunteers while a member of Congress, and commanded it at the battle of Antietam; was acting commissioner of Indian affairs in the summer of 1865; was appointed by President Johnson minister to Japan, serving January 18, 1866-November 11, 1869.

Van Vorhes, Nelson H., was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, January 23, 1822; removed to Athens County, Ohio, in 1832; worked on a farm; entered the printing-office of his father in 1836, and served a six-years' apprenticeship, qualifying himself for publishing a newspaper, which he did until 1861; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1850-1872, during four years of which he was speaker; was elected probate judge in 1854, but soon afterward resigned; was the Whig candidate for Congress in 1858, and was defeated by 277 votes; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago which nominated Mr. Lincoln; entered the Union army in 1861 as a private; was commissioned as first lieutenant in the Third Ohio Volunteers; was quartermaster of the Eighteenth Ohio Volunteers, and was colonel of the Ninety-second Ohio Volunteers, with which he served in the Army of the Cumberland until prostrated by pneumonia at Nashville; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,655 votes against 10,656 votes for Wyley H. Oldham, Democrat, and 360 votes for M. Alderman, Prohibitionist; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,620 votes against 14,116 votes for Poston, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Van Winkle, Peter G., was born at New-York City September 7, 1808; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Parkersburg (in what is now West Virginia) in 1835; was a practising lawyer until 1852, when he became treasurer, and subsequently president, of a railroad company; was a member of the Virginia State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was a member of the Wheeling Reorganizing Convention in 1861; was a delegate to the Convention which framed the Constitution of the State of West Virginia; was a member of the legislature of West Virginia in 1863; was elected United-States senator from West Virginia as a Union man, and served from December 7, 1863, to March 4, 1869; he died at Parkersburg, West Virginia, of a nervous prostration, aggravated by dropsy of the chest, September 7, 1808.

Van Wyck, Charles H., was born at Poughkeepsie November, 1824; graduated at Rutgers College, New Jersey; studied and practised law; was district-attorney of Sullivan County from 1850 to 1856; entered the Union army as colonel of the Tenth Legion, or Fifty-sixth New-York Volunteers, and commanded it during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion, receiving the rank of brigadier-general; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,631 votes against 5,532 votes for Niven, Democrat, and 1,587 votes for Friend, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 8,311 votes against 8,163 votes for St. John, Fusionist, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863; was again elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 10,194 votes against 9,933 votes for Anderson, Democrat; and was elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Republican (the House deciding that he received more votes than George W. Greene, Democrat, who claimed the seat), serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; removed to Nebraska, and engaged in agricultural operations; was a member of the State Senate in 1878.

Van Wyck, William W., was born in Dutchess County, New York; resided at Fishkill; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1825.

Varnum, James Mitchell (a brother of Joseph Bradley Varnum), was born at Dracut, Massachusetts, in 1749; received a classical education, graduating at Rhode-Island College in 1769; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at East Greenwich, Rhode Island; was chosen commander of the Kentish Guards in 1774, and colonel of the First Rhode-Island Infantry in 1789; was transferred to the Continental service in 1776, and promoted to the rank of brigadier-general in 1777; directed the defence of Fort Mifflin; was at the winter encampment at Valley Forge, and at the battle of Monmouth, resigning in 1779; was elected a delegate from Rhode Island in the Continental Congress 1780-1782, and again in 1786-1787; was appointed a judge of the United-States Court in the North-west Territory; removed in June, 1788, to Marietta, Ohio, and died there January 10, 1789.

Varnum, John, was born in Essex County, Massachusetts, in 1783; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Haverhill, Massachusetts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth and Twenty-first Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1831; removed to Niles, Michigan, where he died July 23, 1836.

Varnum, Joseph Bradley (brother of James Mitchell Varnum), was born at Dracut, Massachusetts, in 1759; received a public-school education; served as brigadier-general in the Revolutionary war; was a member of the State Senate, House of Representatives, and council; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Fourth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Congresses, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1811, serving the last two terms as speaker; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts, defeating Timothy Pickering, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1817; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1820; was major-general of militia; died suddenly at Dracut, Massachusetts, September 11, 1821.

Vaughan, William W., was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,990 votes against 5,346 votes for W. J. Smith, Republican, and 3,290 votes for E. Shaw, Independent Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; died at Memphis, Tennessee, August 19, 1878.

Veeder, William D., was born at Guilderland, Albany County, New York, May 19, 1833; received an academical education; studied law at Albany with Peter Cagger and Nicholas Hill; was admitted to the bar in March, 1858, and commenced practice at Brooklyn; was a member of the State Assembly in 1865 and 1866; was a member of the Democratic State Committee 1875-1877; was a member of the New-York State Constitutional Convention 1867-1868; was surrogate of King's County, New York, 1867-1877; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,916 votes against 10,630 votes for James Cavanagh, Republican.

Venable, Abraham B., was born in Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1780; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Second Congress; was re-elected to the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Congresses, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 3, 1799; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of Stevens T. Mason, deceased), serving from December 13, 1803, to June 7, 1804, when he resigned; perished with about seventy others in the conflagration of the theatre at Richmond, Virginia, December 26, 1811.

Venable, Abraham Watkins, was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, October 17, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at Hampden-Sidney College in 1816; studied medicine for two years, and then went to Princeton, where he graduated in 1816; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1821, and commenced practice; was a presidential elector in 1832 on the Jackson and Van Buren ticket, and again in 1832 on the Van Buren and Johnson ticket; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,588 votes against 4,435 votes for John Kerr, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,025 votes against 4,315 votes for H. K. Nash, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 3,618 votes against 2,520 votes for Graves, Opposition, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1853; was a presidential elector in 1860 on the Breckinridge and Lane ticket; was a delegate from North Carolina to the adjourned session of the Provisional Confederate Congress which met at Richmond in July, 1861; died at Brownsville, North Carolina, February 24, 1876.

Verplanck, Daniel C. (father of Gulian C. Verplanck), was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1761; received an academical education; resided at Fishkill; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1809; was first judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Dutchess County March 11, 1828-January 16, 1830; interested himself in agriculture; died at his country-seat near Fishkill March 20, 1834.

Verplanck, Gulian C. (son of Daniel C. Verplanck), was born at New York August, 1786; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1801; studied law; was admitted to the bar; travelled extensively in Europe; returned home, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1820-1822; was professor of the evidences of Christianity in the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary at New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Whig candidate for mayor of New York in 1834; was a member of the State Senate 1833-1841; was for some years president of the Board of Commissioners of Emigration, one of the vestrymen of Trinity Church, one of the governors of the City Hospital, and vice-chancellor of the State University; he died at New-York City March 13, 1870. He published "The Early European Friends of America," "Essays on the Evidences of Revealed Religion," "Oration on the Law of Literary Property," "The Talisman," "Discourses on Various Subjects," and an edition of Shakespeare's plays, with notes.

Verree, John P., was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1819; received a public-school education; was an iron-manufacturer; was for six years a member of the Philadelphia city council, serving four years as presiding officer; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,977 votes against 5,334 votes for Landy, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 8,931 votes against 5,909 votes for Kline, Democrat, and 359 votes for Hamilton, Unionist, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1863.

Vibbard, Chauncy, was born at Galway, Saratoga County, New York, November 11, 1811; received a common-school education; was a clerk in a store; entered the service of the Utica and Schenectady Railroad as clerk in a ticket-office, and became superintendent of the road; was superintendent of the New-York Central Railroad; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,019 votes against 11,692 votes for Mix, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Vickers, George, was born in Chestertown, Kent County, Maryland, November 19, 1801; received an academic education; became a clerk in the county-clerk's office; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1832, and practised at Chestertown; was a delegate to the Whig National Convention at Baltimore in 1852; declined the appointment of judge respectively tendered by Governors Hicks and Bradford; was appointed major-general of militia in 1831 by the former; was a presidential elector on the McClellan ticket in 1864; was a member of the State Senate of Maryland in 1836 and 1867; was one of the vice-presidents of the Union Convention held in Philadelphia in 1863; was elected United-States senator from Maryland as a Conservative Democrat (to fill the vacancy created by the rejection of Philip Francis Thomas), serving from March 9, 1868, to March 3, 1873.

Videl, Michel, was born at Languedoc, France; received an academical education; immigrated to the republic of Texas; was subsequently a writer for journals in New Orleans, New York, and Quebec; established "The St. Landry Progress" in 1857; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1868; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Fortieth Congress, serving from July 18, 1868, to March 3, 1869; was appointed consul at Tripoli.

Vining, John, was a delegate from Delaware to the Continental Congress 1784-1786; was elected a representative from Delaware in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from May 6, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 6, 1798, when he resigned.

Vinton, Samuel F., was born at South Hadley, Massachusetts, September 25, 1792; received a classical education, graduating at Williams College, in Massachusetts, in 1814; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1816, and commenced practice at Gallipolis; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress as a Whig, and was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1837; was a presidential elector on the Harrison ticket; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,133 votes against 3,269 votes for Cleveland, Democrat, and 213 votes for Buckingham, Unionist; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Congresses; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 5,709 votes against 4,416 votes for Tucker, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851; was appointed a commissioner by President Lincoln to appraise the slaves emancipated in the District of Columbia in 1862; died at Washington City in May, 1862.

Voorhees, Daniel W., was born in Fountain County, Indiana, September 26, 1828; received a classical education, graduating at the Indiana Asbury University in 1849; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and commenced practice at Crawfordsville, Indiana, in 1851; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,072 votes against 11,302 votes for James Wilson, Republican; was appointed by President Buchanan United-States attorney for the district of Indiana 1858-1860; went to Virginia in 1859 as counsel for John E. Cook, one of John Brown's raiders; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,535 votes against 11,516 votes for Thomas H. Nelson, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 12,457 votes against 9,976 votes for H. D. Scott, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 12,880 votes against 12,296 votes for Washburn, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to February 23, 1866, when his election was successfully contested, and his seat given to Henry D. Washburn; was again elected to the Forty-first Congress, and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 17,278 votes against 15,843 votes for Dunn, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873; was appointed a United-States senator from Indiana (in place of Oliver P. Morton, deceased), serving from November 12, 1877. His term of office will expire with the next meeting of the legislature of Indiana.

Vose, Roger, was born in New Hampshire in 1763; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1790; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Walpole, New Hampshire; was a member of the State Senate and House of Representatives; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist on the "Peace ticket," headed by Daniel Webster, receiving 18,611 votes against 15,966 votes for S. Dinsmore, War Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas for the Western Circuit; died at Walpole, New Hampshire, October 28, 1841.

Vroom, Peter D., was born in Somerset County, New Jersey, in 1791; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College, New York, in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1813, and practised successively in Morris, Sussex, Hunterdon, and Somerset Counties; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820, 1827, and 1829; was elected governor of New Jersey as a Jackson Democrat in 1829, 1831; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor by S. L. Southard, Whig, in 1832, but again elected in 1833-1836; was appointed by President Van Buren in 1838 a commissioner to adjust the claims of the Indians in Mississippi; claimed to have a certificate of election to the Twenty-fifth Congress with the "broad seal" of the State, but was not admitted to a seat; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, and, after much discussion, he was admitted to a seat, serving from March 10, 1840, to March 3, 1841; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1844; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was appointed by Governor Fort in 1853 to the chief justiceship of the State Supreme Court, but declined it; was appointed by President Pierce minister to Prussia, serving from May 24, 1853, to August 10, 1857; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Peace Convention at Washington in 1861; was appointed a commissioner of the State sinking fund in 1864; was a presidential elector on the Seymour ticket in 1868; died at Trenton, New Jersey, November 18, 1873. He published five volumes of "Reports of the Supreme Court of New Jersey."

Waddell, Alfred Moore, was born at Hillsborough, North Carolina, September 16, 1834; was educated at Bingham's School and Caldwell Institute at Hillsborough, and graduated at the University of North Carolina in 1853; studied law, and practised at Wilmington; was clerk of a Court of Equity from 1858 until 1861; was a delegate to the National Conservative Convention at Baltimore in 1860 which nominated Bell and Everett; owned and edited "The Wilmington Daily Herald" from May, 1860, to May, 1861; served in the Confederate army as lieutenant-colonel of cavalry; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat by a majority of 351 over O. H. Dockery, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,286 votes against 13,557 votes for N. McKay, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 15,572 votes against 14,285 votes for Neil McKay, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,534 votes against 15,796 votes for W. P. Canada, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871.

Wade, Benjamin F., was born in Feeding Hills Parish (near Springfield), Massachusetts, October 27, 1800; received a public-school education; went to Ohio, where he was a school-teacher and farmer while studying law; after commencing practice, he held several local offices in Ashtabula County, Ohio; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio from 1837 to 1838; was president of the Third Judicial Circuit of Ohio in 1847; was elected to the United-States Senate as a Republican (to succeed Thomas Ewing, Whig); took his seat December 1, 1851; was re-elected in 1857, and again re-elected in 1863, serving until March 4, 1869.

Wade, Edward, was born at West Springfield, Massachusetts, November 22, 1803; received a public-school education; removed with his father to Ashtabula County, Ohio, in 1821; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827, and commenced practice at Jefferson, Ohio; removed in 1832 to Unionville, and in 1837 to Cleveland; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-third Congress as a Free-soil candidate, receiving 5,274 votes against 4,046 votes for Case, Whig, and 3,715 votes for Wilson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,699 votes against 3,079 votes for Wilder, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 9,431 votes against 4,467 votes for Hilliard, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 8,557 votes against 4,597 votes for Gray, Democrat, and 99 votes for Kelly, Independent, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1861; died at Cleveland, Ohio, August 7, 1862.

Wadleigh, Bainbridge, was born at Bradford, New Hampshire, January 4, 1831; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in February, 1850, and practised at Milford; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1855, 1856, 1859, 1860, 1869, 1870, 1871, and 1872; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire as a Republican (to succeed J. W. Patterson, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1873. His term of service will expire March 3, 1879.

Wadsworth, James, was born in Durham, Connecticut, July 6, 1730; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1748; was town-clerk of Durham 1756-1786; was colonel and brigadier-general of Connecticut militia in 1776, and second major-general in 1777; was ordered to New Haven to defend the towns on the coast in 1777, and was for some time a member of the State Committee of Safety; was for some years a justice, and then the presiding justice, of the New-Haven County Court of Common Pleas; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1783-1786; was a member of the Executive Council 1785-1790; died at Durham, Connecticut, September 22, 1817.

Wadsworth, Jeremiah, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, in 1743; was the originator of numerous plans for the improvement of his native town, and held a number of local offices; was commissary-general of the Continental army during the greater part of the war of the Revolution; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1786-1788; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the First Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Second and Third Congresses, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1795; died at Hartford, Connecticut, April 30, 1804.

Wadsworth, Peleg, was born at Duxbury, Massachusetts, May 6, 1748; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1769; taught school at Plymouth with Alexander Scamell, and engaged in commercial pursuits; served throughout the Revolutionary war; removed to Portland in 1784, and became a land agent and surveyor; was a member of the State Senate in 1792; was elected a representative from that portion of Massachusetts which was afterwards Maine in the Third Congress; was re-elected to the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1807; removed in the fall of 1807 to Oxford County, Maine, to survey and improve a large tract of land granted to him by government for his services; died at Hiram, Oxford County, Maine, November 18, 1829.

Wadsworth, William H., was born at Maysville, Kentucky, July 4, 1821; received a classical education at the Augusta College of Kentucky; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Maysville, Kentucky; was a member of the State Senate in 1853 and 1855; was a presidential elector on the Bell and Everett ticket; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,130 votes against 3,850 votes for Williams, Secessionist; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 6,638 votes against 567 votes for Brown, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was appointed a commissioner under the Claims Convention of July 4, 1868, between the United States and Mexico.

Wagener, David D., was born at Easton, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was for many years president of the Easton Bank; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-third Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-sixth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1841.

Waggamann, George A., was born in 1760; was a practising lawyer at New Orleans, and also interested in sugar-planting; was secretary of state of the State of Louisiana under three successive governors; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana (in place of Edward Livingston, resigned) as a Whig, serving from January 3, 1832, to March 3, 1835; died at New Orleans March 23, 1843, from the effects of a wound received in a duel.

Wagner, Peter J., was born in New York; resided at Fort Plain; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,401 votes against 4,441 votes for David F. Sacia, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841.

Wait, John Turner, was born at New London, Connecticut, August 27, 1811; received a mercantile training in early life, and afterwards was two years at Trinity College, Hartford; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1836, and practised at Norwich; was State's attorney for the county of New London in 1842-1844 and in 1846-1854; has been president of the Bar Association of that county from its organization in 1874 to the present time; was an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant-governor on the Democratic ticket in 1854-1857, receiving each year the highest vote on the ticket; was the first elector at large as a War Democrat in 1864 on the Lincoln and Johnson ticket; was a member of the State Senate in 1865 and 1866, serving the last year as president pro tempore; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1867, 1871, and 1873, serving as speaker the first year, and subsequently declining that position; was an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant-governor on the Republican ticket in 1874, receiving the highest vote on the ticket; was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. H. H. Starkweather); was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,283 votes against 9,535 votes for Thomas M. Waller, Democrat, and 175 votes for Elisha H. Palmer, Prohibitionist, serving from April 12, 1876.

Wakeman, Abraham, was born at Fairfield, Connecticut, May 31, 1824; received an academical education by his own industry; studied law in Herkimer County, New York; removed to New-York City in 1846; was admitted to the bar in 1847, and commenced practice there; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1850 and 1851; was an alderman of the city of New York 1854-1856; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 4,895 votes against 2,969 votes for Curtis, Democrat, and 1,699 for Fellows, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Wakeman, Seth, was born at Franklin, Vermont, January 15, 1811; studied law, and practised at Batavia, New York; was district-attorney of Genesee County, New York, from 1851 to 1857; was a member of the Assembly of the State of New York 1856-1857; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of New York in 1867-1868; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,134 votes against 9,039 votes for J. G. Shepard, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Walbridge, David S., was born at Bennington, Vermont, July 30, 1802; received a public-school education; was a farmer, a merchant, and a miller; removed to Michigan in 1842, and settled at Kalamazoo; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,865 votes against 10,178 votes for Clark, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 23,550 votes against 16,046 votes for Littlejohn, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; died at Kalamazoo, Michigan, June 15, 1868.

Walbridge, Henry S., resided at Ithaca, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,709 votes against 7,497 votes for Halsey, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Walbridge, Hiram, was born at Ithaca, New York, February 2, 1821; removed with his parents in 1836 to Toledo, Ohio; received an academical education; studied law with M. H. Tilden; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and practised at Toledo; removed to New York in 1847, and engaged in commercial pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,814 votes against 4,797 votes for Bowen, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was a devoted friend of the Union during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was vice-president of a National Commercial Convention at Chicago, and subsequently presided over similar conventions at Detroit and Louisville; was defeated as the Union candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 4,535 votes against 7,823 votes for Benjamin Wood, Democrat; retired from business; died at the Astor House, New-York City, after a painful surgical operation for the stone, December 6, 1870.

Walden, Hiram, was born at Rutland, Vermont, August 29, 1800; received a public-school education; removed with his father to New York, and located at Wright, Schoharie County; became a wool-carder and cloth-dresser; was interested in the militia, and became, by gradual promotion, a major-general; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1836; was supervisor of the County of Schoharie in 1842; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,636 votes against 6,330 votes for Smith, Whig, and 2,757 votes for Hammond, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Walden, Madison M., was born in Adams County, Ohio, October 6, 1836; was educated at a district-school and the Denmark Academy; attended for one year the Iowa Wesleyan University; graduated at the Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, in 1859; served in the Union army from May, 1861, to May, 1865, as captain in the Sixth Iowa Infantry and Eighth Iowa Cavalry; was in charge of a newspaper at Centreville, Iowa; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1866 and 1867; was a member of the State Senate in 1868 and 1869; was lieutenant-governor of Iowa in 1870; and was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,005 votes against 14,883 votes for W. T. Smith, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Waldo, Loren F., was born at Canterbury, Connecticut, February 2, 1802; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in September, 1825, and commenced practice at Tolland Court House, Connecticut; was State's attorney for Tolland County 1837-1849; was two years judge of the Court of Probate, and six years a member of the State legislature; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,444 votes against 7,327 votes for Chapman, Whig, and 28 scattering, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851; was commissioner of the State school fund; was appointed by President Pierce commissioner of pensions, serving from March 17, 1853, to June 5, 1856, when he was elected by the legislature of Connecticut a judge of the Supreme Court.

Waldron, Henry, was born at Albany, New York, October 11, 1819; graduated at Rutgers College, New Jersey, in 1836; removed to Michigan in 1837, and engaged in business pursuits; was a member of the Michigan legislature in 1843; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,055 votes against 8,113 votes for Noble, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 16,467 votes against 10,064 votes for Barry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 14,653 votes against 10,187 votes for Stacy, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,348 votes against 17,447 votes for N. B. Eldridge, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 17,427 votes against 10,542 votes for A. Mahan, Liberal; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 14,611 votes against 14,054 votes for John J. Robinson, Democrat.

Wales, George E., was born in Wyndham County, Vermont; received an academical education; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1818-1824, serving the last two years as speaker; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Nineteenth Congress, receiving 1,580 majority; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was judge of probate for Hartford County 1843-1848.

Wales, John, resided at Wilmington, Delaware; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware (in place of John M. Clayton, resigned) as a Whig, serving from February 26, 1849, to March 3, 1851; died at Wilmington, Delaware, December 3, 1863.

Walker, Amasa, was born at Woodstock, Connecticut, May 4, 1799; received a public-school education at North Brookfield, Massachusetts, where he afterwards resided; engaged in mercantile pursuits at Boston 1825-1849; became a zealous reformer; was professor of political economy at Oberlin College 1842-1849; was a delegate to the International Peace Convention in 1843, and again in 1849; was a member of the State House of Representatives from North Brookfield in 1849, and State senator in 1850; was secretary of state of Massachusetts in 1851 and 1853; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1853; was elected a representative in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of G. F. Bailey), serving from December 1, 1862, until March 3, 1863; was lecturer on political economy at Amherst College 1861-1875; was a presidential elector on the Lincoln and Hamlin ticket in 1860; was delegate to the Philadelphia Loyalists' Convention in 1866; died at North Brookfield, Massachusetts, October 20, 1875. He published "The Science of Wealth," a financial text-book, with numerous official documents, lectures, and orations.

Walker, Benjamin, was born at Utica, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,204 votes against 2,216 votes for Jacob Eaker, Federalist, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1803.

Walker, Charles C. B., was born at Drewsville, New Hampshire, June 27, 1824; received an academic education; removed to Corning, New York, in 1848; was elected supervisor of Corning, and was postmaster there 1856-1860; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Charleston in 1860; served as an assistant quartermaster-general at the camp at Elmira in 1861; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was a member of the State Democratic Central Committee of New York from 1852 until 1874; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,020 votes against 14,128 votes for Hakes, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Walker, David, was born in Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Fifteenth Congress, defeating Solomon P. Sharpe; was re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 1, 1820, when he died at Washington City, having previously sent a request to Congress that his death should not be officially noticed, — a request which was complied with.

Walker, Felix, was born in Hampshire County, Virginia, July 19, 1753; removed to North Carolina, where he became a friend of Daniel Boone, with whom he explored Kentucky in 1774-1775; settled in Tryon (afterwards Rutherford) County, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1799-1806; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, and Seventeenth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1817, until March 3, 1823; was defeated for re-election to the Eighteenth Congress by R. B. Vance; removed to Tennessee, and thence to Mississippi, where he died in 1863.

Walker, Francis, was elected a representative from Virginia in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795.

Walker, Freeman, resided at Augusta, Georgia; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of John Forsyth, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 15, 1819, to August 8, 1821, when he resigned; died at Augusta, Georgia, September 23, 1827.

Walker, George, was born in Kentucky; was appointed a United-States senator from Kentucky (in place of George M. Bibb, resigned), serving from October 10, 1814, to February 2, 1815, when the senator elected by the legislature took his seat.

Walker, Gilbert Carlton, was born at Binghamton, New York, August 1, 1832; was educated at Binghamton Academy, Williams College, Massachusetts, and Hamilton College, New York, graduating from the latter institution in July, 1854; studied law; was admitted to the bar in September, 1855, and practised in New York and Chicago until 1864, when he removed to Norfolk, Virginia, and engaged in the business of banking; was elected, in July, 1869, governor of Virginia over H. H. Wells, Republican, by a majority of over 18,000, and retired from that office in January, 1874; was grand master of Masons in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Conservative, receiving 13,325 votes against 10,710 votes for Rush Burgess, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,536 votes against 13,420 votes for C. S. Mills, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Walker, Isaac P., resided at Milwaukee; was elected a United-States senator from Wisconsin as a Democrat, serving from June 26, 1848, to March 3, 1855.

Walker, John, was born in Virginia; was appointed a United-States senator from Virginia (in place of William Grayson, deceased), serving from May 4, 1790, to December 6, 1790, when the senator elected by the legislature took his seat.

Walker, John Williams, received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1806; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Huntsville, Alabama; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Alabama, serving from December 14, 1819, to December, 1822, when he resigned on account of ill health; died at Huntsville, Alabama, April 11, 1823.

Walker, Percy, was born near Huntsville, Alabama; received an academical education; studied medicine, graduating in 1835 from the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, and commenced practice at Mobile, Alabama; was a lieutenant of Alabama volunteers during the campaign against the Creek Indians; studied law; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1839; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Mobile; was State's attorney for the Sixth Judicial District for four years; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1847 and in 1853; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 5,293 votes against 4,689 votes for Stallworth, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; declined a renomination.

Walker, Robert J., was born at Northumberland, Pennsylvania, July 19, 1801; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania in 1819; studied law with his father; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1821; removed to Mississippi in 1826, and located at Madisonville; was appointed a United-States senator from Mississippi (no successor to George Poindexter having been elected) as a Democrat; and was re-elected, serving from February 22, 1836, to March 5, 1845, when he resigned; was appointed by President Polk secretary of the treasury, serving from March 6, 1845, to March 3, 1849; visited England; was appointed by President Buchanan governor of Kansas in 1857, but soon resigned; was appointed by President Lincoln in 1863 financial agent to Europe; was the counsel for the Russian Government when Alaska was sold to the United States; had an extensive practice before the Supreme Court; and died at Washington City November 11, 1869.

Walker, William A., was born in New Hampshire; received a public-school education; removed to New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,801 votes against 4,702 votes for Roberts, Whig, and 638 scattering, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; died at New York December 18, 1861.

Wall, Garret D. (father of James W. Wall), was born in Monmouth County, New Jersey, March 10, 1783; received an academical education; studied law at Trenton; was admitted to the bar in 1807, and commenced practice at Burlington, New Jersey; was clerk of the Supreme Court 1812-1817; was State quartermaster-general 1815-1837; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1827; was United-States attorney for the district of New Jersey in 1829; was elected the same year as governor of the State of New Jersey, but declined; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1841; was judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals 1848-1850; died at Burlington, New Jersey, of dropsy on the chest, November 22, 1850.

Wall, James W. (son of Garret D. Wall), was born at Trenton, New Jersey, in 1820; received a classical education, graduating at the College of New Jersey at New Brunswick in 1839; studied law with Daniel Haines; was admitted to the bar in 1842, and commenced practice at Trenton; was commissioner of bankruptcy; removed to Burlington in 1847; was mayor of Burlington in 1850; visited Europe in 1854; he took strong grounds in 1861 against coercing the South, and was imprisoned for some time in Fort Lafayette; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey (in place of John R. Thomson, deceased) as a Democrat, serving from January 21, 1863, to March 3, 1863; died at Elizabeth, New Jersey, June 9, 1872. He published "Foreign Etchings, or Visits to the Old World's Pleasant Places," and was a frequent contributor to Democratic newspapers.

Wall, William, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, March 20, 1801; received a public-school education; served a seven-years' apprenticeship to the trade of ropemaker; removed to King's County, Long Island, in 1822, and was so successful in his business that he retired with a fortune in 1856; held a number of local offices; was a commissioner of the Brooklyn Water-Works; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,877 votes against 6,811 votes for Taylor, Democrat, and 3,085 votes for Duffy, Independent Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; died at Brooklyn, New York, April 20, 1872.

Wallace, Alexander S., was born in York County, South Carolina, December 30, 1810; received a common-school education; was a planter; was appointed a magistrate in 1838, and was successively re-appointed until 1853; was elected a member of the legislature of South Carolina in 1852 as a Union candidate in opposition to the secession movement of 1851, and re-elected in 1853, 1854, 1855, 1858, and 1859; and was a Union candidate in 1860, but was defeated by the Secessionists; was again elected in 1865 as a Union candidate; was appointed internal-revenue collector of the Third District of South Carolina in July, 1866, which office he held until he was elected to Congress; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 16,646 votes against 13,422 votes for L. G. McKissick, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,590 votes against 12,879 votes for B. F. Perry, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 16,452 votes against 14,445 votes for Joseph B. Kershaw, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1877.

Wallace, Daniel, was born in Union County, South Carolina; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Thirtieth Congress (in place of James A. Black, deceased), receiving 3,369 votes against 3,044 votes for H. H. Thompson, and 2,097 votes for F. W. Davie; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, serving from June 12, 1848, to March 3, 1853.

Wallace, David, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, April 4, 1799; removed with his parents to Ohio; received a military education, graduating from the West-Point Military Academy in 1820; was assistant professor of mathematics there January, 1820-February, 1821; was commissioned brevet second lieutenant in the Second Artillery July 1, 1821, and resigned June 1, 1822; removed to Indianapolis, Indiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1830 and in 1833; was governor of Indiana 1837-1840; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 6,314 votes against 7,399 votes for W. J. Brown, Democrat; was State prosecuting-attorney; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected in 1856 judge of the Court of Common Pleas at Indianapolis, Indiana, where he died September 5, 1859.

Wallace, James (whose name generally appeared in the Journal of the House, against his protest, as James M. Wallace), was born in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1821.

Wallace, John W., was born at Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania, December 20, 1818; received a classical education; studied medicine, and graduated at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1846; located at Darlington, Pennsylvania, but removed in 1850 to New Castle, and soon acquired an extensive practice; served as a delegate to several state and national conventions; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 7,636 votes against 6,102 votes for Holstein, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to

March 3, 1863, and was renominated in 1862, but defeated, the district having been changed; entered the Union army in 1863 as paymaster, and served until the close of the war; was a presidential elector in 1872 on the Grant and Wilson ticket, and was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,347 votes against 8,538 votes for George W. Miller, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Wallace, William A., was born in Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, November 28, 1827; received an academic education; read law; was admitted to the bar in September, 1847, and has practised ever since; was a member of the State Senate of Pennsylvania 1862-1871, having been elected five times in succession, and was speaker of the Senate in 1871; was a member of the National Democratic Convention of 1864, and senatorial delegate and chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation in the National Democratic Convention of 1872; was chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Pennsylvania for five years; was in 1874 a member of the commission to suggest amendments to the Constitution of Pennsylvania; was elected United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Democrat (to succeed John Scott, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Wallace, William H., was born in Miami County, Ohio, July 17, 1811; was reared in Indiana, where he received a public-school education; removed to Iowa in 1837; was a member of the State House of Representatives and its speaker; was appointed by President Taylor receiver of public moneys at Fairfield, Iowa; removed to Washington Territory in 1853; was for several years a member of the Territorial legislature; was appointed by President Lincoln governor of Washington Territory in 1861; was elected a delegate from Washington Territory in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was appointed by President Lincoln in 1863 the first governor of Idaho Territory; was elected a delegate from Idaho Territory in the Thirty-eighth Congress, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate to the National Union Convention at Philadelphia in 1866.

Walley, Samuel H., was born at Boston, Massachusetts, August 31, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1826; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but never practised much; was treasurer of the Seaman's (afterwards the Suffolk) Savings Bank 1833-1853, and subsequently one of its vice-presidents; was for eight years a member of the State House of Representatives, and was speaker of the House in 1845-1846; was auditor of the American Board of Foreign Missions 1847-1867; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,290 votes against 1,745 votes for L. A. Dowley, Democrat, 1,028 votes for Charles M. Ellis, Free-Soiler, and 30 scattering, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 2,760 votes against 4,912 votes for L. B. Comins, Know-Nothing, and 926 votes for L. R. Spinney, Democrat; was defeated as the Whig candidate for governor in 1855 by Henry J. Gardner, Know-Nothing, who also defeated Rockwell, Republican, and Beach, Democrat; was the treasurer of several railroads; was bank commissioner, and in 1859 became president of the Revere Bank; died at the Rockland House, Nantasket Beach, where he was spending the summer months, August 27, 1877.

Walling, Ansel T., was born in Otsego County, New York, January 10, 1824; removed at the age of nine years with an elder brother to Erie County, Pennsylvania; received a common-school and academic education; learned the art of printing in "The Erie Observer" office; removed to Ohio in 1843; was editor and publisher of "The Mahoning Index" in the Cass and Butler campaign, and of "The Coshocton Democrat" 1850-1854; was clerk in the legislature of Ohio 1851-1852; was admitted to the bar in 1852; removed to Iowa, and was editor and publisher of "The Keokuk Daily Times" 1855-1858; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention from Iowa in 1856; returned to Ohio in 1861, and in 1863 resumed the practice of law at Circleville; was elected to the State Senate of Ohio in 1865, and to the State House of Representatives in 1867, serving as speaker pro tempore; and was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,580 votes against 9,667 votes for David Taylor, jun., Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Walls, Josiah T., was born at Winchester, Virginia, December 30, 1842; received a common-school education; was a planter; was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1868; was elected a member of the State House of Representatives in 1868; was elected to the State Senate 1869-1872; claimed to have been elected a representative from the State at large to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, but the election was contested by his competitor, Silas L. Niblack, who took the seat January 29, 1873; was re-elected for the State at large, receiving 17,503 votes against 15,881 votes for Niblack, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,549 votes against 8,178 votes for Jesse J. Finley, Democrat.

Waln, Robert, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1765; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fifth Congress (in place of John Swanwick, deceased) as a Federalist, receiving 820 votes against 320 votes for Samuel Miles, Democrat; was re-elected to the Sixth Congress, receiving 825 votes against 351 votes for Samuel Miles, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1798, to March 3, 1801; died January 24, 1836.

Walsh, Michael, was born at Youghal, Ireland, March 7, 1810; immigrated when a boy to Baltimore with his father, who was a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and who gave him a good education; learned the trade of lithographic printer; removed to New York, where he became a political wire-puller; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1839; established in 1840 a political journal called "The Knickerbocker," which was stopped, after two years' existence, by his conviction and imprisonment for the publication of a libel; on his release he established another political journal, called "The Subterranean," which was a scurrilous sheet, and did not live long; was president of a political club known as "The Spartan Association;" was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,802 votes against 2,564 votes for Hawes, Whig, and 1,712 votes for Kelly, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was sent by Secretary Marcy on confidential errands to England and Mexico for the Department of State; was found dead in the area of a public-house in New York March 17, 1859. A volume of his speeches was published by "The Spartan Association" in 1843.

Walsh, Thomas Yates, was born at Baltimore, Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 6,683 votes against 6,453 votes for W. Pinckney Whyte, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 6,440 votes against 6,792 votes for Henry May, Democrat.

Walsh, William, was born in Ireland May 11, 1828; immigrated to Virginia in 1842; was educated at Mount St. Mary's College, Emmetsburg, Maryland, which conferred the degree of LL.D. on him in 1874; studied law partly at Ballston Spa, New York; was admitted to the bar in Virginia in 1850, and commenced practice at Cumberland, Maryland, in February, 1852; was chosen a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket in 1860 and 1872; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of 1867; and was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,974 votes against 12,896 votes for Lloyd Lowndes, jun., Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,727 votes against 15,713 votes for Lewis E. McComas, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Walton, Charles W., was born at Mexico, Maine, December 9, 1819; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice at Mexico; was attorney for Oxford County 1847-1851; removed to Auburn in 1855; was attorney for Androscoggin County 1857-1860; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,806 votes against 10,192 votes for Record, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to May 26, 1862, when he resigned, having been appointed by the governor a judge of the State Supreme Court.

Walton, Ezekiel B., was born at Montpelier, Vermont, February 17, 1812; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; became the editor of "The Vermont Watchman" at Montpelier, Vermont; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,398 votes against 3,242 votes for Needham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,615 votes against 3,577 votes for Eastman, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,268 votes against 3,389 votes for Wilcox, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1863; resumed his editorial labors; was a delegate from Vermont to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1864, and has taken an active part in the politics of Vermont.

Walton, George, was born in Frederick County, Virginia, in 1740; received a public-school education; was apprenticed to a carpenter; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1774, and commenced practice at Augusta; was prominent in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress February, 1776-October 1781; was colonel of a regiment of militia which aided in the defence of Savannah in December, 1778, when he was dangerously wounded in the thigh, taken prisoner, and not released until September, 1779; was governor of Georgia 1779; was chief justice of Georgia in 1783; was a delegate to the convention for framing a Federal Constitution in 1787, but declined taking his seat; was again governor in 1789; was again chief justice in 1793; was appointed a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of James Jackson, resigned), serving from December 18, 1795, to April 12, 1796, when the senator elected by the legislature took his seat; died at Augusta, Georgia, February 2, 1804.

Walton, Matthew, was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; was a presidential elector in 1809; died January 18, 1819.

Walworth, Reuben Hyde, was born at Bozrah, Connecticut, October 26, 1789, but removed in 1793 with his father's family to Hoosick, New York; was reared on a farm, and received a public-school education; studied law with Hon. John Russell at Troy; was admitted to the bar in 1809, and commenced practice at Plattsburg in 1811; was appointed justice of the peace, and master in chancery; served in the war against Great Britain as brigade-major; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 1,200 majority, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was appointed judge of the Fourth Circuit; was appointed chancellor of the State of New York in 1828; was nominated by President Tyler in 1844 to be a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, but the Senate refused to confirm the nomination; left the bench in 1848, when the office of chancellor was abolished, and resumed practice; died at Saratoga, New York, November 28, 1867.

Ward, Aaron, was born at Sing Sing, New York, July 5, 1790; received an academical education; commenced the study of law; was appointed lieutenant in the Twenty-ninth United-States Infantry May 20, 1813, and promoted to be captain May 6, 1814; served on the frontier; resigned at the close of the war; resumed his legal studies with Mr. Van Derlen of Oxford; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Sing Sing; was appointed district-attorney for Westchester County; was successively commissioned as colonel, brigadier-general, and major-general of militia; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was again elected to the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 5,949 votes against 4,955 votes for Nicholas Cruger, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1846; visited Europe in 1853-1854; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for secretary of state of New York in 1855; died at Georgetown, District of Columbia, March 2, 1867. He published a volume of travels entitled "Around the Pyramids."

Ward, Andrew H., was born in Harrison County, Kentucky; was defeated as the Conservative candidate for representative in the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,421 votes against 7,666 votes for Green Clay Smith, Unionist; Mr. Smith resigning, he was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-ninth Congress at a special election, receiving 8,735 votes against 1,052 votes for R. B. Carpenter, Unionist, serving from December 3, 1866, to March 3, 1867.

Ward, Artemas (father of Artemas Ward), was born at Shrewsbury, Massachusetts, November 27, 1727; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1748; was appointed a justice of the peace in 1752; served in the Provincial army in the war against Canada, attaining the rank of lieutenant-colonel; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; was commissioned brigadier-general by the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts October 27, 1774; was commissioned major-general by the Continental Congress June 17, 1775, but resigned in April, 1776; was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas for Worcester County; was a State councillor in 1777; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1779-1781, but was prevented by ill health from taking his seat; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1776-1791, and in 1785 was speaker of the House; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Second Congress as a Federalist, and re-elected to the Third Congress, serving from October 4, 1791, until March 3, 1795; after suffering from the gravel many years, he died at Shrewsbury, Massachusetts, October 27, 1800.

Ward, Artemas (son of General Artemas Ward), was born at Shrewsbury, Massachusetts, January 9, 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1783; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Shrewsbury until 1809, when he removed to Boston; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Peace candidate, receiving in Boston 1,527 votes against 20 scattering votes; and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, until March 3, 1817; was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas 1820-1839; was a member of the State legislature of Massachusetts; and died at Boston October 7, 1847.

Ward, Elijah, was born at Sing Sing, New York, September 15, 1818; received an academic education, and subsequently completed his studies under private instructors; studied law with Hon. W. W. Campbell; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and commenced practice; was judge-advocate-general of the State from 1853 until 1855; was a member of the National Democratic Convention at Cincinnati in 1856; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,531 votes against 4,461 votes for G. Briggs, Native American, and 4,100 votes for James W. Nye, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 6,591 votes against 8,306 votes for G. Briggs (the Republican candidate, Augustus F. Dow, having withdrawn); was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 10,814 votes against 8,417 votes for A. F. Dow, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 6,942 votes against 4,839 votes for F. A. Conkling, Republican, and 996 votes for O. Blunt, Independent, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,929 votes against 7,315 votes for H. J. Raymond, Union Republican, 1,647 votes for E. P. Morton, Mozart Democrat, and 1,347 votes for Rush C. Hawkins, Independent Unionist; visited Europe in May-October, 1865, and again in August, 1866-September, 1868; was again elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,113 votes against 9,232 votes for John D. Lawson, Republican (the district giving at the same time a majority of 280 votes for General John A. Dix, the Republican candidate for governor), serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,408 votes against 13,221 votes for A. G. McCook, Democrat. He published two reports on "The Commercial Relations between the United States and the British Provinces." A biographical sketch of him was published by Robert Hadfield.

Ward, Hamilton, was born at Salisbury, New York, July 3, 1829; received a liberal education; studied law, and commenced practice at Belmont; was district-attorney for Alleghany County several years; was engaged in 1862, under an appointment from the governor, in raising troops for the Union army; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,945 votes against 11,176 votes for McNett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,750 votes against 11,435 votes for Collins, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 18,647 votes against 13,180 votes for Gardiner, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871.

Ward, Jasper D., resided at Chicago; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,183 votes against 8,873 votes for C. H. Harrison, Democrat and Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,181 votes against 9,189 votes for Carter H. Harrison, Democrat.

Ward, Jonathan, was born in Westchester County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Ward, Marcus L., was born at Newark, New Jersey, November 9, 1812; received a private-school education; was for many years engaged in manufacturing pursuits; was a Whig in politics until the breaking-up of that party, when he assisted in the formation of the Republican party; was a delegate to the Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860 and also to the Baltimore Convention in 1864; was an elector at large on the Lincoln and Johnson ticket; was defeated as the Republican nominee for governor of New Jersey in 1862; was again nominated in 1865 for that office, and elected for the term of three years; was a member of the National Republican Committee, and succeeded Hon. Henry J. Raymond as its chairman; and was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,061 votes against 10,401 votes for J. M. Randall, Liberal Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was offered the place of commissioner of Indian affairs December, 1875, but declined it.

Ward, Matthias, was born in Elbert County, Georgia; was reared in Madison County, Alabama received a classical education; taught school for two years; studied law; was admitted to the bar; removed to the republic of Texas; was a member of the Texan Congress, and, after the incorporation of Texas into the Union, of the State Senate; was a delegate from Texas to the two National Democratic Conventions which nominated Pierce and Buchanan for the presidency; was appointed a United-States senator from Texas (in place of J. Pinckney Henderson, deceased) as a State-rights Democrat, serving from December 6, 1858, to January 4, 1860, when the senator elected by the legislature took his seat; died at Raleigh, North Carolina, October 13, 1861.

Ward, Samuel, was born at Newport, Rhode Island, May 27, 1725; was reared as a farmer, and settled at Westerly, Rhode Island; was a member of the Provincial House of Representatives 1756-1759; was chief justice of Rhode Island in 1761; was governor of Rhode Island 1762 and 1765-1767; was one of the founders of Rhode-Island College, afterward Brown University; was zealous in the pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Rhode Island to the First Continental Congress 1774-1775; died at Philadelphia of small-pox March 25, 1776. His life, by Professor Gammell, was published in Sparks's "American Biography."

Ward, Thomas, was born in New Jersey in 1765; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died at Newark, New Jersey, February 4, 1842.

Ward, William, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, January 1, 1837; was educated at Girard College, Philadelphia; learned the art of printing in the office of "The Delaware-county Republican" at Chester, serving there four years; studied law; was admitted to the bar in August, 1859, and has since been engaged in the practice of law, conveyancing, land-business, and banking; has been a member of the city council of Chester, and city solicitor, but has never held any other public offices; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,220 votes against 9,717 votes for William D. Hartman, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Ward, William T., was born in Kentucky resided at Greensburg; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving no opposition, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Wardell, Daniel, was born at Bristol, Rhode Island, May 28, 1791; received a classical education graduating at Brown University in 1811; removed to Rome, New York; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1815, and commenced practice at Mannsville, New York; was appointed in 1824 a judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Jefferson County; was member of the State House of Representatives 1831-1837; was a prominent Freemason; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1837; removed in 1860 to Rome, New York, where he died March 27, 1878.

Ware, Nicholas, was born in Richmond County, Georgia; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Augusta, Georgia; was elected a United-States senator from Georgia (in place of Freeman Walker, resigned), and was re-elected, serving from December 11, 1821, to September 7, 1824, when he died at New-York City.

Warfield, Henry R., was born in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, in 1781; resided at Frederick Town; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Sixteenth Congress as a Federalist, defeating George Peter, also a Federalist; was re-elected to the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; in the memorable contest in the House of Representatives for the presidency, he decided the vote of Maryland in favor of John Quincy Adams, and secured his election; was found dead in his bed at Frederick Town, Maryland, March 18, 1839.

Warner, Hiram, was born in Hampshire County, Massachusetts, October 29, 1802; received an academical education; removed to Georgia when seventeen years of age, and taught school there for three years; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1825, and commenced practice at Knoxville, Georgia; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1828-1831; was elected by the legislature in 1833 a judge of the State Superior Court, and was re-elected in 1836, serving until 1840; was appointed in 1845 a judge of the State Supreme Court, serving until 1853, when he resigned; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,883 votes against 6,813 votes for Hill, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; declined a re-election.

Warner, Levi, was born at Wethersfield, Connecticut, October 10, 1831; received a public-school education; studied law at the Yale Law School, and at the Dane Law School, Cambridge, Massachusetts; was admitted to the bar in January, 1859, and has since been engaged in the practice of law in Fairfield County, Connecticut; was never a candidate for or held any office until elected to the Forty-fourth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of W. H. Barnum, elected senator); was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,238 votes against 15,409 votes for Robert Hubbard, Republican, serving from December 5, 1876.

Warner, Samuel L., was born at Wethersfield, Connecticut, in 1829; received an academical education; studied law at the Harvard and Yale Law Schools; was admitted to the bar in 1853, and commenced practice at Middletown; was executive secretary of state in 1853; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1857; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions at Charleston and Baltimore in 1860; was mayor of Norwich 1861-1865; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,236 votes against 9,521 votes for Russell, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867.

Warner, Willard, was born at Granville, Ohio, September 4, 1826; graduated at Marietta College, Ohio, in 1849; entered the Union army as major of the Seventy-sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry in 1861; was promoted to lieutenant-colonel of the same regiment in 1863; served on General W. T. Sherman's staff as assistant inspector-general during the Atlanta campaign, and until October 20, 1864; was appointed colonel of the One Hundred and Eightieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry in October, 1864; was brevetted brigadier and major-general for gallant and meritorious services; was mustered out in July, 1865; was elected to, and served two years in, the Ohio Senate; was elected a United-States senator from Alabama as a Republican, serving from July 25, 1868, to March 3, 1871; returned to Ohio.

Warren, Cornelius, was born in Putnam County, New York, in 1790; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849; was not a candidate for re-election; died at Cold Spring, New York, July 28, 1849.

Warren, Edward A., was born in Greene County, Alabama, May 2, 1818; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Mississippi; was a member of the Mississippi House of Representatives in 1845 and 1846; removed to Camden, Arkansas, in 1847; was a member of the Arkansas House of Representatives in 1848 and 1849, serving the last year as speaker; was State's attorney for the Sixth Judicial District of Arkansas in 1850; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,748 votes against 3,301 votes for Curran, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; declined being a candidate for re-election; was again elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,835 votes against 8,701 votes for Fowler, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; died in Nevada County, Arkansas, July 2, 1875.

Warren, Joseph M., was born at Troy, New York, in 1813; received a classical education, graduating from Washington (now Trinity) College at Hartford, Connecticut, in 1834; was a manufacturer and merchant; was elected mayor of Troy in 1852; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,793 votes against 11,659 votes for I. T. Davis, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873.

Warren, Lott, was born in Burke County, Georgia, October 30, 1797; received a public-school education; was a clerk in a store; served in the Seminole war in 1818 as second lieutenant of volunteers; studied law with D. McNeal; was admitted to the bar in 1821, and commenced practice at Dublin, afterwards removing to Marion; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1824; was appointed solicitor-general (to fill a vacancy); was a member of the State Senate in 1830; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1831; was a judge of the Inferior Court of Georgia 1831-1834; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 31,765 votes against 30,678 votes for Hillyer, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 39,297 votes against 35,379 votes for Campbell, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was a judge of the Superior Court 1843-1852.

Warren, William Wirt, was born at Brigh-ton, Massachusetts, February 27, 1834; graduated at Harvard College in 1854; took a degree at the Harvard Law School; was admitted to the bar in 1857, and engaged in active practice; was appointed by President Johnson in 1865 as assessor of internal revenue in the Seventh Massachusetts Revenue District; was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1868; was a member of the State Senate of Massachusetts in 1870; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,553 votes against 7,861 votes for J. M. S. Williams, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877; was defeated as the Democratic candidate to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,497 votes against 14,245 votes for William Clafin, Republican.

Washburn, Cadwallader Colden (brother of

E. B. Washburne and I. Washburn), was born at Livermore, Maine, April 22, 1818; received an academic education; removed to Boston; engaged in mercantile pursuits; removed to Mineral Point, Wisconsin; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; engaged successfully in land speculations; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,936 votes against 7,900 votes for Hoyt, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 26,004 votes against 16,233 votes for Crawford, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 23,917 votes against 20,167 votes for Dunn, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; was a delegate from Wisconsin in the Peace Convention of 1861; entered the Union army as colonel of cavalry; was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general and of major-general; was again elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,135 votes against 6,640 votes for Park, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 21,134 votes against 11,447 votes for Ellis, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was governor of Wisconsin 1872-1874.

Washburn, Henry D., was born in Windsor County, Vermont, March 28, 1832; received a common-school education; was apprenticed to a tanner, but preferred to teach school, which he did for some years; studied law, and graduated at the New-York State and National Law School; was auditor of Vermilion County, Indiana, from 1854 until 1861; served in the Union army as captain, colonel, and brigadier-general during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress (having successfully contested the election of Daniel W. Voorhees) as a Republican; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,871 votes against 14,358 votes for Claypool, Democrat, serving from February 23, 1866, to March 3, 1869.

Washburn, Israel, jun. (brother of C. C. Washburn and E. B. Washburne), was born at Livermore, Maine, June 6, 1813; received a public-school education until he was fourteen years of age, and then private instruction for four years; studied law; was admitted to the bar in October, 1834, and commenced practice in Orono, Maine, in December, 1834; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1842; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,167 votes against 3,488 votes for H. Strickland, Democrat, 2,493 votes for C. Stetson, Democrat, and 32 scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 8,227 votes against 4,376 votes for Strickland, Democrat, 3,444 votes for Waterhouse, Democrat, and 68 scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,224 votes against 6,010 votes for Samuel H. Blake, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,861 votes against 8,307 votes for A. Sanborn, Coalition; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 10,300 votes against 8,184 votes for Wiley, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to January 1, 1861, when he resigned, having been elected governor of Maine, serving in 1861 and 1862, and declining a re-election; was appointed by President Lincoln collector of customs at Portland, Maine, serving from November, 1863, to May 1, 1867.

Washburn, Ruel (uncle of Cadwallader C., Elihu B., and Israel Washburn), was born at Raynham, Massachusetts, May 21, 1793; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1814; removed to Livermore, Maine; studied law with Albion K. Parris at Paris, Maine; was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice at Livermore; was register of probate for Oxford County 1821-1823; was a member of the State Senate in 1827 and 1828; claimed to have been elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-first Congress as a Whig by five majority, but the House of Representatives gave the seat to his competitor, James W. Ripley, a Democrat; was grand master of Mason in Maine; was a member of the Executive Council in 1829; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832-1835 and 1841; was judge of probate for Androscoggin County 1856-1859; died at Livermore, Maine, March 4, 1878.

Washburn, William B., was born at Winchendon, Massachusetts, January 31, 1820; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1844; was a manufacturer of pails and tubs at Erving; removed in 1857 to Greenfield, where he was interested in banking; was a member of the State Senate in 1850; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1854; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,311 votes against no opposition; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 15,721 votes against 3,575 votes for Wood, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 11,895 votes against 1,668 votes for Heywood, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,985 votes against 1,814 votes for Heywood, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 8,419 votes against 7,077 votes for Noble, Democrat, and 368 votes for Bosworth, Prohibitionist; resigned January 1, 1872, to be inaugurated as governor of Massachusetts, the which office he had been elected; was re-elected governor in 1872 and 1873, and resigned on his election to the United-States Senate as a Republican (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Charles Sumner), serving from May 1, 1874, to March 3, 1875.

Washburne, Elihu Benjamin (brother of C. C. Washburn and I. Washburn, jun.), was born at Livermore, Maine, September 23, 1816; received a public-school education; was an apprentice-boy in the printing-office of "The Kennebec Journal," conducted by Luther Severance; but, his health failing, he studied law with John Otis at Hallowell, and afterwards at the Cambridge Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Galena, Illinois; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,392 votes against 7,106 votes for Cameron, Democrat, and 2,257 votes for a Free-soil candidate; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,372 votes against 2,776 votes for Jackson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,079 votes against 6,227 votes for Molony, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 15,811 votes against 6,457 votes for Bright, Douglas Democrat, and 370 votes for Jackson, anti-Lecompton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 21,438 votes against 8,927 votes for Beard, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,496 votes against 6,785 votes for Stiles, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 15,711 votes against 7,421 votes for Stiles, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,657 votes against 5,897 votes for Turner, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 6, 1869; was appointed by President Grant minister to France, serving from March 17, 1869, to March, 1877; returned to Galena, Illinois.

Washington, George, was born at Bridge's Creek, Westmoreland County, Virginia, February 22, 1732; was educated by a tutor; became a land-surveyor; entered the military service of Virginia in 1751, and remained in the field until the close of the French war; was a member of the Colonial House of Burgesses 1760-1775; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1784-1785; was chosen commander-in-chief, and took command of the army July 3, 1775; he forced the British to evacuate Boston March 17, 1776; lost the battle of Long Island August 27; won the battle of White Plains October 28; won the battle of Trenton December 26; won the battle of Princeton January 3, 1777; lost the battle of Brandywine September 11; lost the battle of Germantown October 4; fought the drawn battle of Monmouth June 28, 1778; won the battle of Yorktown October 19, 1780; resigned his commission December 23, 1783; was a delegate to the Convention that framed the Federal Constitution, and its president; was elected by the people President of the United States, and re-elected, serving from April 30, 1789, to March 3, 1797. He published his "Farewell Address." His "Life and Correspondence" was published by Sparks, Ramsey, Marshall, Bancroft, Irving, Everett, and Upham.

Washington, George C. (grand-nephew of George Washington), was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, August 20, 1789; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but devoted himself to agricultural pursuits; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twentieth Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 2, 1833; withdrew as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-third Congress in favor of W. Cost Johnson; was again elected to the Twenty-fourth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1837; was president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company; died at Georgetown, District of Columbia, July 17, 1854.

Washington, William H., was born in Wayne County, North Carolina, February 7, 1813; studied law with Judge Gaston; was admitted to the bar in August, 1835, and commenced practice at New Berne, North Carolina; was elected county and district solicitor; was re-elected a representative from North Carolina in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, defeating J. O. Watson, Democrat, serving from May 1, 1841, to March 3, 1843; declined a re-election to Congress; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1843 and 1846, and of the State Senate in 1848, 1850, and 1852; died at New Berne, North Carolina, August 12, 1860.

Watkins, Albert G., was born in Jefferson County, Tennessee, May 5, 1818; received a classical education, graduating at Holston College, Tennessee; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Panther Springs, Tennessee; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1845; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-first Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,025 votes against 4,968 votes for Cocke, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 9,592 votes against 2,125 votes for Hurley, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Independent Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 3,988 votes against 5,387 votes for N. G. Taylor, Whig, and 5,530 votes for B. Campbell, Democrat (Campbell died before taking his seat, and Taylor was elected); was again elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,781 votes against 7,511 votes for Taylor, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 7,647 votes against 7,471 votes for Taylor, American, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859.

Watmough, John G., was born on the banks of the Brandywine, Delaware, December 6, 1793; received a classical education, studying at Princeton College and at the University of Pennsylvania; served in the war of 1812 as lieutenant of artillery in the United States army, and as an aide-de-camp to General Gaines; was severely wounded at the defence of Fort Erie in 1814; resigned October 1, 1816; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-second Congress, receiving 1,060 majority over Daniel H. Miller; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; was high sheriff of Philadelphia in 1835-1836; was surveyor of the port of Philadelphia 1841-1845; died at Philadelphia November 29, 1861.

Watson, Cooper K., was born in Ohio; resided at Tiffin; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,399 votes against 5,618 votes for Plants, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Watson, James, was born in the city of New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1791, 1794, 1795, and 1796; was a member of the State Senate in 1798; was elected a United States senator from New York (in place of John Sloss Hobart, resigned) as a Democrat, serving from December 11, 1798, to March 19, 1801, when he resigned to accept the position of United States navy agent at New York, given to him by President Jefferson.

Watson, Lewis F., was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, April 14, 1819; received an academic education; engaged in mercantile pursuits, and was an extensive operator in lumber and in the production of petroleum; was elected president of the Warren Savings Bank at its organization in 1870; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,640 votes against 12,093 votes for William L. Scott, Democrat, 327 votes for Samuel Axtell, Prohibition, and 240 votes for C. C. Camp, Greenback, serving from October 15, 1877.

Watterson, Harvey M. (father of Henry Watterson), was born in Bedford County, Tennessee, November 23, 1811; was educated at Columbia College, Princeton, Kentucky; established in 1831, and edited for several years, a newspaper at the county-seat of Bedford County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1835; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,635 votes against 3,217 votes for Daniel M. Barringer, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, defeating Terry H. Cahal, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was appointed by President Tyler a special diplomatic agent to Buenos Ayres, serving from September 26, 1843, to November 15, 1844; returning home in 1845, he was elected a member of the State Senate of Tennessee, and was chosen its president; in 1850-1851 was the proprietor and editor of "The Nashville Union;" was a delegate from Tennessee to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1860, and voted for the nomination of Stephen A. Douglas; was one of the Douglas electors at large in Tennessee; was a delegate to the State Convention of 1861; removed to Washington after the war, and practised law there.

Watterson, Henry, was born at Washington City February 16, 1840 (his father, Hon. Harvey M. Watterson, being at the time a Democratic representative in Congress from Tennessee); owing to serious defect of sight, the son was educated chiefly by private tutors; he began at an early age to develop literary tastes, which led him to adopt the profession of journalism; his first newspaper employment was on "The Washington States," a Democratic paper, and he subsequently edited "The Democratic Review;" he returned to Tennessee in 1861, and edited "The Republican Banner" at Nashville; entered the Confederate service soon after the commencement of hostilities; edited "The Chattanooga Rebel;" served as a casual volunteer aide; returned to Nashville at the close of the war, and revived "The Republican Banner;" removed to Louisville in 1867; purchased the interest of George D. Prentice in "The Louisville Journal," and became editor of that paper; united with W. N. Haldeman in 1868 in consolidating the "Courier" and "Journal," and purchasing the "Democrat," constituting "The Courier-Journal," of which he was the editor; was temporary chairman of the National Democratic Convention of 1876; was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Edward Young Parsons), receiving 11,567 votes against 677 votes for W. J. Heady, Independent Democrat, serving from August 12, 1876, to March 3, 1877.

Watts, John, was born in New-York City in 1749; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1791-1793; was elected a representative from New York in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795.

Watts, John S., was born in Boone County, Kentucky, January 19, 1816; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Indiana; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and twice elected a prosecuting-attorney; was appointed by President Fillmore in 1851 an associate justice of the United-States Court in New Mexico; resigned in 1866, and practised his profession; was elected a delegate from New-Mexico Territory in the Thirty-seventh Congress, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; took an active part in recruiting for the Union army during the war for the suppression of the Rebellion; was appointed by President Johnson in 1868 chief justice of the Supreme Court in New Mexico.

Wayne, Anthony, was born at East Town, Pennsylvania, in 1746; was a farmer and land-surveyor; was a member of the Colonial House of Representatives in 1773; was actively engaged in pre-Revolutionary measures; entered the Continental service as colonel in 1775, and served brilliantly throughout the Revolutionary war, distinguishing himself at Three Rivers, Brandywine, Germantown, Monmouth, Stony Point, and Yorktown; after peace was declared, he settled in Georgia upon a tract of land donated to him by that State as a recompense for his military services; was a delegate to the convention for framing the State Constitution in 1787; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 21, 1792, when his seat was contested by James Jackson, and declared vacant by the House; a new election was held, but he refused to be a candidate, and John Milledge was elected; entered the military service of the United States again as major-general and general-in-chief of the army after the reverses of General St. Clair; gained a decisive victory at the battle of the Miami, and concluded a treaty, August 3, 1795, with the hostile tribes north-west of the Ohio; died at Presque Isle December 15, 1796; his remains were removed to his native county of Chester, Pennsylvania, in 1809. His "Life" was published by N. H. Moore and by John Armstrong. H. C. Dawson published "The Assault on Stony Point;" and his "Orderly-Book" at Ticonderoga was published by Munsell at Albany in 1859.

Wayne, Isaac, was born in Warren County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania to the Eighteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Wayne, James Moore, was born at Savannah, Georgia, in 1790; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1808; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice at Savannah; was for two years a member of the State House of Representatives; was mayor of Savannah in 1823; was a judge of the Superior Court 1824-1829; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat on a general ticket; was re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, receiving 32,947 votes against 20,648 votes for Owen, anti-Jackson, serving from December 7, 1829, to January 13, 1835, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Jackson an associate justice of the United-States Supreme Court; devoted himself especially to admiralty jurisprudence, and his opinions on points connected with that subject are cited as high authority; died at Washington City July 5, 1867.

Weakley, Robert, was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Eleventh Congress, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811.

Webster, Daniel, was born at Salisbury, New Hampshire, January 18, 1782; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1801; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1805; commenced practice at Salisbury, New Hampshire, and Portsmouth, in 1807; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirteenth Congress as a Peace advocate, and was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; removed to Boston in 1816; was a presidential elector in 1820; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1821; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eighteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving in seven wards of Boston 1,986 votes against one vote for Putnam, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; was elected a United-States senator from Massachusetts, and was re-elected, serving from December 3, 1827, to February 22, 1841, when he resigned; was appointed secretary of state by Presidents Harrison and Tyler, serving from March 5, 1841, to May 9, 1843; was again elected a senator, serving from December 1, 1845, to July 22, 1850, when he resigned, having been appointed secretary of state by President Fillmore, and serving until his death at Marshfield, Massachusetts, October 24, 1852. He published his collected works in six volumes in 1851. Biographical sketches and memoirs of him were published by Samuel L. Knapp, Charles W. March, Charles Lanman, George T. Curtis, Peter Harvey, and others.

Webster, Edwin H., was born in Hartford County, Maryland, March 31, 1829; received a classical education, which was finished at Dickinson College; was a member of the State Senate 1855-1859; was a presidential elector on the Fillmore and Donelson ticket in 1856; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,098 votes against 8,443 votes for McHenry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress, receiving 7,551 votes against 126 votes scattering; and was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 7,736 votes against no opposition, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1865; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,541 votes against 4,162 votes for Kimmell, Democrat, but resigned before taking his seat, having been appointed by President Johnson collector of customs at the port of Baltimore in July, 1865.

Webster, Taylor, was born in Pennsylvania; removed to Ohio, and resided at Hamilton; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving 1,000 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1839.

Weeks, John W., was born in Greenland, New Hampshire, in 1799; received a public-school education; was apprenticed to the house-carpenter's trade, and worked at it until the war of 1812, when he recruited a company for the Eleventh United-States Infantry, of which he was captain; distinguishing himself at the battle of Chippewa, he was promoted to the rank of major; he was one of the commission appointed to establish the line between Maine and New Hampshire; was treasurer of Coos County 1818-1822, and high sheriff of the same 1819-1824; was State senator in 1827 and 1828; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-first Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 7, 1829, until March 2, 1833; died at Lancaster, New Hampshire, in 1853.

Weeks, Joseph, was born in Massachusetts; removed to New Hampshire; resided at Richmond; was judge of the Cheshire-county Court 1827-1829; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1839.

Weems, John C., was born in Calvert County, Maryland; resided at Waterloo; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Nineteenth Congress (in place of Dr. Joseph Kent, resigned); was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from February 7, 1826, to March 3, 1829.

Weightman, Richard Hanson, was born in Maryland; received a military education at West Point 1835-1837, but was expelled for cutting the face of a cadet-comrade in a personal encounter; served in the Mexican war as captain in the Missouri Light-Artillery Volunteers, distinguishing himself at the battle of Sacramento; was an additional paymaster in the army May 10, 1848-August 1, 1849; removed to New Mexico, and was chosen provisionally a senator when that Territory unsuccessfully applied for admission as a State in 1850; killed a Santa-Fé trader named Xaubry with the same knife with which he wounded the cadet; was elected a delegate from New-Mexico Territory in the Thirty-second Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was colonel of a regiment of the Missouri State Guard in 1861.

Welch, Adonija S., was born at East Hampton, Connecticut, in 1821; removed to Michigan in 1839; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Michigan in 1846; studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but preferred teaching; visited California in 1849; on his return, was principal of the Normal School of Michigan for four years; removed to Florida in 1865, and settled at Jacksonville; was elected a United-States senator from Florida as a Republican from July 2, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Welch, Frank, was born in Massachusetts; removed to Nebraska; was grand master of Freemasons; was elected a representative from Nevada to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 30,900 votes against 18,206 votes for Joseph Holman, Democrat, and 3,580 for Marvin Warren, Greenbacker, serving from October 15, 1877, to his death at Norfolk, Nebraska, September 4, 1878.

Welch, John, was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, October 28, 1805; received a classical education, which was finished at Franklin College; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1833, and commenced practice at Athens, Ohio; was a member of the State Senate in 1846 and 1847; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,261 votes against 4,037 votes for Daniels, Democrat, and 285 votes for Simpson, Free-Soiler, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

Welch, William W., was born at Norfolk, Connecticut, December 10, 1818; received a public-school education; studied medicine; graduated from the medical department of Yale College in 1838, and became a practising physician at Norfolk; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and twice a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 9,701 votes against 7,702 votes for Noble, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Welker, Martin, was born in Knox County, Ohio, April 25, 1819; was self-educated; studied and practised law; was clerk of the Court of Common Pleas for Holmes County from 1846 to 1851; was judge of the Sixth Judicial District from 1852 to 1857; removed in 1857 to Wooster; was elected lieutenant-governor of Ohio in 1857, declining a renomination; served three months in the Union army as a staff-officer, and was afterwards appointed by the governor of Ohio judge-advocate-general, with the rank of colonel; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,841 votes against 10,312 votes for George Bliss, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,494 votes against 11,757 votes for Young, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,575 votes against 13,113 votes for Critchfield, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871.

Wellborn, M. J., was born in Georgia; resided at Columbus; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,625 votes against 6,538 votes for Calhoun, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Weller, John B., was born in Ohio; resided at Hamilton; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, receiving 5,563 votes against 5,398 votes for Campbell, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845; was a commissioner to Mexico under the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo; removed to California; was elected a United-States senator from California, serving from March 17, 1852, to March 3, 1857; was governor of the State of California 1858-1860; was minister to Mexico November 7, 1860-May 14, 1861; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864; died at New Orleans August 7, 1875.

Wells, Alfred, was born at Dagsborough, Delaware, May 27, 1814; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Ithaca, New York; was deputy-clerk, district-attorney, and judge of Tompkins County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,131 votes against 9,788 votes for Arnot, Democrat, and 670 votes for Lawrence, American, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; died at Ithaca, New York, in 1867.

Wells, Daniel, jun., was born in Maine; received a public-school education; removed to Wisconsin, and located at Milwaukee in 1836; became largely engaged in banking and lumbering; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,342 votes against 5,731 votes for Durham, Free-Soiler, and 3,870 votes for a Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,458 votes against 7,026 votes for Spooner, Republican, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857; was a judge of probate; died at Milwaukee in 1858.

Wells, Erastus, was born in Jefferson County, New York, December 2, 1823; received a public-school education; at the age of nineteen, being compelled to rely on his own exertions, he went to St. Louis; he established the first omnibus-line in that city, and subsequently inaugurated the first street-railroad company; for fifteen years he was a member of the city council; he was president of the Missouri Railroad Company, and a director in several incorporated companies; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,734 votes against 9,553 votes for Pike, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 7,629 votes against 5,444 votes for C. P. Johnson, Brown Republican, and 1,934 votes for I. D. Smith, McClurg Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 8,268 votes against 5,867 votes for M. A. Bryton, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,517 votes against 4,120 votes for D. D. Fisher, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1877.

Wells, Guilford Wiley, was born in Livingston County, New York, February 18, 1840; was educated at Genesee Wesleyan Seminary and Genesee College, Lima, New York; graduated in law at Columbia College, Washington, District of Columbia, and practised; served during the war in the Union army from May, 1861, to April, 1865, serving as second lieutenant, first lieutenant, captain, brevet major, and lieutenant-colonel; was appointed United-States attorney for the Northern District of Mississippi in June, 1870; held that office for four years, and was re-appointed in June, 1874; and was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Forty-fourth Congress as an Administration Republican, receiving 10,000 votes against 12,000 votes for A. R. Howe, an Ames Republican, serving from December 6, 1877, to March 3, 1877.

Wells, John, was born at New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at New-York City; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,428 votes against 7,460 votes for Marvin, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; died at the city of New York.

Wells, John S., was born at Durham, New Hampshire, in 1804; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Exeter; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and speaker of the House; filled several local positions; was appointed a United-States senator from New Hampshire (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Moses Norris), serving from January 22, 1855, to March 3, 1855; died at Exeter, New Hampshire, in 1860.

Wells, T. M., claimed to have been elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican; a majority of the Committee on Elections reported that he was entitled to a seat, but such was the opposition that no vote was taken on the resolution, although, on the last day of the session, he was voted $2,000 for compensation, mileage, and expenses.

Wells, William H., was born in Delaware; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware (in place of Joshua Clayton, deceased), serving from February 4, 1799, to May 6, 1804, when he resigned; was again elected a senator (in place of James A. Bayard, resigned), serving from June 10, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died March 11, 1829.

Wendover, Peter H., was born at New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1804; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1821; died at New York September 20, 1834.

Wentworth, John (grandson of John Wentworth, jun.), was born at Sandwich, New Hampshire, March 5, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1836; removed to Chicago; was connected with "The Chicago Democrat" as editor and proprietor for twenty-five years; studied law, graduating from the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1841; was a member of the Board of Education in 1837; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,552 votes against 5,931 votes for Spring, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, and Thirty-first Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851; was again elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 7,538 votes against 6,437 votes for Aldrich, Whig, and 2,149 votes for Collins, Free-Soiler, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was mayor of Chicago in 1857 and 1860; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1861; was a leading Freemason; was again elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Republican, receiving 18,557 votes against 14,277 votes for McCormick, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; received the degree of LL.D. from Dartmouth College in 1867, and subsequently donated $10,000 to the college.

Wentworth, John, jun. (grandfather of John Wentworth), was born at Somersworth, New Hampshire, July 17, 1745; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1768; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Dover, New Hampshire; was appointed by his relative, Governor John Wentworth, register of probate for Stratford County, and held the office until his death; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1776-1780; was a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress, serving 1778-1779; was a member of the State Council 1780-1784; was a member of the State Senate 1784-1787; died at Dover, New Hampshire, from consumption, growing out of an attack of small-pox, January 10, 1787.

Wentworth, Joshua, was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1742; was colonel of the First New-Hampshire Regiment in 1776; was elected several times a member of the State House of Representatives, and four years State senator; was appointed a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress in 1779, but did not attend; died at Portsmouth October 19, 1809.

Wentworth, Tappan, was born at Dover, New Hampshire, September 24, 1802; received a public-school education; studied law with William Burleigh of South Berwick, Maine; was admitted to the bar in 1826, and practised at Great Falls, New Hampshire; removed to Lowell in 1833, and long held a prominent position at the Middlesex bar; was elected to the common council of Lowell 1836-1841; was elected to the State House of Representatives as a Whig, and afterwards as a Republican, in 1851, 1859, 1863, and 1864, and to the State Senate in 1848, 1849, 1865, and 1866; was the Whig candidate for Congress in the Lowell District in 1852, receiving 5,084 votes against 3,317 votes for B. F. Butler, and enough others to prevent the necessary majority; and was elected on the second trial, when only a plurality was necessary, receiving 4,411 votes against 4,319 votes for Henry Wilson, Free-Soiler, and 824 scattering; served in the House of Representatives of the United States from March 4, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was the Whig candidate for re-election in 1854, and was defeated, receiving 2,614 votes against 5,232 votes for C. L. Knapp, Know-Nothing, and 470 scattering; died at Boston of Bright's disease of the kidneys June 12, 1875.

West, A. W., of Holmes County, Mississippi, presented to the House of Representatives on the 4th of June, 1866, credentials signed by Governor Humphreys, declaring that he had been elected to represent the Fourth District of Mississippi in the Thirty-sixth Congress.

West, Benjamin, was born in Plymouth County, Massachusetts, April 8, 1746; received a classical education; was one year at Princeton College, and graduated at Harvard College in 1768; taught school for two years; studied divinity with his brother at Needham; began to preach at Wrentham in January, 1771, but soon abandoned theology, and commenced the study of law at Lancaster; was admitted to the bar in 1773, and commenced practice at Charlestown, New Hampshire; was chosen a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress, a delegate to the convention which framed the Federal Constitution, and a representative from New Hampshire to the First Congress, but he resolutely declined these and other offices to which he was elected; died at his rural home in Charlestown, New Hampshire, July 27, 1817.

West, J. Rodman, was born at New Orleans September 19, 1822; entered the University of Pennsylvania in 1836, but withdrew before graduating; served in the war against Mexico with the rank of captain; emigrated to California in 1849, and engaged in commercial pursuits; at the outbreak of the war of the Rebellion was proprietor of "The San-Francisco Prices Current;" entered the Union army as lieutenant-colonel of the First California Infantry, and after arduous services in New Mexico, and subsequently in Arkansas and the South-West, attained the rank of brevet major-general; settled temporarily in Texas, and then removed to New Orleans, where, after serving as chief deputy United-States marshal, and auditor of customs, he was appointed administrator of improvements; was elected a United-States senator from Louisiana as a Republican (to succeed John S. Harris, Republican), serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Westbrook, John, was born in Pennsylvania; resided at Dingman's Ferry; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,499 votes against 1,581 votes for Weber, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Westbrook, Theodor R., was born in New York; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Kingston, Ulster County; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,092 votes against 7,902 votes for Smith, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855.

Westcott, James D., was born at Alexandria, Virginia, May, 1802; removed with his father to New Jersey; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1824, and commenced practice in New Jersey; was a clerk in the Consular Bureau of the Department of State at Washington; was appointed by President Jackson secretary of the Territory of Florida 1830-1834; was United-States attorney for the Middle District of Florida 1834-1836; was a member of the Territorial House of Representatives; was a delegate to the convention for framing a State Constitution in 1838 and 1839; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Florida as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was an editorial contributor to "The New-York Herald."

Westerlo, Rensselaer (son-in-law of Stephen Van Rensselaer), was born at Albany, New York, in 1773; received a classical education, graduating at Columbia College in 1793; studied law; was admitted to the bar, but did not practise much beyond the management of the affairs of his father-in-law the patroon; was elected a representative from New York in the Fifteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was an earnest supporter of the Whig party after its formation; died at Albany, New York, April 18, 1851.

Wethered, John, was born in Maryland; resided at Franklin; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845.

Whaley, Kellian V., was born in Onondaga County, New York, May 6, 1821; removed with his father to Ohio; received a public-school education; removed in 1842 to West Virginia, and engaged in lumbering; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; served in the Union army; was in command at the battle of Guyandotte in November, 1861; was captured, but made his escape; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 2,748 votes against 2,184 votes for Frost; and was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving little opposition, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Baltimore in 1864; was appointed collector of customs at Brazos de Santiago, Texas, in 1868.

Whallon, Reuben, was born in New Jersey in 1777; removed to Split Rock, Essex County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-third Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; died at Split Rock, New York, April 15, 1843.

Wharton, Jesse, was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; was appointed a United-States senator from Tennessee (in place of George W. Campbell, resigned), serving from April 9, 1814, to December 4, 1815, when the senator elected by the legislature took his seat; died at Nashville, Tennessee, July 23, 1833.

Wheaton, Horace, was born in New York; resided at Pompey; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,558 votes against 6,024 votes for Granger, Whig, and 253 votes for Joslyn, Abolitionist; and was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,961 votes against 6,495 votes for Noxon, Whig, and 696 votes for Sweet, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847.

Wheaton, Laban, was born at Marshfield, Massachusetts, in 1754; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1774; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Norton, Massachusetts; he had also studied theology, but never preached; was a judge of the Bristol-county courts; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1817; died at Norton, Massachusetts, March 23, 1846.

Wheeler, Ezra, was born in Chenango County, New York, in 1820; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Berlin, Wisconsin; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1852; was county-judge 1854-1862; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,064 votes against 10,064 votes for Browne, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865.

Wheeler, Grattan H., was born in New York; resided at Wheeler, Steuben County; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822, 1824, and 1826, and of the State Senate 1828-1831; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; died at Wheeler, New York, in 1852.

Wheeler, John, was born at Darby, Connecticut, in 1823; received a public-school education; removed to New-York City in 1853, and engaged in mercantile pursuits; became a hotel-keeper; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,354 votes against 5,243 votes for Varnum, Whig, and 83 votes for Dodson, Whig; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 5,101 votes against 2,533 votes for Murphy, Democrat, and 2,256 votes for Marshall, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857.

Wheeler, William A., was born at Malone, New York, June 30, 1819; received an academic education, and was for a year or more a student in the University of Vermont in the class of 1842; studied law with Asa Hascall; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Malone; was district-attorney of Franklin County, New York, for several years; was a member of the New-York House of Assembly in 1850 and 1851; was a member of the New-York Senate, and president pro tempore of same, in 1858 and 1859; was president of the New-York Constitutional Convention in 1867-1868; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,571 votes against 7,427 votes for Hand, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,262 votes against 6,284 votes for Wallace, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,020 votes against 5,699 votes for G. Mott, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,725 votes against 6,565 votes for W. P. Cantwell, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 12,323 votes against 5,553 votes for Sawyer, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877; was elected Vice-President of the United States on the Hayes ticket in 1876, receiving 185 electoral votes against 184 electoral votes for Thomas A. Hendricks, serving from March 4, 1877. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Whipple, Thomas, jun., was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts, in 1788; received an academical education; studied medicine; was admitted to practice, and located at Wentworth, New Hampshire; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Seventeenth Congress; was re-elected to the Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1829; died at Wentworth, New Hampshire, January 23, 1835.

Whipple, William, was born at Kittery, Massachusetts (afterwards Maine), January 14, 1730; was bred a sailor, and had command of a vessel before he was twenty-one years of age, engaging in the West-India, European, and African trade; he brought large numbers of negro slaves to this country, but, when fighting for his own independence, emancipated those belonging to him, and even refused to assist General Washington in recovering Ona Stains, "the waiting-woman" of Mrs. Washington, who had left her mistress, and taken refuge in New Hampshire; during the Seven Years' War he retired from seafaring life, and engaged in trade at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where he acquired a competency before the breaking-out of the Revolution; was elected a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1775, taking his seat in May; re-elected in 1776, taking his seat in February, and signing the Declaration of Independence in July; and re-elected in 1778, but did not take his seat until October, as he had led his brigade into Rhode Island for the defence of that State; he declined a re-election to Congress, but was a member of the State Assembly 1780-1784; resigned his military commission June 20, 1782; was State superintendent of finances 1782-1784; was appointed judge of the State Supreme Court in 1782, and occupied the position until he was obliged to leave the court in term-time; died of disease of the heart November 28, 1785.

Whitcomb, James, was born at Stockbridge, Vermont, December 1, 1791; received a classical education, graduating at Transylvania University; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bloomington, Indiana, in 1824; was appointed prosecuting-attorney of Monroe County in 1826; was a member of the State Senate 1830-1836; was appointed by President Jackson commissioner of the General Land Office, serving from October 31, 1836, to July 3, 1841; returned to Indiana, and practised at Terre Haute; was governor of the State of Indiana 1843-1848; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana as a Democrat, defeating Caleb B. Smith, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to October 4, 1852, when he died at the city of New York.

White, Addison, was born in Kentucky; resided at Richmond; was elected a representative from Kentucky to the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,846 votes against 4,130 votes for Garland, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853.

White, Albert S., was born at Blooming Grove, New York, October 24, 1803; received a classical education, graduating at Union College in 1822; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1825, and commenced practice at Lafayette, Indiana; was for five years clerk of the Indiana House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 10,737 votes against 3,369 votes for N. Jackson, Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was president of several railroads; was elected a United-States senator from Indiana, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1845; declined a re-election; was again elected a representative in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,310 votes against 11,489 votes for Wilson, Democrat, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was a commissioner to adjust claims against the Sioux Indians; was appointed by President Lincoln in 1864 judge of the United-States Court for the district of Indiana; died at Stockwell, Indiana, September 4, 1864.

White, Alexander, was born in Rappahannock County, Virginia, in 1738; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress 1786-1788; was elected a representative from Virginia in the First Congress; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; died at Woodville, Virginia, in September, 1804.

White, Alexander, was born October 18, 1816, in Franklin, Tennessee; removed to Alabama when five years of age; was educated at Courtland and Somerville Academies, and at the University of Tennessee at Nashville, but volunteered for the Creek and Seminole war in 1836, and consequently did not graduate; studied law with his father, Hon. John White, one of the Circuit and Supreme Court judges of Alabama, and practised upward of twenty-five years; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-second Congress as a Union Whig, receiving 5,744 votes against 5,371 votes for Samuel F. Rice, State-rights Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was a member of the Alabama State Convention called by Governor Parsons in 1865 to frame a new constitution; was a member of the General Assembly of Alabama in 1872; was again elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving about 90,000 votes as a representative at large, defeating Alpheus Baker; was defeated as a Republican candidate for representative at large in the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 90,938 votes against 106,023 votes for B. R. Lewis, Democrat; was appointed in 1875 an associate justice of the United-States Court for the Territory of Utah.

White, Allison, was born in Pennsylvania December 21, 1816; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,980 votes against 9,450 votes for Irwin, Republican, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,349 votes against 9,238 votes for James T. Hale, Union Republican.

White, Bartow W., was born in Westchester County, New York; removed to Fishkill; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

White, Benjamin, was born in Maine; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm, and engaged through life in agricultural pursuits at Montville; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841 and 1842; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1844, to March 3, 1845.

White, Campbell P., was born at New York; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-first Congress as a Jackson Democrat, receiving a majority of 377 votes over Lemuel Sawyer; was re-elected to the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1835; was appointed quartermaster-general of the New-York State militia January 24, 1831; died at New York February 12, 1859.

White, Chilton A., was born at Georgetown, Ohio, February, 1826; received a public-school education; served as a private in the Mexican war; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced practice at Georgetown, Ohio; was pros-cutting-attorney for Brown County in 1852 and 1853; was a member of the State Senate in 1850 and 1860; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,046 votes against 8,823 votes for Murphy, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,087 votes against 9,320 votes for Briggs, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 10,174 votes against 10,774 votes for R. W. Clark, Republican.

White, David, was born in 1785; was a lawyer; practised at New Castle, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; died in Franklin County, Kentucky, February 17, 1835.

White, Edward Douglas, was born at Nashville, Tennessee; removed with his father to Attakapas Parish, Louisiana; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Donaldsonville; was appointed judge at New Orleans, and removed there; was elected a representative from Louisiana in the Twenty-first Congress as a Whig, defeating Edward Livingston, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to November 15, 1834, when he resigned, having been elected governor; he was on the steamer "Lioness" when she was set on fire by an explosion of gunpowder May 19, 1833, and was badly burned, besides contracting a pulmonary disease from which he never recovered; was governor of the State of Louisiana 1834-1838; removed to Thibodauxville; was again elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress by 919 majority; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 3,802 votes against 1,757 votes for Leonard, Van Buren Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; died at New Orleans April 8, 1847.

White, Francis, was born in Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815.

White, Harry, was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania, January 12, 1834; received a collegiate education, graduating in 1854; studied law with Hon. Thomas White; was admitted to the bar in June, 1855; commenced practice at Indiana, Pennsylvania, and continued until the commencement of hostilities in 1861; entered the Union army as major of the Sixty-seventh Pennsylvania Infantry; was elected, while serving in the army, a State senator, serving in the winter of 1862-1863; returned to his command, and at the battle of Winchester, in June, 1863, when Lee was on his Gettysburg campaign, was captured; the fall election of 1863 made a tie in the State Senate without his vote, and active efforts were made to secure his exchange, but without success, the Confederate Government refusing, and sent him to solitary confinement at Salisbury, North Carolina; before he left Libbey Prison, however, he sent his resignation as State senator clandestinely to Pennsylvania, concealed in a Testament, by a surgeon; he remained in prison sixteen months, and made his escape, reaching the Federal lines near Atlanta; in October, 1864, he returned to his command, and served until the end of the war, having meanwhile been promoted to the colonelcy of his regiment, and brevetted brigadier-general; was re-elected to the State Senate in the fall of 1865 for three years; was re-elected in 1868 for three years, and in 1871 for three years, serving as speaker of the Senate at the close of the term of 1871; was nominated in 1872 as congressman at large, and delegate at large to the Constitutional Convention, but declined the congressional nomination, but was elected to that convention; practised his profession; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,109 votes against 11,627 votes for George A. Jenks, Democrat; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,136 votes against 13,397 votes for George A. Jenks, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

White, Hugh, was born in New York in 1799; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; was engaged for many years in business at Cohoes, New York; was the founder of Whitestown, Oneida County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Whig, receiving 8,423 votes against 8,124 votes for Ellis, Democrat, and 252 votes for Smith; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 8,133 votes against 4,050 votes for Campbell, Democrat, and 3,302 votes for Cowen, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; died near Troy, New York, October 6, 1870.

White, Hugh Lawson, was born in Iredell County, North Carolina, October 30, 1773; went to Tennessee with his father, who settled in Knox County in 1786; received a classical education from Rev. S. Carrick, Judge Roane, and Dr. Patterson of Philadelphia; studied law under James Hopkins at Lancaster, Pennsylvania; was admitted to the bar in 1795, and commenced practice at Knoxville, Tennessee, in 1796; was judge of the Supreme Court of Tennessee 1801-1807; was elected to the State Senate of Tennessee in 1807 and in 1817; was appointed United-States district-attorney in 1808; was re-elected judge of the Supreme Court 1809-1815; was chosen president of the State Bank of Tennessee 1815; was appointed by President Monroe on the commission to adjust the claims of American citizens against Spain 1820-1824; was elected United-States senator (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Andrew Jackson in 1825), and was re-elected in 1827, serving from December 12, 1825, until March 3, 1833; was chosen president of the Senate pro tempore in 1832; received the electoral votes of Tennessee and Georgia for President of the United States in 1836; was again elected to the Senate in 1836 for six years, and took his seat March 4, 1837, but resigned January 13, 1840, rather than obey the instructions of the legislature of Tennessee; died at Knoxville, Tennessee, April 10, 1840.

White, James, was born in North Carolina; removed to Tennessee; was elected a delegate from the territory south of the Ohio River in the Third Congress, serving from November 18, 1794, to March 3, 1795; was a delegate to the convention which framed the State Constitution of Tennessee.

White, John (uncle of John D. White), was born in 1835; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Richmond, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig without opposition; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, and Twenty-eighth Congresses without opposition, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1845; was speaker of the House during the Twenty-seventh Congress; was judge of the Nineteenth Judicial District of Kentucky; committed suicide at Richmond, Kentucky, September 22, 1845.

White, John D. (nephew of John White), was born at Manchester, Kentucky, in 1849; graduated at Kentucky University from the College of Arts, and then went to the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he graduated in law; was nominated assistant presidential elector on the Grant and Wilson ticket in 1872; travelled through the Pacific States and the Territories, and was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,741 votes against 8,145 votes for Cockrill, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

White, Joseph L., was born at Cherry Valley, New York; received a public-school education; studied law at Utica; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Madison, Indiana; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; declined being a candidate for re-election, and removed to New York, where he practised his profession; he subsequently became interested in a patent for the manufacture of India rubber; and, while on a business visit to Indiana, he was shot by a drunken man, and died from the wound in January, 1861.

White, Joseph M., was born in Franklin County, Kentucky; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Pensacola, Florida; was elected a delegate from Florida Territory in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, defeating Mr. Gadsden; was re-elected to the Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, and Twenty-fourth Congresses, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1837; was defeated as a candidate for the Twenty-fifth Congress by Charles Downing; died at St. Louis, Missouri, October 19, 1839.

White, Joseph W., was born at Cambridge, Ohio, October 2, 1822; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1844, and commenced practice at Cambridge; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 10,087 votes against 9,320 votes for Briggs, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,119 votes against 12,377 votes for J. A. Bingham, Republican.

White, Leonard, was born at Haverhill, Massachusetts, 1767; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1787; was for many years a member of the State House of Representatives, town-clerk, and treasurer of Haverhill; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twelfth Congress, and served from November 4, 1811, until March 3, 1813; was appointed cashier of the newly incorporated Merrimack Bank, and held the position for a quarter of a century; died at Haverhill, Massachusetts, of paralysis, October 10, 1849.

White, M. D., was born in Clark County, Ohio, September 8, 1827; removed with his parents to Tippecanoe County, Indiana, in 1829; was raised on a farm, and, on arriving at the age of twenty-one years, removed to Crawfordsville; was educated in common schools and at Wabash College; studied law, and commenced practice; was elected prosecuting-attorney in 1854, and served two years; was elected State senator in 1860, and served four years; and was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 16,990 votes against 15,276 votes for George McWilliams, Democrat, and 3,349 votes for Leroy Templeton, Independent, serving from October 15, 1877.

White, Phillips, was born in New Hampshire; was a delegate from New Hampshire to the Continental Congress in 1782 and 1783.

White, Phineas, was born in Hampshire County, Massachusetts, in 1770; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Pomfret, Vermont; was register of probate for Windsor County 1800-1809; was county-attorney in 1813; was for eight years a member of the State Senate or House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; died at Putney, Vermont, in 1847.

White, Samuel, was born at Wilmington, Delaware, in 1762; was elected a United-States senator from Delaware as a Federalist, serving from December 7, 1801, to November 4, 1809, when he died at Wilmington.

Whitehead, Thomas, was born at Clifton,

Nelson County, Virginia, December 27, 1825; attended a grammar-school until he was thirteen years of age, and then went into mercantile business; studied law; was admitted to the bar in March, 1849, and practised at Amherst; was also a farmer, and the editor of an agricultural newspaper; was appointed master-commissioner in chancery, and acted until 1856; was elected attorney for the Commonwealth for Amherst County in 1866, removed by order of the military governor in 1868, re-elected in 1869, and resigned in November, 1873; was elected to the State Senate of Virginia in March, 1865, but never qualified; was commissioned first lieutenant of cavalry by Governor Letcher in May, 1861, elected captain of cavalry in 1862, and promoted to major of the Second Virginia Cavalry in 1865; was nominated by a convention of the Conservative party of Virginia, and elected a representative from Virginia in the Forty-third Congress, receiving 11,401 votes against 10,779 votes for J. F. Johnson, Independent Conservative, indorsed by Republicans, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Whitehill, James, was born in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; was judge of the Lancaster-county Court; was a brigadier-general of militia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to September 1, 1814, when he resigned; died at Strasburg, Pennsylvania, March 5, 1822.

Whitehill, John, was born in Pennsylvania in 1721; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; died in 1815.

Whitehill, Robert, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1813; died soon after the expiration of his congressional term.

Whitehouse, John O., was born at Rochester, New Hampshire, July 19, 1817; received a public-school education; left his New-England farm-home in 1835; went to the State of New York, and resided at Brooklyn and Poughkeepsie; is a merchant and manufacturer; never held a public office until elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Liberal, receiving 14,860 votes against 13,932 votes for J. H. Ketcham, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Liberal Democrat, receiving 16,181 votes against 11,340 votes for Charles A. Beal, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Whiteley, Richard Henry, was born in Ireland December 22, 1830, and immigrated to Georgia in 1836; was self-educated, and was engaged in the manufacturing business in Georgia from early boyhood; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1860; was opposed to the secession of the State of Georgia from the Union in 1861; entered the Confederate army in 1861, and surrendered in 1865; was elected as a Republican to the State Constitutional Convention of Georgia in 1867; was the Republican candidate for Congress in the Second District of Georgia in 1868; was appointed solicitor-general of the South-western Circuit in the fall of 1868; was elected in February, 1870, by the General Assembly, United-States senator, but was not admitted to a seat; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, and took his seat after it had been unsuccessfully contested by Nelson Tift, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 13,441 votes against 12,987 votes for N. Tift, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 9,616 votes against 9,530 votes for G. J. Wright, Democrat, serving from February 9, 1871, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,789 votes against 12,108 votes for W. E. Smith, Democrat; was again defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,015 votes against 13,627 votes for W. E. Smith, Democrat.

Whiteley, William G., was born at Newark, Delaware; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1838; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Castle; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,111 votes against 6,360 votes for Cullen, American; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,868 votes against 7,452 votes for Morris, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Whiteside, Jenkins, was elected a United-States senator from Tennessee (in place of Daniel Smith, resigned), serving from May 26, 1809, to September 1, 1811, when he resigned.

Whiteside, John, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819.

Whitfield, J. W., was born in Tennessee; removed to Kansas, and located at Tecumseh; was elected a delegate from Kansas Territory to the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,258 votes against 569 votes for all others; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, defeating Andrew H. Reeder, serving from December 20, 1854, to March 3, 1857.

Whiting, Richard H., was born at West Hartford, Connecticut, January 17, 1826; received a common-school education; entered the Union army as paymaster of volunteers in 1862, and resigned in 1866; was appointed assessor of internal revenue for the Fifth District of Illinois in February, 1870, and served until the office of assessor was abolished, May 20, 1873; was appointed collector of internal revenue from May 20, 1873, for that district, and served until March 4, 1875; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,755 votes against 9,495 votes for Leonard F. Ross, Democrat and Liberal, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Whiting, William, was born at Concord, Massachusetts, March 3, 1813; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1833; studied law with Harrison Loring and at the Cambridge Law School; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Boston, paying especial attention to patent cases; was appointed by President Lincoln, in the fall of 1862, solicitor of the War Department, and filled the position until he resigned in April, 1865; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, but died before taking his seat, at Boston Highlands, of an affection of the heart, June 29, 1873. He published a large number of editions of "The War Powers of the Government," and several pamphlets on historical and legal subjects.

Whitman, Ezekiel, was born at East Bridgewater, Massachusetts, March 11, 1776; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1795; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Portland (then in Massachusetts, afterwards in Maine); was elected a representative from the Maine District of Massachusetts in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; was a member of the Executive Council in 1815 and 1816; was a delegate to the Convention that framed the State Constitution of Maine; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, and re-elected to the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1821; was elected a representative from Maine in the Seventeenth Congress, defeating General Irish, serving from December 3, 1821, to June 1, 1822, when he resigned; was defeated as the Whig candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,623 votes against 5,709 votes for Albert Smith, Democrat; was a judge of the Superior Court; was chief justice of Maine December 10, 1841–October 23, 1848; returned to East Bridgewater, Massachusetts, August 1, 1866.

Whitman, Lemuel, was born in Connecticut in 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1800; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; died at Farmington, Connecticut, November 18, 1841.

Whitmore, George W., was born in McMinn County, Tennessee, August 26, 1824; received a common-school education; was raised on a farm; removed to Texas in December, 1848; studied and practised law; was a member of the House of Representatives in Texas in 1852 and 1853 and 1858; espoused the Union cause; was imprisoned by the rebels on account of his political sentiments, and was kept in prison until a board of surgeons pronounced his release necessary; was appointed by Governor Hamilton district-attorney of the Ninth Judicial District in 1866; was appointed register in bankruptcy in 1867; and was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,456 votes against 7,406 votes for Armstrong, Democrat, and 381 votes for Boughton, serving from March 31, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Whitney, Thomas R., was born at New York in 1804; devoted much of his life to literary pursuits; was the editor of "The New-York Sunday News;" was a member of the State Senate 1854–1855; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 3,321 votes against 2,765 votes for Andrews, Whig, and 2,718 votes for Hamilton, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; died at New York April 12, 1858. He published "The Ambuscade, a Poem," and "The American Policy Vindicated."

Whittemore, Benjamin F., was born at Malden, Massachusetts, in 1824; received an academical education; travelled in Europe, South America, and California; studied theology, and became a minister in the Methodist-Episcopal Church; served in the Union army as chaplain; located in South Carolina after the war; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention of 1867; was the founder and editor of "The New Era," published at Darlington; was a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fortieth Congress; and was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, serving from July 18, 1868, to February 23, 1870, when he resigned; was subsequently re-elected, but refused admission June 21, 1870.

Whittemore, Elisha, was born in Rockingham County, New Hampshire; received a public-school education; removed to New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

Whitthorne, Washington Curran, was born in Marshall County, Tennessee, April 19, 1825; graduated at the East-Tennessee University, Knoxville, Tennessee, in 1843; studied law, and has since practised; was a member of the State Senate of Tennessee in 1855, 1856, 1857, and 1858; was elected in 1859 to the lower House of the General Assembly of Tennessee, and was made presiding officer thereof; was upon the Breckinridge electoral ticket for the State at large in 1860; was assistant adjutant-general in the provisional army of Tennessee in 1861, and was afterward adjutant-general of the State, which position he held under Governor Harris until the close of the civil war; his disabilities were removed by act of Congress, approved July, 1870, and he was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,057 votes against 2,816 votes for T. J. Cyert, Republican, and 1,429 votes for J. B. Frierson, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 9,508 votes against 6,849 votes for Gibbs, Republican, and 903 votes for Morris; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,672 votes against 1,773 votes for Gibbs, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,327 votes against 3,767 votes for Cliff, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871.

Whittlesey, Elisha, was born at Washington, Connecticut, October 19, 1783; was reared on a farm; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Canfield, in the "Western Reserve" of Ohio, in 1806; was for sixteen years prosecuting-attorney; served in the war of 1812 as aide-de-camp to General E. Wadsworth; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1820 and 1821; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, and Twenty-fifth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to July 9, 1838, when he resigned; was appointed by President Harrison sixth auditor of the treasury, serving from March 17, 1841, to December 10, 1843; was appointed by President Taylor first auditor of the treasury, serving from May 31, 1849, until he was removed by President Buchanan March 26, 1857; he was re-appointed by President Lincoln April 10, 1861, and held the office until he died at Washington City January 7, 1863.

Whittlesey, Frederick, was born at Washington, Connecticut, June 16, 1799; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1818; studied law; was admitted to the bar at Utica, New York, in 1821, and commenced practice at Rochester in 1822; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress, and was re-elected to the Twenty-third Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 3, 1835; was vice-chancellor of the Eighth Judicial District of New York 1839-1847; was appointed a justice of the State Supreme Court June 30, 1847; was chosen professor of law in Genesee College in 1850; died at Rochester, New York, September 19, 1851.

Whittlesey, Thomas T., was born in Connecticut; received a liberal education, graduating at Yale College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Danbury, Connecticut; was elected to fill a vacancy in the Twenty-fourth Congress (caused by the death of Zalmon Wildman) as a Van Buren Democrat, receiving 17,688 votes against 14,540 votes for Reuben Booth, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, serving from April 29, 1836, to March 3, 1839; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 3,701 votes against 4,023 votes for Thomas B. Osborne, Whig.

Whittlesey, William A., was born in Connecticut; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Marietta, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 6,375 votes against 6,037 votes for Cutler, Whig, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Whyte, William Pinkney, was born at Baltimore August 9, 1824; was educated at Baltimore College and by private tutors; served for eighteen months in the banking-house of George Peabody; studied law at the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the Baltimore bar in 1846; was a member of the legislature of Maryland in 1847-1848; was judge-advocate of a court-martial at the Naval Academy in 1848; was a Democratic candidate for Congress in a Whig district in 1851, and beaten by 119 votes; was elected comptroller of the State of Maryland in 1853, and declined a re-election in 1855; was again a Democratic candidate for Congress in 1857 against the Know-Nothings, and contested the seat, but was defeated in the House by a small majority; refused to claim any pay as a contestant, although the report of the Committee on Elections was against the sitting member; was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1868; was appointed to the United-States Senate by the governor of Maryland (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the appointment of Reverdy Johnson as minister to Great Britain); took his seat July 14, 1868, and served until March 4, 1869 (Mr. Johnson's successor had been elected by the legislature in January, 1868); was elected governor of Maryland for four years in November, 1871, and resigned the office to enable the legislature to elect his successor on his having been elected United-States senator from Maryland as a Democrat (to succeed W. T. Hamilton, Democrat); he received the degree of LL.D. in June, 1874, from the University of Maryland; he took his seat in the Senate March 4, 1875, and his term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Wick, William W., was born at Canonsburg, Pennsylvania, February 23, 1796; received an academical education; taught school; studied medicine until 1818; then studied law with Thomas Corwin; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Fayette County, Indiana, in 1820; was assistant clerk of the State House of Representatives in 1820, and assistant secretary of the Senate in 1821; was president-judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit in 1822; was secretary of the State of Indiana in 1825; was State attorney for the Fifth Judicial Circuit 1829-1831; was president-judge 1832-1835; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, defeating Nicholas McCarty, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; was president-judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit; was appointed by President Pierce postmaster at Indianapolis, serving from 1853 to 1857; was at different times adjutant-general, quartermaster-general, and brigadier-general of the State militia; resumed the practice of law; died in Franklin County, Indiana, May 19, 1868.

Wickes, Eliphalet, was born in Suffolk County, New York; resided at Huntingdon; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807.

Wickliffe, Charles A., was born at Bardstown, Kentucky, June 8, 1788; was educated at the Bardstown Grammar School; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Bardstown, Kentucky; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1812 and 1813; served at the battle of the Thames as aide-de-camp to General Caldwell; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814-1823; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Eighteenth Congress as a Henry Clay Democrat; and was successively re-elected to the Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, and Twenty-second Congresses; was again elected to the State House of Representatives, of which he was speaker in 1834; was elected lieutenant-governor of Kentucky in 1836, and, on the death of Governor Clark in 1839, he became governor; was appointed by President Tyler postmaster-general September 13, 1841, and served until March 5, 1845; was sent by President Polk on a secret mission to the republic of Texas in 1845; was a member of the Kentucky Constitutional Convention of 1845; was a delegate to the Peace Congress of 1861; was again elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Union Whig, receiving 8,217 votes against 2,719 votes for Read, Secessionist, serving from July 4, 1861, until March 3, 1863; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864; died at Bardstown, Kentucky, October 31, 1869.

Wickliffe, Robert C., was born at Bardstown, Kentucky; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at New Orleans, Louisiana; was governor of the State of Louisiana 1858-1860; claimed to have been elected a representative from Louisiana in the Thirty-ninth Congress; his credentials were presented December 19, 1865, but he was not admitted to a seat.

Widgery, William, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1753; received a public-school education; followed the seas in early life; was lieutenant of a privateer during the Revolutionary war; removed to Portland (then in the Maine District of Massachusetts); was member of the State House of Representatives in 1789, 1791, 1793, 1794, and 1797; was a member of the Executive Council in 1806 and 1807; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1813-1822; was elected a representative from the Maine District of Massachusetts in the Twelfth Congress as a War Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; when he returned from Washington, after having voted in favor of a war, he was hooted at by an angry crowd as he passed through Newburyport; he was defeated as the Democratic War candidate for the Thirteenth Congress by George Brabury, Federalist; removed to Boston; died there August 7, 1822.

Wigfall, Lewis T., was born in Virginia; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Marshall, Texas; was elected a United-States senator from Texas as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James Pinckney Henderson, which Matthias Ward had temporarily filled by appointment), serving from January 4, 1860, until March 3, 1861; not taking his seat at the called session of the Thirty-second Congress, he was formally expelled July 11, 1861; he participated in the bombardment of Fort Sumter, and was appointed brigadier-general in the Confederate service October 29, 1861; resigned February 20, 1862; he represented Texas in the Provisional Confederate Congress, serving from February 18, 1861, until February 18, 1862; he was senator in the permanent Confederate Congress, serving from February 16, 1862, until February 18, 1866; after the war he went to London, where he resided several years, and then lived in Baltimore, where he was admitted to the bar December 1, 1873, and practised his profession; visiting Texas on a lecturing tour, he died at Galveston February 14, 1874.

Wigginton, Peter Dinwiddie, was born at Springfield, Illinois, September 6, 1839; was educated in private and common schools, and at the University of Wisconsin; studied law with L. M. Strong of Wisconsin; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Merced; was district-attorney of Merced County from March, 1864, to March, 1868; and was elected a representative from California in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,418 votes against 10,320 votes for S. O. Houghton, Republican, and 4,872 votes for J. S. Thompson, Independent, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Wike, Scott, was born in Meadville, Pennsylvania, April 6, 1834; received a classical education, graduating at Lombard University, Galesburg, Illinois, in 1857; studied law with Judge O. C. Skinner; was admitted to the bar in 1858; attended the Cambridge Law School, and commenced practice at Pittsfield, Illinois, in 1859; was a member of the legislature of Illinois 1863-1867; and was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,529 votes against 7,429 votes for David E. Beatty, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Wilber, David, was born near Quaker's Street, in Schenectady County, New York, October 5, 1820; received a common-school education; commenced life by working as a farm-laborer; then cultivated land on shares, became the owner of real estate, and was largely interested in the lumber-trade and farming; commenced the hop business in 1848, which grew to be an extensive and profitable trade; was one of the directors of the Second National Bank at Cooperstown, and owned the bank at Oneonta known as "David Wilber's Bank;" never held, or was a candidate for, any political office outside of the town in which he resided, until elected a representative from New York in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,368 votes against 15,171 votes for H. Sturgis, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Wilbour, Isaac, was born at Little Compton, Rhode Island; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from Rhode Island in the Tenth Congress, serving from October 26, 1807, to March 3, 1809; was for many years chief justice of Rhode Island; was acting governor of Rhode Island in 1806.

Wilcox, Jeduthan, was born in New Hampshire in 1769; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, receiving on a general ticket 18,478 votes against 15,764 votes for J. Butler, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died at Oxford, New Hampshire, in July, 1838.

Wilcox, John A., was born in North Carolina, April 18, 1819; removed early in life with his father to Tennessee, where he was reared and educated; removed to Mississippi, and located at Aberdeen; was secretary of the State Senate; served in the Mexican war as lieutenant, adjutant, and lieutenant-colonel of the Second Regiment of Mississippi Volunteers January, 1847-July, 1848; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-second Congress as a Union Whig, receiving 6,927 votes against 6,201 votes for Featherston, State-rights Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1853; was defeated as the Union Whig candidate for the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 6,837 votes against 7,039 votes for W. S. Barry, State-rights Democrat; removed in the fall of 1853 to Texas; was a prominent member of the convention which adopted the ordinance of secession; was elected a representative from Texas in the First Confederate Congress, and re-elected to the Second Congress; but died before taking his seat, at Richmond, Virginia, February 7, 1864.

Wilcox, Leonard, was born in New Hampshire in 1800; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1817; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Oxford; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a judge of the Superior Court; was appointed a United-States senator from New Hampshire (in place of Franklin Pierce, resigned), and subsequently elected as a Democrat, serving from March 7, 1842, to March 3, 1843; died at Oxford, New Hampshire, in 1850.

Wilde, Richard Henry, was born at Dublin, Ireland, September 24, 1789; immigrated to Baltimore with his father in 1797; his father dying in 1802, his mother completed the education which she had given him, and took him to Augusta, Georgia; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1809, and commenced practice at Augusta; was appointed attorney-general of Georgia; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress (in place of Thomas W. Cobb, resigned), serving from February 7, 1825, to March 3, 1825; was defeated as a candidate for the Nineteenth Congress by John Forsyth; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-first, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1835; was defeated as the State-rights candidate for the Twenty-fourth Congress, receiving on a general ticket 28,168 votes against 31,247 votes for Thomas Glascock, Unionist; visited Europe in 1835-1840; returned home, and in 1843 removed to New Orleans to act as professor of law in the University of Louisiana; died at New Orleans September 24, 1789. He published "The Love, Madness, and Imprisonment of Tasso," "Hesperia," and many poems, one of which, "My Life is like the Summer Rose," was praised by Lord Byron.

Wilder, A. Carter, was born at Mendon, Massachusetts, March 18, 1828; received a public-school education; removed in 1850 to Rochester, New York; removed in 1857 to Leavenworth, Kansas, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a delegate from Kansas to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was elected a representative from Kansas in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,676 votes against 4,666 votes for Parrott, Democrat, and 930 votes for Matthias, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was a delegate from Kansas to the National Republican Convention at Baltimore in 1864; died at San Francisco, California, December 23, 1875.

Wildman, Zalmon, was born at Danbury, Connecticut; received a public-school education; learned a trade, and became a master mechanic; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to December 10, 1835, when he died at Washington City.

Wildrick, Isaac, was born in New Jersey; resided at Blairstown; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,215 votes against 2,778 votes for Robertson, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving 9,097 votes against 4,498 votes for Edsall, Whig, serving from December 8, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Wiley, J. McCaleb, was born in Cabarras County, North Carolina, in 1806; received a public-school education; removed with his father to North Carolina in 1823; visited Mexico in 1833, and served for three years in the Mexican army; settled in Bibb County, Alabama, in 1836; was appointed register in chancery in 1839; was one of the board of visitors to West Point in 1852; was grand master of Masons in Alabama; was appointed judge of the Eighth Circuit in 1865; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Thirty-ninth Congress, but was not permitted to take his seat; was elected judge of the Circuit Court in 1871.

Wiley, James S., was born in Maine; received a classical education, graduating at Waterville College in 1836; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Dover; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirtieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,817 votes against 3,615 votes for Kingsbury, Whig, and 1,560 votes Abolition and scattering, serving from December 6, 1847, to March 3, 1849.

Wilkin, James W., was born in Orange County, New York, in 1762; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1785; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Goshen; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1800; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819; was county-clerk of Orange County July 8, 1819–February 15, 1821; died at Goshen, New York, February 23, 1845.

Wilkin, Samuel J., was born in Orange County, New York, in 1790; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1812; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Goshen; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1824 and 1825; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Whig candidate for lieutenant-governor on the ticket headed by Millard Fillmore in 1844; died at Goshen, New York, March 11, 1866.

Wilkins, William, was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, in 1779; received a classical education, which was completed at Dickinson College; studied law with Judge Watts; was admitted to the bar at Carlisle, and commenced practice at Pittsburg in 1800; was president of the Bank of Pittsburg and of the Pittsburg Manufacturing Company; was brigadier-general of militia; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1819; was defeated as a candidate for the Twentieth Congress by James S. Stevenson; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Democrat and anti-Mason, serving from December 5, 1831, to June 30, 1834, when he resigned, having been appointed minister to Russia; resigned, and returned home December 24, 1835; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,438 votes against 2,237 votes for Craig, Independent, 1,884 votes for Breckinridge, Whig, and 379 votes for Penniman, Abolitionist, serving from December 4, 1843, to February 14, 1844, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Tyler a member of his cabinet; was secretary of war February 15, 1844–March 3, 1845; was United-States judge for the Western Judicial District of Pennsylvania; was a State senator in 1857; was a member of a "home guard" in 1862; died near Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, June 23, 1865.

Wilkinson, Morton S., was born at Skaneateles, New York, January 22, 1819; received a public-school education; studied law with Beach & Underwood; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, in 1843; removed to St. Paul, Minnesota, in 1847; was elected a member of the first Territorial legislature in 1849; was appointed one of a board of commissioners to prepare a code of laws for the Territory; removed to Mankato; was elected to the Senate of the United States in 1859 as a Republican (to succeed James Shields, Democrat); served in the Senate until 1865; was elected a representative from Minnesota in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 23,724 votes against 14,646 votes for Batchelder, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Willard, Charles W., was born at Lyndon, Caledonia County, Vermont, June 18, 1827; graduated at Dartmouth College in 1851; studied law, and was admitted to the bar at Montpelier in 1853; was elected secretary of state in 1855–1856, and declined a re-election; was elected a State senator in 1860 and 1861; became the editor, in 1861, of "The Green-Mountain Freeman;" was elected a representative from Vermont in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,999 votes against 4,396 votes for J. Cain, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,476 votes against 3,675 votes for J. Cain, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,061 votes against 3,621 votes for H. W. Heaton, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1875.

Willard, George, was born at Bolton, Vermont, March 20, 1824; received a liberal education, and was a professor for two years in Kalamazoo College; was editor and publisher of "The Battle-Creek Journal;" was a member of the Michigan State Board of Education from 1857 to 1863; was elected regent of the University of Michigan in 1863, and re-elected for eight years in 1865; was elected to the State legislature in 1866, and the following year a member of the State Constitutional Convention, serving in both bodies as chairman of the Committee on Education; was a delegate at large from Michigan to the National Republican Convention in 1872; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,822 votes against 10,275 votes for J. G. Parkhurst, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,372 votes against 12,174 votes for F. Livermore, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Wiley, Calvin, was born at East Haddam, Connecticut, September 15, 1776; received an academic education; studied law with John T. Peters; was admitted to the bar in 1798, and commenced practice at Stafford; was for nine successive years a member of the State House of Representatives, and for two years a State senator; was appointed postmaster at Stafford Springs in 1806; removed to Toland, Connecticut, in 1808; was appointed postmaster there, and held the office until 1816; was a presidential elector on the John Quincy Adams ticket in 1824; was elected a United-States senator from Connecticut (in place of James Lanman, who had been appointed, but who was declared not entitled to his seat), serving from December 9, 1825, to March 3, 1831; resumed practice; died at Stafford, Connecticut, August 23, 1838.

Wiley, Waitman T., was born in Monongalia County, Virginia, October 18, 1811; graduated at Madison College, Pennsylvania; studied and practised law; was clerk of the Monongalia County Court, and also of the Circuit Superior Court of Law and Chancery of the same county, from 1841 to 1855; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of Virginia in 1851; was a delegate to the Virginia State Convention in 1861; was elected a United-States senator from Virginia by the re-organized Virginia legislature (in place of J. M. Mason, withdrawn), and took his seat July 13, 1861; was a delegate to the convention which adopted the Constitution of the State of West Virginia; was elected to the United-States Senate from West Virginia in 1863; and was re-elected, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1871.

Williams, Alpheus S., was born at Saybrook, Connecticut, September 20, 1810; graduated at Yale College in 1831; was a student in the Yale Law School in 1832 and 1833; travelled in Europe in 1834-1836; removed to Michigan in 1836, and commenced the practice of law; was judge of probate for Wayne County 1840-1844; was alderman of Detroit in 1843, and recorder of the city in 1844; was proprietor and editor of "The Detroit Daily Advertiser" in 1843-1848; was lieutenant-colonel of the First Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment in the Mexican war 1847-1848; was postmaster of Detroit 1849-1853; entered the Union army by appointment of the President as brigadier-general of volunteers in August, 1861; commanded the Twelfth Corps in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam, and Gettysburg, and the Twentieth Corps in the siege of Atlanta, on Sherman's "march to the sea," and in the campaign of the Carolinas, and was mustered out of service in January, 1866; was appointed in August, 1866, by the President, one of the commissioners to adjust the military claims of Missouri; was minister resident to the republic of Salvador 1866-1869; was elected a representative from Michigan in the Forty-fourth Congress on the Democratic and Reform tickets, receiving 10,848 votes against 8,892 votes for Moses W. Field, Republican, and 56 votes for C. P. Russell, Temperance; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,471 votes against 12,417 votes for Henry M. Duffield, Republican, and 1,736 votes for John V. Renkle, Greenback candidate, serving from December 6, 1875.

Williams, Andrew, was born at Ormstown, Canada, August 27, 1828; received a common-school education until he was thrown upon his own resources at fifteen years of age; arrived in the United States in October, 1848; commenced business at Plattsburg as a manufacturer of bloom-iron in 1855; was a merchant and manufacturer of iron and lumber; and was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,251 votes against 8,336 votes for Artemus B. Waldo, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,177 votes against 10,246 votes for Platt, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875.

Williams, Benjamin, was born in North Carolina in 1754; received a thorough English education; entered the Revolutionary army as captain, and so distinguished himself at the battle of Guilford that he was made a colonel; served a number of years as a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was governor of North Carolina 1799-1802 and 1807-1808; was a member of the State Senate 1808-1809; died in Moore County, North Carolina, July 20, 1814.

Williams, Charles G., was born at Royalton, New York, October 18, 1829; received an academic education, and studied law at Rochester in that State; removed to Wisconsin in 1856, and entered upon the practice of his profession; was presidential elector in 1868, and elected to the State Senate in that year; was re-elected to the State Senate in 1870, and twice chosen president pro tempore of that body; was elected a representative from Wisconsin in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,666 votes against 9,380 votes for I. C. Sloan, Liberal Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 12,568 votes against 9,532 votes for Pratt, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 18,206 votes against 12,478 votes for H. G. Winslow, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873.

Williams, Christopher H., was born in Tennessee; resided at Lexington; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 1,882 majority over W. C. Dunlap, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Congresses, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving no opposition; and was re-elected to the Thirty-second Congress, receiving no opposition, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1853.

Williams, David R., was born at Society Hill, South Carolina; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1797; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice, carrying on an extensive plantation; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Ninth Congress; and was re-elected to the Tenth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1809; was again elected to the Twelfth Congress as a War Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; was appointed brigadier-general in the United-States army July 9, 1813, and resigned April 6, 1814; was governor of South Carolina 1814-1816; was killed by accident at a new bridge November 15, 1830.

Williams, George H., was born in Columbia County, New York, March 23, 1823; received an academic education; studied law, and, removing to Iowa, commenced practice there; was judge of the First Judicial District of Iowa from 1847 to 1852; was a presidential elector from Iowa in 1852; was appointed by President Pierce chief justice of the Territory of Oregon in 1853, and was re-appointed by President Buchanan in 1857, but resigned; was elected a member of the Convention which framed the Constitution of Oregon in 1858; was elected United-States senator from Oregon as a Union Republican (to succeed B. F. Harding, Union Republican), serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871; was a member of the High Joint Commission for the adjustment of differences between the United States and Great Britain in 1871; was appointed by President Grant attorney-general of the United States, serving from January 10, 1872, to May 15, 1875; on the death of Chief-Justice Chase he was nominated by President Grant chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States December 1, 1873, but, the Senate showing no disposition to confirm the nomination, it was withdrawn; he resumed the practice of law at Washington City.

Williams, Henry, was born at Taunton, Massachusetts, November, 1804; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Taunton; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 3,306 votes against 2,920 votes for N. B. Borden, Whig, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1841; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-seventh Congress by N. B. Borden, Whig, on the second trial; was again elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; declined being a candidate for re-election; was a member of the State Senate for two years, and of the State House of Representatives for three years.

Williams, Hezekiah, was born at Woodstock, Vermont, in 1798; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Castine; was register of probate for Hancock County 1824-1838; was a member of the State Senate 1839-1841; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,033 votes against 3,740 votes for J. S. Pike, Whig, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1849; died at Castine October 24, 1856.

Williams, Isaac, jun., was born in Otsego County, New York; resided at Otsego; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. Dowse), having successfully contested the election of John M. Bowers, as a Democrat, serving from January 24, 1814, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was again elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825.

Williams, James, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 4, 1825; was educated at the Friends' school of Philadelphia; removed to Delaware in 1844, and engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State legislature of Delaware in 1856 and 1862, and of the State Senate in 1866-1871, serving the last two years as speaker; was a member of the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was elected a representative from Delaware in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,602 votes against 11,024 votes for James R. Lofland, Republican; and was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,169 votes against 10,592 votes for Levi C. Bird, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Williams, James D., was born in Pickaway County, Ohio, January 16, 1808; removed to Knox County, Indiana, in 1818; was educated in the log schoolhouses of the country; is by occupation a farmer; was a member of the State House of Representatives of Indiana in 1843, 1847, 1851, 1856, and 1868; was elected to the State Senate in 1858, 1862, and 1870; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was the Democratic nominee for United-States senator in 1873 against Oliver P. Morton; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 17,393 votes against 9,545 votes for Levi Ferguson, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to December 1, 1876, when he resigned, having been elected governor of Indiana.

Williams, James W., was born in Maryland in 1787; received a classical education; was for several years a member of the State House of Representatives, and had been elected speaker in 1830, when an attack of paralysis made it necessary for him to resign, incapacitating him for a time from public business; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, defeating J. C. Orrick, and serving from May 31, 1841, to December 2, 1842, when he was stricken with paralysis while on his way to Washington in his carriage, and survived but a short time.

Williams, Jared, was born in Montgomery County, Maryland, March 4, 1766; received a good English education; engaged in agricultural pursuits; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1811-1817; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Sixteenth Congress as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth Congress, receiving 448 majority; was re-elected to the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1825; was a presidential elector on the Jackson and Calhoun ticket in 1829; died near Newton, Virginia, after a brief illness, January 2, 1831.

Williams, Jared W., was born in New Hampshire; received a classical education, graduating at Brown University in 1818; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Lancaster, New Hampshire; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1830, 1831, 1835, and 1836; was a member of the State Senate in 1832, 1833, and 1834; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; was governor of New Hampshire 1847-1849; was appointed a United-States senator from New Hampshire (in place of Charles G. Atherton, deceased), serving from December 12, 1853, to March 3, 1855; died at Lancaster, New Hampshire, September 29, 1864.

Williams, Jeremiah N., was born in Barbour County, Alabama, in April, 1829; received a liberal education, graduating at the University of South Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and has since practised; entered the Confederate army in 1861 as major, but was obliged to resign on account of ill health; was elected to the State legislature of Alabama in 1872, but not permitted to take his seat; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 20,180 votes against 19,124 votes for J. T. Rapier, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,089 votes against 3,896 votes for W. H. Betts, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Williams, John, was born in Hanover County, Virginia; served an apprenticeship to the carpenter's trade; removed to North Carolina; studied law, and commenced practice; was seized by the Regulators while attending court at Hillsborough in 1770, and severely beaten; was one of the first judges under the State Constitution, serving from 1777 until 1790; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1777-1778; died in Granville County, North Carolina, in October, 1799.

Williams, John, was born in Washington County, New York; served in the Revolutionary war, attaining the rank of colonel; was a member of the First State Senate in 1777, but was expelled for misconduct; was again a member of the State Senate 1782-1793; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourth Congress; and was re-elected to the Fifth Congress, serving from December 7, 1795, to March 3, 1799.

Williams, John (brother of Lewis and Robert Williams, and father of Joseph L. Williams), was born in Surry County, North Carolina; was appointed captain in the Sixth United-States Infantry April, 1799; resigned in 1800; studied law at Salisbury, North Carolina; was admitted to the bar in 1803, and commenced practice near Knoxville, Tennessee; served in the war of 1812 as colonel of a regiment of Kentucky mounted volunteers, and subsequently of the Thirty-ninth United-States Infantry; served under General Jackson at New Orleans and in Alabama, and became his earnest political adversary; was elected a United-States senator from Tennessee (in place of George W. Campbell, resigned), serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1823; was appointed by President John Quincy Adams chargé d'affaires to Central America, serving from December 29, 1825, to December 1, 1826; was a member of the State Senate; was offered a seat upon the bench of the Supreme Court of Tennessee, but declined it; died near Knoxville, Tennessee, August 10, 1837.

Williams, John, was born at Utica, New York, in 1807; removed to Sackett's Harbor, and from there to Rochester; was engaged in mercantile pursuits; was an alderman of Rochester in 1852; was mayor of Rochester 1853-1854; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an anti-Nebraska Democrat, receiving 5,609 votes against 4,227 votes for Carpenter, Whig, and 1,865 votes for Sibley, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was a major-general of militia, and was active in recruiting troops for the Union army; was city treasurer of Rochester 1871-1875; died at Rochester, New York, March 26, 1875.

Williams, John M. S., was born at Richmond, Virginia, August 14, 1818; was educated at the public schools of Boston; was a merchant and ship-owner; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1856, and of the State Senate in 1858; was a presidential elector from the Fourth District of Massachusetts in 1868; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,029 votes against 5,829 votes for W. W. Warren, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,861 votes against 8,585 votes for W. W. Warren, Democrat.

Williams, Jonathan, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, in 1752; received a public-school education; was placed in a counting-house as clerk, and made several voyages to Europe and the West Indies as supercargo; visiting France in 1777, he was appointed commercial agent of the United States by his uncle, Benjamin Franklin, and returned to the United States with him in 1783, locating at Philadelphia; was for several years a judge of the Court of Common Pleas; entered the United-States army as major of engineers February 16, 1801; was inspector of fortifications and superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point December 4, 1801; was lieutenant-colonel of engineers July 8, 1802; resigned June 20, 1803; was colonel of engineers February 23, 1808; resigned July 31, 1812; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress, but died at Philadelphia, before taking his seat, May 16, 1815. He published "A Memoir on the Use of the Thermometer in Navigation" 1799, "The Elements of Fortification" (a translation) 1801, and "Kosciuszko's Movements for Horse-Artillery" 1808.

Williams, Joseph L. (son of John Williams), was born in Tennessee; resided at Knoxville; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,821 votes against 2,653 votes for R. M. Anderson, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving 5,153 votes without opposition; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843.

Williams, Lemuel, was born in Massachusetts; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1765; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Congresses, serving from December 2, 1799, to March 3, 1805.

Williams, Lewis (brother of John and Robert Williams), was born near Shallow Ford, North Carolina, in 1782; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina in 1808; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1813 and 1814; was elected a representative in the Fourteenth Congress; was successively re-elected to thirteen Congresses, ending with the Twenty-seventh, serving from December 4, 1815, until his death at Washington February 23, 1842; he received, by universal consent, the title of "the Father of the House," and, although childless, his congressional responsibilities, doubtless, often more than filled his paternal anxieties.

Williams, Marmaduke, was born in Caswell County, North Carolina, April 6, 1772; received a classical education; studied law, and practised; was a member of the State Senate in 1802; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Eighth Congress as a Democrat (to succeed his brother, Robert Williams, who had been appointed by President Jefferson governor of Mississippi); was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1809; removed to Madison County, Alabama, in 1810, and thence to Tuscaloosa in 1818; was a member of the First Constitutional Convention of Alabama in 1819; was a candidate for governor in 1819, but was defeated by Thomas W. Bibb; was appointed on the commission to adjust unsettled Territorial accounts with Mississippi in 1826; was elected judge of the Tuscaloosa County Court in 1832, and held the position until disqualified by constitutional limitation in April, 1842, when he became seventy years of age; died at Tuscaloosa, Alabama, October 29, 1850.

Williams, Nathan, was born in Oneida County, New York; resided at Utica; was elected a representative from New York in the Ninth Congress, serving from December 2, 1805, to March 3, 1807; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1818.

Williams, Reuel, was born at Hallowell (now Augusta), Maine, June 2, 1783; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1802, and commenced practice at Augusta, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1822-1826, of the State Senate 1827-1828, and again of the House 1829-1832; was elected a United-States senator from Maine as a Democrat (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Shepley), serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was prominent in the railroad project for connecting trains between Augusta and Boston, and was for twelve years manager of the railroad; visited Washington in November, 1861, as one of the commissioners of Maine appointed to look after the public defences of the State, and obtained from the secretary of war an order that the fortifications being erected at the mouth of the Penobscot be called Fort Popham in honor of the first colony on the shores of New England, established under George Popham; died at Augusta, Maine, July 23, 1862.

Williams, Richard, was born at Findley, Hancock County, Ohio, November 15, 1836; removed to Oregon in 1851; was educated at the Willamette University; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1858, and practised at Portland; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,347 votes against 14,239 votes for La Fayette Lane, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1877.

Williams, Robert (brother of John and Lewis Williams), was born near Shallow Ford, North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was adjutant-general of North Carolina during the war; made the only perfect collection extant of the acts, public and private, of the General Assembly of North Carolina; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Fifth Congress as a Democrat, and re-elected to the Sixth and Seventh Congresses, serving from May 15, 1797, until March 3, 1803; was appointed by President Jefferson United-States land commissioner for Mississippi in 1803, and Territorial governor of Mississippi in 1805-1809; he subsequently removed to Tennessee, and thence to Louisiana, where he died.

Williams, Sherrod, was born in Kentucky; resided at Monticello; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig, defeating Martin Beatty, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, receiving 3,189 votes against 1,819 votes for McHenry, Democrat, and 1,764 votes for Monroe, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, defeating Rodes Garth, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1835, to March 3, 1841.

Williams, Thomas, was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, August 28, 1806; graduated at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, in 1828; studied and practised law; was a member of the State Senate in 1838, 1839, 1840, and 1841, and of the State House of Representatives in 1861 and 1862; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,989 votes against 7,635 votes for Zeigler, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,682 votes against 8,124 votes for Kountz, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 14,197 votes against 10,012 votes for Childs, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1869.

Williams, Thomas H., was born in Virginia; removed to Pontotoc, Mississippi, soon after the Indians had been removed from that region; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was appointed by the governor, and subsequently elected by the legislature, as a Democrat, a United-States senator (to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of James F. Trotter), serving from December 13, 1838, to March 3, 1839.

Williams, Thomas Hill, was born in North Carolina; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a clerk in the War Department at Washington City; was appointed by President Jefferson in 1805 register of the land-office for the Territory of Mississippi; was collector of customs at the port of New Orleans; was a delegate to the Convention which framed the State Constitution of Mississippi; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Mississippi; was re-elected as a Democrat, serving from December 11, 1817, to March 3, 1829; removed to Tennessee, and died there.

Williams, Thomas Scott, was born at Wethersfield, Connecticut, June 20, 1777; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1794; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1799, and commenced practice at Mansfield, removing to Hartford in 1803; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1813, and was twelve times re-elected before 1829; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1817, to March 3, 1819; was appointed in 1829 an associate judge of the Supreme Court of Errors and of the Superior Court, and was appointed in 1834 chief justice, holding the office until 1847; was mayor of Hartford 1831-1835; was president of the American Tract Society, and a liberal contributor to various benevolent institutions, to which he bequeathed nearly $30,000; died at Hartford, Connecticut, December 15, 1861.

Williams, Thomas W., was born at Stonington, Connecticut, September 28, 1739; received an academical education; went to New York, where he was clerk in a store; removed to New London, where he engaged in business; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-sixth Congress as a Whig, receiving 3,068 votes against 2,978 votes for C. Billings, Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, receiving 665 majority, serving from December 2, 1839, to March 3, 1843; was a presidential elector on the Taylor and Fillmore ticket in 1848.

Williams, William, was born in Bolton, Connecticut, September 6, 1815; received a common-school education; was a banker and railroad president and manager at Buffalo, New York; was a member of the State legislature in 1866 and 1867; was elected a representative from New York in the Forty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,018 votes against 14,415 votes for Bass, Republican, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1873; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Forty-third Congress, receiving 12,813 votes against 17,929 votes for Lyman K. Bass, Republican.

Williams, William, was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, April 18, 1731; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1751; served with the colonial troops in the French war, and was at the battle of Lake George; was prominent in the pre-Revolutionary movements; was for a number of years a member of the Colonial House of Representatives, and was its speaker in 1775; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1776-1778 and 1783-1784; was a delegate to the State Convention which adopted the Federal Constitution; died at Lebanon, Connecticut, August 2, 1811.

Williams, William, was born at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, May 11, 1821; received a common-school education; studied law, and commenced its practice in Indiana; was treasurer of Kosciusko County in 1850; was director of the Northern Indiana State Prison in 1860; was commissioned by the governor commandant of Camp Allen, with the rank of colonel, in 1862; was commissioned by the President an additional paymaster in the United-States army in 1864; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 17,414 votes against 16,162 votes for Lowry, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 10,551 votes against 14,228 votes for Ellerson, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,130 votes against 9,112 votes for Hascall, Independent Republican, receiving Democratic support, and 2,799 votes for Ellison, Independent; and was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress for the State at large, receiving 188,760 votes against 188,227 votes for J. S. Williams, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1875.

Williams, William B., was born at Pittsford, New York, July 28, 1826; received an academic education; studied law, and graduated at the State and National Law School at Ballston Spa, New York, in August, 1851; was admitted to the bar in September, 1851, and commenced practice; removed to Allegan, Michigan, in 1855; was elected judge of probate in 1856, and re-elected in 1860, holding the office two terms of four years each; was elected to the State Senate of Michigan in 1866 and 1868, and served two terms of two years each; was elected president pro tempore of the Senate in 1869; was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention of Michigan in 1867; was appointed by the governor of the State of Michigan in 1871 a member of the board for the supervisory control of the charitable, penal, and beneficiary institutions of the State, which position he resigned on his election as representative from Michigan in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican (at a special election held on the 4th of November, 1873, to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of Hon. Wilder D. Foster), receiving 6,599 votes against 6,434 votes for C. C. Comstock, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 13,370 votes against 12,212 votes for Mark D. Wilber, Democrat and Reformer, and 360 votes for J. A. McKay, Temperance, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Williamson, Hugh, was born in West-Nottingham Township, Pennsylvania, December 5, 1735; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Pennsylvania in 1757; studied divinity, and was licensed to preach in 1758, but resigned in 1760 on account of ill health; was appointed professor of mathematics in the University of Pennsylvania in 1760, and held the position until 1764, when he resigned; went to Edinburgh to study medicine, and was licensed to practise in 1772; returning to Philadelphia, he practised there until 1773, when he returned to England, where he rendered important services to the revolting colonists; returning, he went to Edenton on a vessel which was avoiding the British fleet, and was induced to resume practice there; served as surgeon-general of the North-Carolina troops, distinguishing himself at the battle of Camden in 1780; was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1782; was elected to the Continental Congress in 1784, 1785, and 1786; was a delegate to the Convention which framed the Federal Constitution in 1787; was elected a representative in the First Congress as a Federalist; was re-elected to the Second Congress, serving from March 19, 1790, until March 2, 1793; removed to New York, where he had married; devoted himself to literary pursuits, and was associated with De Witt Clinton in organizing the Philosophical Society in 1814; died suddenly at New York May 22, 1819. He published "Observations on the Climate of America," 1811; "History of North Carolina," 1812; and a number of papers on astronomical, scientific, and political subjects.

Williamson, William Durkee, was born at Canterbury, Connecticut, July 31, 1779; his father removed when he was a lad to Amherst, Massachusetts; received a classical education, entering Williams College in 1800, but graduating at Brown University in 1804; studied law with Hon. S. F. Dickinson of Amherst; removed to Bangor, Maine, in 1807; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was State attorney for Hancock County 1808-1815; was a member of the State Senate of Massachusetts (Maine then being a part of the Commonwealth) 1816-1820; was a member of the first Senate of Maine under its State Constitution in 1820, and, as its president, became (on the resignation of Governor King) governor; was elected a representative from Maine in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1821, until March 3, 1823; was judge of probate 1827-1840, bank commissioner 1838-1841, and president of the Bangor Bank; died at Bangor, Maine, May 27, 1846. He published a "History of Maine" in two large octavo volumes, and was a contributor to different periodicals.

Willie, Asa H., was born at Washington, Georgia, October 11, 1829, and was educated at the academy there; removed to Washington County, Texas, in February, 1846, and commenced the study of law; was relieved of the disability of nonage by the legislature of Texas, and admitted to the bar in 1848, and commenced the practice of law; was elected in 1852 district-attorney of the Third Judicial District of Texas; held that office until October, 1854, and declined a re-election; served in General Grigg's brigade of the Confederate army during the late war; was elected by the people in 1866 one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Texas, and held that office until October, 1867, when he was removed by the military authorities; was elected a representative from Texas in the Forty-third Congress from the State at large as a Democrat, receiving 70,186 votes against 47,544 votes for L. D. Evans, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Willig, Thomas, was born at Philadelphia December 20, 1741; received a classical education, which was completed at London, where he read law in the Temple; returning home, he engaged in mercantile pursuits, and became the head of the firm of Willig & Morris, purchasing agents of military stores for the Continental Congress; was mayor of Philadelphia; was a judge of the Supreme Court; was a member of the Colonial House of Representatives; was a delegate to, and president of, the Provisional Congress; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1775-1776; was the president of the Bank of North America, the oldest bank in the United States, chartered by Congress in 1781; died at Philadelphia January 19, 1821.

Willis, Albert S., was born in Shelby County, Kentucky, January 22, 1843; received his early education in common schools, and graduated at the Louisville Male High School in 1860; taught school for four years; studied law, and graduated at the Louisville Law School in 1866, and commenced practice at Louisville; canvassed the State on the Democratic electoral ticket in 1872; was elected attorney for Jefferson County in 1870; was re-elected in 1874, and served until he was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,046 votes against 5,567 votes for Walter Evans, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877.

Willis, Benjamin A., was born of Quaker parentage at Roslyn, New York, March 24, 1840; graduated at Union College, Schenectady, New York, in 1861; studied law at the National Law School, Poughkeepsie, and with William M. Ingraham, Esq., at Brooklyn; was admitted to the bar in 1861; commenced practice, and continued until June, 1862, when he entered the Union army; was captain and afterwards major of the One Hundred and Nineteenth Regiment New-York State Volunteers, and subsequently colonel of the Twelfth Regiment New-York State Volunteers, participating in the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Wauhatchee, and Chattanooga; resumed practice in 1864; had never held public office when elected a representative from New York in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Liberal Republican, indorsed by the Democrats, receiving 10,354 votes against 8,036 votes for Isaac H. Bailey, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,519 votes against 12,092 votes for Levi P. Morton, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Willis, Francis, was born in Frederick County, Virginia, January 5, 1725; received a public-school education; removed to Georgia in 1784; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Second Congress, serving from October 24, 1791, to March 2, 1793; removed in 1814 to Maury County, Tennessee; died there January 25, 1829.

Willits, Edwin, was born at Otto, Cattaraugus County, New York, April 24, 1830; removed to Michigan in September, 1836; graduated at the Michigan University in June, 1855; located at Monroe in April, 1856; studied law with Senator I. P. Christiancy; was admitted to the bar in December, 1857; practised law at Monroe; was elected prosecuting-attorney of Monroe County in 1860, and held the office till December 31, 1862; was elected a member of the State Board of Education in 1860; was re-elected in 1866, holding the position twelve years; was on the commission to revise the Constitution of the State in 1873; was appointed postmaster of Monroe, January 1, 1863, by Abraham Lincoln, and was removed by Andrew Johnson October 15, 1866; was editor of "The Monroe Commercial" from 1856 to 1861; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 19,211 votes against 17,024 votes for John J. Robison, Democrat, Granger, and Greenbacker, serving from October 15, 1877.

Willoughby, Westel, jun., resided at Newport, Herkimer County, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress (having successfully contested the election of William S. Smith) as a Democrat, serving from December 13, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Wilmot, David, was born at Bethany, Pennsylvania, January 20, 1814; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Towanda; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirtieth and Thirty-first Congresses, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; was presiding judge of the Thirteenth Judicial District 1853-1861; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1856; was defeated as the Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1857, receiving 146,136 votes against 188,887 votes for W. F. Packer, Democrat; was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860; was elected a United-States senator from Pennsylvania as a Republican (in place of Simon Cameron, resigned), serving from March 18, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was appointed by President Lincoln a judge of the United-States Court of Claims in 1863; died at Towanda, Pennsylvania, March 16, 1868.

Wilshire, William W., was born September 8, 1830, in Gallatin County, Illinois; was educated in common schools at Rock Island; studied law, and was admitted to practice in 1859; entered the Union army in 1862 as major of the One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Illinois Infantry; served until the close of the war, when he located at Little Rock, Arkansas, as a lawyer; was appointed in 1867 solicitor-general of the State; was appointed, in July, 1868, chief justice of the Supreme Court; resigned in February, 1871, and returned to the bar; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,644 votes against 11,490 votes for Thomas M. Gunter, Democrat, but his seat was contested, and was given to his opponent, T. M. Gunter, June 16, 1874; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Conservative, receiving 11,733 votes against 6,338 votes for William J. Hynes, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Wilson, Alexander, was born in Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was a colonel of militia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Eighth Congress (in place of Andrew Moore, appointed senator); was re-elected to the Ninth and Tenth Congresses, serving from December 4, 1804, to March 3, 1809.

Wilson, Benjamin, was born in Harrison County, Virginia (now West Virginia), April 30, 1825; was educated at the North-western Virginia Academy at Clarksburg; attended the law-school at Staunton; was admitted to the bar in 1848, and has since practised; was Commonwealth's attorney for Harrison County 1852-1860; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Virginia in 1861; was presidential elector on the Democratic ticket for the State at large in 1868; was a member of the State Constitutional Convention of West Virginia in 1871; was one of the delegates from the State at large to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1872; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,799 votes against 12,631 votes for Nathan Goff, jun., Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 17,902 votes against 16,067 votes for Charles F. Scott, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Wilson, Edgar C. (son of Thomas Wilson), was born at Morgantown, Virginia; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twenty-third Congress as a Whig, receiving 1,304 votes against 798 votes for W. S. Morgan, Democrat, serving from December 2, 1833, to March 3, 1835; died at Morgantown, Virginia, in May, 1860.

Wilson, Ephraim K. (father of E. K. Wilson), of Snow Hill, Maryland, was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twentieth Congress, and re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831.

Wilson, Ephraim K. (son of E. K. Wilson), was born December 22, 1821, at Snow Hill, Maryland; was educated at Union Academy and Washington Academy, Maryland, and graduated at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in August, 1841; studied law at Snow Hill, and practised his profession in his native State from 1848 to 1868; was a member of the House of Delegates of the legislature of the State of Maryland in 1847; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 12,464 votes against 11,286 votes for T. A. Spence, Independent, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Wilson, Eugene M. (son of E. C. Wilson, and grandson of Thomas Wilson), was born in Morgan County, Virginia, December 25, 1833; received a classical education, graduating at Jefferson College in 1852; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Minneapolis, Minnesota, in 1855; was United-States attorney for the district of Minnesota 1857-1861; served in the Union army as captain in the First Minnesota Infantry; was elected a representative from Minnesota in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,506 votes against 11,229 votes for I. Donnelly, Republican, and 8,596 votes for Andrews, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Wilson, Henry, was born in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, in 1778; settled at Allentown; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, until May 22, 1826; died at Allentown, Pennsylvania, August 13, 1826.

Wilson, Henry, was born at Farmington, New Hampshire, February 16, 1812; his parents were named Colbath, and his name was Jeremiah Jones Colbath until he was seventeen years of age, when, by an act of the legislature, he had it changed to Henry Wilson; he worked on a farm, attending public schools, and enjoyed the use of a large library belonging to a lawyer in the vicinity; in December, 1833, he walked to Natick, Massachusetts, where he learned the trade of shoemaking, and earned sufficient money to defray his expenses for a time at Concord Academy; was introduced at Whig meetings in 1840 as "the Natick Cobbler;" was a member of the State House of Representatives or Senate in 1841, 1842, 1844, 1845, 1846, 1850, 1851, and 1852, presiding over the Senate the last two years; was in 1848 a delegate to the National Whig Convention at Philadelphia, and withdrew; was in 1851 a delegate to the Free Democratic National Convention at Pittsburg, and its president; was defeated as the Free-soil candidate for Congress in 1852, receiving 4,319 votes against 4,411 votes for Tappan Wentworth, Whig; was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1853; was defeated in 1853 as the Free-soil candidate for governor; was in 1855 a delegate to the National American Convention at Philadelphia, and withdrew; was elected, by a coalition of Free-Soilers, Americans, and Democrats, a United-States senator from Massachusetts; and was three times re-elected, serving from February 10, 1855, until he resigned March 3, 1873; from 1840 to 1851 he was connected with the State uniformed volunteers as major, colonel, and brigadier-general; in 1861 he raised, and for a time commanded, the Twenty-second Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, and, while with the Army of the Potomac, was appointed an aide-de-camp to General McClellan; was elected Vice-President of the United States in 1872, receiving 286 electoral votes against 68 electoral votes cast for other candidates; was inaugurated as president of the Senate March 4, 1873; died in the Capitol at Washington City November 22, 1875. He published "A History of the Antislavery Measures of the Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth United-States Congresses 1860 to 1864," "Military Measures of the United-States Congress," "Testimonials of American Statesmen and Jurists to the Truths of Christianity," "History of the Reconstruction Measures of the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Congresses 1865-1868," "A History of the Rise and Fall of Slavery in the United States," and "History of the Part which Congress played in the War to suppress the Rebellion."

Wilson, Isaac, resided in Genesee County, New York; distinguished himself in the war of 1812 as captain of a cavalry company which was in some of the hardest-fought battles on the Canadian frontier; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1816-1817, and of the State Senate 1818-1821; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to January 17, 1824, when, his election having been successfully contested by Parmenio Adams, he withdrew from the House; was appointed first judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Genesee County, serving from February 2, 1830, to February 1, 1835; removed to Batavia, Illinois, where he died October 25, 1848.

Wilson, James, was born near St. Andrew's, Scotland, in 1742; received a collegiate education at Edinburgh; immigrated to Philadelphia; was a tutor in the Philadelphia College; studied law with John Dickinson; was admitted to the bar in 1768; practised at Reading, at Carlisle, at Annapolis, and then at Philadelphia; was active in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate to the conventions held in 1774 and 1775; was a delegate from Pennsylvania in the Continental Congress 1775-1778, 1782-1783, and 1785-1787; was counsel for the French Government 1779-1783, receiving a fee of ten thousand livres; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the convention which framed the Federal Constitution; was a delegate to the State Convention which adopted the Federal Constitution; was appointed by President John Adams, in September, 1789, a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; in 1790 was appointed professor of law in the University of Pennsylvania; died at Edenton, North Carolina, August 23, 1798. He published "An Address to the Citizens of Philadelphia" 1784, "Commentaries on the Constitution," with Thomas McKean, London, 1792; and his "Works" (in three volumes) were published after his death, in 1804.

Wilson, James, was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, August 16, 1835; came to America in 1851; received an academic education; became a farmer in Iowa; was a member of the State legislature of Iowa from 1867 to 1873, and was speaker of the House the last two sessions; is a regent of the State University of Iowa; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,531 votes against 7,434 votes for J. B. Irish, Democrat and Liberal; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,724 votes against 7,481 votes for Wilkinson, anti-Monopolist, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Wilson, James, was born in 1757; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1789; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Keene, New Hampshire; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Eleventh Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811; died at Keene, New Hampshire, January 4, 1839.

Wilson, James, was born at Fairfield, Pennsylvania, April 28, 1779; received a public-school education; was apprenticed to a cabinet-maker, and learned his trade; settled at Fairfield; was a justice of the peace 1811-1822; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was again a justice of the peace 1830-1859; died at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, in July, 1868.

Wilson, James, was born in New Hampshire; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Keene; was for some years a member of the State House of Representatives, and its speaker in 1828; was a general of militia; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Thirtieth Congress as a Whig, receiving 5,926 votes against 5,086 votes for Moulton, Democrat, and 555 votes Abolition and scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,766 votes against 3,778 votes for Vose, Democrat, and 12 scattering, serving from December 6, 1847, to September 9, 1850, when he resigned; removed to California.

Wilson, James, was born at Crawfordsville, Indiana, April 9, 1822; received a classical education, graduating at Wabash College in 1842; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1845, and commenced practice at Crawfordsville, Indiana; served in the Mexican war as a private in a regiment of Indiana volunteer infantry; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,302 votes against 11,072 votes for Voorhees, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 11,028 votes against 10,387 votes for T. W. Blake, Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861; was appointed by President Johnson minister to Venezuela, serving from May 31, 1866, until he died at his post August 8, 1867.

Wilson, James F., was born at Newark, Ohio, October 19, 1828; received an academical education; studied law, and commenced its practice in Iowa; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Iowa in 1856; was a member of the State legislature in 1857, 1859, 1861, serving the last year as president of the Senate; was elected a representative from Iowa for the unexpired term of S. R. Curtis; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,705 votes against 10,486 votes for Hornish, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 16,977 votes against 9,078 votes for Hornish, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Union Republican, receiving 16,406 votes against 10,515 votes for Warren, Republican, serving from December 2, 1861, to March 3, 1869.

Wilson, James J., was born in Essex County, New Jersey, in 1775; received a good English education; was for many years clerk of the State House of Representatives; was the editor of "The True American" at Trenton; was adjutant-general of the State of New Jersey; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to 1821, when he resigned; was appointed by President Monroe postmaster at Trenton, New Jersey, in the place of Charles Rice; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1822; was seriously injured in December, 1822, by imagining, in a fit of delirium, that his house was on fire, and throwing himself from a second-story window; died at Trenton, New Jersey, July 28, 1824.

Wilson, Jeremiah M., was born in Warren County, Ohio, November 25, 1828; received an academic education; studied and practised law; was judge of the Court of Common Pleas from 1860 to 1865, when he resigned; was elected judge of the Circuit Court in October, 1865, which position he held when elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,561 votes against 12,557 votes for D. S. Gooding, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 14,499 votes against 14,119 votes for Gooding, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1875.

Wilson, John, was born in 1777; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard University in 1799; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Belfast, Maine; was elected a representative from the Maine District of Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from January 26, 1818, to March 3, 1819; died at Belfast, Maine, July 9, 1848.

Wilson, John, was born in York District, South Carolina; resided at Golden Grove; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1827; was defeated as a candidate for the Twentieth Congress by Warren R. Davis, who received 25 majority.

Wilson, John T., was born in Highland County, Ohio, April 16, 1811; received a public-school education; was engaged during twenty-four years in mercantile pursuits, and then retired to a farm; raised a company for the Union army in 1861, and served as its captain; was a member of the State Senate of Ohio in 1863, 1864, 1865, and 1866; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,783 votes against 9,945 votes for Moore, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 13,631 votes against 11,502 votes for Sands, Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress as a Republican, receiving 11,324 votes against 10,249 votes for R. Leete, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1867, to March 3, 1873.

Wilson, Nathan, was born in Washington County, New York; resided at Salem; was elected a representative from New York in the Tenth Congress (in place of David Thomas, resigned), serving from November 7, 1808, to March 3, 1809.

Wilson, Robert, resided at St. Joseph, Missouri; was appointed a United-States senator from Missouri (in place of Waldo Porter Johnson, expelled) as a Unionist, serving from January 24, 1862, to December 14, 1863, when B. Gratz Brown, who had been elected Mr. Johnson's successor, took his seat.

Wilson, Stephen F., was born at Columbia, Pennsylvania, September 4, 1821; received an academic education; was a teacher; studied and practised law; was assessor; was school-director six years; was a member of the State Senate in 1863, 1864, and 1865, serving one session after he had been elected to Congress; was a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Baltimore in 1864; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 11,533 votes against 10,681 votes for Theodore Wright, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress as a Republican, receiving 14,734 votes against 12,688 votes for Wright, Democrat, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1869.

Wilson, Thomas (father of E. C. Wilson, and grandfather of E. M. Wilson), was born in Virginia; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Twelfth Congress as a Federalist, defeating Benjamin Reeder, Democrat, serving from November 4, 1811, to March 3, 1813; died January 24, 1836.

Wilson, Thomas, was born in 1772; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 3, 1817; died at Erie, Pennsylvania, October 4, 1824.

Wilson, William, was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fourteenth Congress, and was re-elected to the Fifteenth Congress, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1819.

Wilson, William, was born in Hillsborough County, New Hampshire; received a public-school education; removed to Ohio, and located at Newark; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress, receiving a majority of 1,029 votes; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1827; died at Newark, New Hampshire, of illness contracted at Washington City, May 29, 1827.

Winans, James January, was born at Maysville, Kentucky, June 7, 1818; had a common-school education; studied law in Kentucky, and practised at Xenia, Ohio; was appointed clerk of the courts of Greene County in June, 1845; was elected to the State Senate in 1857, and to the State House in 1863; was appointed judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1864, and elected to fill the vacancy in the same year, and was re-elected for the full term of five years in 1866; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 13,978 votes against 13,873 votes for Thomas, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871.

Winchester, Boyd, was born in the parish of Ascension, Louisiana, September 23, 1836; educated at Centre College, Danville, Kentucky, and at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville; graduated at the Law University of Louisville, Kentucky, in 1857, and commenced practice at Louisville; was elected to the State Senate of Kentucky in August, 1867; was nominated district-electoral on the Seymour presidential ticket in 1868; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, and was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 10,599 votes against 5,426 votes for J. Speed, Republican, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1873.

Windom, William, was born in Belmont County, Ohio, May 10, 1827; received an academic education; studied law at Mount Vernon, Ohio; practised his profession in that State and in Minnesota until 1859; was elected prosecuting-attorney for Knox County in 1852; removed to Minnesota in 1855; was elected a representative from Minnesota in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 21,016 votes against 17,417 votes for Graham, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,663 votes against 6,423 votes for Chatfield, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 13,965 votes against 9,092 votes for Lamberton, Democrat; was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 13,961 votes against 8,021 votes for Jones, Democrat; was appointed by the governor of Minnesota in July, 1870, to fill the unexpired term of Hon. Daniel S. Norton, deceased, in the Senate of the United States, was elected a United-States senator as a Republican, and took his seat March 4, 1871. His term of service expired March 3, 1877.

Winfield, Charles H., was born at Crawford, New York, April 22, 1822; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1846, and commenced practice at Goshen, New York; was district-attorney for Orange County 1850-1856; was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,326 votes against 7,572 votes for Fullerton, Republican; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,976 votes against 9,736 votes for Murray, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1867.

Wing, Austin E., was born in Hampshire County, Massachusetts, in 1791; received a public-school education; removed to Michigan, and was one of the first English settlers at Detroit; was elected a delegate from Michigan Territory in the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; removed to Monroe, where he held several local offices; was again elected to the Twenty-second Congress, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; after the admission of Michigan as a State, was United-States marshal for that district; died at Cleveland, Ohio, August 25, 1849.

Wingate, Joseph F., was born in the Maine District of Massachusetts; received a public-school education; was trained for business pursuits, and became a merchant at Bath, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1818-1819; was collector of customs at the port of Bath 1820-1824; was elected a representative from Maine in the Twentieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831.

Wingate, Paine, was born at Amesbury, Massachusetts, May 14, 1739; received a liberal education; graduated at Harvard College in 1759, and studied theology; was ordained as minister of the Congregational Church at Hampton Falls, New Hampshire, December 14, 1763, and preached there until he was dismissed March 18, 1781; removed to Stratham, New Hampshire, and became a farmer; was elected to the House of Representatives of New Hampshire; was a delegate from New Hampshire in the Continental Congress 1787-1788; was elected a United-States senator from New Hampshire, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 2, 1793; was elected a representative from New Hampshire in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1795; was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of New Hampshire, serving 1798-1809; died at Stratham, New Hampshire, March 7, 1838.

Winslow, Warren, was born at Fayetteville, North Carolina, January 1, 1810; received a classical education, graduating at Chapel-Hill University in 1827; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Fayetteville; was appointed in 1854, by President Pierce, a confidential agent to Madrid, bearing despatches concerning "The Black Warrior" difficulty; during his absence he was elected a member of the State Senate; after his return he was elected speaker of that body, and, as such, he became acting governor when Governor Reid was elected to the United-States Senate; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,929 votes against 4,853 votes for Reid, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,338 votes against 1,487 votes scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 4,186 votes against 949 votes for McDuffie, Independent Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861; died at Fayetteville, North Carolina, June 11, 1863.

Winston, John Anthony, was governor of the State of Alabama 1853-1857; was elected to the United-States Senate by the legislature of Alabama in 1865 for six years, commencing March 4, 1867; and his credentials were presented January 30, 1867, but he was not admitted to a seat.

Winston, Joseph, was born in Virginia in 1746; was distinguished for gallantry in the frontier war with the Indians; removed to Stokes County, North Carolina, in 1766; served in the campaign against the Cherokee Indians; was major of a Revolutionary regiment raised to suppress the Tories; commanded the right wing at the battle of King's Mountain in October, 1780, and had a sword voted to him by the legislature of North Carolina for his bravery there; was State senator in 1790, 1791, 1802, 1807, and 1812; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Third Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, until March 3, 1795; was again elected to the Eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Ninth Congress, serving from October 17, 1803, until March 3, 1807; died near German-town, North Carolina, in 1814.

Winter, Elisha J., was elected a representative from New York in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815.

Winthrop, Robert Charles, was born at Boston, Massachusetts, May 12, 1809; received a classical education, graduating at Harvard College in 1828; studied law with Daniel Webster; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Boston; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1835-1840, serving the last three years as speaker; was elected a representative from Massachusetts in the Twenty-sixth Congress (in place of Abbott Lawrence, resigned) as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from December 7, 1840, to May 25, 1842, when he resigned; was subsequently re-elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress (in place of Nathan Appleton, resigned); was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress; was re-elected to the Thirtieth Congress, receiving 5,980 votes against 1,688 votes for Homer, Democrat, and 1684 votes Abolition and scattering; was re-elected to the Thirty-first Congress, receiving 7,726 votes against 2,336 votes for Sumner, Democrat, and 1,460 votes for Hallett, Cass Democrat, serving from December 5, 1842, to July 30, 1850, when, having been appointed a United-States senator from Massachusetts (in place of Daniel Webster, resigned), he took his seat in the Senate, serving to February 7, 1851, when the successor to Mr. Webster took his seat; was speaker of the House of Representatives during the Thirtieth Congress and a part of the Thirty-first Congress; is president of the Massachusetts Historical Society, a trustee of the Peabody Educational Fund, and a member of other literary, religious, and philanthropic associations. He published "Addresses and Speeches" 1852 and 1857, "Memoir of Nathan Appleton" 1861, "Life and Letters of John Winthrop" (two volumes) 1867, and a number of public addresses.

Wirt, William, was born at Bladensburg, Maryland (where his father kept a hotel, at which Washington was a frequent guest), November 8, 1782; received a classical education; was a private tutor; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1792, and commenced practice at Culpepper Court House, Virginia; was clerk of the House of Delegates 1794-1802; was elected chancellor of the Eastern District of Virginia in 1802, but resigned in 1804, and settled at Norfolk, where he resumed practice; moved back to Richmond in 1806; was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates in 1807; was appointed United-States district-attorney for Virginia by President Madison in 1816; was appointed attorney-general of the United States by President Monroe December 15, 1817, and re-appointed by President Adams March 4, 1825, serving through the administration, and leaving behind him three volumes of official opinions; removed to Baltimore in 1830; was the biographer of Patrick Henry, and wrote several other popular books; was nominated for the presidency by the Baltimore Anti-Masonic Convention in 1832, and received seven electoral votes; died at Washington City February 18, 1834. He published "The British Spy" (a series of descriptive letters which originally appeared in "The Richmond Argus"), "The Life of Patrick Henry," and a large number of essays which appeared in the Richmond newspapers. His "Life," by J. P. Kennedy, was published in 1849.

Wise, Henry Alexander, was born at Drummond Town, Virginia, December 3, 1806; received a classical education, graduating at Washington College, Pennsylvania, in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar at Winchester, Virginia, in 1828, and commenced practice at Nashville, Tennessee, returning in 1830 to his native county of Accomack, Virginia, where he afterwards practised; was elected a representative from Virginia in the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Congresses as a Jackson Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh Congresses as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Tyler Democrat, defeating Hill Carter, Whig, serving from December 2, 1833, to February 18, 1844, when he resigned to accept the mission to Brazil; while a member of the House, he mortally wounded Richard Coke of Virginia, who had been his opponent, in a duel, February 17, 1836; was instrumental in bringing about the Graves-Ciley duel, in which Ciley was shot dead in 1838, and assaulted Edward Stanley on the floor of the House in 1843; was appointed by President Tyler minister to Brazil, serving February 8, 1844-August 28, 1847; was a presidential elector on the Cass and Butler ticket in 1848; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850; was a presidential elector on the Pierce and King ticket in 1852; was governor of the State of Virginia 1856-1860; was a delegate to the State Secession Convention of February, 1861; entered the Confederate army as colonel of Wise's Legion; was appointed, June 5, 1861, a brigadier-general, and assigned to the command of a brigade composed of four Virginia regiments of infantry and two light batteries; was defeated at the battle of Gauley Bridge and at the battle of Roanoke Island; resumed the practice of law at Richmond, Virginia; died there September 5, 1876.

Wisner, Henry, was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1774-1776; he was present, and voted for independence, but his term had expired before the engrossed parchment copy of the Declaration was signed.

Witcher, John S., was born in Cabell County (then in Virginia, now West Virginia) July 15, 1839; was brought up on a farm; received a public-school education; was in 1861 elected clerk of the Circuit Court of Cabell County under the restored government of Virginia, and served some six months, when he resigned; entered the Union army as second lieutenant, and rose by degrees, serving in every rank, to that of colonel of his regiment; was appointed brevet brigadier-general for gallant and meritorious services upon the field during the Shenandoah-Valley campaign under Sheridan in 1864, and in the final campaign around Richmond and Petersburg, Virginia, in the spring of 1865, especially at the battle of Ford's Station, on the Southside Railroad; was mustered out of the United-States service on the 30th of June, 1865; was elected to the State legislature in October, 1865; was elected secretary of state of West Virginia in October, 1866, and served until March 4, 1869; was elected a director of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad in the fall of 1868; was elected a representative from West Virginia in the Forty-first Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,214 votes against 4,805 votes for Moore, Democrat, serving from March 4, 1869, to March 3, 1871; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Forty-second Congress, receiving 7,189 votes against 8,982 votes for Frank Hereford, Democrat.

Witherell, James, was born in Vermont; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1798-1803; was an executive councillor 1803-1807; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Tenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from October 26, 1807, to May 1, 1808, when he resigned, having been appointed by President Jefferson United-States judge for the Territory of Michigan, where he resided until his death.

Withers, Robert E., was born in Campbell County, Virginia, September 18, 1821; graduated in the medical department of the University of Virginia in 1841; practised his profession in his native county until 1858, when he removed to Danville, Virginia, where he prosecuted his practice until the commencement of the civil war; was a Whig in politics, and a Union man until the passage of the ordinance of secession by Virginia; entered the Confederate army as major of infantry in April, 1861, and during the same year was promoted colonel of the Eighteenth Virginia Regiment, which he commanded until retired in consequence of numerous disabling wounds, and appointed to command the post at Danville, Virginia, which position he held until the close of the war; removed in January, 1866, to Lynchburg, Virginia, and established a daily political paper devoted to the interests of the Conservative party, which he continued to edit until 1868, when he was nominated for governor by the Conservative Convention at Richmond, and canvassed the State in opposition to the Underwood Constitution, which the military authorities refused to submit to a vote of the people; in 1869 he withdrew in favor of Gilbert C. Walker, nominated for governor by the Liberal Republicans; he was appointed elector for the State at large on the Greeley ticket in 1872; was grand master of Freemasons for the State of Virginia; in 1873 was elected lieutenant-governor as a Conservative, receiving 27,546 majority over his Republican competitor, C. P. Ramsdell; was elected United-States senator from Virginia as a Conservative (to succeed John F. Lewis, Republican), and took his seat March 4, 1875. His term of service will expire March 3, 1881.

Witherspoon, John, was born at Yester,

Scotland, February 5, 1722; received a classical education, graduating at the University of Edinburgh in 1743; studied theology; was licensed to preach, and settled at Beith; espoused the cause of the Pretender, and commanded a company at the battle of Falkirk, where he was taken prisoner; was settled in 1757 over a church at Paisley; was invited in 1767 to the presidency of Princeton College, New Jersey, and was inaugurated August 17, 1768; took an active part in pre-Revolutionary movements; was a delegate to the New-Jersey Convention for framing a State Constitution; was a delegate from New Jersey to the Continental Congress 1776-1783; visited England in 1783-1784 to collect funds for Princeton College; died near Princeton, New Jersey, November 15, 1794. He published "Essays on Important Subjects" 1764, "Essay on Money" 1779, "The Druid" 1781, and a number of religious and political pamphlets. His works were published in four volumes at Philadelphia, and in nine volumes at Edinburgh.

Witherspoon, Robert, was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Eleventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 393 majority over Gourdin, Federalist, serving from May 22, 1809, to March 3, 1811.

Witte, William Henry, was born in Morris County, New Jersey, May 7, 1818, but removed in early life to Bucks County, Pennsylvania, where he received a public-school education; removed in 1840 to Philadelphia, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits, and the improvement of real estate in the suburbs; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,843 votes against 4,546 votes for Lambert, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Pennsylvania in 1857, 1860, and 1863, but was defeated each year by a few votes; established and edited "The Commonwealth," a weekly Democratic newspaper, in 1874; died at Philadelphia November 24, 1876.

Wolcott, Erastus (brother of Oliver Wolcott), was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, September 21, 1722; served as brigadier-general in the war of the Revolution; was a judge of the State Supreme Court of Connecticut; was chosen a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress, but did not serve; died at Litchfield, Connecticut, September 14, 1793.

Wolcott, Oliver (brother of Edgar Wolcott), was born at Windsor, Connecticut, November 26, 1726; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1747; marched to the defence of the northern frontier of New York as captain of a volunteer corps; returned to Connecticut, and studied medicine with his brother, Dr. Alexander Wolcott; was appointed the first sheriff of Litchfield County in 1751; was an assistant executive councillor 1774-1786; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas and of the Litchfield-county Probate Court; was a major-general of militia; was appointed by the Continental Congress in 1775 one of the commissioners to secure the neutrality of the Northern Indian tribes; was a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress 1775-1778 and 1780-1784, serving during a portion of the time in the field, and especially distinguishing himself at the battle of Saratoga; was lieutenant-governor of Connecticut 1786-1796; was governor of Connecticut 1796-1797; died at Litchfield, Connecticut, December 1, 1797.

Wolf, George, was born at Allen Township, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, August 12, 1777; received a classical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Easton, Pennsylvania; was initiated into Freemasonry in Easton Lodge, No. 120; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Eighteenth Congress (in place of Thomas T. Rogers, resigned) as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Nineteenth and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 9, 1824, to March 3, 1829; was appointed first comptroller of the treasury of the United States, serving June 18, 1836–February 23, 1838; was appointed in 1838 collector of customs at the port of Philadelphia; died at Philadelphia March 14, 1840.

Wolf, William P., was born in Stark County, Ohio, December 1, 1833; received a public-school education; studied law; removed to Iowa in 1856; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Tipton, Iowa, in 1859; was superintendent of public schools; was a member of the State legislature in 1863 and 1864; entered the Union army as captain of infantry in an Iowa regiment; was severely wounded in the Tennessee campaign; was appointed assistant assessor of internal revenue in 1865; was a member of the State Senate in 1867; was elected a representative from Iowa in the Forty-first Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William Smyth), serving from December 6, 1870, to March 3, 1871.

Wolfe, Simeon K., was born in Floyd County, Indiana, February 14, 1824; his early education was good, but not collegiate; graduated in the law department of the University of Indiana at Bloomington in March, 1850, and has since been engaged in the practice of law; was a presidential elector in 1856 for James Buchanan; was elected to the State Senate of Indiana in 1860, and served four years; was a delegate to the Charleston and Baltimore Democratic National Conventions in 1860; was colonel of the Indiana militia in 1861; was editor and proprietor of "The Corydon Democrat" from 1857 to 1865; was a candidate for presidential elector for the State at large on the McClellan ticket in 1864; removed in September, 1870, from Corydon to New Albany, his present residence; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 19,336 votes against 13,652 votes for D. W. Voyles, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Wood, Abiel, was born at Wiscasset, the Maine District of Massachusetts, in 1772; received a public-school education; engaged in mercantile pursuits; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives 1807–1811; was elected a representative from the Maine District of Massachusetts in the Thirteenth Congress as a Federalist (defeating Foot, War Democrat), serving from May 24, 1813, to March 2, 1815; was again a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1816; was a delegate to the Convention which framed the State Constitution of Maine in 1819; was a State councillor of Maine in 1820 and 1821; died at Belfast, Maine, November 2, 1834.

Wood, Alan, jun., was born at Philadelphia July 6, 1834; received a liberal academic education; is largely interested in the manufacture of iron at Conshohocken and other places; is president of the First National Bank of Conshohocken; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,630 votes against 11,432 votes for Ephraim L. Acker, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Wood, Amos E., was born at Ellisburg County, New York, in 1810; received a public-school education; removed with his father in 1825 to Portage County, Ohio; located permanently in 1833 on a farm in Sandusky County, which he cleared himself, and on which he resided during the remainder of his life; was for two years a member of the State House of Representatives, and for one year a member of the State Senate; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-first Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rudolphus Dickinson before taking his seat) as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to November 19, 1850, when he died at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Wood, Benjamin, was born at Shelbyville,

Kentucky, October 13, 1820; received a public-school education; removed to the city of New York; published and edited "The Daily News;" was elected a representative from New York in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,892 votes against 4,585 votes for Williamson, Republican, and 675 votes for Savage, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 7,828 votes against 4,535 votes for H. Walbridge, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1865; was a member of the State Senate in 1866 and 1867.

Wood, Bradford R., was born in Connecticut; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Albany, New York; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,058 votes against 6,967 votes for Wheaton, Whig, and 98 votes for Barker, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847; was appointed by President Lincoln minister to Denmark, serving March 22, 1861–November 18, 1865.

Wood, Fernando, was born of Quaker parentage in the city of Philadelphia June 14, 1812; his father removed to New York in 1820, where he afterwards resided; when nineteen years of age he commenced business as a shipping-merchant, in which occupation he was entirely successful, retiring with an ample fortune in 1850; was three times elected mayor of New York, serving in that office during the years 1855, 1856, 1857, 1861, and 1862; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 21,730 votes against 20,838 votes for T. Prescott Hall, Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was again elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,176 votes against 3,458 votes for Duffy, Republican, serving from December 7, 1863, to March 3, 1865; was again elected to the Fortieth Congress as an Independent candidate without any nomination, receiving 9,665 votes against 7,995 votes for Darling, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,648 votes against 9,087 votes for Thomas, Republican, and 1,759 votes for Savage, Independent Democrat; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 15,630 votes against 3,708 votes for M. Ellinger, Republican, and 4,789 votes for W. S. Hillyer, Young Democrat and Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 10,526 votes against 9,641 votes for W. A. Darling, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 8,763 votes against 6,428 votes for John Hardy, Independent Democrat, and 2,131 votes for Robert S. Newton, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 14,280 votes against 8,217 votes for George W. De Cunha, Republican, serving from March 4, 1867.

Wood, John, was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1816; received a public-school education; engaged in commercial pursuits, devoting himself chiefly to the manufacture of iron; was elected (against his wishes) a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-sixth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,701 votes against 7,209 votes for Jones, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861.

Wood, John J., was born in Rockland County, New York; resided at Clarkstown; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Jackson Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829.

Wood, John M., was born at Minnisink, New York, November 17, 1813; received a public-school education; became a contractor for the construction of railroads and other public works; resided at Portland, Maine; was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Maine in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,227 votes against 6,196 votes for Samuel Wells, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 11,215 votes against 9,776 votes for J. S. Little, Coalition, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1859; died at Boston, Massachusetts, December 24, 1864.

Wood, Joseph, was a delegate from Georgia to the Continental Congress 1777-1779.

Wood, Silas, was born in Suffolk County, New York, in 1769; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1789; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Huntington; was elected a representative from New York in the Sixteenth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth Congresses, serving from December 6, 1819, to March 3, 1829; died at Huntington, New York, March 2, 1847. He published "A History of Long Island."

Woodbridge, Frederick E., was born at Vergennes, Vermont, August 29, 1818; graduated at the University of Vermont in 1840; studied law with his father, Hon. E. D. Woodbridge; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Vergennes; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1849, 1857, and 1858; was many times chosen mayor of the city of Vergennes; was State auditor in 1850, 1851, and 1852; was prosecuting-attorney in 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857, and 1858; engaged in railroad management, and was several years vice-president and the active manager of the Rutland and Washington Railroad; was a member of the State Senate of Vermont in 1860 and 1861, and in 1861 was chosen president pro tempore of that body; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Thirty-eighth Congress as a Republican, receiving 8,565 votes against 3,486 votes for White, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 9,447 votes against 3,671 votes for Wells, Democrat; and was re-elected to the Fortieth Congress, receiving 10,568 votes against 3,036 votes for Wells, Democrat.

Woodbridge, William, was born at Norwich, Connecticut, August 20, 1780; received a public-school education; removed with his father to Marietta, Ohio, in 1791; returned to Connecticut; studied law at Litchfield, and was admitted to the bar in 1806; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1807; was prosecuting-attorney for New-London County 1808-1814; was a member of the State Senate 1808-1814; was appointed in 1814 by President Madison secretary of Michigan Territory, and removed to Detroit; was elected a delegate from Michigan Territory in the Sixteenth Congress, serving from December 10, 1819, to 1820, when he resigned; was judge of the Superior Court of Michigan Territory 1823-1832; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1835; was a member of the State Senate in 1837; was governor of Michigan 1840-1841; was elected a United-States senator from Michigan, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1847; died at Detroit, Michigan, October 20, 1861. His "Life" was published by Charles Lanman in 1867.

Woodburn, William, was born in Wicklow County, Ireland, in 1838; immigrated to Maryland, and was a student at St. Charles College, near Baltimore; removed to California in 1855, and subsequently to Nevada; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1865, and practised at Virginia City; was district-attorney for Storey County in 1871-1872; was elected a representative from Nevada in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 9,317 votes against 8,567 votes for Ellis, Democrat, serving from December 6, 1875, to March 3, 1877.

Woodbury, Levi, was born at Francistown, New Hampshire, December 22, 1780; received a classical education, graduating at Dartmouth College in 1809; studied law at Judge Gould's Litchfield Law School, and with Hon. S. Dana and Judge Smith of Exeter; was admitted to the bar in 1812, and commenced practice at Francistown; was chosen clerk of the State Senate in 1816; was appointed judge of the Superior Court of New Hampshire in 1816; removed to Portsmouth in 1819; was governor of New Hampshire in 1823-1824; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1825, and was chosen speaker; was elected to the United-States Senate as a Democrat, and served from December 5, 1825, until March 3, 1831; was elected State senator March 7, 1831, but declined; was appointed by President Jackson secretary of the navy in April, 1831; was transferred to the Treasury Department June 27, 1834, and, having been re-appointed by President Van Buren, served until March 3, 1841; was appointed during this time chief justice of the Superior Court of New Hampshire, but declined; was again elected to the United-States Senate, and served from March 4, 1841, until November 20, 1845, when (having declined the British mission) he was appointed by President Polk justice of the Supreme Court of the United States (in place of Joseph Story, deceased); the nomination was confirmed by the Senate January 3, 1846, and he served until he died at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, September 7, 1851.

Woodcock, David, was born in Berkshire County, Massachusetts; received a public-school education; removed to Seneca County, New York, and afterwards to Ithaca, Tompkins County, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1814-1815; was elected a representative from New York in the Seventeenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was again a member of the State House of Representatives in 1826; was again elected to the Twentieth Congress (defeating Charles Humphrey), serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829.

Woodford, Stewart L., was born at New-York City September 3, 1835; was educated at Columbia-College Grammar School; attended Yale and Columbia Colleges, and graduated at Columbia in 1854; read law, and has, since 1857, practised his profession in New-York City; was appointed assistant attorney for the United States at New York in 1861; enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Regiment New-York Volunteers in 1862; was promoted to the lieutenant-colonelcy of that regiment, and subsequently became colonel and brigadier-general; served in the Army of the Potomac, then in the Department of the South; was the first Union military commandant of Charleston, South Carolina, and afterward of Savannah, Georgia; was chief of staff in the Department of the South, &c.; was elected lieutenant-governor of the State of New York in 1866; was elected presidential elector at large, and was president of the Electoral College in 1872; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,171 votes against 11,506 votes for W. W. Goodrich, Democrat and Liberal, serving from December 1, 1873, to July 1, 1874, when he resigned; was appointed by President Hayes United-States attorney for the Southern District of New York.

Woodruff, George C., was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, December 1, 1805; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1825; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1827; commenced practice at Litchfield; was postmaster at Litchfield for fourteen years; was a member of the State House of Representatives, and clerk of that body; was judge of probate for Litchfield County; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,739 votes against 11,668 votes for O. S. Ferry, Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 10,892 votes against 11,248 votes for J. H. Hubbard, Republican.

Woodruff, John, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, February 12, 1826; received a public-school education; was a member of the State legislature in 1854; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Thirty-fourth Congress as an American, receiving 9,876 votes against 7,918 votes for Arnold, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857; was elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, serving from December 5, 1859, to March 3, 1861; was collector of internal revenue for the Second District of Connecticut; died at New Haven, Connecticut, May 20, 1868.

Woodruff, Thomas M., was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as an American, receiving 6,214 votes against 6,009 votes for Leonard, Democrat, and 273 votes for Scoles, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Woods, Henry, was born in Pennsylvania; took an active part in the Revolutionary struggle; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Sixth Congress; and was re-elected to the Seventh Congress, serving from December 2, 1790, to March 3, 1803.

Woods, John, was born in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, in 1794; removed with his father to Ohio when he was a child; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810; commenced practice at Hamilton, Ohio; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Nineteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1829; was the editor and publisher of "The Hamilton Intelligencer" 1829-1832; resumed his profession, and practised until 1845, when he was elected State auditor; died at Hamilton, Ohio, July 30, 1855.

Woods, William, was born in Washington County, New York, in 1790; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1823-1825; was elected a representative from New York in the Eighteenth Congress (defeating Osborn), serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1825; died at Bath, New York, August 7, 1837.

Woodson, Samuel H., resided at Lexington, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Seventeenth Congress, receiving a majority of 1,631 votes over Stephen Richardson, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was defeated as a candidate for the Eighteenth Congress by Thomas P. Moore.

Woodson, Samuel H., was born in Jessamine County, Kentucky, October 24, 1815; received a classical education, graduating at Centre College; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Independence, Missouri; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1853 and 1854; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1855; was elected a representative from Missouri in the Thirty-fifth Congress as an American, receiving 6,006 votes against 4,684 votes for Douglas, Democrat, and 3,755 votes for Price, Benton Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 7,942 votes against 6,947 votes for J. W. Reid, Democrat, and 2,038 votes for Smith, Independent, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1861.

Woodward, Joseph A., was born in South Carolina; resided at Winnsborough; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a State-rights Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, and Thirty-second Congresses, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1851.

Woodward, George W., was born at Bethany, Pennsylvania, March 26, 1809; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1831, and practised at Wilkesbarre; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1837; was president-judge of the Fourth Judicial District 1841-1851; was the Democratic caucus nominee in 1844 for the United-States Senate, but was defeated by Simon Cameron; was judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania 1852-1867; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor in 1863 by A. G. Curtin, Republican; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat (in the place of Charles Denison, deceased), receiving 12,623 votes against 12,078 votes for Ketcham, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress, receiving 16,687 votes against 14,898 votes for Strong, Republican, serving from November 21, 1867, to March 3, 1871; was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at New York in 1868; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; travelled in Europe, and died at Rome, in Italy, May 10, 1875.

Woodward, William, was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Fourteenth Congress without opposition, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817.

Woodworth, James H., was born at Greenwich, New York, December 4, 1804; received a public-school education; lived on a farm until he was twenty-one years of age; removed to Fabius, New York; taught school for a few months, and then engaged in mercantile pursuits; removed in 1827 to Erie, Pennsylvania, and thence in 1833 to Chicago, Illinois; was a member of the State Senate in 1839, and of the State House of Representatives in 1842; was a member of the city government of Chicago 1845-1850, serving two years as mayor; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 6,927 votes against 2,544 votes for Turner, Democrat, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1857.

Woodworth, Laurin D., was born at Windham, Ohio, September 10, 1837; was educated at Windham Academy and Hiram College; was admitted to the bar September 19, 1859, and practised at Ravenna, and subsequently at Youngstown, Ohio, to which place he removed in 1864; he was a major in the army in the war for the Union; was elected to the Senate of Ohio in 1867, and re-elected in 1869; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Forty-third Congress as a Republican, receiving 15,368 votes against 13,106 votes for R. Brown, Democrat, Prohibitionist, and Liberal; was re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, receiving 11,113 votes against 10,837 votes for Wilson, Democrat, and 445 votes for Paine, Prohibitionist, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

Woodworth, William W., was born in Connecticut; removed to New York, and located at Hyde Park; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,340 votes against 6,710 votes for Rankin, Whig, and 35 votes for Knevels, Abolitionist, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Worcester, Samuel T., was born at Hollis, New Hampshire, August 30, 1804; received a classical education, graduating at Cambridge University in 1830; was preceptor of the Weymouth Academy 1830-1832; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1834, and commenced practice at Norwalk, Ohio; was a member of the State Senate 1848-1849; was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1859-1860; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Thirty-seventh Congress as a Republican, serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863.

Word, Thomas J., was born in Surry County, North Carolina; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1832; removed to Mississippi, and settled at Pontotoc; was elected a representative in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, on a general ticket with S. S. Prentiss, at a second election, they receiving 12,249 votes against 11,306 votes for their Democratic opponents, serving from May 30, 1838, to March 3, 1839.

Worman, Ludwig, was born in Bucks County, Pennsylvania; received a public-school education; learned the tanner's trade, and became a dealer in hides and leather; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Seventeenth Congress as a Federalist, serving from December 3, 1821, to September 21, 1822, when he died at Pottstown.

Wortendyke, Jacob R., was born at Chestnut

Ridge, New Jersey, November 27, 1818; received a classical education, graduating at Rutgers College in 1839; was for ten years a teacher of mathematics and the classics; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice at Jersey City; was a member of the board of aldermen; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,099 votes against 6,481 votes for A. Dodd, Republican, and 5,638 votes for F. B. Betts, American, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; died at Jersey City, New Jersey, November 7, 1868.

Worthington, H. G., was born at Cumberland, Maryland, February 9, 1828; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1851, and commenced practice in Tuolumne County, California; travelled in Central America and Mexico, and, on his return to California, located at San Francisco; was a member of the California House of Representatives in 1861; removed in 1862 to Nevada, locating at Austin; was elected a delegate to the Thirty-eighth Congress from Nevada Territory, serving from December 7, 1863, to December 21, 1864, when he took his seat as a representative from the new State of Nevada, serving to March 3, 1865; was appointed by President Johnson minister to Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, serving from July 25, 1868, to July 8, 1869.

Worthington, John T. H., was born in Maryland; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Twenty-second Congress as a Democrat, receiving 2,462 votes against 2,077 votes for Brown, Whig, serving from December 5, 1831, to March 2, 1833; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Congresses by James Turner, Democrat; was again elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress, defeating James Turner; was re-elected to the Twenty-sixth Congress, receiving a majority of 1,548 votes over James Turner, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1841; died in Baltimore County, Maryland, April 27, 1849.

Worthington, Thomas, was born in Jefferson County, Virginia, July 16, 1774; received a thorough English education; removed to Ohio, and located in Ross County in 1798; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1803; was elected one of the first United-States senators from Ohio as a Democrat (defeating Judge Burnet), serving from October 17, 1803, to March 3, 1807; was again elected a senator (in place of Return Jonathan Meigs, jun., resigned), serving from January 8, 1811, to 1814, when he resigned; was governor of Ohio 1814-1818; was one of the original vice-presidents of the American Bible Society; was a canal commissioner from 1818 until his death at New-York City June 20, 1827.

Worthington, Thomas C., was born in Prince George County, Maryland; resided at Frederick Town; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; died at Frederick Town, Maryland, June 19, 1827.

Wren, Thomas, was born at McArthurstown, Ohio, January 2, 1826; received a common-school education; studied and practised law; was deputy county-clerk of El Dorado County, California, in 1855-1857; was city-attorney of Austin, Nevada, in 1874-1876; was a member of the State legislature of Nevada in 1875; was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress as a Republican, receiving 10,241 votes against 9,330 votes for A. C. Ellis, Democrat, serving from October 15, 1878.

Wright, Augustus B., was born at Wrightsborough, Georgia, June 16, 1813; received a classical education, which was completed at Franklin College, but he did not graduate; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Rome, Georgia; was elected circuit-judge in 1842, and was re-elected, but resigned before the expiration of his second term; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Thirty-fifth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,669 votes against 5,690 votes for Hooper, Independent Democrat, serving from December 7, 1857, to March 3, 1859; was a deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States which met at Montgomery, Alabama, in February, 1861, and adjourned to meet at Richmond in July, 1861; was a representative from Georgia in the First Confederate Congress, serving from February 22, 1862, to February 22, 1864.

Wright, Daniel B., was born in Tennessee; removed to Mississippi, and located at Salem; was elected a representative from Mississippi in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 8,984 votes against 8,414 votes for Nabers, Whig; and was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 7,055 votes against 5,671 votes for Taylor, American, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1857.

Wright, Edwin R. V., was born at Hoboken, New Jersey, January 2, 1812; received an academical education; learned the art of printing; established in 1835 "The Jersey Blue" newspaper at Hoboken; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1839, and practised at Hoboken; was a member of the State Senate in 1843; was district-attorney for Hudson County 1851-1855; was defeated in 1859 as the Democratic candidate for governor; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Thirty-ninth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 13,360 votes against 11,448 votes for Edgar B. Wakeman, Republican, serving from December 4, 1865, to March 3, 1867; died at Jersey City, New Jersey, January 19, 1876.

Wright, George G. (brother of Joseph A. Wright), was born at Bloomington, Indiana, March 24, 1820; was educated at private schools, and graduated at the State University of Indiana in 1839; read law with his brother, Joseph A. Wright, at Rockville, Indiana; removed to Iowa in October, 1840, and commenced practice; served as prosecuting-attorney in 1847-1848; was elected to the State Senate of Iowa in 1849, and served two terms; in 1854 was chosen chief justice of the Supreme Court of the State, and was elected to the same bench by the people (owing to a change of the State Constitution) in 1860, and again in 1865; was a professor in the law department of the State University for six years, commencing in 1865; was elected a United-States senator from Iowa as a Republican (to succeed James B. Howell, Republican, who had been elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of James W. Grimes), and served from March 4, 1871, to March 3, 1877.

Wright, George W., was born at Concord, Massachusetts; received a public-school education; was reared on a farm; engaged in mercantile pursuits in Boston; was connected with "The Boston Courier;" removed to California in 1849, and located at San Francisco; was one of the first representatives elected from the State of California as a Democrat, serving from September 11, 1850, to March 3, 1851.

Wright, Hendrick B., was born at Plymouth, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, April 24, 1806; received his primary education at the Wilkesbarre Grammar School; graduated at Dickinson College in 1820; studied law; was admitted to the bar in November, 1831, and commenced practice at Wilkesbarre; was appointed district-attorney for Luzerne County in 1834 by Attorney-General George M. Dallas; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1841, 1842, and 1843, serving the last year as speaker; was a delegate at large to the National Democratic Convention at Baltimore in 1844 which nominated Polk and Dallas, serving as temporary and permanent chairman; was a delegate to the subsequent National Democratic Conventions which nominated Cass, Pierce, Buchanan, Douglas, Seymour, and Tilden; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Thirty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,523 votes against 7,350 votes for Fuller, Whig, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1855; was again elected to the Thirty-seventh Congress (to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George W. Scranton), serving from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863; was again elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 13,557 votes against 12,101 votes for H. B. Payne, Republican, serving from October 15, 1877. He published "A Practical Treatise on Labor" 1871, and "Historical Sketches of Plymouth County" 1873.

Wright, John C., was born at Wethersfield, Connecticut, in 1783; received an academical education; learned the art of printing; edited "The Troy Gazette" at Troy, New York; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Steubenville, Ohio; was for many years a judge of the State Supreme Court; was elected a representative from Ohio in the Eighteenth Congress as an Adams Democrat, receiving 393 majority over J. McLaughlin; was re-elected to the Nineteenth Congress, receiving a large majority over Mr. Bebee; was re-elected to the Twentieth Congress, receiving 2,344 votes against 2,136 votes for J. M. Goodenow, Jackson Democrat, serving from December 1, 1823, to March 3, 1829; was defeated as a Clay Democratic candidate for the Twenty-first Congress, receiving 2,232 votes against 3,146 votes for J. M. Goodenow, Jackson Democrat; was for some years the editor and proprietor of "The Cincinnati Gazette;" was a delegate to the Peace Congress held at Washington in February, 1861; and died at Washington, before its final adjournment, February 13, 1861. He published "Supreme-Court Reports of Ohio, 1831-1834."

Wright, John V., was born in McNairy County, Tennessee, June 28, 1828; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Purdy, Tennessee; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 7,927 votes against 5,922 votes for Kendrick, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 8,620 votes against 1,665 votes for McElrath, American; was re-elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress, receiving 9,380 votes against 2,711 votes for Gibbs, Opposition, serving from December 3, 1855, to March 3, 1861.

Wright, Joseph A. (brother of George G. Wright), was born in Pennsylvania April 17, 1810; received a classical education at the University of Indiana, acting as janitor; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Rockville, Indiana; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1833, and of the State Senate in 1840; was elected a representative from Indiana in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 5,441 votes against 5,438 votes for E. W. McGaughey, Whig, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1845; was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 6,012 votes against 6,183 votes for E. W. McGaughey, Whig; was governor of the State of Indiana 1849-1857; was appointed by President Buchanan minister to Prussia, serving from June 1, 1857, to July 1, 1861; was United-States commissioner to the International Exhibition at Hamburg in 1863; was again appointed minister to Prussia by President Lincoln, serving from June 30, 1863, until his death at Berlin, Prussia, May 11, 1867.

Wright, Robert, was born in Kent County, Maryland; received a public-school education; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised at Queenstown; was elected a United-States senator from Maryland as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1801, to 1806, when he resigned; was elected a representative from Maryland in the Eleventh Congress (in place of John Brown, resigned); and was re-elected to the Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fourteenth Congresses, serving from December 3, 1810, to March 3, 1817; was again elected to the Seventeenth Congress, serving from December 3, 1821, to March 3, 1823; was appointed district-judge, vice Warrall, resigned; died at Queenstown, Maryland, September 7, 1826.

Wright, Samuel G., was born in 1787; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-ninth Congress, but died before taking his seat, near Allentown, New Jersey, July 30, 1845.

Wright, Silas, jun., was born at Amherst, Massachusetts, May 24, 1795; was reared on his father's farm at Weybridge, Vermont; received a classical education, graduating at Middlebury College in 1815; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at Canton, New York, in 1819; was appointed surrogate of Rockland County February 4, 1821-January 1, 1824; was a member of the State Senate 1824-1827; was elected a representative from New York in the Twentieth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1829; successfully contested the election of George Fisher in the Twenty-first Congress, but refused to take his seat, preferring to act as comptroller of the State of New York January 27, 1829-January 11, 1833; was elected a United-States senator from New York (in place of William L. Marcy, resigned), serving from January 14, 1833, to December 1, 1844, when he resigned, having been elected governor; was governor of the State of New York 1844-1846; was defeated for re-election as governor; retired to his farm of thirty acres at Canton, which he cultivated until he died there August 27, 1847. His "Life and Times" was published by Jabez C. Hammond in 1848.

Wright, Turbett, was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1781-1782.

Wright, William, was born at Clarkstown, Rockland County, New York, in 1794; received a public-school education; learned the saddler's trade, and commenced business at Bridgeport in 1815; removed to Newark in 1821; was mayor of Newark in 1840-1843; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Henry Clay Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1847; was defeated in 1847 as the Whig candidate for governor of New Jersey, receiving 32,251 votes against 34,765 votes for Daniel Haines, Democrat; was elected a United-States senator from New Jersey as a Democrat, serving from March 4, 1853, to March 4, 1859; was again elected a senator as a Democrat, serving from December 7, 1863, to November 1, 1866, when he died at Newark, New Jersey.

Wurts, John, was born in Morris County, New Jersey; received a classical education, graduating at Princeton College in 1813; resided in Philadelphia; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Nineteenth Congress, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827; travelled in Europe, and died at Rome, Italy, April 23, 1861.

Wyncoop, Henry, was born in Pennsylvania; was a delegate from Pennsylvania to the Continental Congress 1789; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the First Congress, serving from March 4, 1789, to March 3, 1791.

Wynn, Richard, was born in Virginia; received a public-school education; removed to Georgia, where he participated actively in the Revolutionary war, entering the army as lieutenant, and attaining the rank of major-general; was elected a representative from South Carolina in the Third Congress, and was re-elected to the Fourth Congress, serving from December 2, 1793, to March 3, 1797; was again elected to the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1801, to March 3, 1813; died in 1813.

Wynns, Thomas, was born in Hertford County, North Carolina; was a successful planter; was elected a member of the State House of Representatives in 1787, and to the State Senate in 1790-1800 inclusive; was a presidential elector in 1801; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Seventh Congress (in place of Charles Johnson, deceased), and re-elected to the Eighth and Ninth Congresses, serving from December 7, 1802, to March 3, 1807; was a brigadier-general of militia; was a presidential elector in 1809; died at Winton, North Carolina, June 3, 1825.

Wythe, George, was born in Elizabeth-City County, Virginia, in 1726; his education was principally directed by his mother, but the death of both of his parents before he became of age, and the uncontrolled possession of a large fortune, led him into dissipated habits; at the age of thirty he reformed; studied law, and, soon after his admission to the bar, became eminent; was a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses several years previous to the Revolution; was a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1775; was a member of a commission appointed in 1776 to revise the laws of Virginia; was speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates in 1777, and, during the same year, judge of the High Court of Chancery; on the re-organization of the Court of Equity in 1778 he was appointed sole chancellor, and held the position until 1798; was a presidential elector on the Jefferson tickets in 1801 and 1805; and died June 8, 1806. It was supposed that he was poisoned; but the person suspected was acquitted by a jury. He published "Decisions by the High Court of Chancery."

Yancey, William Lowndes, was born at Ogeechee Shoals, Georgia, August 18, 1814; received an academical education at the North; studied law at Sparta, Georgia, and Greenville, South Carolina; was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice at South Carolina; removed in 1837 to Wetumpka, Alabama, where he edited "The Wetumpka Argus;" was a member of the State House of Representatives; was elected a representative from Alabama in the Twenty-eighth Congress (in place of Dixon H. Lewis, appointed senator) as a State-rights Democrat, defeating Daniel E. Watrous; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress without opposition, serving from December 2, 1844, to September 1, 1846, when he resigned; removed to Montgomery, where he formed a law partnership with John A. Elmore; was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions at Baltimore in 1848, at Cincinnati in 1856, and at Charleston in 1866; was a presidential elector on the Buchanan ticket in 1856; was a delegate to the State Convention of Alabama which met at Montgomery January 7, 1861, and reported the ordinance of secession, which was adopted January 14, 1861; was delegated by the Confederate Provisional Government to visit Europe, and ask the recognition of the Confederate States, sailing from New York in March, 1861; returning in February, 1862, he took his seat in the First Confederate Congress as a senator from Alabama, serving from February 22, 1862, until his death on his plantation near Montgomery, Alabama, July 28, 1863.

Yancy, Bartlett, was born in Virginia; received a classical education, graduating at the University of North Carolina; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and practised; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Thirteenth Congress; was re-elected to the Fourteenth Congress, serving from May 24, 1813, until March 3, 1817, during which time he displayed such talents for presiding that Mr. Speaker Clay often called him to the chair; was elected a State senator in 1817, and annually re-elected until his death, generally presiding as speaker; died in Caswell County, North Carolina, August 30, 1828.

Yancy, Joel, resided at Glasgow, Kentucky; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twentieth Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-first Congress, serving from December 3, 1827, to March 3, 1831.

Yates, Abraham, jun., was born at Albany, New York; was a delegate to the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Provincial Congresses of New York 1775-1777; was a delegate to the Continental Congress 1787-1788.

Yates, John B., was born in New York; resided at Schenectady; was engaged in extensive business and financial operations; was senior manager of the New-York State lotteries during the last years of their existence; was elected a representative from New York in the Fourteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 4, 1815, to March 3, 1817; died at Schenectady in 1823.

Yates, Peter W., was a delegate from New York to the Continental Congress 1785-1787.

Yates, Richard, was born at Warsaw, Kentucky, January 18, 1818; graduated at Illinois College; studied and practised law; was a representative in the legislature of Illinois in 1842, 1843, 1844, 1845, 1848, and 1849; was a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-second Congress as a Whig, receiving 7,008 votes against 6,254 votes for Harris, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-third Congress, receiving 10,105 votes against 9,675 votes for Calhoun, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1851, to March 3, 1855; was defeated as the Republican candidate for the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 9,890 votes against 10,090 votes for T. L. Harris, Democrat; was governor of Illinois from 1861 to 1865; was elected a United-States senator as a Union Republican (to succeed W. A. Richardson, Democrat), serving from December 5, 1865, to March 4, 1871; died at St. Louis, Missouri, December, 1873.

Yeaman, George H., was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, November 1, 1829; received an academical education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1852, and commenced practice at Owensborough, Kentucky; was judge of Davis County in 1854; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1861; was engaged in recruiting a regiment for the Union army in 1862, when he was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Thirty-seventh Congress (in place of James S. Jackson, deceased) as a Unionist; was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, receiving 8,311 votes against 3,087 votes for McHenry, Democrat, serving from December 1, 1862, to March 3, 1865; was defeated as the Union candidate for the Thirty-ninth Congress, receiving 5,786 votes against 6,974 votes for B. C. Ritter, Democrat; was appointed by President Johnson minister to Denmark, serving from August 25, 1865, to November 7, 1870.

Yeates, Jesse J., was born in Hertford County, North Carolina, May 29, 1829; received a collegiate education; is a lawyer; was solicitor of Hertford County 1855-1860; was elected a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina in 1860 as a Whig; served in the Confederate army, and was major of the Thirty-first Regiment North-Carolina troops; was solicitor of the First Judicial Circuit of North Carolina 1861-1866; was elected to the State Constitutional Convention from Hertford County in 1871; was elected a representative from North Carolina in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Conservative Democrat, receiving 14,071 votes against 12,590 votes for Clinton L. Cobb, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 15,466 votes against 14,278 votes for D. McD. Lindsay, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Yell, Archibald, was born in Kentucky in 1797; removed to Fayetteville, Arkansas; was appointed one of the United-States Territorial judges; was elected a representative from Arkansas in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Van Buren Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-fifth Congress (defeating Ringgold), serving from December 6, 1836, to March 3, 1839; was governor of the State of Arkansas 1840-1844; was again elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 1, 1845, to July 1, 1846, when he resigned to serve in the Mexican war; was mustered into service as colonel of the First Arkansas Volunteer Cavalry, and was killed at its head at the battle of Buena Vista February 23, 1847.

Yorke, Thomas J., was born in New Jersey; received a public-school education; was elected a representative from New Jersey in the Twenty-fifth Congress as a Whig, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1839; was refused a seat in the Twenty-sixth Congress, although he had a certificate of election with the "broad seal" of New Jersey; was again elected to the Twenty-seventh Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843.

Yost, Jacob S., was born in Pennsylvania in 1801; was elected a representative from Pennsylvania in the Twenty-eighth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 4,845 votes against 4,022 votes for Huddleson, Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-ninth Congress, serving from December 4, 1843, until March 3, 1847; was appointed by President Buchanan United-States marshal for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania; died at Pottstown, Pennsylvania, March 7, 1872.

Young, Augustus, was born at Arlington, Vermont, March 20, 1785; received an academic education; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1810, and commenced practice at Stow; removed in 1812 to Craftsbury; was a member of the State House of Representatives during twelve successive sessions, and of the State Senate for three terms; was State's attorney for Orleans County, and judge of probate; was elected a representative from Vermont in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, receiving 4,124 votes against 2,789 votes for John Smith, Democrat, serving from May 31, 1841, until March 3, 1843; declining a re-election, he resumed practice, and in 1847 removed to St. Alban's, where he was for several years judge of the County Court; in 1856 he was appointed State naturalist; died at St. Alban's, Vermont, June 17, 1857. He published several scientific works.

Young, Bryan R., was born in Kentucky; resided at Elizabethtown; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Twenty-ninth Congress, receiving 257 majority, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1847.

Young, Casey, was born in Madison County, Tennessee, but, when a small child, removed with his parents to Byhalia, Mississippi, where he was raised and educated; in 1854 he removed to Memphis, Tennessee; studied law; was admitted to the bar in 1856, and entered upon the practice of his profession; was a Douglas Democrat, and took an active part in his support for the presidency in 1860; was opposed to the civil war, against which he spoke and wrote, until the commencement of hostilities; then entered the Tennessee army as a private; was afterward appointed assistant adjutant-general upon the staff of General William H. Carroll, and was subsequently assigned to the command of a regiment of cavalry in General Chalmers's division; upon the close of the war he returned to Memphis, and resumed the practice of law, which he has since continued; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Forty-fourth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 15,871 votes against 10,241 votes for Barbour Lewis, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-fifth Congress, receiving 12,803 votes against 11,966 votes for William M. Randolph, Republican, serving from December 6, 1875.

Young, Ebenezer, was born at Killingly, Connecticut, in 1784; received a classical education, graduating at Yale College in 1806; was a member of the State Senate 1823-1825; was a member of the State House of Representatives 1826-1828; was chosen speaker; was elected a representative from Connecticut in the Twenty-first Congress as a Whig; was re-elected to the Twenty-second and Twenty-third Congresses, serving from December 7, 1829, to March 3, 1835; died at West Killingly, Connecticut, August 18, 1851.

Young, John, was born at Chelsea, Vermont, June 12, 1802; removed with his parents in 1806 to Conesus, New York, where he received a public-school education; studied law with Ambrose Bennett; was admitted to the bar in 1829, and commenced practice at Geneseo, New York; was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1833, 1844, and 1845; was elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-fourth Congress as a Whig (to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Philo T. Fuller), serving from December 6, 1-30, to March 3, 1837; declining a re-election, he resumed his practice; was again elected a representative from New York in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Whig, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1843; was governor of the State of New York 1847-1849; was a delegate to the Whig National Convention of 1848; was appointed, in July, 1849, assistant treasurer of the United States at New York; died in the city of New York April 23, 1852.

Young, John D., was born in Bath County, Kentucky, September 22, 1823; was educated in Bath County; studied law, and was licensed to practice, but became a farmer; was acting marshal of Kentucky under President Pierce's administration; was elected judge of Bath Quarterly Court in 1858; served four years, and was re-elected in 1866, but resigned in 1867, having received the nomination of the Democratic party as a candidate to a seat in the Fortieth Congress; was elected, but refused his seat; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Forty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 9,075 votes against 8,885 votes for J. M. Burns, Republican, serving from December 1, 1873, to March 3, 1875.

Young, Pierce M. B., was born at Spartanburg Court House, South Carolina, in 1838, and was taken to Georgia in 1839; studied law, but was educated as a soldier at the Military Institute of Georgia, and at the United-States Military Academy at West Point; resigned two months before graduating, in 1861, to enter the Confederate-States army as second-lieutenant, and surrendered in 1865 as major-general; was elected a representative from Georgia in the Fortieth Congress as a Democrat, receiving 11,154 votes against 8,054 votes for Adkins, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-first Congress; was re-elected to the Forty-second Congress, receiving 14,674 votes against 5,313 votes for Burnett, Republican; was re-elected to the Forty-third Congress, receiving 8,067 votes against 4,443 votes for J. F. Devor, Republican, serving from July 25, 1868, to March 3, 1875.

Young, Richard M., was one of the first settlers at Quincy, Illinois; was a presidential elector on the Jackson and Calhoun ticket in 1829; was elected a United-States senator from Illinois as a Democrat, serving from September 4, 1837, to March 3, 1843; was appointed by President Polk commissioner of the General Land Office, serving from January 6, 1847, to January 24, 1850 (Abraham Lincoln having been an unsuccessful applicant for his place, which was given to J. Butterfield, also of Illinois); was clerk of the House of Representatives in the Thirty-first Congress (after the death of Thomas Jefferson Campbell), serving from April 17, 1850, to December 1, 1851.

Young, Timothy R., was born in New Hampshire; received a classical education, graduating at Bowdoin College in 1835; removed to Marshall, Illinois; was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-first Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 3, 1849, to March 3, 1851.

Young, William S., was born in Nelson County, Kentucky; resided at Elizabethtown; was elected a representative from Kentucky in the Nineteenth Congress as a Democrat, serving from December 5, 1825, to March 3, 1827.

Yulee, David Levy, was born at St. Thomas, in the West Indies, in 1811; was called David Levy; he was taken by his father to Virginia early in life, and received a classical education; removed to Florida in 1824; studied law, and engaged in planting; was elected a delegate from the Territory of Florida in the Twenty-seventh Congress as a Democrat; was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth Congress, serving from May 31, 1841, to March 3, 1845; changed his name to David Levy Yulee; was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention; was elected a United-States senator from Florida as a Democrat, serving from December 1, 1845, to March 3, 1851; was president of the Atlantic and Gulf Railroad; was again elected a senator, serving from December 3, 1855, until 1860, when he retired from the Senate to join the Southern Confederacy; he was confined in Fort Pulaski as a prisoner of state in 1865.

Zollicoffer, Felix K., was born in Maury County, Tennessee, May 10, 1812; received a public-school education; learned the art of printing; edited several county newspapers; was chosen State printer of Tennessee in 1835; became editor of "The Nashville Banner" in 1842; was comptroller of the State treasury of Tennessee 1845-1849; was a State senator in 1849; was elected a representative from Tennessee in the Thirty-third Congress as a State-rights Whig, receiving 5,808 votes against 5,157 votes for Allison, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, receiving 6,958 votes against 4,857 votes for Torbett, Democrat; was re-elected to the Thirty-fifth Congress, receiving 6,088 votes against 5,580 votes for Quarles, Democrat, serving from December 5, 1853, to March 3, 1859; was a delegate to the Peace Convention of 1861; was appointed a brigadier-general in the Confederate army July 9, 1861; was commander of the camp of instruction at Trousdale, Tennessee; was assigned to the command of the military department of Tennessee August 8, 1861; was defeated in an engagement at Camp Wildcat, Kentucky, October 21, 1861, by General Schoepf, and at Mill Spring by General Thomas, receiving a mortal wound in a personal encounter with General Fry of Kentucky January 19, 1862.

Zubley, John Joachim, was born at St. Gall, Switzerland, August 27, 1724; received a classical education; studied theology; immigrated to Georgia, and was ordained as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Savannah in 1760; was a prominent revolutionist; was a member of the Provincial Congress of Georgia; was chosen a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1775, but opposed the Declaration of Independence, and, having been denounced as a traitor by Judge Chase, resigned; returning to Georgia, he was accused of having furnished information to Sir James Wright, the royal governor, and narrowly escaped popular resentment; died in the vicinity of Savannah July 23, 1781.

